RED NAVY SAVES ARMY IN FINN TRAP 45 DAYS

MOSCOW, Oct. 4 (AP).—A Russian version of Dunkirk in which a swarm of soviet naval vessels on Lake Ladoga saved powerful Russian fighting forces which battled their way free after 45 days in a Finnish trap was reported tonight by Red Fleet, organ of the Russian navy.

More than 18,000 Finns were said to have been killed as the trapped Red army of Col. Bondarev smashed thru to the shore of the lake northeast of Leningrad and embarked in a hail of artillery fire.

Red Fleet said Col. Bondarev's own rear guard held off the fiercely attacking Finns for three days while the main soviet force embarked on a vast fleet of transports, monitors, cutters, and barges.

Save Rear Guard.

On the fourth day, Red Fleet said, Russian warships took off the last of the rear guard—saving thousands of Red soldiers and adding strong new forces to the circle of men and guns guarding Leningrad.

Striking with planes, tanks, and man power, the Red army was asserted in battle front dispatches to have unleashed full force counterattacks from the Arctic to the Black sea, hurling back German, Finnish, and Rumanian troops and recapturing dozens of small communities.

An 18 mile advance in four days, capture of 30 settlements and the infliction of 15,000 casualties on the Germans was reported from the southwestern front.

Tass, official news agency, declared that on the far northern front two regiments of German mountain troops which entrenched along the east bank of the Litsa river for an offensive against the port of Murmansk, had been driven back across the river with 1,500 dead and many wounded.

Fleet Battles for Crimea.

Red Fleet also reported a violent battle raging on the approaches to Crimea, with the axis attackers concentrating fresh forces and the soviet Black sea fleet and air force supporting the defending land troops. Red air squadrons were reported making two and three raids daily to break up the German motorized columns.

Sailors of the Baltic fleet were reported by Tass to have carried out another counterattack, spearheaded by massive tanks which crushed German field guns, machine gun nests, light tanks, and armored cars, driving the attackers of Leningrad back across a river.

The Russians reported the recapture of an important railway junction town on the Karelian isthmus and said Finnish forces had suffered heavy losses in numerous battles in the wooded lake country northeast of Leningrad.

The soviet information bureau said that three German transports were sunk in the Barents sea.

Seek to Trap Nazis.

LONDON, Oct. 4 (AP).—Large scale Russian counterattacks on the flank of the German drive against the Crimean peninsula, aimed at turnabout entrapment of the Germans and relief of the Crimea's defenders, was reported today by an authoritative London source.

The drive against the Germans' Perekop isthmus positions was believed to be moving along the main railway running from Melitopol into the peninsula. Melitopol lies about 80 miles northeast of the Crimea, in the southern Ukraine, and is an important metal working center near the Sea of Azov.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Oct. 2 [Delayed] (AP).—A United States naval court has convicted four American marines of having raped an Icelandic woman and has sentenced them to terms in Portsmouth prison ranging from 10 to 20 years. The men convicted and the sentences imposed: John F. Freeman and Raleigh N. Ross, 20 years each; Earl W. Pharr, 15 years, and John Marx Junious, 10 years.

PACES 1,280 FT. ROOST AWAITING RESCUE EFFORT

Climbers and Blimp to Brave Task.

Sundance, Wyo., Oct. 5 [Sunday] [Special].—While park officials inveighed against stunts which endanger both stunter and rescuers a daredevil parachutist nervously paced his lofty roost atop 1,280 foot Devils Tower and entered upon his fifth day of awaiting rescue this morning. His rescue may prove as spectacular as his arrival on the pinnacle.

The lonely king of the tower of rock is George Hopkins, 30 years old, a diminutive, wise cracking former RAF parachute instructor. In dropping from a plane to the obelisk's top to win a bet of $50, he has become the greatest unnatural attraction in a state famed for its freaks of nature.

A crowd of nearly 2,000 persons gathered at the base of the tower last night watching the cautious efforts to scale the sheer sides of rock. But the scenery-wise spectators, most of them residents of this area, remained outside of the enclosure to which national park service officials charge tourists 50 cents admission.

Climbers to Try Rescue.

A still larger crowd is expected today when a well planned attempt will be made by expert mountain climbers to bring Hopkins down from his perch. If that fails, he may be rescued by a blimp or a helicopter.

At Akron, O., the blimp Reliance was ordered to take off for the scene this morning. However it is not expected to arrive here until Tuesday because its limited flying range necessitates making the trip in short flights.

Earl Brockelby of Rapid City, S. D., from whom Hopkins won the bet, has asked a west coast airplane company to send its helicopter, a vertical flying machine.

Experts Going to Tower.

En route here by plane from New York to offer advice and assistance were Jack Durrance, New Hampshire skier who successfully climbed the tower several years ago, and Merrill McLane of Rockport, Mass., also an experienced mountain climber.

Superintendent Edmund B. Rogers of Yellowstone park, who also is supervisor of Devil's Tower National park, arrived here this afternoon to take charge of the rescue operations.

Rogers described Hopkins' adventure as "the kind of stunt with which we are not sympathetic." A Rocky Mountain National park ranger, Ernest Field, took part in yesterday's rescue attempt but was forced to turn back after he nearly fell from a height of 350 feet.

Peak Is Lava Blister.

"We of the park service," said Superintendent Rogers, "hate to jeopardize the lives of our men for a stunt that some one thought was smart."

Devil's Tower is a geological freak believed to be unduplicated on the earth's surface. There are several theories concerning its formation but the one generally accepted is that it

BRIDGES PLEDGES AID FOR F. D. R. IN BATTLE 'TO DEFEAT NAZISM'

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 4 [Special]. —Harry Bridges, state CIO director and west coast radical longshoremen's leader, facing deportation as a communist, today pledged full and complete support to President Roosevelt in "the fight to defeat Naziism" and urged the 440 delegates to the annual state CIO convention and members of the CIO unions to do likewise.

The declaration lined up Bridges and the west coast CIO unions on the side of Philip Murray, CIO president, as opposed to the noninterventionist position of John L. Lewis, former president of the CIO.

"We will follow and support the President in the all-out program of aid to defeat fascism," Bridges said. "We pledge ourselves to work toward the attainment of the highest productivity of labor in producing the machines and the materials to wage the fight against Hitler. We pledge our determination to do all to see that production continues in order that the efforts may not be marred or blocked by strikes or stoppages of work."

Young Lady's Self-Control Earns Reward

Tiny Dolores Johansen laughed happily last night and licked at an ice cream cone. A few hours earlier she had experienced a harrowing and painful hour.

Dolores, 2 years old, and her sister, Carol, 5, had been playing in the yard of Johansen home at 3211 Beach avenue. They decided to go into the Johansen basement apartment.

They had just walked down the few steps when Dolores put her foot into an uncovered drainpipe and slipped down to her thigh.

Merely Tightens Her Lips.

Carol shrieked, but Dolores, frightened, tightened her lips. Their parents, Gertrude and Ralph Johansen, after 15 minutes of pulling gently, tried to lift the child from the trap.

Nothing seemed to work. Neighbors gathered and offered advice. Others tried to free Dolores, but without success. Despite the pain, the child's eyes remained dry.

Once, when her chin began to quiver and a hint of tears appeared, Dolores perked up when her father said, "Honey, don't cry and I'll get you an ice cream cone."

A call to the fire department brought Capt. Henry Spannenberg and a four man rescue squad. First they poured soapy water around the child's leg, attempting to help her slide it out. But still it held tight. Oil was poured into the drainpipe. It, too, failed to work.

Chopping Brings No Whimper.

For almost an hour the rescue squad tried vainly several methods. Finally the firemen brought out their picks and began chopping the concrete around the pipe. Not a whimper from Dolores.

In a few minutes, the firemen had broken the pipe from the outside and Capt. Spannenberg reached in, straightened the foot and pushed out the leg, which was unmarked except for a slight swelling around the ankle.

As calm as she had been when the rescue attempts were being made, Dolores turned to her father. "Ice cream cone, ice cream cone," she cried.

And the Johansens went off to the nearest drug store, with this tribute by Capt. Spannenberg to the plucky child: "She was a brave little girl. Braver than a lot of grownups in a similar spot would've been."

EVEN CHILDREN MUST HELP PAY FOR WAR WHEN THEY VISIT ZOO

School children, a hitherto untapped source of federal taxes, also will share the burden of new excise taxes which became effective last Wednesday. This became certain yesterday after officers of the Brookfield zoo, Field museum, Adler planetarium, and Shedd aquarium announced the tax would be collected from all visitors including children 12 years old and older.

The first 10 per cent levies will be collected at the zoo and museum tomorrow. The other institutions started collecting the tax last week. Clay Judson, a member of the zoo executive committee, said "it is unfortunate the government has chosen to penalize educational and charitable institutions in this manner."

Robert Bean, assistant director of the zoo, said the tax will be collected only on days when admission is charged—Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday. On those days children more than 12 years old must pay three cents, and adults must pay 25 cents plus three cents tax.

The three other institutions charge the same fee. Free days at the museum are Thursday, Saturday, and Sunday. At the aquarium and the planetarium free days are Wednesday, Saturday, and Sunday.

Girl, 15, Killed; Shock Fatal to Grandmother

A Libertyville Township high school girl and her maternal grandmother died yesterday—both as the result of an unusual automobile accident in which the grandmother was not even involved. They were Miss Joyce Bornell, 15 years old, and Mrs. Anna Casperson, 64, both of Diamond Lake.

Miss Bornell died in Victory Memorial hospital, Waukegan, of injuries received Friday night when a mule, struck and hurled into the air by the car in which she was riding, fell upon the car. Her grandmother died several hours before Miss Bornell's death, of heart disease.

Excitement Causes Death.

Coroner John L. Taylor said excitement resulting from news of the accident was fatal. A double funeral will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday in the chapel at 4920 Irving Park road.

The car struck the mule in Buckley road near St. Mary's road, three miles east of Libertyville in Lake county. Three others in the automobile were injured.

News was received yesterday of the death of Walter E. Kistner Jr., 18 years old, in an automobile collision near Brownsville, O., Friday night. Kistner was the son of the vice president and treasurer of the A. C. Allyn & Co. investment bond firm. The young man was a student at Denison university in Granville, O. His home was at 1929 West 101st street.

Singer's Daughter Killed.

Sue Ann Wilson, 8, died yesterday in Valparaiso, Ind., of injuries received Friday night when she stepped from a bus into the path of an automobile. She was the daughter of Frank Wilson, a W-G-N radio singer. The automobile was driven by Gregory Bogoslawski, Valparaiso.

Peter Tenebra, 34 years old, 1417 North 21st street, Melrose Park, died in County hospital shortly after his automobile collided with a truck at Ashland avenue and 24th street. The driver of the truck was Eden E. Padlock, 34, 3632 Flournoy street.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday, 702 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 485 were killed in Chicago, where 19,203 were injured in the same period.

British Control 45% of Ships Sailing 7 Seas

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 4.—Great Britain—by hook or crook—has gained control of nearly half the world's merchant shipping. Today this reservoir is being drawn upon in the grim warfare sprawling over the vast tumbling ocean wastes.

Subtracting sinkings thru enemy action and other maritime losses, the British have coralled a total of 25,757,000 tons of shipping. That amounts to 45 per cent of the world tonnage, which has shrunk by more than 10 million tons since the war started. The British controled slightly less than 31 per cent before the war.

The increase came about thru the beneficence of Uncle Sam, by arrangements with the exiled governments of German conquered countries which still have large fleets sailing the seas, thru seizure of axis vessels, by building new ships, and by chartering or buying up old ones.

Gross Tonnage Acquired.

A table which includes British acquisitions of ocean-going gross tonnage since the war started follows:

	*Tonnage.
British empire shipping before war	21,000,000
Allied shipping taken over and available for British war effort	7,540,000
Acquired from United States	640,000
President Roosevelt's ship pool available to British	2,000,000
Axis shipping seized	448,000
Replacements [building in British empire]	2,000,000
Total	33,628,000

*Sources include: United States Maritime commission, British Shipping mission, Lloyds of London, British Press service, American buro of shipping, officials of exiled governments.

A table of losses follows:

	Tonnage.
British, allied and neutral losses published by admiralty up to July 1, 1941	7,000,000
Losses for last three months [estimated from Prime Minister Winston Churchill's speech revealing they were cut by two-thirds]	471,000
Losses from causes other than enemy action, such as collision, running aground in blackout, etc.	400,000
Total	7,871,000

The net figure of 25,757,000 tons now under British control is arrived at by subtracting the loss figure from the 33,628,000 ton total, representing acquisitions since the war plus the tonnage on hand when hostilities began.

Damaged Ships Excluded.

These calculations deal only with vessels afloat and do not take into account ships which are under repair for damages suffered from U-boats, surface raiders, or the big German bombers looping out over the convoys from their bases in France or Norway. The British have not made such data public.

Questions involving specific information on world tonnage were asked of Sir Arthur Salter, head of the British Shipping Mission and a leading authority on mercantile fleets, during the course of a talk with this correspondent.

Sir Arthur, a friendly but uncommunicative person, shook his head at each question.

"I'm sorry, but we cannot give out precise figures," he said, "on the theory their disclosure would be helpful to the enemy. The enemy isn't telling us such things, either."

No Precise Figures Given.

Sir Arthur was asked whether, in view of the tonnage taken over, the shipping outlook hadn't brightened, and now is not so serious for the British.

"Well, we have been carrying on," he replied. "We have lived and kept our factories working full time. I

International Code Shelved at Sea.

Read "Problem of Convoys," the story of Britain's task in keeping its sea lanes open, on page 8 of the Graphic section.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—A momentous step in the administration's foreign policy program was taken today by Secretary of State Cordell Hull with the announcement that the United States no longer will abide by the principles of international law in regard to German submarine and raider activities.

The "self-defense" of America supersedes previous conceptions of international law, Hull declared at a press conference marked by the unusual force and vigor of the secretary's remarks.

Hull had announced the sinking of the American owned tanker I. C. White as "another act of lawlessness, piracy, and attempted frightfulness" in connection with Germany's movement for world conquest.

Under British Control.

The I. C. White, which had been transferred to Panamanian registry, was sunk Sept. 27 by a torpedo off the coast of Brazil. En route from Curacao to Capetown, the White carried a crew of 38 officers and men.

Reporters remarked that the ship reportedly had been lent to the British under the terms of the aid-to-Britain act and therefore was under British direction. As Britain is a belligerent, they noted, were not the Germans acting in accord with the principles of international law in attacking the ship?

Hull replied that he had not yet obtained detailed information on the incident. Then he launched into a discussion of international law.

Move to Halt Conquests.

The situation now, he said, is unusual and unprecedented, with every indication of an attempted conquest of the whole earth by Germany.

The world-wide nature of the movement for conquest, he added, gives every nation affected the inherent right of self-defense. He emphasized that mere abstractions of international law, such as have applied to regional wars, must be construed and dealt with now in the light of self-defense.

It follows, he said, that those phases of international law which have applied to local and regional wars should not apply to the right of self-defense against attempted world conquest.

The policy of aiding Britain is affected every time a German submarine sinks a vessel carrying supplies under this program, he declared.

Necessary to Insure Aid.

If the government were to sit back and say nothing could be done because some of the shipments had been torpedoed by a German submarine, it would be the end of the American policy in British aid, he declared.

The point is, he continued, that a country bent on conquest against some new area of the world proceeds to try to secure control of the high seas and deny the right of the country attempting to defend itself to take acts necessary in that defense.

If abstractions of international law could be invoked to limit acts of the defending nation, then no country could defend itself except as the aggressor dictated, he said.

DEATH RATE FOR PARIS CHILDREN INCREASES 50%

VICHY, France, Oct. 4 (AP).—The child mortality rate in Paris has increased by nearly one-half over the pre-war level, the public health council of the Seine department reported today. It summarized the situation as one of "prolonged famine."

The report gave the present death rate of children less than 10 years old as 45 per cent above the last five year average, while the rate for the total population rose 9 per cent.

The report predicted one infant in every 10 born this winter would die.

"Armistice skinniness" was introduced by the report as a new medical term.

NEW ARCHANGEL PLANS BRING UP FIASCO OF 1918

AEF Sent to Russia Still Is a Mystery.

The possibility that Archangel, lonely and dismal Russian port in the Arctic, may be a route for entrance of American and British war supplies for Russia recalls one of the strangest adventures of the World war—the sending of an American military expedition to that area for 11 months in 1918 and 1919. This cost hundreds of American lives and millions of American dollars and has been described as futile and needless.

No completely satisfactory explanation has ever been given for ordering 4,487 American enlisted men and officers to undergo the rigors of war, disease, and cold in the dreary Russian north under a British commander. The expedition was undertaken at the request of foreign governments in an atmosphere of uncertainty, conflicting rumors, and diplomatic intrigue.

Not at War with Russia.

The Allies were not at war with Russia, altho Russia did make the treaty of Brest-Litovsk with the central powers in March, 1919, under which hostilities were terminated between them and Russia's western border was fixed by Germany. This treaty, however, later was abrogated. Since the allies and Russia were not fighting, the men who survived the tragic Archangel maneuver could not understand why they were kept there seven months after the armistice between the allies and the central powers was signed on Nov. 11, 1918.

The port of Archangel was founded by Ivan the Terrible and most of the time since has been a British trading post for the exchange of furs, lumber, and flax. The port is on the White sea, which is frozen for at least six months of the year.

[In London recently Laurence Cadbury, leader of the British economic mission, which met recently with a similar American mission in Moscow, said he hoped Russian ice breakers could keep Archangel open all year round.]

British general headquarters, which largely instigated the 1918 expedition, defined its objects as:

1. To save the large body of Czech soldiers who had broken away from the Austrian armies on the Russian front and were making their way overland to Vladivostok with the intention of going by sea from there to France to reënter the war on the allied side. Several thousand of the Czechs were believed to be strung along the Siberian railway leading to Vladivostok;
2. To stop the Germans from exploiting the resources of southeastern Russia, and
3. To prevent the northern ports of European Russia from being used for German submarine bases.

Poole's Grandiose Plan.

And here is an American dispatch from Washington, stating the expedition's aim: "The only present object for which American troops will be employed will be to guard military stores which may be subsequently needed by Russian forces and to render such aid as may be acceptable to the Russians in the organization of their own defense."

The advance party of Americans landed in Archangel on Aug. 3, 1918 and by Sept. 4 there were 4,344 enlisted men and 143 officers. Other British, French, and Canadian forces raised the total to about 12,000.

The Americans, as well as the others, were assigned to the command of Brig Gen. F. C. Poole, the British ranking officer in Archangel.

Actually, Poole had indorsed the grandiose British plan of invading Russia with this small force of 12,000.

The American troops were drawn from the 85th division of the national army. Most of them were Wisconsin and Michigan boys. They had been brought to Europe to fight in France and had not dreamed they would be dropped into an arctic vastness.

Even the prelude to the Archangel venture was tragic. At sea, en route to the port, 500 of the Americans were stricken with the influenza. On landing there was no adequate provision for the sick. Many died.

Gen. Poole ordered the majority of his troops to advance southward, leaving a garrison to guard Archangel.

Hoped to Reach Railroad.

Part of the expedition hoped to reach the Trans-Siberian railroad at Vologda. After a brief victory over retreating bolsheviks, this force was surprised to meet serious opposition from the Reds about 100 miles south of Archangel.

Despite the Reds' fierce resistance, Gen. Poole, safe in headquarters at Archangel, ordered greater aggressiveness.

The Americans and allied troops fought heroically, only their courage and determination preventing complete annihilation. Then the armistice was signed, and hostilities ended in France.

But the soldiers of North Russia fought on. They knew then that their war was not related to the world war and the feeling grew they were fighting for no reason and were forgotten by the rest of the world.

There was another American expedition in Russia—a small detachment set ashore at Murmansk, 375 miles northwest of Archangel, to guard the Leningrad-Murmansk railroad. These troops fought their way against Russia's rigorous terrain as far as Lakes Sec and Vygo, approximately 400 miles south of Murmansk, in their "protective" expedition.

Cable to Col. House.

In January, 1919, William C. Bullitt of the American state department [more recently United States ambassador to soviet Russia and France] cabled Col. House at the Paris peace conference: "The 12,000 American, British, and French troops at Archangel are no longer serving any useful purpose. . . . They are in considerable danger of destruction."

About this time the British general, W. E. Ironside, was appointed commanding officer in Poole's place. He announced at once that all ideas of a further offensive were being abandoned and that the fronts would be content to hold their ground.

How well the Americans and the other allied troops held their positions was evident from the statement of a Red prisoner: "Our losses are terrible. The commissars cannot understand your resistance. We are 20 to 1 and have many guns. Our commander expected to take Bereznik in three days, but the soldiers will not attack any more over the snow against your awful machine guns."

In April the thaws forced the Reds to withdraw their artillery before it became mired. In May, 1919, the "American expeditionary force, North Russia," was ordered to return to America. It did so in June, sailing away with a record of 2,485 casualties.

17 PLANES HUNT MISSING BOMBER WITH 6 ABOARD

Kingman, Ariz., Oct. 4 (AP).—Seventeen army bombing planes crisscrossed the vast, mountainous expanses of northern Arizona all day in an unsuccessful search for a twin motored B-18, which disappeared in a storm Thursday night with six officers and men aboard. The planes were from bases at Albuquerque, N. M., and Tucson, Ariz.

The hunt turned to the Peach Springs area, northeast of here, after H. W. Hutchinson, Santa Fe railroad agent there, informed the civil aeronautics authority an Indian had reported a plane flying low in the region Thursday night. The planes, however, searched the area without results.

Two Naval Flyers Killed.

San Diego, Cal., Oct. 4 (AP).—Two navy flyers perished today in the crash of a scout bomber into the bay near the San Diego Yacht club. The dead were Ensigns G. A. Jungjohann of Crockett, Cal., pilot, and J. J. Brewer, aviation machinist's mate of San Diego.

Jungjohann's body was recovered, but divers still were searching for Brewer.

The navy said Brewer's parents live in Superior, Wis.

Quit Drawing Blinds on Trains, Britain Is Urged

LONDON, Oct. 4.—An appeal to lift the "widow's mourning" from railway cars was made today by Lord Quickswood, provost of Eton, who declared the precautions taken to shield the train lights nightly are inconvenient and unnecessary. Altho admitting train lights should be extinguished when an alert is sounded, Quickswood criticized the additional measure of keeping all blinds drawn whether there is an air raid or not. He complained that even in daylight the windows are surrounded with what he described as the "widow's mourning."

FINNS DISCOVER RUSSIANS BUILT SECRET RAILWAY

Call 200 Mile Line One of War's Surprises.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Oct. 4.—Discovery by the Finns of a secret and strategic 200 mile Russian railroad used as a feeder line to supply fresh divisions to the far northern battlefront has provided one of the great surprises of the war, it was revealed here today.

The line connects the Vologda-Archangel and the Leningrad-Murmansk railroads. It runs thru Onega, then skirts the southern shore of the Gulf of Onega, which is a part of the White sea, and continues northwest to Soroka, where it joins the railway to Murmansk.

Existence of the secret line was learned when the Finns captured Petrozavodsk, on the western shore of Lake Onega, about 200 miles south of Soroka. Captured Russian soldiers revealed that many of the town's 100,000 inhabitants had been sent to Archangel over the secret road. The rest of the populace had been moved to Archangel thru the Stalin canal before Finnish bombers put the locks out of action.

Only Soldiers in City.

There were no civilian inhabitants in the town when the Finnish soldiers entered, and the soldiers found there were reported to have put up only feeble resistance. They told their captors, it was said, that their officers had deserted them and their political commissars who had not been killed had committed suicide when it was certain the town would fall.

The Finns now have given the town the Finnish name of Aanislinna. Other towns in the conquered provinces of eastern Karelia also have had their Slavic names changed to the Finnish equivalent.

Finnish armies now are reported operating an offensive campaign along the Leningrad-Murmansk railroad north of Petrozavodsk. They were expected to be joined by other forces pressing farther north toward Kemi, another point on the railway.

Finns Hold Major Points.

Most of the important points in eastern Karelia are reported in Finnish hands. It is also claimed that important and powerfully equipped Red armies on this front have been destroyed.

With the harvest in Finland now complete, it is expected heavy new reserves for the army will be available. Replacements already are said to be arriving at the front.

DRAFT INDUCTION TO BE CUT DOWN DURING HOLIDAYS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4 (AP).—Selective service officials today said that the national induction quota for December probably will approximate 18,000 conscripts, about one-third the normal monthly number, because of the Christmas holidays.

Inductions virtually will be suspended in the latter part of the month, said Maj. Ernest M. Culligan, public relations officer, in order not to remove registrants from their homes in the holiday season.

The December quota is not indicative of any contemplated reduction in enrollment for the land forces, he emphasized, and a proportionately larger number may be inducted in January.

Inductions have been averaging about 60,000 a month, altho varying widely in some cases from 200,000 to 20,000. The December expectation is tentative only, Maj. Culligan said. During the recent Jewish holidays inductions largely were suspended in Jewish districts, Culligan said.

SH-H-H! OPM HAS BANNED BELLS ON FIRE ENGINES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4 (AP).—The Office of Production Management told fire engine manufacturers today to leave the bells off new fire engines because an ordinary siren would do the job—and material would be saved for armament needs.

The ban on bells was announced by Douglas C. Mackeachie, director of purchases, who said:

"Fire engines will be able to get to fires just as fast and will be able to fight the fires just as efficiently after they get there under this program; the chief difference is that they won't look as gaudy going and coming."

COL. M'CORMICK ASSERTS PEOPLE BUILT AMERICA

Declares They Know How to Resist Tyranny.

The American way of life was discussed last night by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, in a speech over W-G-N and the Mutual network. He spoke on the Chicago Theater of the Air.

Col. McCormick said that it was the American spirit of the people which created the American concept of freedom, and that it was the people — not the politicians — who built America. The people today are faithful to the ideal of American freedom in the American way, he added, and know how to protect it against foreign tyranny and, if necessary, against domestic tyranny.

Col. McCormick also mentioned the service of the press in preserving American freedom. He asserted that, "in spite of an increasing secrecy and censorship," and despite every difficulty, the news is gathered, confirmed, and published. The result is, he added, that Americans are the best informed people in the world today.

TEXT OF ADDRESS

The text of Col. McCormick's talk follows:

"We are here tonight to enjoy the gayety and the entertainment of Franz Lehar's 'Merry Widow,' which begins the second operetta season of the Chicago Theater of the Air.

"It's a good reason for meeting. It's only in America that we could so meet. Ours is the only country left where men can meet without the uninvited guests of fear and treachery and suspicion and hate that attend every European gathering. We are Americans, and we are still free.

"We are still free to live and plan as we please. We are still free to agree and disagree. We are still free to speak as we wish and to weigh the words of other speakers openly, honestly, and in good faith. We are still free to worship in the manner which seems best to us. We, all of us, the greatest and the least of us, tho threatened, still enjoy the unalienable rights of life and liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Problems of Freedom.

"To those of us whose services are made possible by freedom of speech and freedom of the press, American freedom of expression takes on a tremendous importance in an age of distortion and repression. We who bring the nation news must gather that news in spite of an increasing secrecy and censorship. But make no mistake about it. Despite every difficulty, the news is gathered. It is verified. It is published. It is read.

"Day after day, a free press unbridled and uncorrupted, serving a free people, sees to it that the American public is informed, the only people in the world so informed.

"And so it is with entertainment. We are free to bring you the best radio programs we know how to produce. You are free to listen to the programs you prefer. The American radio audience is not confined to official propaganda. It is free to enjoy the finest entertainment the world affords.

Forget Too Frequently.

"It is free because America still holds fredom itself the dearest of all her liberties. That freedom is, and remains, a thing of the American spirit. With the greatest respect for the founders of our republic, and for the structure of law and liberty they created in the constitution, we too frequently forget that neither the winning of freedom nor the establishment of government, in themselves, made certain the greatness and the glory of America.

"The rights of free men and the powers of free nations were dreamed and dared many times before the signers mutually pledged their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor. Liberties have been won before and after 1776.

"As all of you know, even our constitution did not long remain unique. Many nations copied its provisions. Many republics modeled themselves on ours. The bill of rights has been written again and again into the basic law of new governments. And yet nations copying our American constitution, and thereby seeking to achieve and to maintain American liberties, have failed to realize democracy and freedom. Why?

Substance Is Ignored.

"The reason is that such nations have sought after the shadow and ignored the substance of our way of life. They have sought to found freedom on a structure of government, and not in the souls of the people. The love of liberty which brought America to birth and the spirit which gave, and continues to give, vitality to the American republic, were not created by the declaration. They were not guaranteed life in perpetuity by the written fiat of constitution.

"The fact is the American spirit created the American pattern. It set the bounds and prescribed the powers of government. The legal and political structure so ordained was intended to be the sword and shield of the common citizen. Its established powers were conceived as the powers of a servant and not a master. Far from being all-powerful and self-sufficient, our government was devised as a government of limited powers and qualified sovereignty.

"Against an all-powerful, total, absolute government the founding fathers set up a whole series of barriers—the separation of powers, the system of checks and balances, the bill of rights. They sought to protect us not only against wicked and wanton men, but against too ambitious men.

Division of Powers.

"The division of powers was to limit the fields in which even our elected rulers might exercise their sweeping judgments in our behalf. The fathers were careful to reserve all powers not expressly granted to the federal government to the states and to the people. And outside and apart from government they left room for a private, an individual, a free, and an enterprising way of life.

"It is that free way of life, a way of private enterprise and personal initiative, that in 150 years of achievement has come to be known as the American way. Under it Americans worked out their formulæ for subduing the wilderness. In accord with it they have molded diverse peoples into a steadfast community of will and idea.

"Because of it they have enjoyed undreamed of opportunity and incredible freedoms. What those freedoms meant—actually, concretely, historically in the building of our nation—has been happily illustrated here in Chicagoland during the last decade.

"The years from 1830 to 1840 saw the founding of many of the towns and cities of northern Illinois. We, in our time, have witnessed and taken part in the centennial celebrations of those foundings—the largest was the Chicago World's Fair of 1933.

The Prairie Towns.

"What were the names of those prairie towns established 100 years ago? Some of them, of course, were Indian place names: Chicago, Peoria, Waukegan. Others were classical names drawn from the pioneer's scanty store of book learning.

"But the great majority were named for men who founded the western settlements. Evanston for John Evans, one of the founders of Northwestern university; Wheaton for John and Jesse Wheaton, pioneer railroad and real estate men; Danville for Dan Beckwith, a pioneer trader; Wilmette, for Antoine Ouilmette, a French-Canadian trapper and its first white settler; Galesburg for George Washington Gale, a minister. I could go on with a hundred more.

"These towns and hundreds like them were founded thruout new America, not by government, not by corporations, but by individuals. Their heritage is our common American heritage of personal and economic self-reliance. The spirit which built them built the nation. That spirit will guard the liberties of Americans.

"I have spoken of the American way of life as a way of life outside and apart from government. That American life allots to government its proper sphere and expects government to stay within that sphere.

People Build America.

"It was the people who built America—not the politicians. And those same people place their representatives in public office to foster and protect their precious liberties. By the democratic process we shall insist upon our officials being faithful to their trust. We, the people, shall be faithful to the ideals of American freedom in the American way.

"We shall know how to protect and maintain that freedom against all foreign tyranny.

"And if necessary, we must be prepared to maintain it against domestic tyranny."

FREE MEDICAL SYSTEM VOTED IN NEW ZEALAND

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Oct. 4.—The house of representatives today passed a measure to create a system of free medical care on Nov. 1. It was predicted free surgical treatment will follow. The bill permits doctors to practice without direct payment by the state but gives them no right to collect unpaid fees thru the courts. Some government leaders fear a result may be high fees, while a patient may obtain not more than the equivalent of $1.50 for each visit by his doctor from the government's social security fund. Prime Minister Peter Fraser insisted on changes in the original measure, which doctors had called conscription.

Brandeis in Coma; Doctors Fear Ex-Justice Near Death

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4 (AP).—Louis D. Brandeis, 84 years old, retired justice of the Supreme court, lapsed into a coma tonight and physicians were understood to have despaired of saving his life. Brandeis, whose liberal views won him wide renown during his 23 years on the Supreme bench, suffered a heart attack at his home on Wednesday.

W-G-N REVIVES 'MERRY WIDOW' IN 1ST NIGHT GLAMOR

Broadcast to a Continent by Mutual.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Franz Lehar's "The Merry Widow," the glamor packed operetta whose tunes half the world was humming and dancing to 35 years ago, came warmly to life again last night in the main studio of the W-G-N building.

More important still, it came warmly to life in hundreds of thousands of homes thruout North America, for the performance was broadcast not only by W-G-N and its sister station, the frequency modulation outlet W59C, but also by the coast-to-coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

This was the opening feature of the 1941-'42 season of the Chicago Theater of the Air, and a tingling first night air was everywhere apparent.

Stage Loaded with Talent.

From a stage so loaded with talent that it all but creaked came the type of gay, brisk, fast moving performance that spoke of careful planning, almost endless rehearsal, and genuine enthusiasm. From the auditorium, where not a seat was to be had, came the applause and the laughter that are as meat and drink to stage people and that stimulate them to their most brilliant efforts.

The stars of the performance were Marion Claire, as Sonia; Allan Jones, as Prince Danilo, and Attilio Baggiore, as Jolidan. Henry Weber conducted and the W-G-N orchestra and chorus provided the musical foundation.

Speaking Cast Utilized.

As in other years, this season's Chicago Theater of the Air utilizes a speaking as well as a singing cast. Betty Winkler, Bret Morrison, and Olan Soule doubled for the three singers above. Marvin Mueller, Donna Reade, Bob Jellison, Alice Goodkin, Larylou Neumayer, Willard Waterman, and Malcolm Meacham played other of the parts. The narrator was John Weigel.

Producer William A. Bacher tied music, and dialog, and sound effect together into a neat, convincing whole.

Among the audience that braved the rain to attend the first night performance were such celebrities as Giovanni Martinelli, artistic director of the Chicago Opera company; Fortune Gallo, general director of the same organization; Henry E. Voegeli, manager of the Chicago Symphony orchestra; Edith Mason, renowned soprano.

HAWAII GRANTS GOVERNOR VAST DEFENSE POWERS

HONOLULU, Hawaii, Oct. 4 (AP).—A half million dollars for immediate use in further organizing the defenses of this strategic Pacific outpost was made available today by Gov. Joseph B. Poindexter's signing of the "M-day" bill. The measure grants the governor 25 broad powers unrivalled since the days of Hawaiian kings.

He could take over civilian powers and public lands, close roads, establish price ceilings, immunize the diseased, ration and requisition essential materials, suspend business, and require civilians to purchase gas masks and build bomb shelters.

The law appropriates $500,000 for defense construction, and provides for an additional million in case of an "extreme emergency," such as invasion. Gov. Poindexter retains the powers under the bill until June 30, 1943.

JAPS TO BREAK TIES WITH POLES, CLOSE EMBASSY

TOKIO, Japan, Oct. 4 (AP).—Vice Premier Minister Amau was reported reliably to have informed the Polish embassy today that diplomatic relations would be broken off tonight and the embassy staff would have a month to quit Japan. It was understood the Poles were asking their exiled government in London for instruction.

With the exception of Czecho-Slovakia, this was the first instance in which Japan withdrew recognition of a country conquered by Germany. The Netherlands, Belgian, Norwegian, and Danish governments still have missions in Tokio.

A Japanese statement on the action said: "The imperial government, having decided to close its embassy in Poland, has completed the necessary procedures for the closure. The government simultaneously considers that the Polish embassy in Tokio has fulfilled its duty, and notification to that effect has been made to the Polish ambassador."

FRANCE MOVES TO CUT RED TAPE FROM FARMERS

VICHY, France, Oct. 4.—Minister of Agriculture Pierre Caziot has taken steps, it was announced today, to keep France's farmers from falling victims to burocratic red tape.

Under a new law, the farmers will be required to make statistical returns only twice a year, in May and November, and no government department may demand statistics without the consent of the ministry of agriculture.

Country newspapers for months have been filled with notices enjoining farmers to provide the government immediately with information on the sowing of cereals, the number of live stock, the potato harvest, and other subjects.

Things had come to such a point that farmers passed a great part of their time in the village mayor's office scratching their heads as they strove to fill blanks with the figures demanded.

REDS MASS LAST BIT OF STRENGTH IN SOUTH: NAZIS

BERLIN, Oct. 4 (AP).—German scouts reconnoitering behind the Russian lines on the southern front were quoted in German war dispatches tonight as reporting feverish efforts by the Red army to line up the last ounce of reserve strength in the Ukraine.

Air observers, ground patrols and tank crews returning from reconnaissance ahead of the German forces all were said to have described the Russians as hastily mobilizing their fullest strength.

Unauthorized commentators here regarded this as a probable Russian counter-measure to the operations of great proportions which Adolf Hitler said Friday were already under way.

Silent on New Operations.

The high command communique from Hitler's eastern front headquarters reiterated today that large scale operations were in progress on the eastern front, but the Germans remained silent as to what these operations were or where they had been initiated.

Without disclosing places or names, German reports said Russian reservists now being taken prisoner in many instances were only partly uniformed, and that captured tanks and cannon were only a few days out of Russian factories.

At least one strong Russian counterthrust was acknowledged on the southern front, but German reports said this action cost the Red army 300 tanks destroyed.

Stop Red Attacks.

In the north two Russian counterattacks were said also to have been stopped. One, they said, was an effort to land troops on the Gulf of Finland shore and was repulsed after three Russian motor boats and two other vessels were sunk.

The other was described as a counter-thrust against the Finns below the Svir river in which the Finns destroyed 11 soviet tanks.

The air force's outstanding achievement was said to have been the sinking of a 20,000 ton troop transport in the Black sea.

The high command said "several fierce fires" were observed in overnight raids on both Leningrad and Moscow.

REPORT VATICAN, BRITAIN DISCUSS RAIDS ON ROME

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 4.—An important exchange of messages has been taking place between London and the Vatican regarding the British attitude toward the bombardment of Rome, it was learned today.

Some Vatican circles believed the mission to London of Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's special envoy to the Vatican, after meeting Pope Pius XII., had something to do with the question. D'Arcy Osborne, British minister to the Vatican, has delivered several notes on this issue, it was said.

The pope is understood to hold that Rome should not be bombed, but it is believed he has received no assurance except that Rome will not be bombed if Cairo is not attacked.

New Governor of Bermuda Pledges U. S. Co-operation

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Oct. 4 (AP).—Lord Knollys arrived today with Lady Knollys on the Yankee clipper and was driven to the public buildings, where he took the oath of office as Bermuda's governor. In his inaugural address he dedicated his office to the cause of coöperation with the United States as Britain's ally. American army and navy officers joined Bermuda government officials in welcoming him.

FIND CHILD'S BODY AT CLIPPER CRASH SCENE; 2D LOST

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Oct. 4 (AP).—The body of one child was recovered today from waters near here where a Pan American Airways Clipper water looped at the end of its flight from Miami, Fla., last night. It was not determined whether the body was that of Marie Russo, 2 years old, or Susan, 1, infant daughters of Mrs. Salvatore Russo who were lost when the plane made a crash landing.

Mrs. Russo and her third child, Frederick, 3, were taken from the plane along with the 23 other passengers and crew members saved. One of the Russo children still is missing. Mrs. Russo was holding Frederick when the plane crashed. She held firmly to him thru 15 minutes in which the occupants of the plane fought free of the wreckage and out of the water. Her other two children were passed out by passengers and lost in the confusion.

Salvatore Russo, a native of New York and chief machinist's mate in the United States navy, father of the children, was waiting for his family when the plane crashed less than a mile away. There was to have been a reunion after a separation of several months while Russo's wife waited in Port au Prince, Haiti, while Russo sought suitable quarters for them.

PARIS PAPERS PREDICT PETAIN WILL IMPRISON 'WAR GUILT' LEADERS

VICHY, France, Oct. 4 (AP).—The newspapers of German-occupied Paris today predicted that the former French leaders accused of "war guilt" would be sent to prison by Chief of State Marshal Petain upon recommendation of the council of political justice, which held its first informal meeting today. This would be the most severe penalty to which the defendants could be sentenced.

Those whom the Paris press predicted would be put behind fortress walls include: Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin, former Premiers Leon Blum, Edouard Daladier, and Paul Reynaud; former Minister of Interior and Colonies Georges Mandel, former Air Minister Guy La Chambre, and former National Defense Administrator Pierre Jacomet.

ROOSEVELT WAR POLICY OK'D BY REPUBLICAN AID

Boston, Mass., Oct. 4 (AP).—Lieut. Col. Sinclair Weeks, treasurer of the Republican national committee, called on Republicans in public life today to support the administration's foreign policy.

The Massachusetts Industrialist, in a statement, advocated the convoying of supply ships to Britain and asserted he was willing to back a move for use of the nation's armed forces, if necessary, to destroy Naziism. Weeks said, however, that his support of President Roosevelt was limited to the nation's current foreign policy.

"One of the tragedies of this situation," he declared, "is the wisdom of the Roosevelt foreign policy in contrast with its unsound approach to the administration of our domestic affairs. The greatest bottleneck to our production is right in the White House."

BRITISH CANNOT MAKE LIGHT OF MATCH FAMINE

LONDON, Oct. 4.—There is a match famine thruout England that is worse than the shortage of cigarets. Thanks to imports of American tobacco, cigarets are somewhat more easily obtainable.

The trouble is that many people, when they have cigarets, are without a match to light them. Few Britons use pocket lighters.

Housewives feel the match famine most, and in the country districts they are reverting to the use of the old flint and tinder. The match controler's department said the "famine" was largely a matter of transport. "Petrol economy in trade vehicles has forced wholesalers to cut off wasteful journeys," an official is quoted in the Evening Standard.

BRITISH PATROLS RIP AXIS POSTS IN TOBRUK AREA

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 4 (AP).—Successful raids against several sectors of the axis siege ring around Tobruk, Libya, were announced today by the British middle east general headquarters.

East of the beleaguered port, it said, the axis was forced to yield strong points, ammunition dumps were exploded by patrols in the center and "in other areas considerable casualties were inflicted on the enemy.

The communique said that in the frontier area, between axis lines in Libya and the British positions in Egypt, enemy patrols were driven back.

WHY THE DELAY? NAZIS CRY; 'ARSK 'ITLER,' IS REPLY

Two Prisoner Exchange Ships Held Up by Berlin.

NEWHAVEN, England, Oct. 4 (AP).—Some 1,500 wounded German prisoners awaiting return to their homeland hobbled about two British hospital ships today in this port 60 miles from freedom in Nazi occupied France shackled to Britain by a diplomatic mixup.

British sources said this first exchange of wounded prisoners between Germany and Britain was being held up by a German request that certain civilian prisoners be included, and by the contention that under the Geneva convention the Germans were entitled to all prisoners "medically unfit for further military service." The Germans were reported dissatisfied with a man-for-man exchange.

Expect Quick Settlement.

The belief was expressed that the issue would be ironed out quickly.

The wounded Germans who had expected by now to be with their comrades across the channel showed signs of nervousness this morning when the ships failed to leave as planned. The vessels missed the noon tide and thus were bound to be delayed until midnight at the earliest.

A seaman said the wounded looked questioningly at one another, and one asked him in English what caused the delay.

"You arsk 'itler," the seaman said he told the prisoner.

Shortly before lunch the prisoners who could were allowed to walk the deck. Many have only one leg and some have none. Some have artificial legs.

After lunch a few were allowed off the ship to walk the quayside under guard. Most of them were young men with old faces—lined and drawn. There was not much jollity.

A few held their heads high, but most walked with downcast looks. Occasionally they would stop and stare across the channel, while from a quayside shack a radio blared incongruously the "Song of India."

British authorities said the delay "is not a question of certain individuals but of certain categories of prisoners."

Claim Hess Isn't Involved.

They said Rudolf Hess, Adolf Hitler's deputy for party affairs who flew from Germany to Scotland months ago, was not among the prisoners involved in the German request.

In reply to the German request to include civilians the British were said to have "reaffirmed readiness to agree to mutual repatriation of British and German women, children, and men over military age, and that they also were prepared to send with the returning prisoners a first batch of some 60 German civilian internees."

This source added that "last night, however, the German government stated they would require further time to consider the British reply and that meantime they were not prepared to proceed with the exchange of prisoners of war."

It was said authoritatively that "if a satisfactory answer is not received by tomorrow morning German prisoners on board ship at Newhaven will be disembarked."

ROTTERDAM HIT IN 75TH RAID BY RAF BOMBERS

LONDON, OCT. 4 (AP).—Royal air force flyers took advantage of bright moonlight last night to lash at shipping centers of the four German-occupied countries across the channel from England.

Rotterdam, the Netherlands, took its 75th aerial pounding since the Germans captured it.

[DNB, German official news agency, said the bombers killed 60 and wounded 300 persons and sank a Dutch hospital ship in Rotterdam.]

Other raids reported by the British air ministry were made against Antwerp, in conquered Belgium; airdromes and docks at Aalborg in German occupied Denmark, an airdrome in northern France, and Brest and Dunkirk.

Seven Ships Sunk, Say Nazis.

BERLIN, Oct. 4 (AP).—U-boats have sunk four merchant vessels aggregating 28,000 tons in the Atlantic and German airmen sent three ships of an equal tonnage to the bottom off Great Yarmouth last night, the German high command said today.

VATICAN LEARNS HEAD OF UKRAINE CHURCH IS ALIVE

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 4.—The Vatican today received news that Msgr. Andreas Szeptycky, metropolitan of the Ukraine stationed in Lwow, Poland, has survived the bolshevik occupation and the conquest of that city by the Germans. Msgr. Szeptycky had been reported dead several times.

Count Andreas Alexander Szeptycky has been primate of the Greek Catholic Ukrainian church since 1900. The church, which practices its own ritual, is united with the Roman Catholic church under the authority of the pope.

Now 76 years old, the prelate had a distinguished career before the World war, as a private councilor to Emperor Franz-Joseph of Austria, a vice marshal of Galicia and a member of the imperial house of lords. When the Russians captured Lwow during the last war, the archbishop was taken prisoner and for a time was imprisoned at Suzdal, Russia. He was freed after the bolshevik revolution and returned to Poland where he was identified with the Ukrainian autonomist movement.

HEAR NAZIS 'BAN' LORD HAW HAW, BUT HE TALKS ON

William Joyce.

New York, Oct. 4 (AP).—The Berlin radio was quoted by a New York listening post today as announcing that "the world famous radio commentator, Lord Haw Haw, has been banned from the air," but several hours later the Fascist minded Englishman made his regular broadcast.

At 7:30 p. m. Berlin time [or 12:30 p. m. Chicago time] Lord Haw Haw gave a news broadcast, but he merely read reports and gave no commentary.

Berlin authorities denied Lord Haw Haw had been banned.

William Joyce, an Englishman who goes by the pseudonym of Lord Haw Haw, was born in New York in 1906. He is a blond, ruddy faced English Fascist who fled with his wife from the island kingdom to Germany in August, 1939, when it became evident that war was imminent. Interviewed in Berlin a year ago, he acknowledged that he perpetrated "high treason" against England daily in his broadcasts—with an Oxford accent—with the idea of disturbing British self-assurance. He joined the British Fascist movement in 1923, he said, and did a certain amount of street fighting against communists "of which I shall carry the marks so long as I live." He has a scar across his right cheek.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

RUSSIA BRANDS CHURCH POLICY FOES PRO-NAZI

Echo F. D. R. on Freedom of Reds to Worship.

MOSCOW, Oct. 4 (AP).—S. A. Lozovsky, official soviet press spokesman, declared today "the big rumpus now raised in the United States" over religion in Russia came from opponents of aid to Russia.

The soviet state, he told correspondents, considers religion a private matter for its citizens and has as a basic policy freedom of religion as well as freedom of anti-religious propaganda.

Lozovsky asserted the soviet constitution guarantees religious freedom—but "assumes that freedom of religion will not be utilized for the overthrow of the prevailing regime."

Calls Critics "Pro-Germans."

Linking his statement to recent comment on the subject by President Roosevelt, the soviet spokesman said:

"I observe that many of those who are raising the problem of religion in the U. S. S. R. are people criticizing the President's policies. They are pro-German.

"The root of the problem is aid to Russia or Germany. The big rumpus now raised in the United States in connection with this problem is much ado about nothing. It is raised by people who do not wish to understand the soviet attitude toward religion."

Replying to a question, Lozovsky said anti-religious museums in Russia are operated "as a part of the history of man's culture" and "belong to the same category as planetariums."

In answer to another question he said churches and other religious institutions are not taxed, but clergy and other servants of the church pay an income tax similar to other citizens.

"To insure to all citizens freedom of conscience," he added, "the church in the U. S. S. R. is separated from the state and the school from the church. Freedom to perform religious rites and freedom of anti-religious propaganda is recognized for all citizens."

Pact Seen as "Blow to Nazis."

The spokesman, vice commissar of foreign affairs, declared the accord of the three power conference of Russia, Britain, and the United States was a "terribly hard blow" to Germany.

He referred to Adolf Hitler's claims yesterday of great successes over the Russian fighting forces as "fantastic" and said it was Hitler's usual speech, making great claims of Russian losses and ignoring those Germany had suffered.

He said Hitler admitted having underestimated the strength of the Red army and, "frightened by his own admissions, tried to explain the Red army valor as blood thirstiness . . ."

Lozovsky began by declaring:

"Soviet public opinion learned with great interest the contents of Mr. Roosevelt's statement to his press conference on freedom of worship in the U. S. S. R.

"The President correctly pointed out the basic principles of the constitution of the U. S. S. R., on freedom of worship of soviet citizens.

"In the soviet union the church is separate from the state. This means the state gives no advantage to this or that religion, does not support churches, mosques, synagogues and others.

Stresses Freedom of Worship.

"There is freedom of worship in the U. S. S. R. This means any soviet citizen may adhere to any religion. This is a question of the conscience and views of each citizen.

"There is the old Greek-Catholic church in the U. S. S. R., also the new Greek-Catholic, Old Believers, Armenian, Molokans, Dukhobors, Moslems, Evangelists, Baptists, Adventists, Jews, Catholics, Lutherans, Buddhists, etc.

"Religion is a private affair of soviet citizens wherein the state does not interfere and considers it unnecessary to interfere.

"The soviet constitution provides not only the right to adhere to this or that religion but also the right of soviet citizens not to belong to any church or to conduct anti-religious propaganda.

"Soviet law does not deem it possible to force citizens to worship or not to worship this or that religion. This is a matter for the conscience of each soviet citizen."

FALL FROM WINDOW FATAL.

Mrs. Nellie De Mond, 58 years old, died in County hospital yesterday of injuries suffered last Tuesday when she fell from a second floor window at her home, 3025 Atlantic street, Franklin Park.

M. P. CHARGES REFUSAL TO MAKE SACRIFICES MAY COST BRITIAN WAR

LONDON, Oct. 4 (AP).—T. L. Horabin, Laborite member of parliament, declared today that Britain's refusal to make every sacrifice to win the war had saved Hitler from the danger of a two front fight.

In a speech at Tintagel, Horabin said the government had no sense of urgency, and took longer to send a delegation to Moscow than Hitler took to conquer Poland.

"With Russia in we can win the war," he asserted, "but if we go on as we are at the present moment we shall lose it."

34 U. S. SEAMEN SAFE, 4 MISSING IN TORPEDOING

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Oct. 4 (AP).—Rescue ships reported today they had picked up 34 of the 38 man crew of the American-owned and American-manned tanker I. C. White, torpedoed in the South Atlantic last Saturday, and that they expected to arrive here with them Tuesday. The four missing men were last seen clinging to a life raft.

Sinking of the 7,052 ton tanker, which flew the flag of Panama and was in British service under the "lease lend" act, was disclosed late yesterday when the American freighter West Nilus reported picking up 18 men in a lifeboat 450 miles east of Recife, Brazil. West Nilus agents later learned the correct count was 17.

Today the American freighter Del-Norte informed the consulate she had picked up 17 more men at latitude 10:16 south, longitude 35:23 west, which is only about 30 miles off Maceio, Brazil, a port 100 miles south of Recife. These included Capt. William Mello of Everett, Mass., the third mate, chief engineer, first and third assistant engineers, and radio operator.

British to Dodge Tokio Censors on War Bulletins

TOKIO, Japan, Oct. 4 (AP).—Altho Japanese authorities have asked that embassies here refrain from mailing news bulletin, the British embassy intends to continue circulation of its daily summary of war news by using private messengers. The Russian embassy said it intended to continue its mail bulletins. The postal regulations were aimed principally to prevent espionage.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley A. Lovelace and son Stanley Earl of 4504 North Paulina Street, Chicago.

... especially when the LAUNDRY does it better and cleaner," says Mr. Lovelace

Mr. Lovelace continues: "Sure she tried hard, but my wife just never could get my shirts like I really wanted them. Finally I said, 'From now on we're using the laundry.' Frankly, it wasn't any surprise to me how much better my shirts came back . . . but it was a surprise to see how much better my wife looked and felt. Gosh! I never realized what a mean, hard job home washing must be for a woman. I know this: home washing's a miserable job no wife deserves . . . especially when the laundry does it better and cleaner."

Mrs. Lovelace concludes: "I've disagreed time and again with friends who say you save on home washing. I kept track of costs on soap, water softener, machine rental, blueing, starch, hot water, everything when I washed. I KNOW I didn't save a thing. Besides, think of the thankless hours you spend over a steaming, water-logged wash in a damp basement! We have everything done hospital clean (including my husband's shirts finished) for a little more than two dollars every two weeks. I'd hate to do the job for TWICE that much."

Is it really worth it?
... this slaving over a washing with laundry prices so reasonable.

Be honest with yourself. Think what washing does to your hands, your complexion, your disposition.

Why not get a new lease on life, enjoy it more? You can—by sending your wash to the laundry. And when you do, remember, too . . . the laundry's EXTRA-EASY on your clothes for the laundry uses:

(1) rain-soft water that's easy on your things . . .
(2) much milder soaps than you can use at home; THEY'RE easy on your clothes . . .
(3) 10 to 12 complete changes of water to wash a single batch of clothes; that means hospital cleanliness.

*Call the Laundry this week . . . Enjoy a 10-minute washday

NAZIS EXECUTE 7 CZECHS; BOMB 2 SERBIAN TOWNS

Greek Rebels 'Liquidated' in Macedonia Clash.

BERLIN, Oct. 4 (AP).—Seven Czechs were executed in Prague today bringing to 115 the number known to have met death by hanging or before the firing squad in a week-long Nazi purge in the protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia.

[The Czech government in London said 159 had been executed and 727 turned over to the German gestapo. The British radio said that in nearby Poland 180 persons, including 12 women, had been executed openly in the last three months, but added: "Nevertheless, sabotage continues."]

Three Jews Amonk Victims.

The seven executed included three Jews charged with preparation for treason, economic sabotage, and unlawful possession of weapons.

Eduard Kadlec, former commander of the Moravia military district, was acquitted by the court at Brunn of charges which were not made public.

A Dr. Frankenberger, a section chief in the protectorate's ministry of agriculture, was reported arrested on charges of obstructing efficient food distribution.

One Czech newspaper, Narodni Politika, demanded immediate evacuation of all Jews from large cities, declaring they were responsible in large measure for a whispering campaign against Germany.

A bomb explosion Tuesday in the headquarters of the Belgian Rexist [rightist] movement in Brussels killed Jean Oedekerke, a secretary in the offices of Rexist militarized groups, it was disclosed in Berlin today.

[Dispatches from Brussels said Gen. Baron Alexander von Falkenhausen decreed capital punishment yesterday for Belgians or Frenchmen attempting to join the armed forces of a nation at war with Germany or to induce others to join. The Bruesseler Zeitung, in reporting the decree, said individual young men had tried recently to get to England.]

Nazi Division Moves on Serbs.

ZAGREB, Croatia [via Berlin] Oct. 4—(AP).—An entire German mechanized division—about 12,000 men—was reliably reported today to be moving slowly thru southern Serbia toward Belgrade, old capital of Jugo-Slavia, to mop up Serb guerrilla bands.

The German air force, coöperating with the drive, has bombed Leskovac and Nishumka.

[British radio reports heard in New York yesterday said Jugo-Slav guerrillas captured 650 German soldiers, including 40 officers, and then sent a note to the German general threatening to shoot them if execution of Jugo-Slav hostages continued. BBC did not say where or when.]

19 Slain Subduing Greeks.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 4 (AP).—A government spokesman said today 19 Bulgarian policemen and other officials were killed putting down a Greek band which tried to rouse to revolt the Greek inhabitants of several villages in the Drama district of conquered Macedonia.

He said the Greek insurgents were "liquidated" after skirmishes in which several hundred Greeks of four villages participated.

Norway King Dooms "Traitors."

LONDON, Oct. 4 (AP).—The Norwegian king in exile, Haakon VII, signed a decree for his régime today providing the death penalty for crimes against the Norwegian state—a move described as warning "tools of the Nazis" of the fate they will face whenever the government is in position to enforce the penalty.

[Stockholm dispatches said Maj. Vidkun Quisling has returned to Norway after a fruitless visit to Germany to see Adolf Hitler. The purpose of his trip was not learned. Meanwhile, Swedish newspapers told of more strife in Norway, saying 30 workers were jailed at Honefoss for sabotaging a factory and others seized at Porsgrund, Frederikstad, and Sarpsborg for the same offense or passive resistance.]

Grandmothers Meet

Mrs. Georgina Madin (left), 80, and Mrs. Eleanor Anderson, 30, at grandmothers convention.

More than 100 grandmothers, all proud of their title, yesterday registered for the fourth annual convention of the National Grandmothers Club, Inc., in the Morrison hotel. They represented 12 clubs with a total membership of more than 2,000, Mrs. Marie K. Brown, president, reported.

The club is campaigning for a National Grandmothers day on the first Sunday in October. Members of the Chicago chapter, which has the largest club with 525 grandmothers, presented a musical program and a comic skit at the banquet last night. Today the delegates will attend services at the First Methodist church and tour Chicago after luncheon.

Mrs. Georgina Madin, 80 years old, 4740 Woodlawn avenue, was the oldest grandmother present and Mrs. Eleanor Anderson, 30, of 5552 North Monitor avenue, the youngest. However, since Mrs. Anderson is a grandmother by marriage, many felt the title should go to Mrs. Ruth Till, 36, of 6647 South Bishop street. Mrs. Addie Favorite, 75, of 8044 South Peoria street, believes she has the most grandchildren—26.

Harry Hopkins' Son, 20, to Be Inducted Into Army

New York, Oct. 4 (AP).—Robert Hopkins, 20 years old, son of Harry Hopkins, lend-lease administrator, will be inducted into the army Tuesday, selective service headquarters announced today. Hopkins, a volunteer, will be sent to Fort Dix, N. J.

WED 59 YEARS TODAY.

Freeport, Ill., Oct. 4 [Special].—At their home in Brookville tomorrow, Mr. and Mrs. William Paul will celebrate the 59th anniversary of their wedding. Their 11 children, all but one of whom live within 10 miles of their parents' home, will join them in a family dinner. Mr. Paul is 79 years old; his wife is 78.

3 DIE, 11 LOST IN ARGENTINIAN WARSHIP CRASH

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Oct. 4 (AP).—The 1,375 ton Argentine destroyer Corrientes sank off the southern coast after a collision during naval maneuvers with the 6,800 ton cruiser Almirante Brown, the navy ministry announced tonight. Three men were known to have been lost and 11 are missing, the ministry added.

Fishermen indicated the toll of the collision, dwhich took place yesterday evening in a heavy fog off the resort of Mar del Plata, 230 miles southeast of here, was greater than that announced by the navy.

The Almirante Brown was reported to be still afloat and trying to make port with the aid of tugs, while there was hope that the Corrientes could be salvaged since it sank in shallow water.

ROOSEVELT SAID:

(Aug. 14, 1936.)

"We can keep out of war if those who watch and decide have a sufficiently detailed understanding of international affairs to make certain that the small decisions of each day do not lead toward war and if, at the same time, they possess the courage to say 'No!' to those who selfishly or unwisely would let us go to war."

WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN STREET.

The body of an unidentified gray haired woman about 65 years old was found early yesterday on the sidewalk in front of 700 North Clark street.

CIVILIANS? SURE! BUT BRITISH MAKE U.S. LADS SALUTE

First Radio Recruits Get a Military Surprise.

AN ENGLISH SOUTH COAST TOWN, Oct. 4 (AP).—The first group of American members of Britain's new "Civilian Technical corps" arrived in England to operate radiolocators and found themselves subject to military discipline, even tho they are carefully classified as civilians.

Most of the Americans, whose arrival was permitted to be disclosed today as they were formally welcomed by Air Marshal Sir Philip Bennet Joubert de la Ferte, will start helping to man Britain's radiolocation stations—the ears of the nation's aerial defense—during the next five weeks. Seventy-five men form the nucleus of the new corps, which Britain hopes to expand soon into an organization of hundreds of skilled technicians recruited in the United States.

Right now the CTC members, who dress almost exactly like the RAF, are learning to operate the radiolocation devices which spot German bombers long before other detectors function. They get $28 to $32 a week and allowances.

Forced to Salute and Drill.

The only big irritant has been conforming to military regulations, saluting officers and drilling.

Even the RAF officers who are training them and Donald Gill, who was loaned by the American Chamber of Commerce to direct the new unit, acknowledge it is a bit anomalous.

Civilian status must be maintained because each United States passport bears the notation that it is invalid for entering the "armed forces" of any foreign state. Marshal Joubert told the volunteers that the uniforms and military discipline are "just common sense, since you are working next door to our men."

However, the Americans learned that the uniform gets them preferential treatment which never would be accorded them in civilian clothes. For one thing, they "rate higher" with some 2,000 WAAFS [members of the Women's Auxiliary Air corps] who are stationed nearby.

Ages Range from 18 to 50.

The American group ranges in age from 18 year old R. I. Ames of Utica, N. Y., who bears the title No. 1 because he was the first accepted among hundreds of United States applicants, to R. F. Leighton, 50, of St. Petersburg, Fla., who was in the United States navy in the last war.

There were a variety of replies to the question, "Why did you come over?"

"For the same reason you did," J. Brewer of Woodmere, N. Y., told the interviewer. "I wanted to see what was going on."

He studied at a radio school in New York, but added that "This radiolocation is different. I'm learning plenty."

Eugene Henning of Champaign, Ill., who interrupted studies at the University of Illinois, thinks it a great opportunity because he believes radiolocation has a tremendous future in peacetime.

All seem to agree:

1. That the English are hospitable.
2. That the English cannot cook.

"Sure, there's plenty of food, but these people think a potato is just a potato and that it must always taste the same," one explained. "It's the same with other grub. No imagination."

Germans Soon Will Open Consulate General in Vichy

SCHOOLS CLOSED IN NORTH IRAN AS REDS TAKE DESKS

Four Reported Dead After Tabriz Bread Riots.

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TEHERAN, Iran, Oct. 3 [Delayed].—Schools in the northern provinces of Iran [Persia] occupied by the Russian army have been unable to open for the fall season. The Russians have taken all the chairs, tables, and desks, and the Iranian government hesitates to replace the equipment for fear the Russians would take it again.

The former American Mission Girls school at Tabriz, northwest Iran, taken over by the Iranian government last year, was used as a headquarters by the Red army. Schools for girls in the Red occupied provinces remain closed because parents are unwilling to permit their daughters to go on the streets.

The American mission here has been informed that four persons died in the American hospital at Tabriz from injuries received in Tabriz bread riots. Disorders also were reported from Resht, where there is a shortage of sugar tea, and rice, the remaining stocks of which were reported sent to Russia.

The Russians have sharply restricted travel in their areas, obliging even British officers to obtain passes. British officers seeking permission to spend leaves at Caspian seacoast resorts were told by the Reds that storms raging in that area make it unsuitable for holidays.

The British legation's courier from Bagdad, Iraq, was halted by the Reds and allowed to proceed only after he protested to the commander.

The Reds seized 15 new Iranian buses used to transport Germans and Italians to Turkey, as well as 25 new Iranian army trucks, it was reported.

INQUIRY REVEALS MOVIE MONOPOLY, SEN. CLARK SAYS

Quiz to Continue Despite 'Abuse,' He Asserts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—Sen. D. Worth Clark [D., Idaho], declared tonight in a radio address that despite "a veritable avalanche of vituperation and abuse" against his committee's investigation of war propaganda in motion pictures, the inquiry would proceed regardless of criticism and threats.

Sen. D. Worth Clark.

Clark said the evidence given the committee tended definitely to show a tightly held monopoly in the movie industry. For all practical purposes, he said, eight companies control all of the production, all of the distribution, and a good part of the exhibition of motion pictures. Actually, three of these companies are only satellites of the other five, he said, and the five are closely associated.

Study Extent of Control.

"There are approximately 17,000 theaters in the United States," Clark said, "and I do not think it is unfair to say that these five companies can substantially control all of the pictures that are seen daily in these theaters. The extent to which this vast control of the screen has been used to disseminate propaganda for war is not entirely determined.

"Certainly some propaganda has been leveled at the American people and possibly also the extent of the propaganda has been overemphasized. As the hearings progress we will be better able to ascertain just how far the motion picture industry has gone in using its vast control of public expression in an unfair way.

Determined to Continue.

"These hearings are not going to be halted by any person or combination of persons. We intend to proceed with the slender resources at our command regardless of criticism and regardless of threats. The issue of war or peace is the greatest issue in America today. Neither side of this grave question should be foisted on the American people by innuendo or subtle propaganda."

Illinois Cotton

Geraldine Stokley, 4, fashions a crown of Illinois cotton.

Golden Gardens, Ill., Oct. 4 [Special].—Joseph Jethroe, local truck farmer, has celebrated St. Clair county's first cotton picking day. He raised, experimentally, a bale and a half of long staple cotton to promote cotton as a good crop for farmers unsuccessful with ordinary southern Illinois crops.

U. S. TROOPS TAKE HOME COMFORTS TO ICY ICELAND

Fur Caps Top Off Much Heavy Clothing.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Oct. 2 [Delayed] (AP).—A regiment of seasoned soldiers recruited from the factories and farms of Ohio, Tennessee, and Kentucky, with a history studded with battle honors from Bull Run to the Argonne, forms a prominent part of the American fighting force in Iceland.

Their superiority in clothing, articles of comfort, and armament over British infantry here is striking. The Americans settled down in heated, storm proof Nissen huts.

One company has an orderly room that would put some of the British officers' messes to shame. Its furnishings include overstuffed chairs and couches of modern design, a table tennis outfit, a radio, and a magazine rack.

Officers' Club Boasts a Bar.

In the Officers' club the Americans are preparing for a dance for army nurses and local girls. The club has the same furnishings as that for the enlisted men with the addition of a juke box, a bar, and four slot machines. Over the bar is the newly designed red, white, and blue insignia of field force 4, the regimental insignia, and the great seal of the United States.

Enlisted men and officers have plenty of blankets and heavy clothing to keep them warm in the Arctic blasts. In addition to blue denim work clothes, and field and garrison uniforms and coats, they have been issued fur caps, wool lined mackinaws, heavy galoshes, gloves, five pairs of shoes, and heavy underclothes and socks.

The men are eager to show the workings of their new Garand rifles. They also have automatic weapons, light and heavy machine gunes, and anti-tank and anti-aircraft guns.

A veteran sergeant expressed belief the American Brownings are better than the British Bren guns and said his gun crews "know how to handle dive bombers because we've had a lot of target practice."

There is a noticeable difference between the American and British soldiers in their attitude toward automatic weapons. Both know how to make them work, but the Americans are vastly more mechanical minded.

This United States regiment has more anti-tank guns than most British units of the same manpower. Light and heavy mortars, much used by the Germans in Greece and Russia, have been improved so that even a light mortar can hurl a bomb more than a mile.

Since the European war started, the Ohio-Tennessee-Kentucky regiment has been on maneuvers in six different states under conditions varying from sub-tropical to Arctic.

Beer has been rationed temporarily, each man receiving 13 cans a month. Sergeants said this was tough for "one of the beer-drinkingest outfits in the army."

Two Views on British Food

Critical, Say New Dealers.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4 (AP).—Reporting they were "actually hungry" after a month's stay in England, two officials of the department of agriculture said today the British people need all the food the United States can possibly send.

One of the two, Paul H. Appleby, undersecretary of agriculture, said he lost eight pounds on the restricted English diet, and the other, R. M. Evans, agricultural adjustment administrator, returned 10 pounds lighter.

Appleby said "gobs and gobs of American food" were reaching England under the British aid program, but that the "facts are that the English people are not getting enough to eat."

Evans said the food situation in England was "tight," adding: "There is no actual starvation, but there is a lack of protein foods. I saw no candy, and little fresh fruits and similar foods."

Both said there was a lack of eggs in England, and that they saw only three during a month.

Favorable, Says Briton.

New York, Oct. 4 [Special].—As far as food is concerned, England is looking forward to the winter with "equanimity," William Rock, director of sugar control for the British ministry of food supply, said today upon his arrival here aboard the Atlantic Clipper. He said the food situation was favorable on the whole because of the "wonderful help" from the United States.

Commenting on the recent relaxation of sugar restrictions in England, Rock said it was "only right that the life of the people should be eased as much as possible during the hardships of the winter. We were very glad to be able to do this."

He added he had not come here to buy American sugar because "it does not come into the picture much at this time." He said most of Britain's sugar is being supplied by British dominions and possessions.

Rock said the purpose of his trip was to "discuss matters of joint interest with the British, American, and Canadian governments."

Caterpillar Tractor Co. Executive Asks Divorce

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 4 (AP).—B. C. Heacock, chairman of the board of the Caterpillar Tractor company and a dollar a year man in the procurement division of OPM at Washington, filed suit for divorce today in Peoria county Circuit court, charging his wife, Nellie, with desertion. The Heacocks have one married daughter.

A native of St. Paul, Neb., Gen. Barzynski is a 1905 graduate of West Point and saw World war service in France.

BRITISH CONTROL 45% OF WORLD'S MERCHANT SHIPS

Compilation Shows Jump in Tonnage Since War.

should say the situation is serious but not desperate.

"But at the same time, our losses of shipping have been reflected in shortages of various articles, the rationing of food and clothing."

Sir Arthur said that while the British have a large shipping tonnage at their disposal, war conditions, such as convoy delays, had cut down the efficiency of the fleets. And an undisclosed number of merchant vessels have gone into the navy as armed merchantmen, he added. Before the war, more than a third of England's imports were carried by ships under other flags, he concluded.

America Fleet Declines.

While British controled shipping has increased in proportion to the amount of world tonnage, the merchant fleet of the United States has declined steadily.

A recent report of the Commerce department revealed that the sea going fleet flying the stars and stripes on June 30, 1941, totaled 6,841,000 gross tons, a reduction of 1,293,000 tons, or 16 per cent, from the total of the prewar date of June 30, 1939.

Many American ships were acquired by the British and other maritime nations. A large number went into the navy as auxiliary vessels or into army service as transports. Others are registered under the flag of Panama — a way of circumventing the neutrality law and sending American ships into the war zone.

40 Vessels Taken Over.

Forty German, Italian, and Danish freighters and tankers which were idling at anchor in American ports and seized by this government are now operating under the Panamanian flag and hauling lease-lend materials for Britain. Some go to Iceland, New Zealand, Australia, and Canada, while others round the Cape of Good Hope and carry munitions and supplies to Red sea ports.

Fifty American tankers are in the oil shuttle service for Britain. They carry oil and gasoline from gulf ports to Canada, where the liquid cargo is pumped into other vessels, to be carried to England and other theaters of war.

According to the Maritime commission, these ships are included in the 2 million ton ship pool which the President made available for the British on May 2.

Ships Salvaged from Invasions.

As each European country was overrun by the German army, the British took over a portion of the shipping. A tabulation of these additions to British controled tonnage follows:

Country.	Tonnage owned.	*Saved for allies.
Netherlands	3,000,000	2,250,000
Norway	4,750,000	3,250,000
Greece	1,750,000	1,000,000
France	3,000,000	400,000
Belgium	400,000	200,000
Poland	100,000	100,000
Denmark	850,000	340,000
Total	13,850,000	7,540,000

*Figures supplied by British press service in New York, except the ones for Denmark, which were announced recently by Sir Arthur Salter.

These tonnages are made available for the British by agreements with the exiled governments in London. When the British take over allied vessels, they sail under admiralty orders.

Until a few months ago the axis sea fighters were sinking British, allied, and neutral ships at a much higher rate than they could be replaced thru new building in shipyards. Then three months ago the German war machine turned its might in the direction of Russia and sea losses have dwindled. Today replacement is proceeding at a faster pace than sinking.

A bandit in overalls took a $1,565 pay roll yesterday from Murel Goldsberry, an employé of the Rose Packing company, as Goldsberry was entering the company office at 2129 Pershing road on his way back from a bank. The bandit was leaving the vestibule when Andrew Bartos, a truck driver, walked in. The bandit knocked him down with his revolver and then fled to a car in which a companion, also in overalls, drove him away.

PHEASANT CASE MARKED CLOSED; STILL UNSOLVED

The mysterious case of "The Palatine Pheasant Murder" was closed officially yesterday and the person who killed the bird escaped punishment.

Justice of the Peace E. P. Steinbrinck of Palatine freed Lawrence Bardel, discharged state highway policeman, who was accused of having helped his brother officer, Marvin K. Carlson, shoot and kill a pheasant with a service pistol. Carlson previously had been exonerated.

Testimony in the case was that a state game warden heard two shots as he drove along route 62, west of Palatine. He found a police squad car parked nearby. Bardel was at the wheel, Carlson was standing alongside, and the pheasant lay dying under a bush 30 feet away.

Steinbrinck cited a court ruling which held that presence at the scene and opportunity to commit a crime was not enough evidence to justify conviction.

Mortimer F. Ames, of Wadsworth, a constable in Newport township, Lake county, was arrested yesterday for illegal possession of pheasants. Three were found in his automobile near Lake Villa. He denied having shot them and said he did not know how they got into his car. He was released in bond of $150 by Justice of the Peace Harry Hoyt of Waukegan, who set trial for Oct. 14.

1940 FOREST FIRES IN ILLINOIS CAUSE DAMAGE OF $950,743

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4 (AP).—The agriculture department estimated today that forest fires burned over 415,031 acres of land in Illinois in 1940 and caused damage amounting to approximately $950,743. The forest service made public these figures in announcing National Fire Prevention week from Oct. 5 to Oct. 7.

The nation's 146,749,000 acres of unprotected forest lands suffered fire damage totaling $35,877,000 in 1940. There were 195,427 forest fires in the year, compared with 212,671 in 1939 when the damage totaled $40,000,000.

Department foresters estimated that an expenditure of 18 million dollars would bring all state and private land needing it under organized fire control.

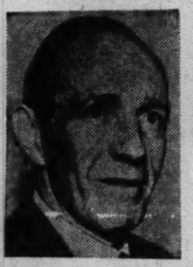
HALIFAX ASSERTS TIME ISN'T RIPE TO INVADE EUROPE

Sidesteps Question on Use of U. S. Forces.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]



Viscount Halifax.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—The time is not ripe for a British invasion of German occupied countries on the European continent, Viscount Halifax, British ambassador to the United States, said today. Nor, he added, is a British expeditionary force to the Russian front deemed feasible in view of the difficulty in maintaining lines of communication.

Asserting final victory will depend upon inflicting military damage on land as well as from the air, Halifax gave the indication that invasion plans have been studied and that one will be attempted.

Looks Forward to Offensive.

Halifax, speaking in his first press conference since his return Wednesday from London, said Great Britain is looking forward every day to the day when it will pass from the present defensive warfare to the offensive. He emphasized that this is not possible "under the present circumstances."

He said numerous factors would enter into the decision to launch a land offensive against the axis forces, mentioning air equipment of the British, German morale, and the "feeling" of the people in the occupied countries. He also said a great deal depends upon the effects of the British air attacks in recent weeks.

He sidestepped a direct reply when asked whether British experts are waiting for the entry of the United States into the war or whether American man power will be necessary.

"The British people believe you are the only ones who can decide what course you are going to pursue," he said. "You, and you alone."

In response to another question Halifax said he never had heard British military chieftains discuss the question of whether an American force would be necessary to deliver a decisive blow against the Nazis.

Halifax lauded the Russian resistance to the German armies and urged an increase in the production of heavy bombers in America for further aid to Britain.

He said the British people are sensible of the help being given them by the United States and are particularly grateful for the aid in repair of damaged warships and merchant ships.

G. O. P. TO RULE HOUSE IN 1942, SAYS MARTIN

Returning from a two week tour of western states that carried him to the Pacific coast, Congressman Joseph W. Martin Jr., chairman of the Republican national committee, was optimistic about the party's prospects in the 1942 elections. He predicted the G. O. P. will gain control of the house and make substantial gains in the senate.

Martin and Henry P. Fletcher, general counsel for the national committee, were guests at a reception in the La Salle hotel arranged by Werner W. Schroeder, Illinois member of the committee. Those present included Gov. Dwight H. Green, State Chairman Ben L. Berve, and several hundred Cook county leaders and workers.

The national chairman said that he found the western Republicans united against the high costs of the Roosevelt administration but adhered to his rule of silence on questions of foreign policy. He left for the east late in the afternoon.

"Despite the fact that it is Sunday, the groups are eager to catch up with the sponsors division which already has $929,284 in the till, Brooks said.

The money is to be allocated to Chicago's 185 major charities and social agencies for 1942 programs.

FIND 'RELATIVELY LITTLE' GRAFT IN WAR RELIEF UNITS

Report on Agencies Made Public by Roosevelt.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Oct. 4.—President Roosevelt today made public the report of a special committee he appointed last March to investigate the 700 war relief agencies which have mushroomed in the nation since the start of the European war.

The report said the agencies have raised 90 million dollars, of which 65 million was contributed for foreign relief in the last year. It said 60 per cent of the funds collected in this country are going to British charities.

Wasted Effort Criticized.

Altho the report said "relatively little fraud or graft" had been discovered in the investigation, the committee said duplication, confusion, and wasted effort existed among the agencies. Among abuses which the committee suggested be corrected were figurehead sponsors and boards, which the investigators said do not assume proper executive responsibility and direction.

Prepared Before Russ-German War.

The committee also suggested the state department revoke all relief agency licenses and issue new licenses only when satisfied the relief organizations would function properly.

It was evident from the language of the report that it had been prepared before the outbreak of the Russo-German war.

The President's committee is headed by Joseph Davies, one time ambassador to Russia and Belgium, who now is a special assistant in the state department. Other members are Charles P. Taft and Dr. Frederick P. Keppel.

F. D. R. ARRIVES AT HYDE PARK FOR WEEK-END

Hyde Park, N. Y., Oct. 4 [Special].—President Roosevelt arrived at his boyhood home here this afternoon after a brief visit to New York City, where he arranged to close out family interests in the two Roosevelt town houses on East 65th street. He will spend the week-end here.

The two houses have been offered for sale following the death Sept. 7 of the President's mother, Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt. Mr. Roosevelt examined the furnishings and family possessions and made arrangements for their transfer to Hyde Park. He received no callers during his five hour stay.

Mr. Roosevelt went by automobile from New York City to his Hyde Park estate. He headed a motorcade which wound along parkways beside the Hudson river.

Taylor Home from Vatican for Roosevelt Conference

New York, Oct. 4 (AP).—Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal emissary to the Vatican, arrived here today by clipper plane and said he would report promptly to the President and Secretary of State Cordell Hull information "of utmost value" which he obtained in conferences abroad with "many interesting people."

GETS 20 YEARS FOR SLAYING.

A Criminal court jury before Judge Julius H. Miner yesterday found Cleo Gibson, 34 years old, colored, guilty of murdering Missouri Perkins, 37, also colored, and fixed her punishment at 20 years' imprisonment in the reformatory for women at Dwight.

Army to Use New 20 Ton Air Liners for Transports

New York, Oct. 4 (AP).—America's largest twin engined air liners, the 20 ton C-55 transports, have been accepted by the army air force and will be produced in the St. Louis and Buffalo plants of the Curtiss-Wright corporation, the company reported today. Originally designed for commercial purposes, the ships now will be used for military cargo transports. They carry 36 passengers, a crew of five, and 5,000 pounds of baggage.

Reynolds Seeks License to Marry Evalyn McLean

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4 (AP).—An application for a wedding license for Sen. Robert R. Reynolds, 57, of North Carolina, and Miss Evalyn Walsh McLean, 30, was filed today. It said they would be married by Judge Robert E. Mattingly of Municipal court. Miss McLean is the daughter of Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, owner of the celebrated Hope diamond, and the late Edward B. McLean, former Washington newspaper publisher.

DIXIE MANEUVERS PROVE U.S. ARMY STILL UNFINISHED

Troops Deficient in Arms and in Training.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.

The Louisiana maneuvers just completed by the largest peacetime force the United States army ever put into the field in this country gave definite proof of the following major conclusions agreed upon alike by both general headquarters and civilian observers:

1. That the nation does not today possess an army worthy of that name and there is little indication that it can have one within another year.

2. That training of troops in all branches except a few specialized groups has not progressed far enough for the enlisted personnel or the junior officers to gain much from large scale maneuvers of this type. The army should go back to the fundamentals of the schools of the soldier and of the squad. Fundamentals should be mastered first.

3. That there is a lack of leadership in all ranks, and that certainly the most important job of the next few months is to find within the army men capable of giving the badly needed leadership. These men speedily must be given training to command along with the training of the rank and file.

Deficiencies of Training Shown.

To the writer the benefits of the "Battle of Louisiana" were chiefly negative. They proved the weaknesses of attempting to train men without the weapons of war—be they tanks, guns, airplanes, or merely trucks for transportation. They pointedly revealed the phases of training of individual soldiers that have been neglected, skimmed over or missed entirely during the 12 months of army life preceding this "battle."

The maneuvers also marked a milestone in the lives of many of the higher rank officers in that for the first times in their experience they encountered the practical difficulties connected with attempting large scale troop movements and strategy on a grand scale. This experience becomes a measuring stick of great importance even if the future armies of this nation are smooth working corps instead of the stumbling units that appeared in Louisiana's "battle."

Ill Equipped Army Is Doomed.

To gloss over equipment shortages is deception of the worst sort. These shortages still are most serious. With an army in battle such shortages become crucial. In other words, as many officers put it to me, if vital equipment is lacking there is no army, and there can be no fighting. There is, however, nothing that the field army can do about equipment shortages, and if the civil and military supply departments fail to function the army is doomed.

That is the condition existing at this time. Promises from Washington notwithstanding, the field army of the nation still is dangerously short in tanks, in machine guns, in anti-tank guns, in field artillery of all calibers, in motor trucks for supply and troop transportation, in airplanes, and above all in ammunition. Until men have the weapons they are going to use, have opportunities to become familiar with them and to fire them frequently, they can have no success in modern war.

Men Ready to Work Hard.

In spite of this gloomy outlook there are many bright spots in any recapitulation of the maneuvers. Chief among these is the repeatedly demonstrated fact that the men in the army are willing to work hard and long. Lieut. Gen. Lesley McNair called it "an innate put-outiveness" of the men. In his critiques he paid tribute to the men who went without food, without sleep, and yet kept going without sullen discontent.

The maneuvers demonstrated again that the American as a soldier is among the best material in the world. Training, however, and lots of it is required before the American field army will approach the efficiency of the German forces that for the moment are the epitome of military perfection, all observers agree.

A definite asset in the American army is the high percentage of men who are able civilian workers in many fields that carry over into vital phases of military affairs. The maneuvers showed that these men, now in the army, still are able to do their own particular jobs with great skill.

Truck Columns Well Handled.

For instance, the driving of trucks, tanks, and automotive vehicles of all kinds was almost above reproach. Drivers familiar with trucks or civilian cars kept their spacing on highways, kept up their speed averages, and avoided jams and accidents in a manner that no other army in the world can approach today. Most motor columns moved at 35 miles an hour—the maximum limit allowed by order, and that the traffic flow almost never ceased either by day or night.

The telephone and radio communications centers functioned, on the whole, pretty well. Much of this again was due to the expert handling of men only recently engaged in civilian pursuits of these sorts. In most instances the quartermaster corps functioned well in providing basic food rations to troops. Here were men experienced in large scale distribution of civilion goods adapting their knowledge to army affairs.

Engineer troops—among the specialist branches mentioned before—showed up well in the maneuvers. These troops built a great many bridges in the bayous and across the Red and Sabine rivers that split the maneuver area. Some of these bridges were pontoon structures up to 700 feet long. Time required for the building was in almost every instance far greater than was desirable, but nevertheless the engineers knew what they were doing and how to do it.

Hampered by Lack of Trucks.

A conspicuous example of the difficulties of training men without proper weapons is found in the infantry units. Here the weapon shortage that interfered with the maneuvers was the common motor truck. Without the trucks the infantry was just a lot of foot soldiers, anchored to the area that foot troops can cover in 24 hours. Yet, according to the maneuver problems this same infantry was supposed to be motorized and to support advancing tank units.

The general strategy of both phases of the maneuvers revealed some mistakes made by the staffs of both the Red and Blue armies. During the first phase of the maneuvers the Red army had both the 1st and 2d armored divisions, and these powerful striking forces [powerful at any rate in comparison with the opposing infantry] drove straight south from Shreveport, crossing the Red river between Coushatta and Natchitoches, and got themselves nicely into a pocket northwest of Leesville, La.

Here the Blue forces destroyed bridges and road both ahead and behind the tanks and trapped them neatly for the Blue aviation to destroy. The terrain of Louisiana, according to the alibis offered, is such that tanks cannot operate off the roads.

Light Forces Insufficient.

In the second phase the 2d armored division was given to the Blue army. While Blue infantry and light forces offered pressure to the Reds then defending Shreveport, the 2d armored division was sent on a wide end run to the west to encircle the Red defense lines and hit Shreveport from the north.

Basically this strategy was good except that the Blue armored force did not keep out ahead of it the screen of light striking forces within which similar German units travel. The Blues failed to seize the only good bridge across the Sabine river west of Shreveport and by the time the armored force arrived the Reds had discovered the movement by air reconnaisance and had destroyed the bridge. The problem was called off before a crossing could be made.

"German motorcycle units operating with panzer [armored] divisions," a GHQ observer told me, "would have been 75 to 80 miles ahead of the main force and would have taken that bridge before the Reds got there."

Complaints that the Louisiana terrain handicapped armored and motorized units brought to mind a remark made to me by a British officer in Egypt. After pointing out that terrain had not stopped axis motorized units in Poland, in Holland, in the Ardennes forest in France, or even in mountainous Greece, this officer said: "We've got to get out of our heads the idea that terrain is any real barrier in war to motorized armies."

Altho I mention it last, air coöperation was an important feature of the maneuvers, and the ground strafing of troop and vehicle trains on roads probably would have halted any real fighting long before the problem was called off by the general staff observers.

Dive Bombers Best for Tanks.

Tank commanders who attempted to operate on roads in daylight found themselves repeatedly the targets of dive bombers of both sides. One such commander said: "The dive bombers found us eight times in two hours yesterday and even without dropping real bombs they scared the daylights out of me. I think dive bombers are the best weapons in aviation against moving ground targets—and I speak from the viewpoint of the target."

The record of the umpires shows that the dive bombers and attack bombers would have destroyed almost all the convoy columns that tried to use the roads by day. Troops theoretically bombed and machined gunned made no effort to scatter into fields when attacked by aviation. Lack of training and inability to follow commands to take cover from attacking planes demonstrates a grievous lack of training or a grievous lack of proper leadership.

Ground coöperation by air units was ragged thruout the maneuvers, the air staffs of both armies admitted. From the moment that air support was sought by an advanced unit until that help arrived was often more than an hour, and sometimes as much as two hours. This might be a fatal lag in war, the generals admitted, but they said future training will be aimed at cutting the time lag to less than half an hour.

Maneuvers in South Carolina

2 DEATHS BRING TOTAL TO 97 IN ARMY EXERCISES

Alexandria, La., Oct. 4 (AP).—Soldier deaths since the army maneuvers started in Louisiana and Arkansas in mid-August reached 97 today with two additional deaths reported last night as the troops were homeward bound.

Corp. Edward Smith, company A, 94th anti-tank battalion, 34th division, was injured fatally when a "jeep" he was driving collided with a trailer. He was an Alabamian.

Pvt. Clifford Piering, battery B, 125th field artillery, 34th division, was killed when struck by a train near Bringhurst, La. His home was in Duluth, Minn.

MERCHANT DIES AFTER CRASH.

Carlyle, Ill., Oct. 4 (AP).—George Jannett, 55 years old, a Beckemeyer merchant, died today of injuries suffered Thursday in a car collision.

BIG DAY AHEAD FOR 46 MEN AT FORT SHERIDAN

Because a former navy man remembered how dull Sunday afternoons were during the World war, 46 soldiers from Fort Sheridan will have an unusual treat today.

George Mann of Milwaukee yesterday told Fort Sheridan authorities that the 23 families which live in his block each has agreed to "adopt" two soldiers for the afternoon. The families will drive the 60 miles to the post, pick up their guests, and dine in the respective homes at 1 p. m. Later comes a tour of the city with motorcycle escort [an alderman lives in the next block], and finally a street dance and carnival. Dancing partners are being rounded up by a young woman who lives in the block. This evening the neighborly Milwaukeeans will drive the soldiers back to their barracks.

The plan has only one drawback. Post authorities last night were wondering how to pick 46 soldiers for the outing without having 5,000 others beefing about it.

Fort Sheridan Troops Will Be Back Tuesday

The 4,500 soldiers and officers of the 40th coast artillery anti-aircraft brigade will roll into Fort Sheridan in 800 trucks Tuesday, Col. Frederick Rogers, fort commandant, said yesterday. Since Aug. 24, the brigade has been on maneuvers in Louisiana and Mississippi. It served as part of the 2d, or Red, army that successfully defended an attack on Shreveport, La., by the 3d [Blues] army.

Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 200 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when overloaded.

Fourteen years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three simple ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.

Money Back Guarantee

Usually, in non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder disorders the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping the Kidneys flush out excess Acids, poisons and wastes. TRACE GYP SLOT MACHINE; FIND OTHER DEVICES

Police Seize Equipment at Novelty Company.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

A gyp slot machine was traced to its home at 1632 Milwaukee avenue yesterday and there police found 20 more of the mechanical bandits, 150 pin ball machines, and several hundred punchboards. It was the headquarters of the Standard Novelty company, Ted Rubenstein and Jack Simon, proprietors.

The police were accompanied by Ben M. Eisenstein, personal bailiff for Judge Oscar S. Caplan of the Racket court, who issued a search warrant for the novelty company premises after examining a slot machine seized Friday in a tire shop at 2425 North Ashland avenue. This shop is owned by Henry Fader. A patch of solder in the mechanism of this machine prevented it from ever disgorging the nickels in the jackpot.

Machine "Wished" on Him.

Fader said the slot machine was "wished" on him by a representative of the Standard Novelty company who assured him "the fix was in." Fader said he was given a telephone number to call whenever the machine was out of order.

Judge Caplan's warrant directed the police and bailiff to seize anything on the novelty company's premises that might be classed as gambling apparatus. Bailiff Eisenstein called on Capt. Charles McGurr of the West North avenue station for aid and Lieut. Thomas Sheridan and a squad of detectives were sent with him.

The raiders found Rubenstein in charge of the place. He readily admitted owning the soldered machine. He contradicted Fader, however, by saying that it was Fader who assured him the "fix was in."

Scattered Over City.

Fader had said that the novelty company boys told him they had 30 or 40 machines operating in his neighborhood. This was denied by Rubenstein. He admitted having many of them operating in the city but said they were scattered over the north and south sides.

Rubenstein's records showed he was trying to do a big business in the Stock Yards police district. Several typed sheets of names and addresses bore after them such remarks as "Has our board," "Doesn't want board," "Has airgun and may have board," "Not made, cop in there," "Had board, too much trouble," and "Is afraid of cops."

The police and Bailiff Eisenstein did not take time to examine Rubenstein and Simon's slot machines for cheating devices. They sent for three patrol cars and moved the slot machines and punchboards to police headquarters, to be exhibited as evidence before Judge Caplan tomorrow.

RAID DISTILLERY OF 1,000 GALLONS DAILY CAPACITY

One of the biggest illicit distilleries found in Chicago in many months was raided early yesterday by agents of the federal alcohol tax unit. Three men, one an ex-convict, were arrested.

The plant was situated in a building at 4720 Kinzie street which had been camouflaged as a warehouse. Inside agents found two stills, one of them a recooker capable of converting low grade raw alcohol into 190 proof liquor, on which the federal tax would amount to $7.60 a gallon, E. C. Yellowley, district supervisor of the alcohol tax unit, said. The plant had a daily capacity of 1,000 gallons.

A shipping depot at the rear of 814 North Lavergne avenue was also raided. A total of 1,000 gallons of alcohol was found in the two places. Three automobiles and two trucks were seized.

United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker postponed arraignment of the three men until Oct. 13. They are Frank Daniels, 30 years old, 1701 South Austin boulevard, a well known bootlegger and ex-convict; George Fusco, 34, 874 Sedgwick street, and George Daviduke, 27, 1835 Roosevelt road.

MURDER CHARGE LODGED AGAINST KENTUCKY BOY, 14

Owingsville, Ky., Oct. 4 (AP).—Sheriff Clark Rogers announced today the filing of a murder charge against Russell Arnett, 14 years old, held in the Bath county jail in the shotgun slaying Wednesday of Henry Andrews, 40, Salt Lick tourist camp operator.

Rogers quoted the boy as saying that he shot Andrews because he thought the man was going to shoot him for fighting with Andrews' son at school. The sheriff said Arnett was being held without bond for a hearing next Wednesday.

Andrews was shot as he approached the Arnett home in company with his son, Albert, 14, Rogers reported.

1-MAN GAMBLING CRUSADE CALLS FOR STATE HELP

Mendota Mayor Can't Get Co-operation.

Mendota, Ill., Oct. 4 [Special].—Charging that La Salle county officials had refused to perform their duties, Mayor Leslie J. Oester of Mendota today called upon state authorities to enforce gambling laws in the county where a total of $250,000 a year is said to be paid for protection of gambling and vice.

The mayor is conducting a countywide crusade against slot machines which he cleaned out of his own city. Thus far, however, he has had little success in trying to enlist the coöperation of other authorities to close 2,000 of the "one armed bandits" running wide open thruout the county.

State Control Asked.

Rebuffed by county law enforcement officials, Oester today sent telegrams to T. P. Sullivan, superintendent of the state division of correction, and to Attorney General George F. Barrett asking them to take control of the county situation.

Meantime, gamblers also were busily engaged on the other side of the controversy. They were at work setting up every kind of slot machine they could find to take advantage of the business they expected from 2,400 soldiers returning to Camp Grant and Fort Sheridan from the war games in Louisiana.

Their activity began with the news that the soldiers would reach this area late today and camp near old Fort Wilburn, several miles south of La Salle.

Taverns Ready Too!

Tavern owners also were preparing for soldiers' return by hiring extra bartenders and replenishing their stocks. Both slot machine operators and tavern owners were overjoyed by the announcement that the soldiers recently had been paid.

But this prosperity will be short lived if Mayor Oester has his way. He said that business men and civic leaders had promised to support him in his fight against slot matchines.

SAWICKI DOUBTS HIS LIFE CAN BE SAVED BY APPEAL

Bernard [Knifey] Sawicki, who was sentenced on Friday to the electric chair for the murder of Park Policeman Charles Speaker, said in the county jail yesterday that he does not believe an appeal would save him from the death penalty.

"It's a hunch," said the 19 year old killer. "I don't have hunches often, but when I do, they're usually right."

Sawicki has confessed killing three other persons during the week-end last June when he killed the policeman. Judge John A. Sbarbaro sentenced him to die on next Jan. 17.

COUPLE ORDERED TO MAKE DIVORCE SUIT APPEARANCE

Mrs. Annabelle Adams Orton, 33 years old, and Lou Root, a wealthy New York manufacturer who is frequently seen with her, were ordered yesterday by Judge William V. Brothers to appear Thursday before Commissioner Robert J. Collins for the taking of depositions.

The order was obtained by Attorney Daniel A. Covelli, who is representing Mrs. Orton's husband, Philo, 68, head of the Orton Crane and Shovel company, in his suit for divorce. Orton has charged his wife with misconduct with a "Mr. R."

Mrs. Orton and Root were served with subpenas in a loop restaurant more than a week ago directing them to appear last Thursday. They ignored the summons. Similar action in the case of the court order would open them to contempt of court proceedings, according to Covelli.

QUOTING ABRAHAM LINCOLN

The People's Business.

It is your [the people's] business to rise up and preserve the Union and liberty for yourselves, and not for me. I appeal to you again to constantly bear in mind that not with politicians, not with Presidents, not with office seekers, but with you is the question: Shall the Union and shall the liberties of this country be preserved to the latest generations?

A. Lincoln

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 11, 1861.

UNDER BRITISH COMMAND, OF COURSE.

The war department's regret that only sailors and marines could be sent to join the British in Iceland is now without cause. The army has landed, under the command of Maj. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel. News that an army expeditionary force had moved into the European war zone was released after the fact had been accomplished.

The pretense, when the surprise descent of the marines and sailors was announced, was that they were taking over an outpost of American hemisphere defense and that the British would be withdrawn. The British troops have not been withdrawn.

When the American people were assured that they would be Mr. Churchill promptly assured the British people that they would not. If they were withdrawn they might reënforce British armies elsewhere in the war areas. But that, altho it might seem military common sense, would not be good politics for the British.

So long as British and American army and naval forces are coöperating in the defense of a European outpost Great Britain has American soldiers alongside its own.

The command of the joint forces has been given to the British. In any joint action they would claim that as their due. In the other war they were disgusted when American troops were not fed into British divisions as replacements. Mr. Roosevelt and his fellow travelers no doubt consider it proper that the British should be in command because they regard the British as the superior race.

Our troops in Iceland may expect to be given all the most unpleasant tasks and be put in the most difficult posts, just as the American troops were in Archangel in the idiotic campaign against the bolshevists. They may be required to stand retreat to "God Save the King" instead of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

These expectations get some sanction in the following dispatch from England:

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The Daily Express correspondent in Iceland, reporting that the "United States army lands in Iceland as our partners," today said: "The command of the Anglo-American army here will be on a basis of mutual coöperation, with Britain as the predominant partner."

If this republic is to endure the American people had better pull themselves together and assert their will. Just now they are in the bag.

SOCIAL SECURITY FUNDS.

For some time the treasury has been working on amendments to the social security act which would increase the government revenue. On Tuesday the President announced that he would ask congress to extend social security to about 40 million persons not covered. In addition he said there might be an increase in the tax on pay rolls. Then Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau placed his objective at 2 billions a year instead of the billion now being collected.

These proposals originated with the treasury, not with the group of sociologists who have long advocated a federal old age retirement plan. Mr. Morgenthau's fondness for social security can well be understood. His last annual report shows that the federal old age and survivors' insurance trust fund amounted to 1 billion 745 million dollars. But the treasury has borrowed 1 billion 738 million dollars of it. This the government has spent for hydro-electric projects, warships, munitions, aid for the unemployed, and for farmers and other governmental purposes. And as fast as the money is collected it will continue to go for these purposes and also for lend-lease for Europe, Asia, Africa, South America, and the West Indies.

Besides the old age and survivors' insurance trust fund there is the unemployment trust fund. This fund was accumulated from the unemployment compensation taxes collected by the states and deposited with the government. The last annual report of the treasury shows that this fund totaled 1 billion 725 million dollars. And the treasury has borrowed 1 billion 710 million dollars of that amount.

Thus the two social security funds combined amount to 3 billion 470 million dollars. But the government has taken out and spent 3 billion 448 million dollars of that total.

The employés and employers of this country have turned over to the government 3½ billion dollars to provide benefits for workers when they become 65 years of age, and when they become unemployed. The government has borrowed these funds and has used them to pay its current expenses. The promise to pay benefits remains. The money has been spent.

It is because social security has been found to be such a fruitful means of raising spending money that it is now proposed to get more contributors and to increase the collections from those already paying. The secretary of the treasury says that increased collections of social security taxes will help to prevent inflation. The President says that the new plan will extend benefits to many now in need of protection. Neither mentions the fact that the money will not be retained to pay the benefits promised, but will be spent soon after it is collected.

The obligations to pay annuities and unemployment benefits will be increased if the President and the secretary of the treasury have their way, but no means will be provided to pay them. This is not alone our conclusion. The American Association for Social Security has denounced the Morgenthau proposals as a scheme to use the social security system for other than its legitimate purposes. "Crucial as the present emergency is," says the association in a recent release, "the government must not fall into a similar trap of converting social security into a revenue raising device. With social security an officially announced war aim, it would be utter folly to allow the war effort to wreck one of its important objectives."

If an insurance company collected premiums to provide annuities and spent all the money before paying the benefits, all would recognize it as a gyp. So is a government which does the same thing in the name of social security.

MR. ROOSEVELT ON CONSTITUTIONS.

Mr. Roosevelt attempts to reassure the American people who are dubious that his old pal Bloody Joe is eligible as a defender of the four freedoms by referring them to the Russian constitution. That document, he asserts, provides substantially the same protection to religion and freedom of conscience that is provided by our own.

While the fact is largely irrelevant, even this is not true. The Russian constitution, which never has been put into full effect, merely "recognizes" freedom of religion, along with the freedom to attack it, while ours specifically forbids government to interfere with religion.

Mr. Roosevelt knows as well as any one else how little the Russian constitution has done to save the Christians of Russia from the bloodiest persecution since the days of pagan Rome. Only last year, in a public address, he deplored the banishment of religion by the communists. The same news columns that carried his reference to the Russian constitution also told how the Polish prisoners who have been rearmed to fight in the Russian army wept with joy upon receiving mass. It was the first time in their two years of captivity that the privilege had been granted them.

It will be a mistake, however, to dismiss the President's remarks as a typical piece of flippancy. They disclose a trend of thought that is unpleasant to believers in our form of government, a disposition to substitute the wind of empty and meaningless words for solid deeds of performance.

The Russian constitution, says Mr. Roosevelt, guarantees freedom of religion. Therefore the Russians enjoy that freedom. Our constitution says that only congress shall declare war. Are the American people to be handed the cold comfort of unheeded words in this respect while Mr. Roosevelt and his appointees continue to make a mockery of them by their deeds?

IT SHOULDN'T HAPPEN TO A DOG.

The boys in the slot machine racket have had something happen to them that shouldn't happen to a dog. Here they are doing their bit for defense, providing amusement to bolster civilian morale and at the same time preventing their customers from creating a boom market in consumers' goods, and congress slaps a $50 tax on their machines!

It isn't the money and it isn't the principle of the thing, either. So far as the 50 bucks is concerned that is no more than a moderately greedy sheriff would ask in the course of a year, and a few extra gimmicks on the reels, cutting down the pay-off, will provide the wherewithal to meet the tax.

The customers will provide the principal, and the boys are willing to let the principle go hang. What cuts them to the quick is the invasion of their sacred privacy. Not only is the collector of internal revenue going to nick them for 50 slugs but the tax law contains no provision binding him to secrecy as to where he got it. A bookie or bootlegger can at least pay an income tax on his profits without having the source of his income spread on the public records. Not so the slot machine boys.

Anybody, it appears, can drop around at the United States courthouse and find out what spots they are paying on. For the law provides that the location of the machine shall be stated on the license, and the revenue authorities may even put out a license which the owner of the premises will be required to frame and display, as he now does his federal liquor license.

Of course, it may be argued, if the Statesman O'Brien can't see the slot machine itself, complete with neon lights and cathedral chimes, he may have difficulty in seeing a license done in the subdued tones affected by the bureau of engraving and printing. But the O'Brien myopia will be cold comfort to the roadhouse keepers if the state liquor commission looks over the list in the collector's office and lifts their licenses for permitting gambling on the premises.

QUININE.

The latest extension of the magic group of sulfanilamide drugs is in the treatment of malaria. The Journal of the American Medical Society reports the successful use of two sulfanilamide derivatives in treatment of a number of patients suffering from the disease.

The treatment is still experimental, but has progressed favorably enough for the experimenters to list the drugs as important substitutes for quinine. The discovery is important to medicine, but more important at present in the field of American foreign policy.

The cinchona tree has emigrated from the highlands which gave the drug its original name of Peruvian bark. Today Java has a virtual monopoly of quinine production. Once more an American laboratory is ready to relieve American dependence on the tenuous line of communications with the potentially costly defense of the East Indies.

Product by product, the laboratory is replacing the tropical plantation as a source of industrial materials. The process started in the last century with indigo and camphor. We need no longer depend upon the tropics for rubber. The synthetics are more expensive, but the added drain on the national economy would be less than the carrying charges even of a war to preserve the British and Dutch empires in the Indies. Year by year the coke oven, the gas well, and the research laboratory are pushing America closer to autonomy.

Editorial of the Day

COMMUNISTS BETRAY THEIR HANDS.

[Reno Evening Gazette.]

The question of how firmly communists are entrenched in American industry has brought forth numerous and varied answers, most of them pure guesses.

When Hitler invaded Russia it was considered that some light might be shed on the matter. It was considered unlikely that communists would continue to sabotage the industrial machinery of a country committed to aid those opposing Hitler.

Observers were astounded when strikes continued. Some wondered whether they had been wrong in blaming the Stalinists.

Now a recent study by the National Association of Manufacturers has partially explained this seeming anomaly. The survey shows that during the first five weeks after the Hitler-Stalin break there was an enormous falling off in strikes in defense industries and an appreciable rise in stoppages which did not directly affect the American program of aid to Britain—and to Russia. The decline in armament plant shutdowns, expressed in days of men's work, was 42 per cent. At the same time, strikes in nondefense shops were keeping 14 per cent more workers off the job.

The inescapable conclusion seems to be that communists and radicals who have little affection for our form of government are strongly entrenched in the ranks of those involved in defense industry strikes.

"FREEDOM OF CONSCIENCE"; HOW IT WAS DITCHED TWICE

[Second of a series of three articles narrating the steps in the failure of "liberty of conscience" to get a place in the league of nations covenant.]

Liberty of conscience was first proposed to the conference of peace in Paris, appearing as an article in President Wilson's third draft of the covenant, completed in Paris Jan. 20, 1919.

"Recognizing religious persecution and intolerance as fertile sources of war," Mr. Wilson wrote, "the powers signatory hereto agree, and the league of nations shall exact from all new states and all states seeking admission to it the promise that they will make no law prohibiting or interfering with the free exercise of religion, and that they will in no way discriminate, either in law or in fact, against those who practice any particular creed, religion, or belief whose practices are not inconsistent with public order or public morals."

This was originally proposed as article XIX., but later became article XXI. It was reworded many times and discussed at enormous length. It is unnecessary to follow the article thru the many committee meetings in which its text was altered and the delegates attempted to sidetrack it without obviously giving the appearance of doing so. It is sufficient to note that from the first it was viewed with antipathy by the representatives of various nations, and that no one—even President Wilson—was willing to fight for it in the end. By the ninth meeting of the commission on the covenant Feb. 13, this opposition was open and acknowledged. The drafting committee reported: "The committee feels that, in view of the complications of this question, it would be preferable to omit this article altogether." The committee added, however, that if there was a strong feeling that some such provision be inserted the article be redrafted.

As the article was submitted at the 10th meeting of the commission Feb. 13, it read:

"The high contracting parties agree that they will not prohibit or interfere with the free exercise of any creed, religion, or belief whose practices are not inconsistent with public order or public morals, and that no person within their respective jurisdictions shall be molested in life, liberty, or the pursuit of happiness by reason of his adherence to any such creed, religion, or belief."

The final discussion preceding the elimination of the article from the covenant has points of interest. President Wilson, who had championed the article, was not present and was represented by Col. House. Apparently more for the sake of appearances than for any other reason, Col. House opened the discussion by stating that Wilson "strongly desired" the inclusion of the article.

M. Larnaude then made known that both France and Britain were in opposition. "We agreed with Lord Robert Cecil," he said, "that, in spite of the great advantage that there would be in proclaiming freedom of conscience and worship, the drafting of these reflections was so difficult that it would be better to suppress it." Lord Cecil, who was presiding, did not demur, but later, apparently to give the record a formal gloss, he said, "As President Wilson especially desires the inclusion of this article, and as the commission has agreed to it in principle, I think it cannot very well be omitted."

Nevertheless, omitted it was. The pretext was an amendment to the same article offered by the Japanese delegation and providing for racial equality. By discussing the equality amendment, rather than the "religious" article of which it was a part, the powers were able to drop the article in entirety without a recorded vote. The process was attended by some embarrassment, but it was sufficient for the purpose and it saved face all around.

"It would seem that matters of religion and race could well go together," said Baron Makino, the Japanese spokesman. "That race discrimination still exists, in law and in fact, is undeniable."

The racial clause read:

"The equality of nations being a basic principle of the league of nations, the high contracting parties agree to accord, as soon as possible, to all alien nationals of states members of the league, equal and just treatment in every respect, making no distinction, either in law or fact, on account of their race or nationality."

The Japanese logic is inescapable. If the idealism of the league were to be anything more than a catchword it must be all-inconclusive. If the league were to be a family of nations the nations must be equal. But the hard fact remained that idealism was qualified by narrow national interests.

The United States, then well along the legislative road which led to exclusion of the yellow races, could not recognize the principle of racial equality without letting down the bars to a wave of oriental immigration. A further consideration was the social and economic status of the native Negro population.

The British empire's objections were equally insurmountable. British Columbia would acquiesce in yellow immigration no more readily than would California. The concept of "White Australia" was imperiled. In South Africa the empire had a color problem more acute than in the southern states. India's 400 millions had been exploited for centuries. Were they to be admitted overnight to equality with the white sahib?

Thus what the democratic idealists saw and feared was the threat of a world-wide extension of true democracy.

Lord Cecil said that it was a problem which had raised extreme difficulties within the British empire. Despite the nobility of thought which inspired Baron Makino, he thought it wiser to postpone examination. Venizelos of Greece said that he was confident that the league would rapidly bring into being the results that the proponents of religious liberty and racial equality wished to attain, but that it would be better at the moment not to allude to them.

"For the moment," he said, "I propose the suppression of the article, for I think we should not push matters too rapidly."

He had proposed a formula which almost every one accepted with relief. The commission voted to strike out the article on freedom of conscience, ostensibly because there were insuperable objections to the subordinate proposal of racial equality. Miller noted that the sentiment of the meeting was almost unanimous, the only states in favor being Brazil, China, and Rumania.

The meeting adjourned at 7:45 p. m. President Wilson's acquiescence in the junking of the "religious" article was announced at 9 p. m. of that February day, 1919.

[A third and final article, tracing the process of eliminating the "freedom of conscience" article from the league of nations covenant will appear next Sunday in this column.]

UNNECESSARY WORRY ABOUT ACIDOSIS.

THERE are two medical terms which are used rather glibly by those who have something to sell—"acidosis" and "alkalosis." It may be said, "You are the victim of one or the other. You may be too sour [acid] or too insipid—in which event your body will require readjustment."

Now, the chances are less than one in several hundred thousand that you are either. The system possesses a remarkable sense of balance, swinging from acid to alkaline, or vice versa as the need arises. In fact, even tho we abuse the constitution vigorously, the tissues and fluids will maintain an equilibrium.

There are certain diseases, however, in which one or the other may develop. When we are healthy, the conduct of business within our frames requires that the liquids and solids shall vary in reaction. For example, the contents of the stomach must be acid, but when food enters the small bowel it must be alkaline. When we digest our meals and breathe normally, we manufacture considerable carbonic and lactic acids. This is exactly what happens when one utilizes a balanced diet.

But does the system allow these substances to remain in excess? The answer is—no. The circulation and kidneys serve as monitors. If anemia is present, however, the blood cannot function at par, and the adjustment which the red cells should make may not be effected quite so efficiently. But the remedy is not to resort to an acid or an alkali. Instead, we should restore the vital fluid to normal.

The only acid which exists within our cells and which is not neutralized immediately by a suitable alkali, is carbonic. But this is well tolerated inasmuch as every time we exhale [breathe out] we discharge a large amount. But if respiration is interfered with, an overplus may accumulate.

Now, nature has made a very wise provision. The nerves which govern the taking in and the throwing off of air are quickly stimulated by a surplus of carbon dioxide. The control center in the brain will then assume command and insist upon greater use of the lungs. In this fashion the overload is soon dissipated. If alkalosis is observed, on the other hand, the rate of respiration will become slower and more shallow in order to retain the carbon dioxide.

An artificial state of affairs may be established whenever the tissues lose a huge volume of minerals and fluids. Infants and young children particularly must be watched should diarrhea appear. Glucose or salt solution may be given by mouth or directly into a vein. In patients with diabetes—with whom vomiting occurs—there may ensue losses demanding sodium bicarbonate or glucose.

Sometimes physicians employ drugs which will produce acidosis unless their administration is safeguarded. One such preparation is sodium salicylate. We have learned that it is wise to prescribe an equivalent dose of sodium bicarbonate and, with children, even double this quantity may be necessary. This completely overcomes the acid influence of the medicine.

Alkalosis is not at all uncommon among those who are victims of hysteria, some emotional disorder, or who have excreted tremendous portions of fluids. Furthermore, a patient may exhibit the disorder due to alkaline treatments used for peptic ulcer. Since other factors are normal about all that is called for is to stop the administration of the drugs.

Fortunately, few of us need to bother about either acidosis or alkalosis. Healthy tissues have too much common sense to be swayed one way or the other.

It serves as an astringent of short duration. Evaporation cools the skin and contracts the capillaries, lessening the activities of the sweat glands.

Poor circulation. It is the cry of the tissues for more blood. Heat and gentle massage are ideal remedies.

Test Your Horse Sense

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts 5 points. Then look for the correct answers on page 9, part 2.

1. Which one of these would most likely be made of gabardine? Suit Socks Pajamas Handkerchiefs.
2. The number of lines of verse in a sonnet is 4 5 8 14.
3. The usual hirsute adornment employed by a young man is a Hat Toupee Moustache Belt.
4. Which of these men would be most familiar with a roundhouse? Architect Carpenter Jailer Railroader.
5. If you were financially reduced to your last 5 sou, you would probably be in England Mexico Germany France.
6. My experience with modern school children leads me to believe their poor reading is partly due to their inability to break a word into its component syllables. Every literate person should be able to dissect a strange word into its syllables, even if he isn't sure where to place the accent. You deserve one point for each correct division of the following words into syllables. Several laws are borne out in this problem today, such as where to separate a double consonant. The word "recuperate," for example, is divided like this: re-cu-per-ate. Follow this procedure in the five examples below.

[a] Difficulty should be divided thus:..................
[b] Ratification should be divided thus:..................
[c] Rhinoceros should be divided thus:..................
[d] Elephantiasis should be divided thus:..................
[e] Electrometallurgy should be divided thus:..................

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

FINDS DEFENSE A BETTER WAY.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—Sennacherib was defeated in the hills of Judea and never bothered Judea again. Xerxes was defeated on the coasts of Greece and never bothered Greece again. Hannibal was defeated in Italy and never bothered Italy again. The Roman legions were defeated in the forests of Germany and never bothered Germany again.

A large part of Charlemagne's army was defeated at Roncesvalles and Charlemagne never bothered Spain again. The Mongols were defeated on the frontiers of Egypt and never bothered Egypt again. The Crusaders were defeated at Acre and never bothered the Holy Land again.

The Spanish Armada was defeated off the coasts of Britain and never bothered Britain again. Cornwallis was defeated at Yorktown and never bothered the United States of America again. Napoleon was defeated at Moscow and retreated to his surrender at Waterloo. So instances could be multiplied indefinitely.

I do not know of any conquered country that would have been able to save itself from conquest by defeating the potential foe in the latter's home territory before such foe set out on its march. Moreover, I do not recall a single instance in which the salvation of any country from conquest would have been easier or less costly in lives and wealth by conquering the potential foe in its home territory.

SOME UNHAPPY FARMERS.

Springfield, Mo., Sept. 28.—In the southwest corner of Missouri a new army camp is being built by the government. When completed it will occupy about 66,000 acres in parts of Newton and McDonald counties.

These counties are noted for their prosperous dairy farms. Many of these have all the latest farm improvements, and the farmers are proud of their years of hard work.

Now the government is busy in a land acquisition program south of Neosho. Camp Crowder will require the purchasing of a good many of these farms. Already the government appraisers are there to buy the land, and, according to the Springfield paper, farmers are furious over the government's offers. It tells of one man who paid $7,500 for a farm 25 years ago. He spent money improving his land with fences, crops, and building. Now he is being offered $5,500 for the farm.

Another man put $6,600 in his farm. At the government's suggestion he went in for steady farm improvement, installed electricity, furnace heat, and other developments. Now the government appraiser has offered him $5,000 for the place, telling him it was over improved! One man has been paying on 74 acres. But the government man says he only has 63, and offered him about two-thirds of the farm's cost. These men have refused to sell.

We have a pretty good example of New Deal economics there right now. One farmer said it was the darndest thing he ever heard of, and I agree. Since when has our New Deal gone in for thrift?

GASOLINE DOWN EAST.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 30.—I ran out of gasoline in a New York town last night and had to go to the police station to get a permit to buy gas from the one station remaining open. The man who owned the station talked as he drew the gas.

"All of us fought this regulation when it first came in but now we are all for it. Each station has at least one employé less and saves $30 to $50 a month on lights, and we actually have been selling more gas than ever before. Every body fills up before 7."

"But what about the fellow who lost his job, and what about the defense program?" I asked.

"All the guys we let out have their unemployment insurance, haven't they? And the defense program is an offense program, I'm thinking. I'm an immigrant from Poland and I wouldn't trade Chautauqua county for the whole of central Europe. I got out."

I thought Chicagoans might like to know that you still can't get gas after 7 in the east. Some say its real purpose is to make you war conscious. Others say it is to save gas.

A "STOLEN" DANISH SHIP.

Dayton, O., Oct. 2.—In the courts of any country professing to be civilized, stolen goods are not recognized as legitimately owned. The ship Pink Star was not an American owned vessel because it was pirate-stolen from Denmark, and unabashed at that—a "patriotic prerogative" of democracies.

And then, in further evasion, this country hoists on it a Panamanian flag so we can do things with it which we couldn't otherwise do—carry munitions to Europe, etc.

LA FOLLETTE SR.'S PLEA CITED.

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 26.—In 1917 the great American senator, Robert La Follette Sr., pleaded in vain to keep the U. S. A. out of war. He was called a traitor. If we had listened to him the boys who died in vain overseas would be alive today and we would not be headed for the worst disaster of all times.

A "WHITE COLLAR" FAMILY.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—Because there is no other place where individuals can speak their views openly and hope for something to come of it, I write about the inadequate salaries for the "white collar" educated business American.

My husband is in an office—gets $25 a week. Twenty-five cents off for social security; twelve cents for cashing the check; $3 for transportation and noon lunch; the son attending high school uses $1 a week for a warm lunch in a cafeteria at school; a pound of butter and a dozen eggs once a week take about another dollar; etc., etc.

What is there left for dentist, oculist, repairs about home, and other absolute necessities? We live only to pay something on our taxes once a month. They are never paid up in full.

100 BILLION IN CARLOADS.

Piketon, O., Sept. 30.—It seems that with defense outlay, actual and contracted for, added to lend-lease, etc., this country is obligated for 50 billions. On Sept. 1 the national debt was above 50 billions. The two totals make 100 billions.

What does that mean translated into gold? For eight or nine years we have been paying $35 an ounce for gold. If a freight car were loaded with 40 tons of gold, at $420 a troy pound, or $560 a pound avoirdupois, the carload would be worth $44,800,000.

I figure that the 100 billions in gold would fill some 2,250 cars, bearing 40 tons of gold each. This at $35 an ounce, the artificial price. At $20.67 an ounce, the old normal price in the markets of the world, at least a thousand more cars would be required.

COCKEYED TAX PLANS.

Coldwater, Mich., Sept. 26.—There must be a different kind of arithmetic in Washington. Sounds "cockeyed." How can manufacturers pay an "excess profits tax" when a law is being considered for government to take all profits above 6 per cent. Another example: Cosmetics will be taxed 10 per cent on retail sales and allowed 6 per cent profit. My arithmetic must be 'way off.

MINOR'S NOTE—ESTATE ASSETS.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Please advise me [1] if a father is liable for a note signed by his minor son? He had knowledge of it.

If all debts are paid of deceased person [2] can any one [state or relatives] force an administration of the estate, or [3] can it remain as it stands for seven years? 4. What is the time limit in which to put in judgment on judgment notes?

C. T. H.

1. No.
2. A relative who is an heir could force probate. We see no basis on which a person who has no interest in the proceedings could force matters.
3. Yes, if all parties interested are satisfied.
4. Ten years from the maturity date, but if it is a claim against the deceased person it could be barred sooner, by probate or by the lapse of seven years.

PAYMENT BY CHECK.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My father has a personal check but can't cash it as there are no funds to cover it. The friend who issued the check promises payment, but we have waited three months. Can we collect some other way? He has a business which could be sued, I suppose. Any information will be appreciated.

R. R.

If your father gave cash or something else of value at the time of receiving the check then he has presumptive evidence of fraud such as to justify prosecution and he should take it up with the state's attorney. If the check was given on a pre-existing debt then civil proceedings would be the only course, for which a private attorney should be employed.

ARMY AIR CORPS DISCLOSES NEED FOR NAVIGATORS

Seeks 1,000 a Month from 6th Corps Area.

For the next three months the army air corps needs 1,000 young men a month from the states within the 6th corps area to train as navigators of long-range military aircraft, including the largest bombers, transports, and army freight planes, it was announced here yesterday by Maj. Gen. Joseph M. Cummins, commanding officer.

Need for the navigators, the general explained, is even greater at this time than for young men who can qualify as flying cadets or as enlisted pilots in the air corps.

Other Jobs Open.

At the same time, Gen. Cummins declared, the air corps is continuing its efforts to find young men for its courses as pilots and bombardiers, and for the other branches of the air corps primarily concerned with ground duty. These are the armament, photography, communications, engineering, and meteorology branches.

Those eligible for the air corps include civilians and personnel of the regular army. Applicants for special training must be between the ages of 20 and 27 years, single, and have sound physique and excellent character.

Gen. Cummins said that the educational requirements for men seeking flying duties have been trimmed considerably during the last year, and if youths with high school educations are willing to accept ratings as staff or master sergeants they can train as pilots without college credits of any kind. On the other hand, the army in conjunction with colleges has arranged for special courses to qualify men for commissioned rank in one year.

Course Opened Here.

One such course has been instituted at a Chicago college, and all credits for aviation cadets can be obtained by completing a 12 month course there.

All the specialist training for air corps branches, including flying and nonflying assignments, require seven and a half months of schooling.

Pay for all air corps trainees except enlisted men is $75 a month and $1 a day subsistence allowance. Enlisted men training as aviation students or technicians draw pay corresponding to that of their grade plus a 50 per cent allowance for time while on flying status.

The army, Gen. Cummins said, requires those who successfully complete their courses to enlist for three years active duty. Aviation cadets are commissioned as reserve officers and attached to regular army units for active service. They may be relieved of active status before their enlistments expire, but staff sergeant pilots must serve for three full years.

FIRE AT WOMAN, BREAK WINDOWS WITH A SHOTGUN

Burnside police are looking for two men, armed with a shotgun, who fired at a woman walking along a south side street early yesterday and smashed the windows of six business establishments with shotgun blasts. Mrs. William Sowa of 9907 South State street said the men fired two shots at her from a sedan parked half a block from her home. The men also shot out the windows in two filling stations, a dry goods store, a pipe factory, a grocery, and a liquor store.

Divorced

ETHEL MERMAN.

Santa Monica, Cal., Oct. 4 (AP).—It was Ethel Merman's husband, William J. Smith, and not the singer herself who warbled the blues this week. Smith, a Hollywood actor's agent, was granted a divorce by Superior Judge Joseph Marchetti. Smith said the singer left him two months after their marriage in November, 1940, and had rejected his pleas that she return. Miss Merman, who is in New York, did not contest the suit.

VETERANS' SONS OPPOSE AEF TILL CONGRESS ACTS

Muncie, Ind., Oct. 4 [Special].—Eli Thornburg camp No. 20, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, today joined in the protest against sending American troops to foreign battlefields without the consent of congress.

More than 75 members, meeting in the Delaware county courthouse here, voted a resolution against dispatching expeditionary forces to fight outside the United States unless authorized by congress.

The Sons of Veterans' anti-war stand followed by two days a similar action taken by Guy Ayers post, No. 211, of the American Legion at Portland, 20 miles away.

The Legionnaires, in a referendum on Thursday, urged that no American troops be sent to fight on foreign shores and condemned the pro-war resolution rushed thru the national Legion convention at Milwaukee.

AN IMPORTANT PART of his TRAINING is in the SCHOOL BAND!

EDUCATORS agree that school band training is one of a student's most important extracurricular activities. It coaches him in concentration and teamwork. It helps develop a sense of rhythm that will be useful all through life in many ways. It instills in him an appreciation of good music—which in his later years will make him not only happier, but will enable him to relax. If your child is inclined at all toward music, by all means have him join the school band now. We can help you outfit him with the instrument most suited to him . . . and to your budget. And you can select from a complete line by C. G. Conn, Pan American and Cavalier.

CHUTIST STUCK ATOP 1,280 FOOT PEAK FIFTH DAY

Climbers to Try Rescue Today; Blimp on Way.

At the time of the Black Hills uplift a gigantic protrusion of molten rock is believed to have occurred in an earth fault. Upon slowly cooling, the center crystalized while the adjacent ground, of different formation, gradually eroded, leaving the naked tower of about 400 million tons of rock known as basalt.

The tower is composed of hundreds of columns, each about five feet in diameter, which gives the appearance of deep fissures between them. The gently sloping, but generally level top, has sufficient dirt to grow cactus.

Walls Almost Vertical.

The awesome formation rises more than 1,200 feet above the nearby Belle Fourche river on its north side and is about 800 feet above the countryside which rises toward its base. Its walls are almost vertical, the top, which is 200 by 400 feet, being nearly as large as the base.

More than 30 persons have successfully scaled the tower, the first one being Will Rogers, a local rancher, who used wooden pegs to reach the top on July 4, 1893. His wife was the first and only woman to make the climb.

It was on to this comparatively small area that Hopkins, a Texas aviator, bet his friend he could make a landing from a plane. Back of him was a parachuting record that he claimed included service with Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese army and with the British air force at Dunkirk.

Plunges from Plane.

Last Wednesday he flew over the tower in a plane piloted by Clyde Ice of Spearfish, S. D. At a height of about 600 feet above the top of the tower, Hopkins stepped out of the plane.

Ice told later of banking his plane and seeing Hopkins pull his parachute's guide line to bring him down close to the nearest edge of the tower. Had he fallen only a few feet short, Ice said, his body would have been smashed against the rock side of the pinnacle. But he landed safely, rolling his 115 pound body along the ground to break his fall and wrap down the 'chute.

His first night on his tight little island was not a pleasant one. Cold winds swept the tower top, a quarter of a mile in the Wyoming sky, and a light snow fell. But the weather since has been moderately warm.

Get Air Traffic Cop!

His feat attracted so much attention that in a few days so many planes were flying over the tower that an air warden had to be appointed to control the traffic.

The planes dropped Hopkins an army tent, half a dozen blankets, packaged food, and 2,400 feet of rope for his perilous descent. Some trouble was encountered in delivering water, the large tin containers breaking when they landed but this trouble was overcome by using smaller tins.

Hopkins dropped notes tied to stones in which he asked for newspapers, particularly the comic sections, fruit juices and coffee, all of which were dropped to him, the coffee in thermos containers.

He's Fine but Lonely.

In his notes Hopkins joked with the crowd below and told them not to worry, that he "felt fine but am lonely and will be glad when I get down." Those on the ground communicated with him with large megaphones which they used from a large natural ledge about 250 feet up from the base of the tower. The crowd was unable to hear Hopkin's voice when he occasionally tried to call to them.

Equipped with a pair of sneakers which had been dropped to him, Hopkins thrilled and chilled the watchers Thursday in an attempted descent under the glare of automobile headlights. The crowd gasped when his foot slipped, but he recovered himself and then clambered quickly to the top.

On Friday, Ranger Field and a private mountain guide, Warren Gorrell of Denver, climbed 300 feet up the tower in an attempted rescue, driving pegs into crevices as they ascended. They turned back, however, after one of them had a near accident by slipping.

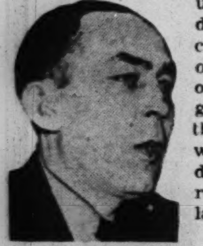
GRANT DUNNE, CIO BOSS, ENDS LIFE IN MINNEAPOLIS

Under U. S. Indictment in Overthrow Plot.



Grant Dunne.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 4 [Special]. —Grant Dunne, radical CIO leader under federal indictment on a charge of seditious conspiracy to overthrow the government of the United States, was found shot to death in the bedroom of his home late today.

Police said Dunne killed himself. A pistol was found at his side. According to his widow, Clara, he had been suffering from a nervous breakdown, and twice had threatened to commit suicide.

Dunne was scheduled to go to trial in St. Paul on Oct. 20 on the sedition charge. This circumstance, police indicated, contributed to his breakdown.

Fortunes Hit Decline.

Another factor, they added, was the apparent decline of his personal fortunes in the labor movement, plus an apparent deterioration in his private financial affairs. Two weeks ago he applied for state unemployment compensation.

Dunne was one of three brothers who for years have dominated certain fields of labor in Minneapolis thru their control of the General Drivers' union, local No. 544. The other brothers are Miles, president of the local, and Vincent—like Grant —an organizer.

For a decade the union has figured in all sorts of terrorism, the height of which was reached in 1934 and 1935 in general strikes which paralyzed Minneapolis and resulted in six slayings. Grant Dunne was considered the brains of the strikes. Terrorism continued in 1937 and 1938, with the murders of Pat Corcoran and William S. Brown, union officials.

Union Revolts Against Rule.

Subsequently rank and file members revolted against the Dunnes, suing in court for a financial accounting. In a cleanup ruling the trial judge ordered the union president, Carl Skoglund, removed from office on the ground he was an alien.

Next the Dunnes were hit by an investigation by the American Federation of Labor with which their union was affiliated. They sought to dodge this move by switching over to the CIO, but failing in the maneuver they organized another General Drivers' union, with the same local number, 544, and it was with this CIO faction of the union that Grant Dunne and his brothers were identified at his death.

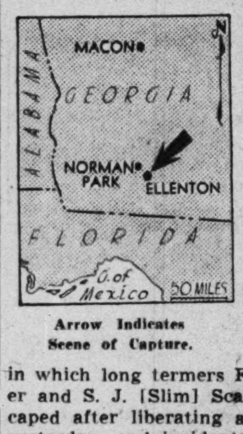
The climax came on July 15 in the federal indictment of 29 men, most of them members of local 544, including Miles and Vincent Dunne. The government accused Grant Dunne and the others of being members of the Socialist Workers' party, a revolutionary group in sympathy with Trotsky teachings, and designed to overthrow the American government.

Fugitives Seized

[Associated Press Wirephotos.]

Forrest Turner (right) and S. J. Scarborough, captured yesterday after they had set free 43 prisoners in Georgia prison camp.

Ellenton, Ga., Oct. 4 (AP).—Two boasting fugitives who threatened to blast off pursuers with dynamite yielded without lifting a resisting finger today to gun bristling posse men who blocked their rolling arsenal near here.



Arrow Indicates Scene of Capture.

Altho the automobile in which long termers Forrest Turner and S. J. [Slim] Scarborough escaped after liberating a convict pal yesterday—and incidentally 42 other prisoners—was packed with four machine guns, a sack of pistols and dynamite, the only shot fired was by a state trooper during a wild chase here from nearby Norman Park.

Captured with the pair were a young woman claiming to be Turner's wife and Fred Stewart, the convict Scarborough and Turner delivered in a roadside gun battle with guards at Hamilton state camp.

Of the 43 liberated prisoners 34 returned within a few hours.

Turner has a record of five escapes and Scarborough one of nine. Their last break was from a Dallas prison camp Aug. 14.

TRAINING SCHOOL JUST THAT UNDER NEW STATE PLAN

Inmates Are Assisted in Preparing Future.

The Illinois Training School for Boys, near St. Charles, for many years notorious for its graduation of hardened criminals, now is training youthful offenders in the principles of good citizenship.

Under a new system initiated three months ago by Gov. Green and Rodney Brandon, state director of the department of public welfare, officials of the institution and social science workers are helping the inmates plan intelligently for the future.

A new state bureau, the division of supervision of delinquents, has assumed charge of paroled inmates. Field workers are assembling complete case files on each boy in the school, exchanging information with school supervisors, and helping the released youth get a new start in life.

Not Really Bad, He Says.

"Most of the boys in the school are not really 'bad,'" Harvey L. Long, superintendent of the division, said yesterday. "What we are trying to do is to give an individualized service to the boy, his family, and his community. We are considering each youthful offender as an individual and treating him on the basis of his individual needs."

After a boy is sent to the school, district field supervisors interview his parents, relatives, neighbors, employers, and friends and compile what is called a "preclassification report," designed to give a full understanding of the inmate's social history, Long said.

The report is then forwarded to school officials, who use it as a basis for individual treatment. At the institution officials are attempting to create a "home atmosphere" in the various cottages. Counselors are assigned to small groups of boys to help them solve their problems.

Try to Find Him a Job.

After the youth is paroled to the state division, field supervisors attempt to find him a job and to help him make contacts with new friends.

"We believe the new system will mean fewer criminal graduates of the school," Long said. "But, of course, we can't do the job alone. We must have the coöperation of every community.

"No boy will be released from supervision until he has proved he is ready to go on his own. Without the help of the people in his community the delinquent has little chance to make a good citizen."

ASSEMBLY VOTE SALE CHARGES TO GO BEFORE JURY

Other Scandalous Conduct Laid to Missourians.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Jefferson City, Mo., Oct. 4.—Charges that many members of the last Missouri general assembly put their votes on the auction block and took bids from a swarm of lobbyists are to be placed before a specially summoned grand jury in Cole County Circuit court here beginning Monday.

The assembly, which broke all state records for spending and length of session, adjourned July 12. It left unapproved two resolutions, both aimed at setting up a legislative body to go deeply into the intrigue and the alleged corruption of its members.

As a result the task of investigating was put up to the county prosecuting attorney, Carl Wymore, and Circuit Judge Sam C. Blair, who was formerly an assistant federal district attorney in Kansas City and took a leading part in sending the Democratic boss Tom Pendergast and a number of his associates to prison.

State Aids Financially.

They met the challenge Wymore requested and Judge Blair ordered the convening of the grand jury, the first summoned in the county in two years. County finances were inadequate for the expense involved. This lack was made good by the coöperation of Gov. Forrest C. Donnell and Attorney General Roy McKittrick.

Each appointed an investigator, and for the last six weeks they have been running down clews and, with Wymore, preparing to present their evidence to the grand jury.

Not all the tales that are told relate to the actual passage of money for votes, nor of the allegedly huge slush funds gathered to be used in passing or defeating legislation affecting special interests. [The juke box industry is one that has been mentioned prominently.]

Tales of Night Gambling.

The high jinks that accompanied the closing weeks of the expensive session are likely, in the opinion of the well informed here, to be given a thoro airing. Among the allegations of low toned merry making are:

Poker and crap games went on steadily at nights in locked but brightly lighted committee rooms in the magnificent state capitol overlooking the Missouri river. Dice rollers are rumored to have worn all the finish off one office door by hurtling the galloping dominos against it. [The door in question has been refinished.]

Late revels in one state senator's offices won it the nickname of "capitol night club." 'Tis said and scarcely disputed that tasty viands, including sizzling steaks, were broiled on electric stoves, that beer trucks of the pusher variety were trundled thru the state house halls, and that gay visitors of both sexes enjoyed the senator's hospitality.

On Trail of Corruption.

It is conceded that the investigators and the judge are not particularly intrigued by these human interest touches in the career of the "do-nothing legislature," as it has been called. Their task is to answer, with the grand jury's help, the questions the representatives of the people of Missouri left unanswered, questions involving alleged corruption. If the celebrants violated good taste and ethics with whoopee, that's a side line.

The general assembly got off to a bad start when it refused to seat Gov. Donnell, who had been elected by 3,600 votes over the Democratic nominee, Lawrence McDaniel. The state law requires the speaker of the house to announce the election results before a chief executive can be seated.

That was in January. The outgoing Democratic governor, Lloyd C. Stark, condemned the legislature's stand, altho it meant he remained in office. The Missouri Supreme court, all Democratic, eventually issued a mandamus for the seating of Donnell.

In Session 180 Days.

Six weeks had been wasted by the assembly, predominantly Democratic. The legislators lost money, too. They are paid $5 a day for a maximum of 70 days, and only $1 a day thereafter. On this pittance they continued their deliberations 110 more days.

Bitter factionalism developed as the spring waned and the hot, humid days of summer came. Serious minded legislators begged their colleagues to get down to business.

Bills not acted on piled up. Then, during adjournment week, a St. Louis attorney with a thunderous voice, Charles M. Hay, drove a sound truck up to the capital steps one humid night and roared out accusations that laws were being passed or rejected on the dollar and cents basis.

Specific in His Charges.

He called names. He specified places. He said a certain person had told him one legislator could be had for $50. Mr. Hay was miffed because a school teachers' pension bill for which he was working was defeated. He said it was because he had "no money for the boys." A legislator without a sound truck yelled back "liar."

The lethargic assembly couldn't ignore the sound truck's message, nor the heat that was put on by Missouri's newspapers. The press printed interviews with business men who told of contributing to funds to promote or to defeat legislation, and of how they'd like to know what use was made of the donations.

A bipartisan committee to consider the charges was appointed. It recommended that "an investigation should be made forthwith." Majority and minority resolutions providing for a committee for that purpose were drafted in the waning hours of the session. But it takes at least five days to get a resolution adopted, and the weary, perspiring legislators wanted to go home. They did.

Then Judge Blair examined a transcript of the testimony before the committee and made his decision to call the grand jury.

200 OLD FRIENDS MEET AND TALK OF YOUNGER DAYS

They Helped Youth of Their Neighborhood in '90s.

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

It is always supposed to be fair weather when old friends get together, but last night in the seemingly endless rain 200 old friends, most of whom hadn't seen each other in 40 years, gathered for old times sake in the Auburn Park Masonic temple, 7832 South Union avenue.

They recognized each other, mostly by smiles and handshakes and sometimes by eyes that had not grown old. They were members of five neighborhood social clubs that brought the youth of the Garfield boulevard area together for fun and romance in the gay '90s. The clubs were the old Garfield Debating club with 10 members, four of whom turned into lawyers; the Garfield Literary club for Ladies, the Garfield Dramatic club, the Fabian Dancing club, and the Posy club for "the boys on the corner."

Money for Young Blades.

There was John E. Traeger, former sheriff and present jury commissioner, with his high stiff collar and ruby studs who lent money to the young blades of that day to build their little cottages. Traeger was president of a neighborhood bank.

"When I came to this neighborhood," he said, "Halsted street was not yet paved and they had just put in the sewer.

"There were 65 per cent Irish and 35 per cent German mixed together and all were friends as well as neighbors. They didn't ask your religion or your nationality. You were accepted as one of the gang and, were you in trouble, they were right there."

"But you didn't know them as I did," Judge William J. Lindsay of the Superior court interrupted Traeger. "I was a teacher at Englewood High school when many of these folk were pupils. They were a gay lot and put over many a trick on me. One habit they had was putting an alarm clock in my desk and setting for the time that school was supposed to get out. But I made them stay overtime anyway and it didn't do them any harm. Look at the fine bunch I turned out."

Loyalty Is the Word.

"Loyalty is the one word I have to describe this bunch," Judge Joseph A. Graber of the Superior court, put in. "I was graduated from the first class at Visitation High school and many of the boys in that class have been a great help to me."

Of all those present, Judge Walter T. Stanton, also of the Superior court, claimed to know the old neighborhood best. "You can't tell me anything about this crew that I don't know," he declared. "I lived in front of the yards for years and I've lived in one building at 705 West Garfield boulevard for 44. Believe it or not, I've been in three wards in that one building."

While the men chatted one brown haired gentleman looked on smilingly. He was William H. Cruden, jury commissioner, who had been appointed 50 years ago yesterday to the police force. "Don't believe everything the boys say," he told a woman standing near by. "I remember them when I was stationed at 55th and Halsted streets and I had my hands full with them."

The Reason
SO MANY FAMILIES CALL LAIN & SON

When one concern rises to leadership in a city like Chicago and secures a preference of thirty times as many calls as the average concern it must offer a type of service unobtainable elsewhere.

A visit to the Lain & Son Chapels shows graphically the many extra facilities provided not only for the comfort of the family itself but for all who attend the services.

LARGE and beautiful chapels, spacious reception rooms, private parlors, air-conditioning, parking facilities and a sincere desire on the part of every member of the organization are combined to bring patrons of Lain & Son the maximum of comfort.

And because Lain & Son offer so many features which cannot be duplicated, it is a pleasant surprise that their funerals cost no more than others. Lain services are available in your residence, church or lodge in Chicago and Suburbs for as low a price as $1101

102D METHODIST CONFERENCE TO START TUESDAY

Wilmette Church Is Scene of Sessions.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Methodists of northern Illinois will assemble Tuesday afternoon at Wilmette Parish church for the opening of the 102d annual Rock River conference. Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf, resident bishop of the Chicago area, will preside.

The Rev. Erskine M. Jeffords, pastor of the Wilmette church, who is host to the conference, says the sessions will be of especial importance this year because of the expiration of six year terms of two district superintendents of the conference and the retirement from active ministry of several leading pastors.

Completion of Terms.

The Rev. Dr. A. Turley Stephenson, superintendent of the Chicago Northern district, and the Rev. Dr. Raymond L. Seamans, of the Rockford district, complete their terms as superintendents. Among the pastors to retire are the Rev. Dr. John Thompson of Chicago Temple; the Rev. James O'May of Avondale church, North Spaulding avenue and George street, and for many years the secretary of the conference, and the Rev. C. Claud Travis of Hemenway church, Evanston.

When as many as two district superintendents reach the end of their terms and pastors of important churches retire, many shifts in pastoral appointments ensue. The impending conference thus was expected to be a "shakeup session," with a large proportion of the ministers being assigned to new churches.

A Dramatic Moment.

The reading of the appointments of pastors of 350 churches, often the most dramatic moment of the conference, has been scheduled for next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The appointments will be read by Bishop Waldorf.

Thruout the six days many questions concerning the life of the church and of the relationship of the church with the present day situation will be discussed and debated.

PREVENT FIRES! CITY REMEMBERS DISASTER IN 1871

Anniversary to Be Kept by Safety Drive.

Seventy years ago, on Sunday evening, Oct. 8, 1871, fire broke out on Chicago's near west side, spread rapidly in all directions, and didn't stop until three days later. It consumed property worth 175 million dollars, took 250 lives, and destroyed a considerable part of the city.

A few blessings were mingled with the disaster. It gave birth to a new city of brick and stone and concrete. It also inspired a healthy respect for fires which obtains expression each year on the anniversary of the fire in National Fire Prevention week.

This year the fire department, the Association of Commerce, the public school system, and a score of civic organizations have collaborated in a program designed to make every Chicagoan conscious of the great savings in life and property that might be realized by preventing fires.

Program in Schools.

The burden of the educational program will fall on school children, who will meet in special assemblies to discuss fire hazards, hear talks by firemen, visit fire stations, and carry home scorecards with which they can inspect their own homes for fire hazards.

In high schools students have been preparing for the week for months by making posters. The best of these, a giant boot crushing out a fire, was drawn by Jack De Bartolo of Schurz High school. It has been imposed on thousands of cards which will be displayed this week on street cars, buses, and elevated platforms.

Other posters which were entered in a national contest will be placed in the windows of stores in the loop and in outlying business districts.

Children in elementary schools will clip stories of fires printed in newspapers during the week and write brief explanations of how each fire might have been prevented. The 15 students who perform the project best will be invited to go on a cruise on a fireboat by Fire Commissioner Michael J. Corrigan.

Toll of Fire in 1940.

The toll of fire in the United States last year was 10,000 lives and $285,878,697 property damage, Anthony J. Mullaney, first deputy chief, said, and in Chicago alone the losses resulting from fire amounted to $4,850,000. This loss was less than that in any other year except 1935, when it amounted to $3,712,061.

"Every one of Chicago's fires might have been prevented," Chief Mullaney said. "Good housekeeping, and that means getting rid of accumulations of rubbish, would abolish more than half the fires we put out."

MARRIED HALF A CENTURY.

Freeport, Ill., Oct. 4 [Special].—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shidler of Lanark will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary tomorrow. They have one son, Jesse, a teacher in a Chicago school.

DR. CUTTER TO BE PAID TRIBUTE AT N. U. TOMORROW

Tribune Health Editor to Receive Degree.

Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Dr. Irving S. Cutter, dean emeritus at the school of medicine at Northwestern university and health editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will receive an honorary doctor of science degree from the university tomorrow at the annual Founders' day of the school of medicine in the Archibald Church library, Evanston. Franklyn B. Snyder, president of the university, will award the degree.

A Medical Audience.

A portrait of Dr. Cutter, painted by Paul Trebilcock, will be unveiled. Dr. James Roscoe Miller, successor to Dr. Cutter as dean of the school of medicine, will make the principal address. Dr. Leslie B. Arey, professor of anatomy, will be master of ceremonies.

Members of the student body, the faculty, and other persons interested in medicine will attend.

Dr. Cutter already holds two honorary degrees from Jefferson Medical college and the University of Nebraska. He received his bachelor degree in 1898 and his doctor of medicine degree in 1910 from the University of Nebraska. He was dean of the college of medicine there for 10 years. He was appointed dean of the school of medicine at Northwestern in 1925.

School Wins Fame.

Since that time, the medical school of the university has won recognition as one of the nation's great centers of medical teaching and research. Several gifts have been given to it in tribute to Dr. Cutter, among them a fund for medical research established last year by Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE TRIBUNE.

Dr. Cutter has been superintendent of Passavant hospital since 1928. He has also been health editor of THE TRIBUNE and has written a column a day for the last seven years.

MODERN MEDICINE can add from 5 to 20 years to Your Life

A prominent physician stated recently: "Death from old age is so infrequent as to be almost a medical phenomena." He went on to point out that while the average span of human life has been prolonged 20 years during the past century it was accomplished almost wholly through the reduction of infant and child mortality. After the age of 35 life has not been extended a single year in the last two generations and between the ages of 50 and 70 life expectancy is not so great as it was a century ago.
These statements seem somewhat incredible, especially when we consider the brilliant achievements in medicine and surgery during the past 30 years. But the hundreds of thousands who are killed each year in this country by diseases which could have been cured, controlled or prevented are tragic proof of their accuracy. This terrible waste of human life can be prevented. The remedy lies in earlier and more complete examinations.
Since its inception 9 years ago this organization has repeatedly and continuously stressed the importance of early and more complete medical supervision and care in the prevention and cure of the major causes of disability and death. In order to accomplish this not only was there provided a staff of competent physicians and surgeons, whose knowledge and experience are amply supported by extensive X-ray and laboratory facilities, but these complete services were made more accessible to the public through lower fees. During these 9 years thousands have been examined and treated. "Case Histories" show almost every known disease . . . many show "no disease found." Serious diseases were found in many who expected it least. They afford definite proof, however, that years have been added to hundreds of lives as a direct result of these early and complete medical examinations. They also show how others who delayed too long were not so fortunate as their conditions had reached a serious stage; in many cases even too late for surgery. If more persons could be made to realize the significance of these little glimpses into the "Case Histories" of hundreds of our patients they would take stock of their physical condition immediately. They would see the potential danger of a mild sinus infection, dizzy spells, sore throat, a cough, repeated colds, pains in the neck—shoulder, chest—legs—joints, chills, indigestion—nervousness, worry, tired worn out feeling and many others. However, as these "Case Histories" are not open to the public we can only continue to stress the importance of early and accurate diagnosis of all physical ailments no matter how harmless they appear to be. Follow this with a yearly physical check-up after the age of 40 and from 5 to 20 years can be added to life expectancy.
Our complete facilities are available to everyone. The fees are the lowest sound medical practice can provide. Make use of them through our own highly trained medical staff, or through your own family physician.

Have Your Teeth X-rayed and avoid the danger of arthritis, serious heart trouble, kidney disorders, indigestion, and other troublesome ailments. BY EDWARD BURNS.

Kansas State, a Big Six team which calls itself the Wildcats and waves purple pennants like Northwestern, scarcely showed any further similitude with the Evanston folks on the basis of the outcome of yesterday's football match before 40,000 in Dyche stadium. Kansas State was the first to score, but when it was all over and the rain pouring most dismally, the score was added up to Northwestern, 51; Kansas State, 3.

The Evanston Wildcats, who used 50 talented young men in their first football enterprise of the season, seemed to have just about everything except a flair for booting points after touchdowns. They missed five and tho there was no sorrow over the loss of five points in a 51 to 3 ball game, some observed that five points might be nice come competition with Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio State, Minnesota, Indiana, Notre Dame, and Illinois.

Graham Has Busy Day.

Otto Graham, sophomore left half back from Waukegan, was one of the busiest of the 50 Evanston Wildcats. He scored three touchdowns, one on a ninety yard run after receiving a punt. Among the other things he did was figure in the tossing end of a pass play which was good for sixty-four yards for a touchdown by Ike Kepford.

Bill De Correvont, launching his senior season, made two touchdowns, once on a trip of a yard and again after a thirty-nine yard sprint. Don Buffmire, a sophomore, reeled off a lot of yardage and cashed some of it on the seventh Northwestern touchdown. Casey Peifer made the eighth touchdown on a one yard plunge.

Visitors Get One First Down.

Kansas State, in addition to making the first points, also made the first first down. It was perhaps tragic for the Kansans that that one first down was all they made. The Evanston Wildcats made 22.

There were other great discrepancies in the statistics of the two breeds of Wildcats, and what do you expect in a 51 to 3 match? You'll find a table at the bottom of this column in case you're curious.

The score was 3 to 0 in favor of Kansas State at the end of four minutes of play, but 13 to 3 in favor of Northwestern at the end of the first quarter.

In the second quarter the Evanston Wildcats did more running hither and thither than they did in the first period and the Manhattan Wildcats much less, but the payoff in the scoring department was only one touchdown for the team from hereabouts.

Fumble Sets Up Score.

Kansas State's early points bloomed from a foozled punt by De Correvont which twisted out of bounds on Northwestern's 31 yard line. Williams and Ray Rokey made it first down on Northwestern's 19 yard line but the running attack then bogged and Williams, with Rokey holding the ball on the 28 yard line, kicked a field goal.

Northwestern's first touchdown was set up after Kansas State had kicked to midfield. Tuffy Chambers broke thru on the first play after the kick for a sprint of twenty-one yards and Benson lost no time in wading off thirteen more, after which three efforts by De Correvont netted

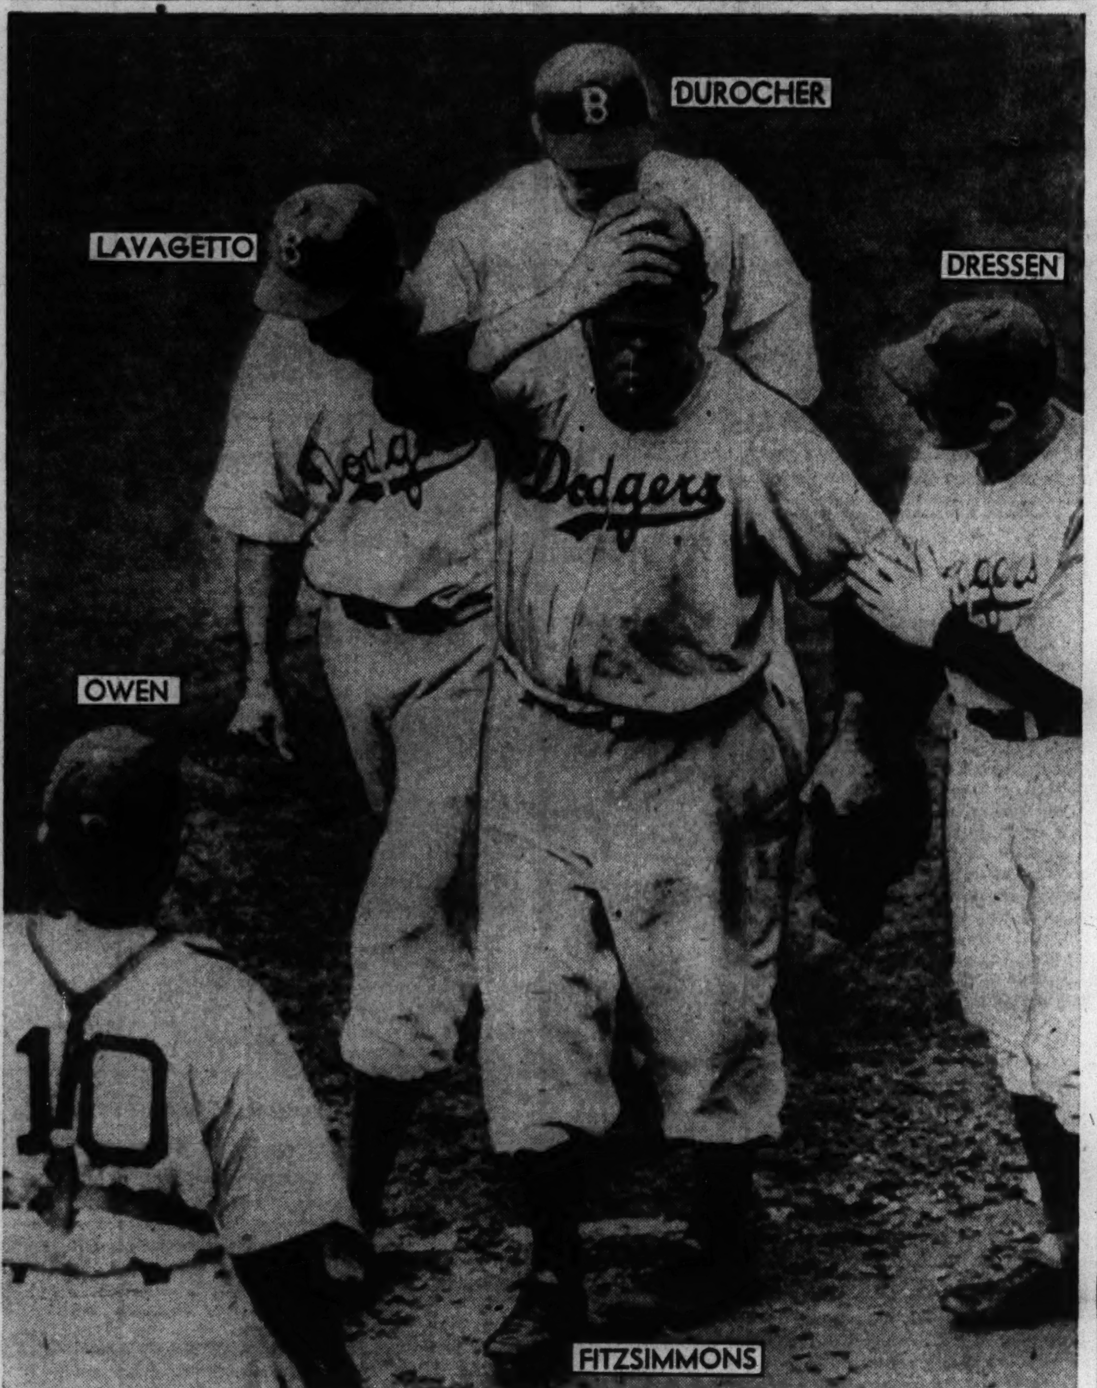
REEL THREE IN THAT DRAMA, 'BOMBERS VS. BUMS'



He didn't win the pretty princess, or more literally, achieve victory in yesterday's world series game, but Fred Fitzsimmons emerged as the hero, even in the defeat of Brooklyn's beloved Bums by the New York Yankees, 2 to 1, in Ebbets field. The Dodger pitcher is being helped off the field in the seventh inning after a line drive by his pitching opponent, Marius Russo, struck him on the knee. At this time the game was scoreless. [Associated Press Wirephotos.]

REESE
STURM

Johnny Sturm, Yankees' first baseman, hurtles thru the air on a successful steal of second base after singling in the sixth inning. Peewee Reese, Dodgers' shortstop, has the ball in his glove, but he dropped it a moment later after Sturm's spikes had made contact with the base. The Yankees now lead, two games to one.

FITZSIMMONS HEROIC FIGURE IN 2 TO 1 DEFEAT

Yanks Pick Donald for 3d Victory.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 4.—A line drive, traveling with the speed of a bullet, hit a 40 year old pitcher on the knee, and this freak of baseball tonight had the Brooklyn Dodgers on the defense again in their world series feud with the New York Yankees.

The ball was hit by Marius Russo, Yankee southpaw pitcher, and it was turned into the final out of the seventh inning of today's game. But it was the last ball pitched by Fred Fitzsimmons, fat, 40, and a native of Mishawaka, Ind. He left the game, and his scoreless duel with the Yankee lefty was taken up by Hugh Casey. Four consecutive singles, one on the rescue pitcher's tardiness in covering first base, gave the Yanks two runs in the eighth and their second victory in three games, 2 to 1.

It's Higbe vs. Donald.

This was the unhappy ending that spread gloom among the 33,100 Flatbush fans as they watched the first world series game in Ebbets field in 21 years. But despair is fleeting with these rabid followers of the beloved Bums. Tonight in the borough's taverns they were boasting that Kirby Higbe on the morrow again will even the series, just as they did after the Yankees won the inaugural. Atley Donald, a right hander, will pitch for the American league champions.

Russo, not content with personally knocking his venerable opponent out of the battle, held the Dodgers to four hits. They picked up their lone run in their half of the eighth, then subsided in the ninth.

Is Larry Surprised!

Tonight, as the fans and experts were replaying this game, the voice of Larry MacPhail, the Dodgers' fire eating president, was loudest. He condemned Manager Leo Durocher's choice of Casey on the ground that

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 4 (AP).—Ohio State's 1941 football machine smashed the victory hopes of the University of Southern California eleven and walked out of the coliseum with the first Buckeye triumph over a Pacific coast conference team in 20 years.

Rolling up five touchdowns in the first three quarters for a stunning 33 to 0 victory, the midwesterners handed the Trojans the worst whipping they have received since Southern California became a major collegiate football power two decades or so ago.

There was no fluke attached to any of the Buckeye tallies. It was just a grand display of power and more power as the Trojans, caught unprepared for this onslaught, wilted in the ends and tackles before the rush of the Ohio State ball carriers.

Drive Eighty-three Yards to Score.

The Buckeyes stopped the first Trojan thrust in the early minutes of the game on their own 17 yard line and drove eighty-three yards in nine plays.

Before the quarter ended they pounded eighty yards in 10 plays, and in the second period duplicated this feat, yard for yard and play for play, to blast the ardent Trojan rooters

WOLVERINES' FIRST PERIOD SCORE BEATS IOWA, 6-0, IN BIG 9 OPENER

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 4.—Michigan has another football Thomas from Gary who bids fair to match the career of his townsman and predecessor, Tom Harmon. He is Thomas G. Kuzma, who this afternoon scored the only touchdown of a rain drenched struggle to give the Wolverines a 6 to 0 triumph over a surprising Iowa eleven in the first game of the 1941 Western conference season.

The 19 year old 200 pound left half back delivered the only points of the day in the 10th minute of the first period with a one yard drive at center after having set up the opportunity with a twenty yard run to the Iowa 18 yard mark.

And it wasn't just Master Kuzma's running ability that impressed the 29,909 fans who huddled under umbrellas. Four times Tom punted out of bounds within the 5 yard mark, two of them rolling out at the 2 yard line.

Hawkeyes Roll.

Barring the Michigan touchdown, the first half was another story. It was all Iowa, and altho they never progressed beyond the Wolverine 23 yard line, the Hackeyes blocked and charged in a fashion that made Michigan look helpless by comparison. Of course it should be mentioned that the block of the day was contributed by Quarter Back George Ceithaml, one time Lindblom star from Chicago, who made possible Kuzma's run that ultimately resulted in the touchdown. Outstanding in the Iowa cast were Bill Green, Bus Mertes, and Jim Youel in the back field and Jim Walker, colored tackle.

The Michigan constituency began to wonder, after their lads kicked off, whether they would ever take command of the ball, which was in Hawkeye possession for the first five minutes of play—thanks to a march from their own 32 yard line, where Parker fielded Wistert's faulty kickoff, to the Wolverines' 30 yard stripe, whereat the visitors yielded the ball on downs.

Ceithaml Throws Block.

Ultimately the Wolverines punted, Youel returning to the Iowa 23 yard mark. Then, in three plays, Iowa was penalized twice, once for taking too much time and again for illegal use of the hands. Youel then punted from behind his own goal line out to the Iowa 43 yard mark. Kuzma received the ball and had traveled

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 4.—Steve Juzwik and Angelo Bertelli this afternoon led their Notre Dame mates calmly and accurately thru the football script they had prepared for Indiana. Powered by Bertelli's passing and Juzwik's running, the Irish moved steadily against a fighting Hoosier eleven to win handily, 19 to 6. All three Notre Dame touchdowns, however, were scored by Full Back Owen [Dippy] Evans.

More than 42,000 sat in a light drizzle of rain that did not cease entirely until the last period to see the state rivals fight up and down the slick stadium turf in a humidity that called for exceptional endurance. Until the closing two minutes, however, each team limited its substitutions to one man at each position.

Juzwik Runs 'Em Back.

Bertelli and Juzwik were the hole cards in Notre Dame's winning bid. The agile sophomore, who helped shoot down Arizona last week with his passes, completed seven in 14 attempts this afternoon for 133 yards.

But Bertelli's passing, accurate as it was, might not have riddled Indiana's zone defense without the threat by Juzwik. And Notre Dame unquestionably owed its second touchdown to Juzwik. His brilliant return of Indiana's punts kept the Hoosiers on the defensive after the first period.

The Notre Dame machine noticeably lacked blasting power thru the midsection of the Hoosier line, but in overall strength down field and in blocking for sweeps around end the Irish have a weapon to strengthen Bertelli's great passing. Finally, of course, Bertelli's throwing is accurate, because he has sufficient time to throw to receivers who are in position.

With a bit of luck Indiana conceivably could have left the field trailing only 6 to 0 at the half since the second Irish touchdown came with 12 seconds remaining to play. But the greatest tribute to Fred Huff, Gene White, Walt Jurkiewicz, Lou Saban, Chuck Jacoby, and the other front rank defenders was their resistance in the fourth period when the issue had been decided. Twice in this time they turned back Notre Dame's runners and they did it decisively to tarnish the Irish brilliance of the earlier quarters.

Irish Suffer Heavy Penalties.

Notre Dame also established something of a record when it received six [6] fifteen yard penalties for Madison, Wis., Oct. 4.—The Marquette football team, working with midseason smoothness, beat Wisconsin, 28 to 7, today in Camp Randall before 35,000 spectators. In both their running and their passing game, the Hilltoppers displayed speed, deception, and level-headed generalship. It was a brilliant beginning to Tom Stidham's régime as head coach.

The battle moved along at a splendid pace. After gathering headway in the first half, which ended with Marquette leading, 7 to 0, the action and suspense picked up amazingly in the third quarter, which was the decisive period.

Fumble Halts Badgers.

After advancing to Wisconsin's 8 yard line, only to lose the ball on downs in the first quarter, Marquette lashed out effectively in the second. Bob McCahill rifled a pass right down the middle to Bob O'Hagen for eighteen yards and a touchdown, topping off an advance which had started from the Marquette 47 yard line. Bob Dams kicked goal.

Then Wisconsin came right back from the kickoff to strike fear into the Marquette supporters with a rapid fire drive that carried to the Hilltoppers' 27 yard line before Don Miller fumbled and Ray Carlson recovered for the visitors.

In the third period the Badgers let go with a powerful display of running and plunging which carried them forty-five yards to a touchdown, Pat Harder going over thru center. When Bob Ray kicked goal to tie the score, it seemed that the Badgers certainly had found themselves and would go on from there to assert supremacy.

A Dramatic Touchdown.

Within the next three minutes came the turning point of the game. After Doug Renzel, Marquette full back, had returned the kickoff to his own 44 yard line, the Hilltoppers tried a pass which failed. On second down Jim Richardson took the ball and drifted back before the charging Badger forwards, while far down the field John Goodyear sprinted desperately to get clear of the Wisconsin pass defense. At the last possible moment, Richardson let go with it. Goodyear, running between two defenders, pulled the ball out of the air on the 28 yard line and dashed on toward the goal. The safety man hit him on the 3 yard line, but he Champaign, Ill., Oct. 4 [Special].—The University of Illinois today piled up its largest opening game football score in 20 years, overwhelming Miami university of Oxford, O., 45 to 0, before a crowd of 20,585.

Miami, which previously had run up 79 points to none for opponents in beating Hanover and Wabash, never had a scoring opportunity. The Illini gained 12 first downs in addition to seven touchdowns, whereas the Redksins were held to six first downs, one of them by a penalty.

Skilfull ball handling by the Illinois backs, despite a wet field and an intermittent rain, featured the start of the 29th season for Robert C. Zuppke as Illini coach.

Griffin's Start Is Good.

Illinois scored its first touchdown in five plays after the opening kickoff, and followed with two more touchdowns in the first quarter for a 20 to 0 lead.

Don Griffin, Chicago sophomore, helped set up the first two touchdowns. The former Fenger High star, however, carried the ball only 11 times during the game, but in so doing gained fifty-eight yards for an average of 5.2 per attempt. The first time he carried the ball in intercollegiate competition he ran twenty yards to the Miami 44. He and Jimmy Smith, returning after a year's absence, alternated in gaining ten yards in two plays. Then Myron Pfeifer, full back, broke away thru tackle for thirty-four yards and the first score. Pfeifer had the best average of the game, carrying the ball four times for fifty-five yards.

Griffin's sixteen yard run helped pave the way for the second touchdown, scored by Smith on a twenty yard run after catching a pass from Liz Astroth, quarter back.

Alert Sophomores on the Job.

Alex Agase of Evanston, sophomore tackle, recovered a Miami fumble on the 21 yard line, after which Pfeifer picked up twenty yards in two plays and Astroth plunged over for a touchdown from the 1 yard line.

A new Illini backfield appeared in the second quarter with Tony Butkovich of Lewistown, sophomore half back, gaining fifteen yards in three plays to the Miami 31 after Dick Good, junior quarter back, passed to Ray Grierson of Champaign, sophomore end, who made a running catch at the goal line for the fourth touchdown.

In the third quarter Smith caught a pass by Astroth and ran forty-five yards to score.

Butkovich, Gould Score.

Miami, failing to get off a fourth down punt, lost the balls on its own 33, whereupon John Worban, third Illini quarter back, passed to Jim McCarthy, who was stopped at the 2 yard line. From that point Butkovich went over. The last touchdown was made shortly after Tom McCullough, a guard, recovered a Miami fumble on the Miami 31. Two passes from Good to Butkovich put the ball on the 20. Maurice Gould of Bronxville, N. Y., a sophomore from Andover academy, broke loose for the remaining distance.

Yale Rallies, Turns Back Virginia, 21-19

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 4 (AP).—A strong air and running attack in the last two quarters today gave Yale's football forces a 21 to 19 victory over the University of Virginia. It was a startling turn in a battle which apparently was Virginia's after it had built up a 19 to 0 lead at the end of the first half.

Yale's sophomores, Ed Taylor and Ted Harrison, and Capt. Alan Bartholemy, led the furious comeback, which was featured by long runs and spectacular catches of forward passes.

Bryant Runs and Passes.

Dudley scored the first touchdown on a flanker from the 2 yard line and pitched a long pass which Jim White caught behind the goal line for what was the southerners' final score. In between, Bryant, running behind perfect interference, skirted his left end for a tyenty-six yard dash and score.

In the second half Yale, instructed by Coach Emerson Nelson to keep the kicks away from Dudley, wasted no time. Taylor collaborated with Bartholemy and Harrison to place the ball on the 2 yard line from where he went over. Ferguson, sophomore from Loveland, Colo., took back a punt twenty-five yards to Virginia's 15. He and Willoughby moved it to the 5, from where Ferguson's pass was snared after a bit of juggling by Harrison for the second score.

Passes Lead to Final Score.

Al Martin of Minneapolis intercepted a short pass on Virginia's 30 yard line early in the fourth quarter to set up the winning score. Two passes, Taylor to Hoopes, placed the ball on the 12 from where Hoopes threw a wide one over his left end to Bartholemy for the touchdown.

seven yards. Benson went to Kansas State's 3 yard line, then jabbed for two more, whereupon De Correvont went over left guard for the needed yard. Dick Erdlitz's attempt for the point was wide.

Score on Reverse.

Northwestern's second touchdown began to shape up when Benson completed a pass to Motl, good for eighteen yards to State's 43 yard line. Graham, Kepford, and Benson ganged up for thirty-three yards on four plays, whereupon Graham fooled everybody with a fake reverse for a touchdown. He ran almost alone wide to his right while 21 other guys were running like everything in the other direction. Alan Pick added the point from placement.

The third quarter featured long range trotting. The first touchdown of the second half was the result of Graham's ninety yard run after receiving a punt. The next touchdown, sixth of the game, was on a sixty-four yard dash launched on a pass, Graham to Kepford.

Buffmire Scores Seventh.

The seventh touchdown came on the second play of the final period, but was set up in the third period. Buffmire made eighteen yards to warm up for the touchdown, but the yardage was all but canceled on a holding penalty. So Buffmire made twenty-eight yards on the next try. The quarter ended, but when play was resumed in the final session Buffmire went twelve yards to a touchdown. Wallis converted.

The eighth touchdown was made by Casey Peifer on a one yard plunge. Northwestern recovered a fumble on State's 34 yard line. Buffmire and Kean, a couple of high school pals from Grand Rapids, Minn., did most of the toting to get the ball in position for Peifer's short jab.

STANFORD ON ITS WAY AGAIN; ROLLS OVER U. C. L. A., 33-0

Palo Alto, Cal., Oct. 4 (AP).—Stanford's Indians, performing like true champions today after a shaky opener a week ago, turned on the power to rout the University of California at Los Angeles Bruins, 33 to 0, before a crowd of 35,000 fans. The team that barely squeezed by Oregon displayed 100 per cent improvement.

It was T-formation pitted against the U. C. L. A. "QT." The difference between the two systems, however, was that Stanford's functioned like well oiled machinery and the other bogged down in ineffectual fashion under the charging defense of the Indians' forward wall.

The Indians, aiming at their 12th straight victory, racked up their first touchdown from an eighty yard march and soon after scored from thirty-two yards out. They put together a sixty-nine yard advance in the second period and scored another in the third quarter from the Bruins' 37 after a fifty-eight yard run back of an intercepted pass by Quarter Back Frank Albert.

Evans & Co. of Notre Dame Romp Thru Indiana, 19 to 6

illegal use of the hands, generally for holding.

The second of these holding penalties cost the Irish a touchdown in their first march after Saban kicked off for Indiana. Bertelli passed to George Murphy in Indiana's end zone but the ball was called back. Bertelli's next pass was intercepted by Dale Swihart on Indiana's 32 yard line.

In this first quarter, Indiana accomplished four of its five first downs, an accurate gauge of the Hoosiers' attack. After Harry Wright, Irish quarter back, intercepted Bill Hillenbrand's pass and was tackled by Howdy Elliott on Notre Dame's 41 yard line, the Irish charged to their first score.

But Bertelli Doesn't Pass.

Bertelli swept Indiana's right end for sixteen yards when the secondary looked for a pass. Evans cut back over guard for five yards and then Bertelli passed to Murphy for a first down on Indiana's 26.

On the next play Juzwik raced out into the flat territory on his right to take Bertelli's pass and then sidestep Swihart. Murphy made a saving block, but Saban brought Juzwik to earth on the Hoosier 2 yard line. Evans fumbled and recovered for a two yard loss. He plunged for one yard and then Bob Hargrave replaced Wright to call the scoring play. This was a delayed sweep around Indiana's right end by Evans, who faked a step to his right along with all the other backs and then came back around the flank.

Evans scored on the same play from Indiana's 4 yard line with 12 seconds of the half left but Juzwik set up the opportunity when he returned Earl Doloway's punt sixteen yards to the Hoosier 20. Juzwik circled Indiana's vulnerable right end for three yards but Notre Dame took an extra time out and was assessed five yards. A trick play—Evans' pass to Juzwik on the right flank and Juzwik return hand pass to Evans for a run—ended with a fumble which Capt. Paul Lillis recovered on Indiana's 33 yard line.

Bertelli then passed to Juzwik who raced to the goal but stepped out on the west side line at the 4 yard stripe. On the next play Evans scored on the fake and run around Indiana's right end. Juzwik kicked the point for a 13 to 0 lead.

No Running Power, Eh?

Notre Dame scored the first time it had possession in the third quarter to put the game out of Indiana's reach. From Indiana's 48 yard line the Irish scored with nine rushing plays, rebuttal of lack of a ground attack, and the honors went to Evans. He slashed inside left tackle for fifteen yards. He hit guard for two yards. Juzwik picked up six yards in the two tries and, on the important fourth down, Evans went inside the Hoosier left tackle to the 19 yard line.

Bertelli added two yards, Evans hit for seven and followed with a drive inside left tackle for a first down. He ran from the T-formation without a shift to Indiana's 8 yard line. Evans finished with a smash over the Hoosier right tackle and end for the touchdown.

After Warner kicked out of bounds on the subsequent kickoff [Indiana took possession on 35 yard line] the Hoosiers scored with two plays. Doloway passed to Hillenbrand for eleven yards and set the stage for the peak performance of the game.

Doloway, on the next play, passed to Ken Smith, sub right end, who took the ball to Notre Dame's 25 yard line and, as he was tackled, lateraled the ball to Jacoby. The sophomore continued to the Irish goal lines for a total gain of fifty-four yards. Gene White's kick for the point was wide.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Oct. 4 (AP).—Mississippi State upset Alabama, 14 to 0, before a crowd of 20,000 today.

State scored in the third quarter on a twenty-two yard pass from Sophomore Billy Murphy to Bob Patterson, and again in the final minute after Substitute Center Elbert Corley intercepted a last hope, fourth down pass on the Alabama 34. Corley ran thirty yards to set the stage for Sonny Bruce's short touchdown dash around left end.

Shortly after the third quarter started, Bill Arnold blocked a Nelson punt and Jones fell on the ball on the Alabama 24. Murphy sent a sharp pass to Patterson, who grabbed it on the Alabama 5 and ran across. Dees converted. The lineup:

North Central college won its second straight game yesterday by defeating Concordia, 33 to 0, at Naperville. Co-Captain Bill Shatzer led the scoring with two touchdowns in the first quarter and another on an eighty-one yard run in the third. Don Jacob and Co-Captain Walt Anderson took care of the remaining scoring.

Washington Is Surprised, 9 to 6, by Oregon State

Portland, Ore., Oct. (AP).—Oregon State college handed the University of Washington a jolt today, defeating the touted Huskies, 9 to 6, in a coast conference football game. The contest was played on a wet field, but conditions had little effect on the aggressive attack of Oregon State.

A crowd of 15,000 roared when, after a see-saw first quarter, Don Durdan, Oregon State right half, speared thru the Washington line, reversed his field, and raced eighty yards to a touchdown. Warren Simas placed kicked the extra point.

Washington, defeated by Minnesota last week in a bruising game, showed the effects of the battering. Not until the last quarter did the Huskies carry the attack beyond the OSC 30.

Their touchdown drive began with Ernie Steele, half back, and Earl Younglove picking up fourteen yards and Steele, Brooks, and Erickson battering to the OSC 4 for a first down. Erickson, left half, scored from the 1 foot line on the third down. Berg's place kick for extra point was wide.

OSC got two more points a few minutes later. Washington tried a pass from deep in its own end zone. The ball was blocked partially, giving the Beavers a safety.

PURDUE BEATS PITT, 6 TO 0, ON PETTY'S PLUNGE

Scores in Second Quarter from 2 Yard Line.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 4 [Special].—Purdue roared back with a vengeance this afternoon, following its opening game 3 to 0 loss to Vanderbilt and subdued a rugged University of Pittsburgh team, 6 to 0, before 24,000.

With the exception of the first quarter, in which the Boilermakers halted Pitt's seventy-four yard march one yard short of the goal, Purdue dominated the play more completely than the score indicates.

Purdue's offensive was sparked by sophomore back field talent, notably Kenny Smock of Indianapolis, a surprise starter at left half back.

Smock Leads Winning Drive.

Following Pitt's unsuccessful march, Smock launched the second quarter assault that yielded a touchdown for Purdue when John Petty, a Pittsburgh resident, drove thru center from the 3 yard line.

As the second quarter opened, Smock returned a punt twenty yards to the Boilermaker 35 yard line, and Purdue promptly opened up with a varied attack that netted four first downs and took the ball to Pitt's 15.

The Boilermakers were halted temporarily when Jack Heister, Pitt center, intercepted a pass by Francis Meakim, one of the sophomore delegation, and returned to the Pitt 26 yard line, but a moment later Bill Dutton fumbled and Tom Melton, Purdue guard, recovered on Pitt's 30.

Chester Passes to Meakim.

Purdue went on from there for its touchdown. Three running plays failed, but a fourth down pass from Bob Chester, a sophomore, to Sophomore Meakim, advanced to the 14 yard line. Meakim slipped inside tackle for four yards, and Petty drove thru center for first down on the 4 yard line. Petty was stopped at center. Chester gained a yard inside end, and then Petty crashed over the goal. Johnny Galvin was rushed into the game for the first time and missed the try for the extra point.

The Boilermakers, with sophomores continuing to bear the burden, threatened constantly in the third period, banging inside the Pitt 20 yard line three times. In the fourth period they were threatening again.

Smock Runs 64 Yards.

Smock turned in the longest run of the game when he returned the second half kickoff 64 yards to the Pitt 35 yard line.

An alert Boilermaker defense held Pitt to only one completion in 12 attempted forward passes for a gain of 29 yards. Purdue completed six of nine passes for 56 yards. First downs were even at 10 each, Pitt gaining 142 yards by rushing, and the Boilermakers 127.

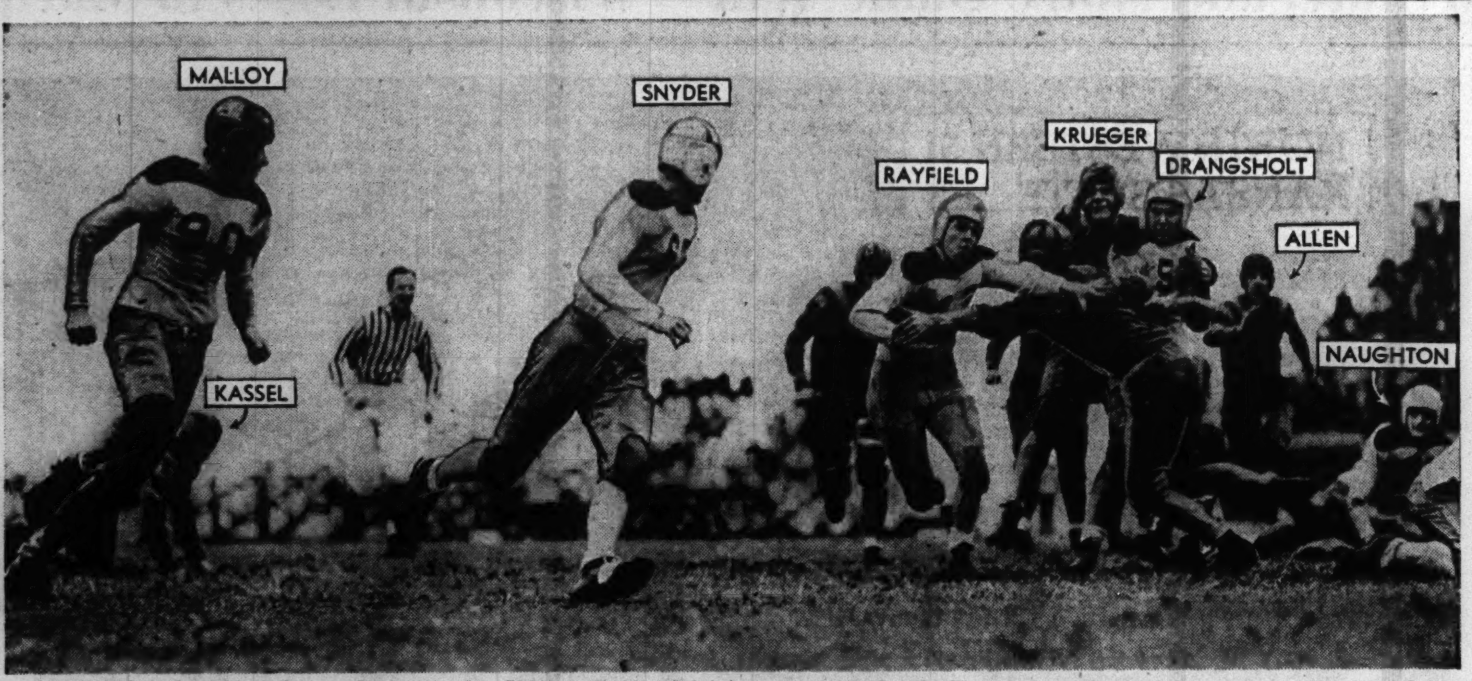
THE SCORING WAS LOW—AND HERE'S WHY



Austin tries the old end-around play in its Chicago Public High School league battle with Harrison in Key Branch stadium, but doesn't get far enough around. Sturdy defenses kept scoring down, but Austin finally emerged winner, 7 to 6. Carrying the ball is Glen Rayfield of Austin, with Swede Dransholt trying vainly to clear his path. Others in the picture include John Malloy, Paul Snyder and Pat Naughton, all of Austin.

A seventy yard touchdown run by Denny Bassett from fake punt formation, and a 25 yard runback of an intercepted pass by Jim Faulkner, both followed by conversion plunges by Dutch Durant, won the game in the last half. The only other league game resulted in a 6 to 6 deadlock for Sycamore and Batavia, which are tied for last place. Geneva defeated Lemont of the Fox Valley circuit, 13 to 0, and St. Charles lost to Hinsdale, 12 to 0, in nonleague contests.

COUGARS DEFEAT CALIFORNIA, 13-6, ON MUDDY FIELD

Pullman, Wash., Oct. 4 (AP).—The passing of Billy Sewell and Jay Stoves sparked the Washington State college Cougars to a 13 to 6 victory over University of California in a coast conference football game before 6,000 today.

After a scoreless first period, Sewell, left half, engineered a Washington State touchdown in the second quarter from the Cougar 45. He flipped two passes good for thirty yards, then, on a fake pass, raced fourteen yards to score. In the third quarter Sewell was hurt returning a punt and Stoves went in for him. He passed from the California 13 to Quarter Back Kennedy, who scored.

Just before the end of the third quarter Bear Tackle G. Herrero recovered a Cougar fumble. McQuary, California full back, made sixteen, and Half Back Reinhard recovered his own fumble of the W. S. C. 16 as the quarter ended. Reinhard then passed to Dunn for nearly ten yards, and McQuary moved the ball up a foot for first down on the 4. McQuary went over in three tries.

Red Dock Wins Feature Race at Hawthorne

Red Dock, a former Whitney castoff, captured the second running of the $5,000 added Autumn handicap at Hawthorne yesterday afternoon, defeating Displayer by a length and one-quarter. Vinum finished third. A rainy day crowd of 15,000 attended.

The veteran mare, Miss Balko, under the riding of Jockey B. Thompson, had little trouble annexing the first purse on the card. The old mare broke well and followed the pace set by Bolinvar until about the halfway mark where she went to the front and drew out to win by three open lengths. King Cotton, favorite, was up to be second. Lillian Roth being third. Miss Balko paid $13.60, $4.40, and $3.40. Ginocchio, another veteran captured the second event, paying $11.20 for $2.

Lake Forest Wins from Wheaton Eleven, 21 to 0

Lake Forest defeated Wheaton yesterday in Wheaton, 21 to 0. The Foresters scored once in the second and twice in the third quarter. Wheaton drove deep into Lake Forest territory several times, but was unable to score. Petty, Becker, and Johnson scored for Lake Forest and F. Gates kicked the three extra points.

Fenelon, Alsab Set Marks at Belmont Park

New York, Oct. 4 (AP).—Two American racing records were shattered before Belmont Park's closing day crowd of 26,996 today as William Woodward's unpredictable 4 year old Fenelon, won the $5,000 added New York handicap and Mrs. Albert Sabath's remarkably consistent Alsab ran off with the 71st Champagne stakes.

Fenelon, who apparently couldn't run two miles last week in the Jockey Club Gold cup, galloped two and a quarter miles in the record time of 3:47 to win the longest stake race of the eastern campaign and $40,500.

Alsab sped a mile over a track that was rated no better than good in 1:35 2-5 under the heavy load of 122 pounds. It was the fastest mile ever run by a 2 year old in America.

One Record Set in 1927.

Mike Hall established the old American distance record of 3:48 3-5 under 111 pounds at Latonia in 1927 and Mrs. Marie Evans' Shot Put won the inaugural running of the New York handicap in 3:48 4-5 last year to set up a Belmont track record. Alsab wrecked the 2 year old mark of 1:36 made by Twenty Grand at Latonia.

Carrying 119 pounds, less than he did when he was beaten by Lou Tufano's Market Wise in the Gold cup, Fenelon today outran Market Wise by two lengths. He came from behind on the last turn and ran courageously thru the stretch. Neglected in the betting because of last week's failure, he returned $24.10 on each $2 win ticket.

Market Wise, favorite at little more than even money altho his 118 pounds was a big load for a 3 year old, took the place and $10,000 by six lengths over Mrs. Payne Whitney's Corydon. Shot Put, loaded down with 126 pounds, trailed Corydon by five lengths in fourth place.

Alsab Wins as He Pleases.

Alsab, who couldn't clinch the 2 year old crown in the Futurity because he wasn't eligible, left no doubt about his supremacy today. Rated behind the leaders for the first three quarters, he came around them on the bend and won as he pleased.

Ben F. Whitaker's Requested, beaten at even weights by Alsab in their recent match race, had a 6 pound pull this time but the best he could do was take second place, eight lengths behind the Chicago horse. Three lengths farther back, Mrs. W. M. Jeffords' Flaught nosed out Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson's Amphitheatre for the show.

Alsab's triumph added $9,500 to his earnings to bring the total to $97,555. An odds-on favorite, he paid only $3.20 for $2.

TENPIN STARS TO SHOW DUFFERS HOW IT'S DONE

"Learn to Bowl Week" Starts Tomorrow.

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

Tomorrow marks the opening of "Learn to Bowl Week," that period in the fall when the stars of 10 pins give their time to show the less skilled just how it's done—making those big scores, that is. The week is becoming generally observed, meaning that the duffer—man or woman—can find in almost any establishment a talented performer who gladly will help him correct his faults and teach him a few of the secrets of success in bowling.

Anton Jarosik bowled the South End Traveling league's first towering series, a big 729 on games of 258, 238, and 233. . . . The Windy City Major's race again seems to be between the Gills and Budweisers. The Gills have won their 12 games, the Buds are a game behind. Tomorrow night the Gills meet the O'Keefe Coals while the Buds face the Sunnyfords. Other matches:

Nonebetter Ice Creams vs. American Transportation; Tomans vs. Bireley's Beverages; Betinis Boosters vs. Mineralites; Burlington Zephyrs vs. Furman Funerals; Ace Fasteners vs. Old Style Lagers; Reichman Jewelers vs. Vogel Bros.

Koenig Brau, No. 1 team in the Sunday division, meets the Monarch Beers in the Classic league's No. 1 match at Goldammer's Harding recreation, 2701 Milwaukee avenue, tonight. Schlitz battles Pabst, Blatz bowls National Bowling and Ambrosia is paired with the Washington Shirts.

Libby League Opens 19th Season on Queen Alleys.

The Libby, McNeil & Libby Employés' league has opened its 19th year with a membership of 12 teams. It bowls at Matt Dillon's Queen recreation. . . . Vogue Tyres rolled a 2,955 series including a 1,050 game to score a triple over Tuthill Building Material in the South Shore Major. Al Grens' 237, 210, 249, 696, was high series. . . . Playdium lost two to De Luxe recreation, yet kept a one game lead in the Greater Chicago Traveling league. John Podmers' 687, with 247 and 238 games, was high individual count.

The Gold Crowns, who have averaged more than 1,040 in their last three series and are now tied for first place with the Chapin & Gores, will meet the Champion Pepsi-Colas in tomorrow night's feature match of the North End Traveling league. The match, to be rolled at the Willow alleys, starts at 7 o'clock. Other matches:

Chapin & Gores vs. Gold Coast Budweiser at Faetz & Sons, 7 o'clock; Schamberger-Schlitz at De Luxe recreation, 7 o'clock; Nedlogs vs. Keeley Beers at Kaadland, 7 o'clock; Samuelson's vs. Jolly Jacks at Monte Cristo, 7:30.

The Challengers rolled the season's high series, 2,982, to win two from the Purchasers and drop the losers into second place in the "400" league. Meanwhile the Minutemen swept a series with the Time Freights and took the lead. . . . The Fritzi Scheffs have made the Samuelson Major race a runaway, a three game victory over the Automatic Musics last week having run their record to 14 triumphs in 15 games. The Wallace Coals, who dropped two to Waggoner Service, are second with 8 won and 7 lost. George Rudy of the Scheffs was high man with 673.

Eleanor Lorig Turns in Two High Series.

Apollo Social club's 2,998 was just 12 pins better than the Goldammer Kids' total, but the Apollos also won the odd game in the Pioneer Arcade Major. Peter Masters was high individual with 278, 671. . . . Walsh Brothers Service leads the Lorraine Arcade league No. 2 after winning a full set from C. & E. Garage.

Eleanor Lorig and Nina Van Camp were the week's women stars. Mrs. Lorig, a member of the Marigold Arcade team, rolled 611 to lead her team to a three game triumph over the Clark Bowling shoes in the Congress Major, and was second high with 596 in the Playdium Major. Mrs. Van Camp piled up a 661 total, including a 270 game, in the Beverly Major. Her series was 105 pins higher than the second best, Ruth Hartmann's 556. Sally Ostrowski was high at Playdium with 617, including 212 and 220 games. . . . Mae Kerr's 540 was best in Marzano's Major. . . . Flo Waterman was probably the week's most consistent performer with 201, 197, 203, 601, at Bruck's.

5,000 Centers Get Blanks for Bowling Meet

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

Joe Wilman.

Posters and entry blanks for the All-Star Bowling tournament and match game singles championship in the Coliseum Dec. 7 thru 14 will have reached more than 5,000 bowling proprietors thruout the United States by tomorrow night. Ten pin stars everywhere then will have the opportunity to file entries for the event which, in that sport, will be second in importance only to the American Bowling Congress tournament.

Inquiries from star bowlers have been numerous, each one seeing in this tournament the possibility of achieving for himself and the sport the prominence given outstanding performers in other fields but heretofore denied to the "greats" in ten pins. Entry blanks for the event, to be sponsored jointly by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America, now are ready, however, and each man can learn for himself the assignment faced by the 60 who are to participate—60 men either invited from the list of those who file entries or, in a few instances, winners of sectional tournaments.

In addition to the blanks mailed out, thousands more are available and may be obtained from room 530, Tribune Tower, or from Eddie Linsz, secretary of the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America, 1901 East 13th street, Cleveland, O.

A few stars, anticipating the receipt of blanks, mailed entries with the $25 fee to Mr. Linsz during the week following the first announcement of the tourney, and these were augmented Friday when the first full team entry was submitted. It was that of the Chicago Budweisers, captained by Joe Wilman, 1939 ABC all-events winner and ABC high man for the period covering the last three tournaments with a 211 19-27 average. Wilman filed an entry for himself, John Small, George Theel, Bill Hargadon, and Joe Traubenik. Each of this quintet has averaged 200 or better for the last five years and the team has been recognized as one of the nation's top notchers.

A further entry, filed late yesterday, was that of Eli Maricich, a star of the Joseph L. Gills team, champion of three major leagues last season and leader in the same three this season.

LADY PENNOWIN STARS IN FIELD TRIALS OPENER

BY BOB BECKER.

Midwestern sportsmen and dog fanciers were given a thrilling open air exhibition of the value and field ability of a good hunting dog yesterday when the English Springer Spaniel Field Trial club of Illinois opened its ninth annual field trial for trained springers. The hunting qualities of this breed, one of the most popular among upland game hunters, were tested on grounds located at the western edge of Lake Bluff, where about 40 acres of weed covered meadow and heavy swale furnished ideal cover for the dogs.

David Elliott of East Uslip, New York, and Robert C. Bishop of Portland, Ore., the judges, picked the smooth working and obedient Lady Pennowin, owned by Leonard Leader of Milwaukee, as the winner of the special amateur shooting dog stake, the most interesting event of three on the program. English Field Trial Champion Bryngarw Firearm owned by James Simpson Jr., of Wadsworth, Ill., was second.

She Beats a Big Field.

The banded pheasants used yesterday were purchased by the Spaniel club from a game farm and released in the cover before each competing dog and handler was given the go signal by the judges. In winning top honors in the shooting dog stake, Lady Pennowin bested a field of 19 dogs, of which 17 were springers and two were cocker spaniels. Included were three field trial champions.

Lady Pennowin also finished first in the amateur all-age event under Mr. Leader's handling. Lady also is entered in the open all-age event which will start at 8 o'clock this morning.

Lulu, a fast little springer owned by Conway Olmsted, Lake Forest, was first in the puppy stake, opening event on yesterday's program. She was handled by Martin Hogan of Barrington.

Name 26 for Today's Feature.

Charles Goodall, secretary of the Springer club, said last night that 26 dogs had been nominated for the open all-age stake which is to be run off today. Summaries:

F. Gentz, Lake Bluff, fourth.

the chubby right hander did not have sufficient time to warm up.

"Casey was in the bull pen all afternoon," said MacPhail, "but he didn't bear down on a single pitch. He was just lobbing them to the catcher. I almost fell off my chair when he came in to pitch in the eighth. There was another pitcher who'd been working just as long as Casey and was ready to go."

MacPhail apparently was referring to Larry French, former Cub southpaw, who was Casey's companion in the bull pen. It was French who came in after four straight Yankee hits and squelched the rally by pitching a double play ball.

Old Fitz, 40 years old on July 28, was the oldest starting pitcher in world series history. He served up all the dipsy-doo items in his répertoire and yielded only four hits during his term. Three of these came at the start of innings and still the Yanks couldn't wear him down. Twice he disposed of such dangerous men as Joe DiMaggio and Charley Keller with Yankees on the base lines. But there was more than ordinary steam behind Russo's drive, which exploded with two out and Joe Gordon on second as the result of a pass in the seventh.

Blood Vessel Broken.

The liner by Russo was so fierce that the ball caromed off Fitz's left leg just above the knee cap and soared a hundred feet into the air, finally coming down as a fly ball to Peewee Reese. Apparently in great pain, old Fitz limped off the field, assisted by some of his mates and was promptly sent away for X-ray examination. A diagnosis tonight disclosed a bruise and a broken blood vessel. Fitzsimmons then left the hospital.

The mishap to old Fitz was the second of the day for the National leaguers. Billy Herman, ex-Cub, wrenched his left side in practice but insisted on starting at second base. He gave up after four innings, Pete Coscarart replacing him.

It was feared tonight Herman may be out for the rest of the world series.

Russo Baffles Dodgers.

Russo's job on the Dodger hitters came close to being a world series prize. In six innings he surrendered only one hit—a scratch—and two passes. None of the three men involved toured beyond first base. The honor of going beyond this point fell to Pete Reiser, who doubled with none out in the seventh. Russo proceeded to whiff two of the next three who batted.

Then, in the eighth, he finally was dented for the Dodgers' second pair of hits and a run resulted. But the Yankees already owned the two tallies which meant the decision.

Casey's doom as a rescue man came eighth. Red Rolfe started the assault. Tom Henrich profited by Casey's lapse. Di Maggio, blanked in the first two games, drilled his second single into the outfield to record the first run, and Charley Keller delivered a hit to complete the splurge. French halted this advance and Johnny Allen pitched in an uneventful ninth.

DiMaggio Finally Hits.

The Yankees' initial inning against Fitzsimmons was a bit different than their first innings in the two previous struggles. The American leaguers didn't get a man to base.

The Dodgers did a bit better in their half. After Reese led off with a soft roller to Russo the latter handed free passage to Herman, but before the raucous Brooklyn fans could warm up their tonsils the inning had ended. Reiser rolled to Russo, who tossed to Rizzuto, forcing Herman at second. Reiser's speed saved him from being the victim of a double play. Then Medwick lined straight into Henrich's hands.

The second inning finally brought DiMaggio out of the hitless ranks. After taking strikes on the first two pitches he belted a single between Lavagetto and Reese. Joe got to second on Keller's gentle roller to Camilli, remaining there while Dickey fouled to Camilli and Gordon flied high to Walker.

Rizzuto Makes Double Play.

The first Dodger batter in the second, Lavagetto, also reached base. He walked on five pitches. Camilli worked up a 3 and 2 count against Russo and then grounded to Rizzuto, who stepped on second before whipping a throw to Sturm for a double play. Rolfe took care of Walker's grounder to conclude the inning.

Both Fitzsimmons and Russo skipped thru the third without mishap, but the fourth brought the Yanks' second hit and the first for the National leaguers. Rolfe opened with a single to center but even with the powerful portion of the Yanks' batting order coming up, there were no complications. Henrich forced Rolfe, and then, of all things to happen to a Yankee, Henrich was picked off base by Owen's snap throw to Camilli, after which DiMaggio popped out.

The Dodgers' hit was of the dinkiest variety. With two out, Medwick topped a pitch and it rolled slowly down the third base line, both Rolfe and Russo trying to coax it into foul territory. Gordon followed with a nonchalant one handed grab of Lavagetto's liner.

Gordon Stranded After Triple.

The Yanks came up in the fifth with just a trace of the dynamite carried in their bats. Dickey drove out a fly which Reiser consumed close to the 407 foot sign on the center field barrier for the second out. Gordon also touched off a healthy drive, the ball bouncing off the left center field wall for a triple. Rizzuto was purposely passed and permitted to steal second, Fitzsimmons cutting off Owen's throw in hopes of trapping Gordon if he quit third. Gordon wisely hugged the base. Fitz dodged the threat by fanning Russo.

For the third time the lead off Yankee reached base in the sixth but the best of all chances thus far failed like the others. Sturm dropped a single in front of Reiser and stole second with none out. Rolfe tried to sacrifice but bunted foul to Owen back of the plate. The pressure on the 40 year old Fitzsimmons increased when Henrich walked. It heightened when DiMaggio carried the count to 3 and 2. His appearance was finished on a fly to Walker. Then Keller, for the second time, tapped feebly to Camilli.

After Fitzsimmons had limped off the scene in the first half of the seventh the Dodgers came thru with their first real dent in Russo's armor. Reiser, who led off, rifled the second pitch to the right center field concrete for a two bagger. Imagine the feelings of the Dodger trumpeters when Medwick fanned and their further despair when Lavagetto rolled to Gordon, sending Reiser to third. But when Camilli permitted a third strike to curve past unnoticed the local adherents were ready to go home.

The eighth, in which the Yankees found some of their missing strength, started when Sturm welcomed Casey with a liner to center, which Reiser captured. Rolfe launched a single into right and the two run parade began to form. Coscarart grabbed Henrich's grounder, which Camilli also pursued, and when Casey neglected to cover the base it went as a hit. DiMaggio again promoted a 3 to 2 count for himself, but this time followed with a line single into center, Rolfe scoring the first run of the day and Henrich taking third. Keller also shot his single into center, Henrich scoring and DiMaggio sprinting to third. French came to Casey's aid, and Dickey drove a double play grounder to Reese.

Reese Drives in Walker.

Walker opened the Dodgers' eighth with a low liner to right. Keller attempted a diving catch, but the ball rolled past him for a two bagger. The best Owen could do was to tap to Russo, who threw him out at first, Walker remaining at second. Augie Galan was sent up to swing for French but his aim was bad and he fanned. Reese turned the first pitch into a liner to right for a single and Walker scored. But Coscarart popped out and only three Dodgers faced Russo in the ninth. One of the three, Reiser, struck out.

YANKEES CALM, DODGERS GLUM AFTER 3D GAME

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 4 (AP).—Coach Art Fletcher led a triumphant crew of Yankees off the field after their 2 to 1 victory over Brooklyn today, but there was no celebration in the clubhouse. The Bronx Bombers are so accustomed to victory that another one apparently means less than nothing to them. They swarmed into the locker room, quickly shed their uniforms and made for the showers.

Marius Russo, the victorious pitcher, gave credit to Catcher Bill Dickey, but Dickey refused to accept it. Russo said Dickey kept the batters off balance and whenever they got set for a fast ball Dickey would call for a curve.

Bill Is Just Modest.

Dickey laughed at this.

"He done the pitching," he said, "I didn't, and he pitched a hell of a ball game. And don't forget that Fitzsimmons. He pitched a hell of a game too.

"Russo had good stuff and fine control. He mixed them up, switching his fast ball with curves. I was glad he took his time out there and didn't get a bit excited in his first series game."

Manager Joe McCarthy was happy over the victory but not a bit excited. He praised the pitching performances of both Russo and Fitzsimmons. Somebody asked him if he was playing Brooklyn the way he had planned.

He looked up, disgusted.

"The Dodgers are a real ball club," he said. "Any club that wins 100 games must be good. Today's game was a real ball game. I was sorry to see Fitzsimmons go out that way. He sure pitched a great game. If he could have stayed in there the result might have been different."

McCarthy said Atley Donald, winner of nine games in 14 starts this season, would be his pitching choice in the fourth game of the series tomorrow.

In the Dodger dressing room the gloom was as thick as pea soup, not only for the defeat but also for the series jinx and heartbreak, which has dogged one of the grandest guys in the game, Freddie Fitzsimmons.

Fitz Has a Right to Moan.

In great pain from the liner off Russo's bat which struck his left leg just above the knee in the seventh inning, Fitz said thru gritted teeth that he was going to the New York hospital for an X-ray examination. There was a red bruise and a slight swelling.

"I've never beefed about losing in my life," Fitz mourned, almost in tears. "But to have a shutout within grasp and then to have to go out of a game that way. That's hell.

"Russo got the meat of the bat on a curve ball. I saw it coming, but I couldn't get out of the way.

"That's the second time this year this has happened to me. Earlier this summer I had a shutout going in Pittsburgh and Bob Elliott hit me on the wrist with a liner and I had to quit."

Durocher blamed the defeat on lack of hitting "when the chances were there," but it was learned that before admitting baseball writers to the dressing room he had worked out sharply and thoroly on Casey.

"I'll pitch Kirby Higby tomorrow," he said, "and I hope we can hit behind him. We must have had 94 chances today but couldn't do anything. I still think we'd have won, 1 to 0, if Fitz had stayed in there."

3D CITY SERIES GAME POSTPONED BY HEAVY RAINS

Cubs and Sox Return to Wrigley Field Today.

The rainfall which last night postponed the city series between the White Sox and Cubs probably will be welcomed by the latter team. The Cubs now are two down with two games played, but even tho they lose four straight to the perennial city champions, the Cubs can boast that it took the Sox more than four consecutive days to accomplish the feat.

Last night's postponement was the second since the city warfare got under way last Wednesday. Thursday's game was rained out after three scoreless innings. The Sox added a 6 to 4 victory Friday night in Comiskey park to their ninth inning, 4 to 1, conquest of Claude Passeau and the National leaguers in the inaugural on the north side.

And It Really Rained!

Today the series will swing back to Wrigley field. In order to expedite the ticket taking chores, it will be designated as the fifth game, which it would have been except for the two postponements.

Even the most optimistic knew there was no chance of getting in a game last night. The rain started in midafternoon and continued without a letup. If rain would force postponement again this afternoon, the series would revert to Comiskey park, where games Nos. 6 and 7 are scheduled. These will be night games.

Passeau vs. Rigney.

The delay gave Manager Jim Wilson a chance to ease his pitching problem. He now can give Passeau his second assignment this afternoon, as Claude will have had three days' rest. Jake Mooty, who was to have operated for the Cubs last night, probably will be held over to pitch the next night game on the south side. The little right hander is particularly effective under the lights. John Rigney, who was scheduled to work for the Sox yesterday, probably will carry over as today's starter.

Wisconsin Is Routed, 28-7, by Hilltoppers

catapulted into the end zone. Then Dams kicked again to make it 14 to 7.

Soph Center Breaks Up Drive.

But Wisconsin's backers still were optimistic. They believed that the Badgers could come back. Then came the break that squelched them. Wisconsin was on its own 43 yard line, preparing to launch another drive. Frank Granitz whipped out a pass. Melvin Maceau, Marquette center, who was playing the first collegiate game of his career, pulled it down and ran it to Wisconsin's 28 yard line before he was caught from behind by Ashley Anderson.

Again the Hilltoppers showed their class by cashing in on this opportunity. As the fourth quarter began, Richardson passed to O'Hagan for a first down on the 17 yard line. Richardson then slid off tackle and twisted his way to the 8 yard line after which Fred Rice made it first down on the 5 yard line.

When the Badger line braced, Marquette scored on a short surprise pass on second down, Richardson flipping it over center to John Harrington, who caught it on the goal line. And again Dams' kick was good, making it 21 to 7.

March Eighty Yards.

Using only running plays thereafter, Marquette scored its last touchdown by marching eighty yards against a weary Badger eleven, made up largely of replacements. The drive was kept going by a brilliant dash by Richardson to the Wisconsin 8 yard line after he apparently had been trapped far behind the line of scrimmage. This play started on the Badger 48. From the 8 yard line the Hilltoppers quickly put it over, Rice making the touchdown and Dams kicking the final point.

Thruout the afternoon the Hilltoppers gave the impression that they knew just what they were doing. Their passes were executed with exceptional polish for the first game of their campaign. Out of eleven attempts they completed nine—and they did it at decisive moments, when the pressure was on.

The Badgers apparently had planned to rely largely on their running attack. They threw eight passes, three of which were completed, and two intercepted. Fumbles stopped them twice when they were deep in Marquette territory, once on the 32 yard line and once on the 27. It was the first time Marquette had beaten Wisconsin since 1936, the third Hilltopper victory in the 17 games of the series.

Wet Track Cancels Final Day's Grand Circuit Races

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 4 (AP).—The final day's card of the Lexington Grand Circuit trots were declared off today because of the wet track. Four heats were raced yesterday before rain caused postponement of the final program until today. Heavy overnight rains and downpours this morning forced cancellation of the program.

Iowa Beaten by Michigan in 1st Quarter, 6 to 0

only about five yards when Curran, Iowa's left guard, came rushing up to detain him. Here Ceithami threw the aforesaid block at the Hawkeye which enabled Kuzma to continue to the Iowa 18 yard stripe and caused Curran to depart the premises.

Bob Westfall then smashed center for seven yards, got another at tackle, and then after a pass attempt by Kuzma went awry, made it first down on the Iowa 3 yard line. Kuzma traversed the remaining distance in two thrusts at the center of the line. He then stepped back to hold the ball for Melzow's attempted placement, but Iowa's Walker partially blocked it.

Undaunted, Iowa took the ensuing kickoff up to its own 35 yard stripe and then deputized Mertes and Green to get moving. The twosome responded by carrying the ball forty-two yards to the Michigan 23 yard stripe, where the Wolverines took the ball over.

Michigan Takes Offensive.

The offensive complexion of the game shifted sharply at the outset of the third quarter, the tackling and blocking of the Michigan forwards indicating an intermission lecture had had its effect. After Iowa, receiving the kickoff, failed to produce any yardage, Youell punted to Kuzma, who took the ball in midfield and romped back fifteen yards. On the next play, Tom hammered over his right tackle for thirteen more and a first down. Westfall then did his regular act, a seven yard smash at center. On the next play, however, Lockard fumbled and the Hawkeyes recovered on their own 13 yard mark.

Michigan later in the third period set up another scoring chance. This began with a grand kick by Kuzma which rolled out o fbounds on the Iowa 2 yard mark. Youel reback of his own goal line. Kuzma, Westfall, and Nelson then collaborated in carrying the ball to the Iowa 1 foot line where the Hawkeyes took it.

GAMES TODAY.

Chicago Bears at Cleveland.
Chicago Cardinals vs. Green Bay, in Milwaukee.
New York at Pittsburgh.
Brooklyn at Washington.

Blacksburg, Va., Oct. 4 (AP).—Virginia Tech sprang a surprising upset today by outplaying the heavier Georgetown football team to win, 3 to 0, on Roger McClure's third period field goal from placement.

BEARS SEEK 12TH IN ROW TODAY AGAINST RAMS

Cards Go to Milwaukee to Play Packers.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

While the Chicago Bears are trying to keep alive an 11 game winning streak this afternoon, their civic rivals, the Cardinals, will be modestly attempting to start one. If both are successful, the home fans won't like it, because the Bears and Cards have invaders' rôles today.

It is the turn of the Cleveland Rams to see if this Bear wonder team, juggernaut, steam roller, or whatever you may want to call it, can be stopped. Of the four western teams, the Packers were considered having the best chance. They tried it last Sunday, rushing forth with a 2 point lead after being 15 points behind. Then the pro champions left the Packers behind in the manner of a streamliner moving away from a freight train.

Packers Deal Rams First Loss.

These same Packers dealt the Rams their first defeat after the latter had been up there alone at the top of the National Football league standings with victories over the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Cardinals.

After today's game the Bears will return to Chicago for a solid six week stand, which will include another battle with the Packers, and a game with Washington, eastern champions.

As for the Cardinals, they will be trying against odds in State Fair park in Milwaukee against the Green Bay Packers. The Packers know that their only chance in the western division is to win the four games coming up before they invade Wrigley field on Nov. 2.

Cardinals Are Ready.

Coach Jim Conzelman and his aids have readied the Cards, physically and mentally, for the Packers, hoping to catch the Wisconsin team off stride. This is the Cards' only chance. They don't have the personnel to match the Packers. Their biggest job, of course, is to keep Don Hutson and his fingers under control. Other teams have stopped Hutson, but while this one man team was being held at bay the Packers have sprung loose others for the winning points.

Buckeyes Beat Trojans, 33-0, Before 50,000 numbered in this awed crowd of 60,000 shirtsleeved fans.

Ohio State added two more touchdowns in the third period. The second came on a repetition of those bewildering reverses and double reverses behind the line of scrimmage; it came on the heels of an eighty-seven yard parade, accomplished in 11 smashes at the line. The other touchdown was a pass, good for forty-eight yards, from Full Back Jack Graf to his end, Bob Shaw.

Score on Shovel Pass.

Graf made the first touchdown from the 2 yard line. Charles Anderson, 200 pound Negro end, made the second on a shovel pass and a sixteen yard sprint down the sidelines.

Dick Fisher, one of the fastest men on the field, skirted the Trojan right end for twenty-nine yards for his touchdown and streaked slantwise off his own right tackle for five yards and his other contribution to the day's scoring.

Leon Schoenbaum, a substitute, trotted in each time to kick for the extra point. He succeeded in three of his five tries.

Southern California could never get going. They were held to one first down in the entire first half, and it wasn't until late in the game, when the Buckeye lineup was spotted with their 22 extra players, that the first down count began to climb.

Revenge for Ohio State.

The shutout was in a manner great revenge for the visitors. The Trojans outlucked them by one point in the first game of this series, in 1937, and in 1938 Southern California eased out by a one touchdown margin.

The first Ohio State invasion of California gridirons was in 1921, the year California handed the Buckeyes a 28 to 0 defeat in the Rose bowl. This 33 to 0 will help balance that score.

BUYING IN RAILS AND SPECIALTIES ENLIVENS STOCKS

Average Is Up Slightly; War News Ignored.

New York, Oct. 4 (AP).—Buying in rails and specialties offset apathy in other parts of today's stock market and enabled the list to emerge from a straggling week's trade pointing slightly higher on average.

Steels, motors, aircrafts, rubbers, mail orders, oils, and coppers did little, and a number were lower at the close. Advances of fractions to around a point, however, had a shade the best of it.

Carriers, which woke up yesterday after a long sleep, were aided by revived hopes that the wage controversy would be settled without depressing transportation profits too severely.

Loan Plan Aids Stock.

International Mercantile Marine was the fastest mover, pushing up ⅛ to 8⅞ on authorization of a Reconstruction Finance corporation loan to this concern for retirement of its 6 per cent bonds, which matured Oct. 1.

The market stepped carefully on Monday as anti-inflation moves in Washington and price control agitation kept buyers in a cautious mood. There was a good comeback Tuesday, best of the week, when Prime Minister Churchill spoke of the improved position of the British in the present conflict. Prices eased Wednesday. Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau's warning of a bigger tax bill next year was a depressing influence Thursday. Friday the market held barely steady.

CHICAGO LIST STEADY.

Prices were about steady on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday, with 17 issues advancing, 15 declining, and 27 closing unchanged. Transactions totaled 10,000 shares.

Volume leaders were Chicago corporation, 2,100 shares, unchanged at ⅝; Miller & Hart voting trust certificates, 1,450, unchanged at 1⅛; Consolidated Oil, 600 shares, up ⅛ to 6¼; Eversharp, 400 shares, up ¼ to 2⅞, and Curtiss Wright, 300 shares, up ⅛ to 9⅝.

EXTRA DIVIDEND OF 10C DECLARED BY LOOSE-WILES

Directors of the Loose-Wiles Biscuit company, Kansas City, Mo., yesterday declared an extra dividend of 25 cents in addition to the regular quarterly payment of the same amount. Payments this year total $1.25, compared with $1 in 1940.

The Nestle-Le Mur company, New York, maker of hair dressing accessories and supplies, authorized a 10 cent dividend on class A shares, the first payment on the issue since 1935.

PRE-TAX BUYING SPLURGE FILLS TILLS OF TRADE

Week's Indices Held on Upward Spiral.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

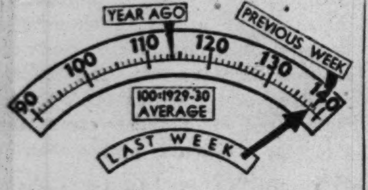
The main direction of movement in trade and industry was upward last week. A torrent of consumer money that swept up to the high water marks usually reached only at Christmas time streamed thru retail stores in the cities and at the rural crossroads all over the nation as millions rushed to buy before the new federal taxes on numerous kinds of goods went into effect on Wednesday.

Before the buying spree was over store customers were grabbing even for items not affected by the new levies. Dun & Bradstreet reported that regional gains for the week as compared with a year earlier extended from 18 to 35 per cent, the biggest year to year increases ever recorded. There was no evidence of any strong resistance to rising prices, the agency said.

Industry Near Record.

Meantime production facilities in mills and factories, swinging more and more to armament work, were being driven at or near the recent record paces, and railroad freight movement and electric power output expanded, altho less than the usual amount for the season.

Steel mills increased the flow of ingots a shade to an average rate of 96.9 per cent of capacity, from 96.8 per cent in the preceding week. The Office of Production Management and the Supply Priorities and Allocations board approved a program aimed at increasing steel capacity 10 million tons a year at a cost of 1¼ billion dollars. Present capacity is about 89 million tons a year.



Arrows indicate position of Associated Press industrial index.

An increase in bank clearings reflected the expansion in retail trade. Corporation financing was relatively active, a major development being the success of three large insurance companies in outbidding bankers for the 90 million dollar debenture issue of American Telephone and Telegraph company.

Treasury to Borrow More.

This week the federal treasury will borrow 1 to 1¼ billion dollars, its biggest loan since the soldier bonus financing of 1936.

Two of the business indices which declined were the figures for automobile production and engineering construction contract awards. Automobile plants produced 76,280 units, compared with 77,035 in the preceding week.

The Associated Press index of industrial activity, which sagged because the gains in electric power output and in freight movement were less than seasonal, follows:

	Latest wk.	Prev. wk.	Yr. ago.
Steel Mill Act...	138.3	136.1	124.3
Elec Pwr Prod..	146.8	146.9	130.9

Composite index.	138.2	138.4	113.9

The index is based on 1929-'30 levels as 100.

OIL TOWN PROSPERITY 'RUINS' BANK—NO ONE REQUIRES ANY LOANS

Centralia, Ill., Oct. 4 (AP).—Wealth from oil production during the last five years has brought prosperity to dozens of southern Illinois cities, but it did an economic backflip for the tiny village of Johnsonville in Wayne county.

With revenue from oil production and leases pouring into Johnsonville and nearby rural areas, the State bank, which weathered the depression, closed its doors. As cashier D. L. Richardson explained it today, the oil money "made it impossible for us to make any loans."

Because the bank was deprived of its principal source of revenue—interest on loans—the bank officers notified its patrons to call for their deposits totaling between $70,000 and $80,000. Patrons and stockholders received 100 per cent on deposits and investments.

SALES TAX YIELD UNDER 2% RATE NEAR 1940 LEVEL

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 4 (AP).—Despite a reduction from 3 to 2 per cent in the Illinois sales tax, last month's collections totaled $6,987,931—only a million dollars under the $7,971,457 paid at the higher rate in September, 1940, George B. McKibbin, state director of finance, announced today.

McKibbin said the ratio would widen in future months because some of the sales tax income, on installment sales made prior to the rate reduction July 1, was still being collected at the 3 per cent rate.

The cigaret tax of 2 cents a package yielded $1,056,067 income last month, compared to $1,108,167 in August; liquor tax collections were $2,215,175, against August's $1,826,352, and the oil production tax yielded $496,781, against $378,430 the month before.

The high liquor tax total, McKibbin said, was the result of purchases prior to application of the increased federal liquor taxes Oct. 1. State Auditor Arthur C. Lueder announced that state expenses for September totaled $25,686,804.

London Stocks Unshaken by War Cost Rise

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Kingsley Wood in his exposition on Britain's wartime national finances this week left the stock markets outwardly unmoved. Altho the figures disclosed the growing war costs—particularly the fact that the treasury is confronted with a deficit of 1 billion 498 million pounds [about 6 billion dollars] for the first half of the current financial year alone—were serious, they were no worse than the market circles, now hardened to colossal expansion of the government finances, had been led to expect.

With Britain spending at the rate of 13 million pounds [about 52 million dollars] daily, even the credit of 1 billion pounds [about 4 billion dollars], making 3 billion pounds since April, which the house of commons sanctioned, will last only until the end of December.

Taxation Near Limit.

Financial experts, analyzing the chancellor's speech on budget prospects, seized on his remark that "with taxation in some categories at 19 shillings 6 pence on the pound [about $3.90 on $4]," as meaning that the screws on the higher ranges of incomes are now tightened to the limit and that a crucial stage in the development of the British taxation policy has been reached. This has given free rein to those demanding drastic extension of rationing, the curtailment of public spending, and control or stabilization of wages in order to combat the threat of uncontroled inflation.

Whatever may be the ultimate effect of the growing war expenditure on the prospects of inflation, there is no doubt as to its influence on banking deposits, which continue to rise. This was borne out by three bank statements just issued for September.

Banks' Deposit Figures.

Lloyd's bank deposits, which stand at 539,377,000 pounds [about 2 billion 157 million dollars], show a rise for the month of 22,765,000 pounds [about $91,060,000]. Those of the National Provincial bank, amounting to 428,010,000 pounds [about 1 billion 712 million dollars] increased by 11,131,000 pounds [about $44,542,000]. Martins' bank, with deposits of 149,361,000 pounds [about $597,444,000] showed a gain of more than 7 million pounds [about $28,000,000].

The Bank of England return published the day after Wood's speech in the house of commons also strikes a discordant note with his "no inflation" assurance. It shows that currency circulation during the last week mounted 6,381,000 pounds [about $25,524,000] to a new record of 677,733,993 pounds [about 2 billion 700 million dollars].

Oldsmobile Swings Into 1942 Season

With formal presentation of the 1942 Oldsmobile automobiles to the public today, the new car announcements for the 1942 season come to a close. The new Oldsmobile, which includes five series covering higher, medium and low priced models, presents noteworthy styling changes. The hydra-matic drive, which eliminates gear shifting, is continued as optional equipment at extra cost.

The most striking changes in the car's appearance are found in the front end design and treatment of the fenders. Dominating the front is a heavy duty bumper which differs radically from previous designs. It consists of two horizontal bars connected by vertical bumper guards. Both bumper bars are joined to the car frame by steel bars, providing strength and rigidity.

In most models the fenders extend thru the front door, emphasizing the streamlining. Frames are stronger and heavier. The braking area has been increased. Greater power has been added to both the eight and six cylinder engines by increasing the compression ratios and redesigning the combustion chambers. The heating and ventilating system has been improved.

CHICAGO AREA GETS 50 MILLIONS IN ARMS FUNDS

Approximately 50 million dollars in rearmament contracts and Defense Plant corporation awards were announced for the Chicago area last week.

The Illinois Manufacturers' association reported contracts awarded Illinois companies totaled $6,306,214, Chicago companies getting $5,033,416 of the total.

The government armament plant financing agency awarded 35 million dollars for two blast furnaces to be constructed by and leased to Inland Steel company and nearly 9½ millions to American Steel Foundries for a tank equipment manufacturing plant at East Chicago, Ind.

Twenty thousand workers, the largest number in four years, are employed at the Western Electric company's Hawthorne works, with the addition of 5,976 new employés since Sept., 1940, the company announced yesterday.

MONTHLY ARMS OUTLAY GEARED TO TWO BILLION

Per Capita Spending $135 by Spring.

Read "Little Caesar of the New Deal," the story of how Leon Henderson rules our economic roost, on page 1 of the Graphic section.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4 (AP).—Estimating that armament program spending would reach a rate of two billion dollars a month in the spring, Budget Director Harold D. Smith predicted today that arms expenditures out of the treasury will total 18 billions in the fiscal year which ends next June 30, or $135 for every person in the country.

"In the near future," he said, "defense costs will take 18 per cent of the national income."

His estimate was two and one-half billion dollars higher than a similar calculation he made a few months ago. He attributed the increase to faster factory construction, higher prices on some items, and new appropriations.

The record breaking figure—larger than the outlay in the peak year of the World war—did not include about a billion dollars to be spent by the British and one and one-half billions to be disbursed by federal lending agencies for military work and materials during the current fiscal year.

Deficit to Top 12 Billions.

Taking all budgetary items, Smith estimated the treasury would spend $24,581,000,000, collect $11,998,000,000 in taxes and other revenue, and have a deficit of $12,583,000,000. In the fiscal year ended with last June expenditures totaled $12,710,000,000 and receipts $7,607,000,000, leaving a deficit of $5,103,000,000.

The budget director calculated that about two billion dollars of the expected revenue would come from the new tax bill and the remainder from old tax laws. The new tax measure was designed to raise three and one-half billions a year but was expected to fall short of this mark in the first year because of the usual lag in income tax collections.

Smith released a new compilation of the arms program to date, showing that appropriations, contract authorizations, and programmed projects total $60,154,563,429. This includes the $6,255,000,000 spent last year, the 18 billions to be disbursed this year, and $5,985,000,000 for the pending second lend-lease appropriation.

Two Billions by June.

Noting that actual cash treasury expenditures for arms reached $1,319,954,559 last month, Smith said the pace should reach 1½ billions a month by the last day of 1941 and 2 billions by next June, or perhaps earlier.

"During the last three months," Smith said, "more than 14 per cent of the national income was expended for defense, compared with 8 per cent in the last fiscal year and an estimated 18 per cent in the near future.

"War costs in England at present absorb at least 40 per cent of national income and in Germany approximately 50 per cent. Meanwhile, in this country national income has increased to such a record level, that despite the drain of defense more actual dollars are left for civilian purposes than during the pre-defense years."

Altho Smith did not estimate the national income, other officials have placed it at about 95 billion dollars in the fiscal year. Before the arms program it was about 70 billions.

Non-Arms Funds Cut.

Smith said his estimates of over-all spending contemplated a reduction in nonarmament expenditures of about 400 million dollars from last year.

In saying that some of the higher arms spending was the result of increasing prices, Smith declared that unless inflationary tendencies were curbed more money would have to be added to buy the things planned.

The budget head declined to say how much of the arms total was attributable to lend-lease expenditures.

Bids Planned Thru Arms Pool; Little Business' Pleas Heeded

Garfield Park Unites

The "Garfield Park Industrial Group For Defense" has been authorized by the Office of Production Management to act as a rearmament pool and will submit its first bids for contracts this week, Carl Stockholm, president of the Garfield Park Business Men's association, announced yesterday. The trade association sponsored the pool.

Carl Stockholm.

Stockholm said a committee of engineers is figuring bids for contracts on four or five items, including fuses and other metal work. The committee is headed by Wallace McClay of O. D. Jennings & Co.

Four Prime Contractors.

The rearmament pool, Stockholm said, includes 16 companies, four of which have agreed to serve the group as prime contractors. Thru the pool, which represents about 2,500 employés, the companies hope to avert layoffs of several hundred men whose jobs are threatened by priorities.

The companies which have volunteered to serve the pool as prime contractors are O. D. Jennings & Co., manufacturer of coin operated devices; H. G. Fischer & Co., which makes X-ray equipment; Checkometer Sales company, check writing machine manufacturer, and the Accurate Spring Manufacturing company.

Other Members of Pool.

Other members of the pool are William Jensen company, Queen Manufacturing company, Enterprise Specialty Manufacturing company, Nordhem-Highland company, Garfield Manufacturing company, Columbia Industrial Machine company, Metal Box & Cabinet company, Aetna Porcelain & Enameling company, J. H. Keeney & Co., Mackie-Lovejoy company, Elkay Manufacturing company, and Reed Metal Crafts.

Heard in Washington

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 4 [Special].—The outcry of small business being squeezed in the priorities pincer has been heard in Washington, D. C., Rep. Charles A. Halleck [R., Ind.] tonight told a meeting of the Indiana Motor Truck association. He is chairman of the committee of 20 Republican congressmen making an inquiry into the problems of small business.

"The expressions of small business men at meetings held by the committee thruout the country seem to have made an impression in Washington," he asserted. "Those in charge of priorities and of the defense effort generally are promising to correct the evils.

Hopes Promises Are Fulfilled.

"I hope that action now in the promissory stage will be carried thru to completion to the end that small business men and those who work for them shall not be unnecessarily handicapped and destroyed."

Halleck struck out at wasteful government spending and urged a reduction in nonarmament expenditures.

"There is a demand that nondefense expenditures be cut a billion dollars," he said. "They should be cut. Too many things begun in depression times to end depression are being held onto in war boom times.

Holds Sacrifices Necessary.

If we are to manufacture war materials a certain amount of purchasing power and productive capacity must be taken from individuals who will thereby of necessity have fewer goods, commodities, and services to enjoy. In the final analysis it involves taking from us the things which we enjoy having and building for the common good, war materials which none of us enjoy."

In appraising the expected heavy demand for transportation from the arms industries Halleck warned the truck operators not to encourage the proponents of government ownership of the railroads, their economic rivals. He said that trucks could not compete with government owned railroads because "you can't buck the federal treasury."

★SMALL BUSINESS★ MAN'S DEPARTMENT

This department is prepared to help the small business man who is seeking information on priorities, substitute materials, and related subjects. Inquiries should be directed to the Small Business Man's department, Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill. All inquiries will be given careful attention. Letters on subjects of broad interest will be published with comment.

BUFFALO PLAN.

The drastic cut in automobile and refrigerator production and expected sharp curtailment of the manufacture of other consumer durable goods raises the specter of unemployment. More than two million workers in these industries will be jobless, according to forecasts by industrialists.

The seriousness of the situation is intensified because in many instances the expected unemployment will be concentrated in communities almost entirely dependent for their prosperity on automobile, refrigerator, washing machine, or electrical appliance factories.

How effectively the labor and contract distribution divisions of the Office of Production Management marshal the resources of government to keep these plants open will determine whether the economic life of many American cities will be dislocated.

Buffalo Plan One Approach.

The Buffalo plan is one approach adopted by the labor division. The plan was developed last July when 3,600 workers were laid off by three automobile plants in that city while factories were being retooled for airplane engine production.

The program involves the mobilization of community resources to retrain and reëmploy the displaced workers. The board of education and the state employment service were enlisted in a campaign to find work in armament industries. The workers were classified according to their skills and were registered with the employment service. Special vocational classes were instituted immediately to adapt the workers to new occupations in other industries.

The plan has been extended in Manitowoc, Wis., where aluminum ware industries were hit by priorities. Engineers and technical experts were sent there to survey the aluminum plants and determine what military work they could handle. The OPM then certified Manitowoc to the army and navy as the first community to be granted relief from "priorities unemployment" by the award of government contracts.

MOVE PRIORITIES OFFICE.

The Chicago district office of the Office of Production Management's priorities division field service is being removed over the week-end from the Federal Reserve Bank building to room 2801 of the 20 North Wacker Drive building, Warren G. Bailey, district manager, announced yesterday. The telephone number will be Andover 5050. Increasing volume of inquiries from business men necessitated an expansion of staff and headquarters, Bailey said.

RAILWAYS DENY THEY SUPPORT EXCESS CAPITAL

Seek to Prove Wage Rise Is Impossible.

Railroad labor's charge that the carriers are supporting an excessive load of overcapitalization, including watered stock, were contradicted yesterday by Dr. Julius H. Parmelee, director of the bureau of railway economics at Washington, D. C. He was the chief witness at Kimball hall in the hearing conducted by a Presidential fact finding commission which is weighing the merits of labor demands for increased wages.

Labor has contended that among the reasons the railroads have been unable to pay wage increases has been the need for paying "excessive interest charges on an overcapitalized capital structure."

Cites Official Figures.

Dr. Parmelee said that as of Jan. 1, 1938—the latest date for which complete figures are available—the total railroad property investment was $26,400,665,000. The cost of reproduction new, as established by the Interstate Commerce commission, was $28,199,602,000. After allowance for depreciation the value was placed by the ICC at $20,262,000,000. Net capital in the hands of the public was $18,319,003,000.

Illustrating the extent to which railroad revenues have been plowed back into the property, Dr. Parmelee said that whereas in 1910 for every $1,000 of railroad investment the public held railroad securities of a par value of $987, in 1939 the public held $693 in securties for each $1,000 of investment.

He quoted the Splawn report on the railroad situation made to the President in 1938 which stated that fixed charges on the railroads constitute a comparatively modest return instead of the "unjust burden as has been charged." He also quoted Joseph B. Eastman, who in his report as federal coördinator to congress in 1935, said the interest rate on the railroad debt was not high—the average only 4½ per cent.

Much Interest in Default.

Despite the "moderate interest charges" Dr. Parmelee said that in the last six years the shortage of interest payments, compared with accruals, had exceeded $100,000,000, and at the end of 1940 there was an aggregate of $1,078,581,000 in railroad interest default.

The purpose of Dr. Parmelee's testimony was to support the contention of the railroads that they are not able to pay demands of the Big Five operating brotherhoods for wage increases of 30 per cent and of the 14 nonoperating unions for increases of 30 cents an hour, with a 70 cents an hour minimum.

Chicago's Steel Output Scheduled to Increase

Production of steel ingots in the Chicago district is scheduled to start tomorrow at 101.2 per cent of theoretical plant capacity, compared with 101 per cent last Monday. A year ago the rate was 96.7 per cent.

GRAIN TRADERS

In spite of the present war in Europe and high government crop loans I maintain that it is just as possible now as ever for the alert and experienced trader to take good profits in grains.

Best proof of this, I think, is the fact that since January 1st of this year I have taken a total net profit of 125⅝ cents a bushel on all grain trades recommended and closed out. That is the profit subscribers to my service have taken if they have followed all recommendations literally, and as I look ahead to the coming Fall and Winter months I feel confident that I will be able to add substantially to these profits.

As a special introductory offer to acquaint you with my complete advisory service on grains I will air mail you my regular market letter for this week, and also that of October 11th when issued, upon receipt of one dollar.

What's ahead for RAIL STOCKS?
Are Investors Too Concerned Over Probable Wage Increase?
RAILROAD earnings for the first 8 months of this year were 10 times greater than in the corresponding period of 1940. Freight loadings continue to run some 18% ahead of last year, with further increase in traffic forecast for 1942.
Do Rail Stocks, currently unsettled by pending wage decision, appear under-valued in the light of these striking gains? Are rising earnings likely to offset wage advance?
In a special report UNITED Service analyzes the outlook for Railroad Stocks and shows the effect of a 10% wage increase on per share earnings of the following railroads, based on indicated 1941 results:
Atchison / Norf. & West.
Atlant. C. L. / Pennsylvania

JUDGE DISCLOSES MORE VIEWS ON ALUMINUM FIGHT

Discusses Tool Company Monopoly Charges.

New York, Oct. 4 (AP).—A firm having superior equipment and facilities will win out in competition without necessarily employing illegal methods, Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey declared today in continuing for the fifth successive day his opinion and decisions in the government's anti-trust law case against the Aluminum Company of America and its 48 co-defendants.

Judge Caffey already has cleared the defendants of 10 of the government's 12 charges that they monopolized certain phases of the aluminum industry. He is expected to rule next week on the other two.

Discusses Baush Case.

In his discussion today of the charge that Alcoa monopolized the production and sale in interstate commerce of aluminum sheet and aluminum alloy sheet, the judge outlined complaints of the Baush Machine Tool company of Springfield, Mass., which allegedly was forced from the sheet aluminum business by Alcoa.

"The Baush president," said Caffey, "conceded that Alcoa had subjected it to fair and keen competition. The Baush president's complaint was that Alcoa undersold him while he was introducing a new product [duralumin]. If fair competition has its advantages for the public a competitor with superior advantages is entitled to avail himself of them.

Expenditures Vary Greatly.

From 1922 to 1931, the court said, Baush, according to its testimony, spent $42,000 to improve its sheet production facilities. The judge said in his opinion Baush's actual expenditures for that purpose in that period were only $15,000, while Alcoa, the record said, spent $7,500,000 for the same purpose in the same period.

Outlining the charge that Alcoa tried to, and allegedly did, force competitors out of business by varying the spread between sale price for virgin aluminum and sheet, making it impossible for sheet buyers to profit on manufactured products, the judge said:

"I am not at this time exonerating Alcoa."

GRAIN PRICES FALL, THEN REGAIN SOME ON SHORT COVERING

Short covering yesterday enabled grains to recover part of their earlier losses which had carried prices to the lowest level of the week, but soy beans were under selling pressure most of the day.

These losses were shown at the close: Wheat, ¼ to ⅜ cent a bushel; corn, ¼ cent; oats, ⅛ to ¼ cent; rye, ¼ cent, and soy beans, ½ to ¾ cent.

Selling of wheat futures, reportedly representing spreading with Winnipeg, helped influence the Chicago market.

Failure of the soy bean market to rally despite continued wet weather in the central west and a forecast for further rain had a depressing influence on the grain markets. Harvesting of beans is expected to be delayed until late this week in the areas of largest production, as fields are muddy and combines are unable to operate except under difficulty.

DELEGATES TO HIGHWAY MEET TOUR MICHIGAN

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 4 [Special].—More than 200 delegates to the convention of the American Association of State Highway officials left yesterday in buses for an inspection tour of roads in the upper peninsula of Michigan, following the close of their 27th annual convention here in the Hotel Statler.

Elected president was G. Donald Kennedy, now serving his first term as Michigan's state highway commissioner, succeeding Murray D. Van Wagoner, now governor of Michigan.

Van Wagoner is a past president of the association, having held the office in 1938-'39. He was a convention speaker.

Other New Officers.

Other new officers are: T. C. Frame of Pennsylvania; Van T. Moon of Oklahoma; J. D. Adams of Indiana, and C. F. Seifried of Wyoming, all vice presidents, and George T. Henderson of Rhode Island, treasurer. Members of the executive committee are C. H. Purcell of California; Henry F. Cabell of Oregon; Brady T. Gentry of Texas; Fred R. White of Iowa, and F. E. Everett of New Hampshire.

Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker Corp., was the principal speaker at the convention's banquet Wednesday night, attended by more than 600 delegates. Other speakers were William B. Stout, noted aeronautic and automotive engineer, president of Stout Industries, Inc., and Richard Harfst, president of the Detroit Automobile Club.

Hoffman warned that gasoline rationing and automobile curtailment must be cautiously administered and that a post-war slump must be prepared for lest essential highway expansion become "just a giant WPA project." Simple horse sense, he said, should lead to initial and voluntary citizen conservation of gasoline.

Would Cripple Industry.

"We already have seen fuel rationing of sorts," he said. "There has been mention of gasless Sundays. But no one in the United States has yet proposed a gasless Monday. That would be something for Mr. Hitler's agents to promote.

"A gasless Monday would close our schools, curtail our food supply, cripple industry and business, and plunge our economic and social activities into chaos and inefficiency.

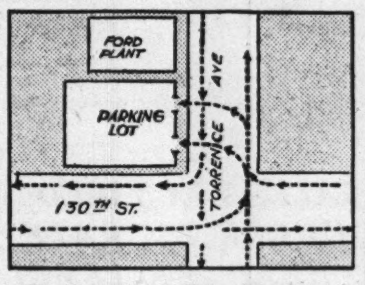
"If we face a shortage of gasoline, then we should meet it by a sensible rationing plan which would permit uninterrupted essential uses of any or all motor vehicles. After all, millions of defense workers depend today upon automobiles to get them from home to office and factory."

Hoffman asserted that, thru no fault of those charged with road building, highway transportation today is not fully prepared to take on and handle efficiently the defense carrying assignment. The weakness, he said, goes back to depression years when an insufficient number of new cars were put on the roads to meet replacement needs.

VOICE OF TRAFFIC

DAILY TRAFFIC JAM.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—I wish to call your attention to a daily traffic jam at the intersection of Torrence avenue and 130th street in the hope that you will get the public interested. Every morning between 7:30 o'clock and 8, thru traffic on these two streets is held up by hundreds of Ford workers entering the plant. At present the only gates by which the Ford parking lot can be entered are on Torrence avenue. Since most of the workers come in from either direction on 130th street, they must all cut across either one or two lanes of traffic. It would be entirely feasible to build new gates at the south end of the parking lot and thus eliminate any turns or even crossing at the intersection on the part of the Ford workers.



Sketch of traffic situation in morning at Ford plant at Torrence avenue and 130th street.

I think the volume of traffic at this intersection would warrant the installation of stop and go lights. At the present, no one is there to direct traffic and the traffic becomes so congested at times that drivers must drive on the sidewalks in order to enter the parking lot.

MORE ABOUT BUMPERS.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—I was interested in your article in reference to bumpers. I don't know that there is anything in my suggestion, but it has often occurred to me that the law should require that bumpers be made vertical on one end of all automobiles, and horizontal on the other end—of course, all cars having the horizontal bumper on the same end. This might avoid much of the interlocking of bumpers such as we see daily on our streets.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Some confusion has developed among motorists over the new taxes on automobiles which they will have to pay, comments James F. McManus Jr., secretary of the Chicago Automobile Trade association. The new 7 per cent excise tax on passenger cars, collected by the manufacturer but passed on to the car buyer, became effective on Wednesday. The $5 use tax, which is to be paid directly by the driver, becomes effective Feb. 1, 1942. Collection dates have not been set.

W. E. Holler, general sales manager for Chevrolet, announces the extension of Chevrolet service facilities, expansion of service personnel and establishment of a military mechanical service department within the company's service organization. Ed Hedner, national service director for Chevrolet, has appointed 26 service experts who are to be stationed at points adjacent to military camps.

NATIONAL SAFETY COUNCIL TO OPEN MEET TOMORROW

BY HAL FOUST.

Ten thousand delegates to the 30th annual congress of the National Safety council are arriving in Chicago, all concerned by a rise in automobile fatalities, that threatens to reach an all time high for 1941. The council yesterday said that this year's list of motor dead will probably exceed the 1940 total which was higher than in 1939.

The convention opens tomorrow and will continue thru Friday with most of the sessions in the Stevens and the Congress hotels. During the week 552 speakers are scheduled to address 162 sectional and general sessions.

Safety Experts in Various Fields.

The delegates are safety experts in various fields, but all are concerned by the casualties from motor transportation. Street and highway accidents include soldiers, defense workers, office and factory employés, housewives, and school children among their victims so that the specialists in industrial and home safety, for example, cannot ignore the risks of travel by car. Furthermore, the motor toll is the only classification of accidental deaths that seems to be getting out of hand.

"The evidence is unmistakable," said Sidney J. Williams, director of the council's public safety division, "that all safety organizations, traffic police, educators and others have their work cut out for them if they are to produce really satisfactory results—an actual decrease in the number of traffic accident deaths, regardless of more cars, more travel and more pedestrian movement.

"There were 32,025,000 motor vehicles registered in the United States during 1940, a 5 per cent increase over 1939. Final registration figures for 1941 undoubtedly will show at least another 5 per cent increase. If the present rate of increase continues to the year's end, American motorists will have traveled 317 billion miles in 1941, a 17 per cent increase over 1939 mileage.

Exposure to Accident Increases.

"But exposure to two car accidents, for instance, increases far more than any increase in the number of cars or the number of miles driven. When you double the number of cars on the road, you quadruple the possibility of two car collisions.

"But safety leaders do not seek to justify current increases in death and injury totals by pointing to the increased scope of the problem. The problem is that our country is headed toward an all-time high death total for traffic accidents, unless there is a sudden reversal of trend, and it matters little whether mile for mile of travel there are more or fewer accidents in 1941 than in some other year.

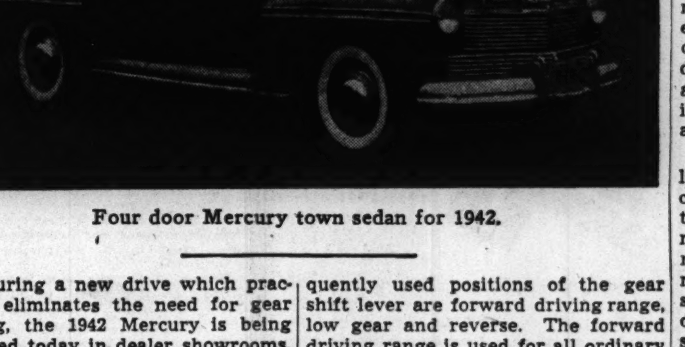
"In the face of large increases in employment during the last two years, with proportionate increases in exposure, many industries not only have prevented increases in the actual number of factory accidents, but have brought about decreases. The same results could be shown in every city of the country if individual drivers and pedestrians would coöperate with safety programs.

"Some cities and states may find it necessary to bring sterner methods of enforcement into action to get strict obeyance of traffic laws. There no doubt will be a shortening of public and official patience with the drinking driver or pedestrian who causes an accident."

Included among the traffic safety leaders who will participate in the congress program are municipal traffic court judges, police chiefs, eminent highway designers and engineers, nationally known educators, newspaper executives and local and state safety council managers. In addition to street and highway traffic safety the congress also will include sessions on accident prevention in industry, in school, at sea, in the field of aviation and in the home.

The Institute of Traffic Engineers again is holding its annual convention here in conjuction with the congress. Its sessions will continue thru Tuesday.

1942 Mercury Presents New Drive



Four door Mercury town sedan for 1942.

Featuring a new drive which practically eliminates the need for gear shifting, the 1942 Mercury is being exhibited today in dealer showrooms. The new drive—called the liquamatic drive—embraces two units working in combination—a liquid flywheel or coupling and a new special automatic transmission.

A shift lever and clutch are provided for placing the drive in its operating positions. The most frequently used positions of the gear shift lever are forward driving range, low gear and reverse. The forward driving range is used for all ordinary driving. Operation is simple.

The styling of the 1942 Mercury is markedly different from the predecessor model. Overall height has been reduced and the road tread—width between the wheels—is wider. The engine has been given a boost in power rating.

U. S. ECONOMISTS WARN OF STEADY BOOST IN PRICES

McNutt Raps Planned Pay Roll Tax Increase.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4 (AP).—Observing that "inflationary tendencies" had already appeared in prices of some commodities, the bureau of agricultural economics warned today that the general level of prices was expected to advance during the next 12 months.

The government experts attributed the price gains of many commodities "to the rise of industrial activity and consumer incomes, actual and anticipated shortages of some industrial goods, increased government loan values on farm products, the food-for-defense program, and higher costs of imported raw materials."

Earmarks of Inflation.

However, the economists said that some of the advances appeared to be "largely a result of speculative activity characteristic of a general inflationary upswing.

Meanwhile, the advisability of trying to avoid inflation by curtailing instalment buying and increasing old age insurance pay roll taxes was questioned by Paul V. McNutt, federal security director, in addressing the National Lawyers' guild.

McNutt thus placed himself at odds with the administration. Already there have been some restrictions placed on instalment buying and President Roosevelt has said that an expanded social security program was under consideration.

Hits Low Income Groups.

"Since there are not enough automobiles to go around, we make it difficult or impossible for the low income group to buy them," McNutt said. "The man who can pay cash for a radio will have no trouble getting one because a dozen potential buyers are unable to make the first instalment."

McNutt did not elaborate on his reference to the old age insurance taxes.

"The war between the dictators and the democracies must be won in a democratic way as well as for a democratic cause," he said. "We cannot afford to fight Fascism with a tawdry imitation of the thing we are fighting."

YOUR NEW TAXES.

The 1941 revenue act is the largest and probably the most important in American history. It provides for an increase of $3,500,000,000 in taxes. This is to be accomplished thru higher rates, new taxes and the inclusion of a group formerly exempt—a group estimated at nearly 5,000,000 persons.

Many persons will be surprized when they learn the liability they incur under the act. Others will be dismayed with the realization that their share of the nation's rearmament and lease-lend spending is larger than they dreamed possible. Taxes for 1941 are severe. Many families will be forced to make serious adjustments in their standard of living to pay tax bills.

Prudent taxpayers should begin immediately to calculate their liability under the new act and make preparations for payment next March 15. Those whose incomes at one time meant paying only a few dollars at most will discover that their taxes now must be planned and saved for because they have tripled and quadrupled. To thousands of American families, income tax will become an expenditure ranking with insurance premiums, new tires for the automobile and painting the house and will put a severe dent in annual income.

The millions who will file returns for the first time—and a large proportion will pay for the first time—will be faced with the complications of preparing their returns. They will puzzle over gross and net income, surtax net income and balance subject to normal tax, attempt to estimate all exemptions possible and wish they had contributed larger sums to charity and the church.

This is individual income tax only. Corporations are subject to larger excess profits taxes and fewer credits. Earnings naturally will be reduced and, in turn, investors may receive smaller or fewer dividends.

The new revenue act boosts rates on estate and gift taxes and capital stock taxes. Excise tax rates are raised and many new taxes are provided. The latter group of taxes will not be as direct and apparent as the income levy but will be no less a factor in raising living costs.

WANTS BUILDING CODES REPLACED IN 'EMERGENCY'

Realtor Suggests Using Federal System.

Flight of residents from city to suburbs will continue and in time increase unless Chicago's building code is changed, Herbert U. Nelson, executive vice president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, told members of the Chicago Real Estate board at its monthly meeting at 32 West Randolph street.

Herbert U. Nelson.

"If Mayor Kelly and the city council will suspend the Chicago building code during the present emergency and adopt the building code developed by the bureau of standards, then Chicagoans can build in this city what now can be done in the suburbs," Nelson said.

Obsolete Codes Wasteful.

"In our grave concern for the conservation of metals and other critically needed materials, and in our growing shortage of skilled man power, very visible in the building industry, there is one ancient waste that need not go on. That is waste involved in obsolete building codes.

"Priority regulations for home building and today's search for substitute materials bring new pressure on cities to modernize their building codes thruout. It would seem that any city failing to do this is not only heavily handicapping its home building industry but in fact endangering the whole position of its builders in getting materials on the critical list.

Urges Plumbing Code.

"Clearly the standard plumbing code for small houses developed by the bureau of standards and published about a year ago should now be brought into general use. Informed estimates made to the Home Builders' Institute of America as to the amount that would be saved on an ordinary small house thru the use of the model plumbing code as against existing codes run from $40 to $300.

"The building code developed by the bureau of standards embodies the findings of years of careful scientific testing of materials and methods. The study was more thoro than any that a single city could undertake. The minimum requirements it specifies meet every real need for public protection, contain no unnecessary stipulations.

"This being so, it would be entirely feasible to suspend any local code at once and replace it with the model code. This surely could be agreed upon for the present emergency at least, for both private building and publicly built 'defense' housing."

PAPER SUPPLIES ARE REDUCED BY ARMAMENT NEED

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Oct. 4 (AP).—With national rearmament requiring 30 per cent of the paper production, Norbert A. McKenna, OPM official, said today that newspapers and other paper users in the United States would have 21½ million tons of paper in the next year to do the job which previously required 25½ million tons.

McKenna, chief of the pulp, paper, printing, and publishing branch of the Office of Production Management, said in an address at a meeting of the Printers National association, that his office was dedicated to the maintenance of the 900,000 jobs and 60,000 proprietorships of the industries "depending on the efficient production and conservative use of paper so long as it is possible to do so consistent with meeting defense needs first."

U. S. Officials Predict Temporary Eclipse for Building

PRIORITIES MAY BLOCK ALL BUT 'DEFENSE HOMES'

USHA Worried Over Effect on Federal Units.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

While Washington still is pondering the question of priorities on civilian "non-defense" residential construction, federal officials in the capital yesterday predicted that the building industry of the nation is about to go into temporary eclipse, except that which builds homes for armament workers.

Some said that whatever private "non-defense" building takes place next year will be done almost entirely with materials stored up by builders who foresaw a shortage. When these are used up there will be practically no new "non-defense" construction for some years, they said.

Even "Defense Homes" Suffer.

Government experts see little prospect of the situation easing. The faster the rearmament program moves the more materials will be used and the tempo is picking up all the time, one said. Any new supplies that come on the market will be quickly absorbed by the munition factories.

Even so-called "defense housing" is feeling the effects of the armament activity. Homes with defense priority ratings are being stripped of items formerly used in construction. Practically the only copper allowed is in wiring, and in order to cut down the amount of wiring, restrictions have been placed on the number of electrical outlets in each house. No copper tubing is allowed in plumbing, since galvanized pipe can be used as a substitute.

Stainless steel, chrome plating, tin, rubber, bronze, solid zinc, and nearly all brass have been eliminated.

USHA Is Worried.

As a result "defense homes" will be somewhat sub-standard. The United States Housing authority, builder of many "defense homes," is said to be seriously concerned over having to eliminate copper tubing in plumbing since their homes are built on the basis of a 60 year amortization, and iron pipes will have to be replaced within 5 to 20 years.

Another hurdle confronting the non-defense builder is the attitude of lending agencies, which will not make loans for new construction unless the builder has his supplies on hand or is building defense workers' homes which have priority ratings and are assured of the materials needed.

Big Jobs Held Up.

In Chicago several large building projects, as well as small residential construction jobs, are being held up because of threatened inability to get needed materials.

The proposed $5,000,000 Greyhound bus terminal, planned for the site of the Ashland block at Clark and Randolph streets, has been indefinitely postponed, according to Robert Maxwell, secretary and treasurer.

"We're willing to wait five year, if necessary, but we're not going ahead unless we have some assurance we can complete it," he said. "There is no priority rating given bus terminals."

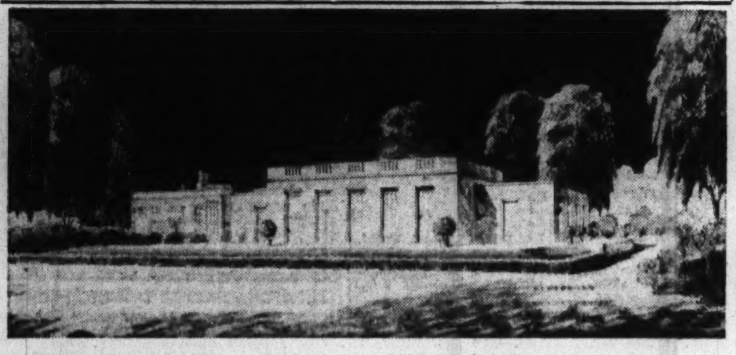
CHA Project Delayed.

The $3,736,000 Frances Cabrini Homes project of the Chicago Housing authority, planned for the north side, has postponed opening bids until Oct. 15. This is the second time bids have been postponed owing to refusal of contractors to bid until they are assured of a priority rating for materials. CHA still is awaiting word from Washington for an expected priority rating.

Gael Sullivan, Illinois director for the Federal Housing administration, which handles applications for priorities ratings, said yesterday that despite the large inquiry for application blanks only 10 had been filled out.

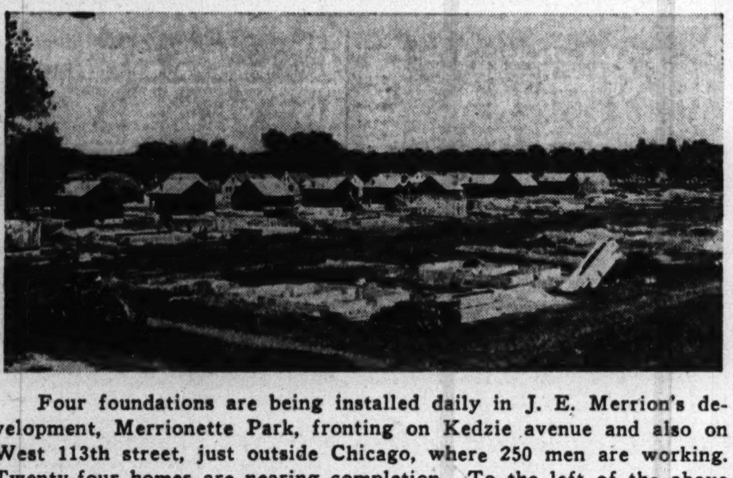
Warren G. Bailey, district manager of the priorities division of OPM, said 10 ratings actually had been granted to Chicago concerns and individuals.

Memorial to Arboretum Founder



Educational building, designed by Holabird & Root, being built as a memorial to Joy Morton, founder of the 750 acre Morton arboretum, on state highway No. 53, 2 miles south of Glen Ellyn. Of Lannon stone, with Bedford stone trim, this fireproof building will have a 250 seat lecture hall, space for plant displays, two study rooms, and five offices. It is being connected with the original fireproof Morton library which was left standing when the Morton residence was torn down last month.

Digging Four Foundations Daily



Four foundations are being installed daily in J. E. Merrion's development, Merrionette Park, fronting on Kedzie avenue and also on West 113th street, just outside Chicago, where 250 men are working. Twenty-four homes are nearing completion. To the left of the above homes and not shown in the picture are four model houses open to the public, showing different floor plans and exterior designs.

Priorities Don't Worry This Builder

Priorities in building materials are not bothering J. E. Merrion & Co. in its residential program at Merrionette Park, where 24 out of a contemplated 125 houses are nearing completion. Foundations are in for 24 more and excavation is underway for several other homes.

Joseph E. Merrion yesterday showed a visitor to his development several good sized barns on the property [once a farm] filled with everything needed for completion of the scheduled homes, from nails to furnaces.

"I'm all set so far as building materials are concerned," he said, "so I haven't any worries from that angle, altho as a matter of fact my houses are in a so-called 'defense' area, sell for from $4,670 to $5,900, which is definitely below the priorities ceiling of $6,000, and presumably 'defense' workers will occupy them."

Merrionette Park is in an unincorporated area just outside the Chicago limits in the Beverly Hills area. Merrion bought a 33 acre tract bounded by 113th street on the north, by Kedzie avenue and Troy street on the west, by 115th street on the south, and by the Grand Trunk railroad right of way on the east. The north and west boundaries are the Chicago city limits.

The land has been plotted into 125 home sites, all 60 by 125 feet. All houses are sold before work is started. Up to yesterday 103 homes had been purchased. The entire 125 will be sold, built, and occupied before May 1, Merrion anticipated, basing his prediction on the impetus being given home buying by the threatened shortage of housing because of priorities.

The area will have Chicago city water and sewers, as well as gas and electricity. Two shade trees will be planted in front of each house. Merrion has six different types of house, including a three level home, with a full basement and a two level house with no basement.

CHICAGOANS WILL SPEAK AT STATE REALTY MEETING

Four members of the Chicago Real Estate board will be on the speakers' program at the annual convention of the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards next Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday in the Pere Marquette hotel, Peoria.

Capt. Graham Aldis is scheduled to speak Thursday morning on "The Army's Real Estate Branch and How It Operates." That afternoon an address on "The Future of Real Estate in the Present War Economy" is scheduled by James C. Downs Jr., president of Downs, Mohl & Co.

Morgan L. Fitch, former president of the Chicago Real Estate board, will be toastmaster at the Thursday evening banquet. George F. Anderson, real estate attorney, is scheduled to speak Friday morning.

BUYS SOUTHPORT CORNER.

Gust Trihos bought from the Haymarket Trust the southwest corner of Southport avenue and Cornelia street, 50 by 125, improved with a three story building containing stores and apartments, for $25,000, thru Marks & Co., broker.

BUILDERS URGE HIGHER CEILING ON HOME PRICES

Say Priorities May Halt City Construction.

The Chicago Building Congress on behalf of the building industry yesterday set a request to Donald M. Nelson, director of priorities in Washington, that the following changes be made in recent priority regulations:

Elmer F. Jensen.

First, that total construction cost per dwelling unit be raised from the $6,000 ceiling already established, to cover inclusive cost total of $7,500 in cities over 750,000.

Second, that any computation to establish priorities in housing be based upon maximum cubic content without consideration of land cost, which varies locally.

Elmer C. Jensen, president of the building congress, in commenting on the request to Nelson, said that he was afraid that the recent priority regulations affecting building will prove to be disastrous. He said that land costs and building costs are higher in the larger cities.

"We contend that to give preference rating to homes built to sell at $6,000 or less, inclusive of land cost," he said, "or housing units in multiple dwellings to rent for $50 per month or less, is tantamount to a full stoppage of building construction in the urban centers of the United States."

Jensen said that an examination of the use by the building industry of critical arms materials indicates too small a percentage to warrant the imposing of stringent priority ratings on the building industry.

"A thoughful review of the facts would lead one to conclude that the gain to national defense is too small for the loss which is definitely to be sustained thru curtailment of building construction activities within our cities," Jensen said, "with the consequent ill effects of unemployment, skyrocketing of rents, and subsequent government rent control and regulations."

South Michigan Avenue Lease.

White Brands Foods, Inc., and White Paper Supply company, Inc., have leased for 5 years as co-tenants the one story building, containing 16,500 square feet, at 4008-12 South Michigan avenue. It will be remodeled. J. W. Ferry of Older Realty company was broker.

Capper Firm Will Move to Wabash Site

Capper & Capper, one of Chicago's oldest men's furnishings and clothing concerns, next year will move from Michigan avenue to the Kesner building, at the northeast corner of Madison and Wabash. The company has leased from the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company half of the first floor, part of the basement, all of the second floor, and a portion of the third.

E. M. Barnhart. [Bergaman Photo.]

They will not move until October, 1942, after an $83,000 remodeling program is completed from plans by Mundie, Jensen, Bourke & Havens. The entire premises will be completely air conditioned.

E. M. Barnhart, president of Capper & Capper, said the move was planned to be able to contact a greater traffic. A. H. Turner, vice president, said the volume of the firm's business is now four times what it was in 1931.

John S. and Charles W. Capper founded Capper & Capper in 1893 with space in the old First National Bank building, and with four employés. Four years later they moved to Jackson, between State and Wabash, and when the Monroe building was completed in 1912 at the southwest corner of Michigan and Monroe they were the first tenant. They have occupied the corner space ever since.

They have a branch store in Detroit and employ 60 persons in the two units. L. A. Randall is treasurer and E. J. Finn is vice president.

PRIORITIES WILL BE DISCUSSED BY LOCAL BUILDERS

Problems of prices, priorities, and substitutes will be discussed at a meeting of the Metropolitan Chicago Home Builders' association Tuesday evening in the Chicago Real Estate board rooms.

Some of the questions to be answered will be: What will home building materials cost during the coming months? How will priorities work and how will they affect you? What substitutes can be used for critical materials?

Experts who will answer these questions, men experienced in the building field, in touch with present conditions and trends, are: Leon Kramer, chief engineer, Chicago Lumber institute; Gael Sullivan, state director FHA; John Merrill, past president Chicago chapter, A. I. A.; Warren G. Bailey, district manager of priorities, division of OPM; Henry Price, secretary American Institute of Home Builders, and Carroll F. Sweet, housing priorities examiner for the defense housing coördinator.

Following the regular program the American Glass company will be host at a social hour to include refreshments.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by BOB BECKER

Colorful Autumn.

Oct. 2, 1941.

THE autumn of 1941 should be one of the most colorful of recent years. That's the opinion of the farm residents who look forward to the display of colors in the oak and maple leaves which go on a sort of autumn rampage when weather conditions are right.

The age-old story of Jack Frost and his ability to paint the autumn leaves has been told so often that it has become a part of our national folklore. All of us would like to believe this intriguing tale which pictures a busy gnome perched on a branch with a paint brush in one hand and a gayly colored easel in the other. But unfortunately the scientists have called Jack Frost a fraud as far as being an artist is concerned.

Soil Conditions Govern.

The condition of the autumn soil has vastly more to do with the color of the leaves than Mr. Frost and his paint brushes. When there is a deficiency of moisture in the soil the leaves degenerate and turn brown early in the season and there is little autumn color in the woodlots. When late summer and early fall provides plenty of rainfall [as has been the case this year] the leaves stay green longer and show brighter and gayer colors when they do turn.

This season the shagbark hickories are the only large trees which have turned brown and lost most of their leaves. This is not unusual inasmuch as they are the first to give up each year. The giant oak and maple trees still have glossy, green leaves which promise brilliant parades of color for late October and early November.

One Dog Roundup.

Pal, the active little foxterrier which lives with the flockmaster and spends most of its time playing with the sheep and poultry, now is learning a new game. When he's in a playful mood he stages a sort of one-dog roundup and herds all the turkeys into a small area of the yard.

We saw an exhibition of his new trick yesterday. The dog waited until the turkeys were in the center of the yard in a straggly line, then he started on a speedy merry-go-round around the birds. Each time one would try to leave the compact group Pal would make a wide circle around them. One old gobbler didn't like this new game and showed it by ruffling his feathers and sniping at Pal's flanks, but never the less the fun continued until the panting dog grew tired of his fatiguing game.

The turkeys stand for a lot from Pal because he has been in the yard since puppyhood. But when one of the other farm dogs came visiting in the barnyard the other day the turkeys went after her with a vengeance. To safeguard his dog from the big turkeys' wrath the owner had to open his car door and let her retreat to safety.

Leon Henderson Rules Our Economic Roost

● Reproduced above is a photograph of Leon C. Henderson, the New Dealer who has become virtually a dictator over the nation's trade and industry. Also on this page are reproduced familiar paintings that are symbolic of the country's fight against dictatorship and for the maintenance of national and individual liberty. Upper left, "Constitution and Guerriere," by Charles Robert Patterson, copyright 1929 by Beck Engraving company, reproduced by courtesy of the Berwind-White Coal Mining company; left center, "Give Me Liberty," Patrick Henry delivering his immortal speech; lower left, "Battle of Bunker Hill," by courtesy Colonial Art company; top center, "Spirit of '76," by A. At lower right, The Chicago Tribune's famous statue of Nathan Hale, from Tribune Color Studio photograph.

> "If you didn't know anything I wouldn't be afraid of you at all, but you know so darned much, and if you are given all this tremendous power you become a dangerous figure—a threat."—Senator Tom Connally of Texas to Leon Henderson at a hearing of the senate committee on national defense, July 23, 1941.

By WILLARD EDWARDS

Washington, D. C.

THERE HAS EMERGED upon the capital scene after seven years of comparative obscurity a strange figure who seems slated to become the economic dictator of a nation rapidly approaching socialization under the fiat of Franklin D. Roosevelt and a subservient congress.

This is Leon C. Henderson, an original member of the "brain trust," a former professor of economics, who has been acting as a kind of economist at large for the administration since the old NRA days.

But now Henderson appears as the logical administrator of the President's price-fixing bill, a measure pending before congress, which delegates to the chief executive unprecedented powers over industry and trade. In Henderson Mr. Roosevelt has a man who will wield those powers ruthlesssly and to the fullest extent.

Since May 29, 1940, Henderson has been the government's "price fixer," exercising his authority by executive decree. He has confined himself to warnings and threats in his attempts to set the prices at which commodities are bought or sold. But under the pending "emergency price control act" he can clap a business man or merchant into prison and fine him $5,000 for each violation of his decrees.

In appearance Henderson resembles a professor of economics about as much as Al Capone. Hollywood would have no hesitation in typing him. He would be assigned a leading part in a gangland film.

He is a squat, heavily built man weighing more than 200 pounds. His complexion is dark—almost swarthy, his hair is thick and black, his nose long and aggressive. He habitually grips a long black cigar in an amber holder between his teeth.

At 46 he is running to fat, has a double chin and a broad expanse of stomach. But massive shoulders, thickly muscled arms, and big, fleshy hands give a vivid impression of physical force. In his youth he played professional football and baseball.

His speech—when he is not testifying before congressional committees—is in harmony with this exterior. He once outtalked and outswore Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, belaboring him in language just as picturesque as the general's own, which so endeared him to that master of profanity that he gave Henderson a job as director of research and planning of the NRA.

But behind this rough-and-ready façade there is one of the shrewdest, coldest, and most calculating minds in Washington. Henderson's brain is crammed with statistics on every conceivable subject. He can marshal up figures to support any one of his numerous theories concerning the manner in which the business of this country, should be run. And those theories are born of a leftist philosophy.

That is why Senator Connally expressed his fears of Henderson, as quoted in the excerpt from the committee hearings printed above. Further extracts from the senator's interrogation of Henderson may serve to make still clearer why many legislators feel that delegation of enormous price-fixing powers to Henderson may prove detrimental to the interests of the nation.

Speaking of Henderson's present attempts to dictate prices of materials, Senator Connally remarked: "Isn't your present system of price-fixing just a polite form of blackmail—you scare them into it?"

"No, it's a much deeper thing than that," was Henderson's reply.

"If you have the authority to fix prices," persisted the Texas senator, "you have more authority than any other man in the United States, including the President. Now, why haven't you fixed the prices of such commodities as shoes and clothing and bread?"

"Those prices so far aren't out of line," Henderson contended.

"Who says they haven't run out of line?" demanded Connally. "You say they haven't, but you mean they haven't gone up like you think they ought to go up. You mean by your standards, by your ideas, regardless of economic laws and economic principles—which of course you understand. That is why I am so afraid of you. When a man is smart and doesn't know how to do right as to policy, he is a dangerous man."

This brings us logically to the question of Henderson's political philosophy, and despite the denials of himself (Continued on page nine.)

Reno—The City Where Sin Pays the Tax Bill

● This is the first of two articles on Reno, Nev., divorce capital, gambling principality, marriage mill, and tax haven. After almost a century it still is a wide open frontier town, and this is its story.

IN RENO, sun drenched Elysium of mesquite and mountains, the wages of sin are paid quarterly into the city treasury, to the great delight of the taxpayers. To a multitude of other freedoms, Reno has added a new and enticing liberty—freedom from taxation, which is expected to endure as long as the hum of the wheel, the click of chips, and the siren song of the slot machines are heard along the drowsy banks of the Truckee river.

Reno has claimed a corner on sin ever since the days it set up as a rough house for the hard drinking miners who flocked to Nevada to grub out fortunes in gold and silver at the time of the Civil war. But it is only in recent years, when divorce seekers throng golden Reno to frolic, forget, and claim their freedom, that "the biggest little city in the world" has thought of making sin pay the tax bills. The results have been better than any one ought to expect.

In Nevada today, as a consequence of what local politicians call "realistic business administration," there is no such thing as a sales tax, state income tax, inheritance tax, corporate franchise tax, gift tax, or death transfer tax, nor is there any tax on intangibles. And, in spite of this, the property tax rate in Reno, a thriving city of 21,000 permanent and transient souls, is only half that of Chicago, for example, where most of the other special taxes are added to the property levy.

Wealthy citizens of other states, learning of the tax paradise in Nevada, are moving to the Reno area by the scores, establishing handsome homes in Reno and along beautiful Lake Tahoe, on the California border, or creating vast stock ranches among the sagebrush. Three months' absence from your home state and six weeks' residence near Reno makes you a citizen of Nevada, entitled to all its remarkable privileges.

New Nevada residents include such rich and eminent Americans as Max Fleischmann, yeast king; the Wanamakers of Philadelphia; Frank Paine, department store magnate; O. F. Woodward, food products; Roland Flick of National Dairies; Guy Bowman of Cleveland; E. L. Cord, John Millar, and Gene Hillsmith of the automobile industry; Edward J. Flynn, Democratic national chairman; Stanley Burrows, California lumber king; Wilbur May of the May department stores, and Walter Seligman, New York banker.

Altho it now prefers recognition as "the cyclone cellar for the tax weary," Reno has no desire to lose its reputation as the gay, wide open divorce capital of the nation. In the last three decades, since the big mines have petered out and the cowhands have turned to crooning, it has been the disillusioned fugitives from matrimony who have given Reno its steady income and giddy flavor. The hectic housewives and hellion husbands who have come to Reno have initially financed the wickedness that now helps support the government and bring in the permanent and lucrative "tax residents." Reno has no intention of abandoning such good people. Quick, quiet divorces, hilarious night life, carefree dude ranches, beautiful mountain trails, and thin, winelike western air will continue to be available, and it seems safe to assert that there will always be enough sin to go around.

Besides its peculiar facilities for divorce, open gambling, and tax escape, Reno has recently launched still another industry, which, tho not yet greatly publicized, is booming far ahead of the notorious divorce business. This is the marriage mill. Last year Reno, offering sanctuary to lovers harried by the California blood test law, performed eight marriages for every divorce, and the record looks still better for 1941.

Marrying couples buy rings, flowers, clothes, and even house furnishings in Nevada, for there is no sales tax law. They patronize the luxurious hotels and dude ranches and contribute their bit to the gambling. And, while Reno marries them at a ratio of eight to one, the divorce business should never run down. The country's record is a divorce for every six marriages.

RENO RUN-AROUND

THEY say in Reno the air is like champagne. No other explanation seems adequate. Take as an example the cases of Arthur Du Pont, Reno's marrying barber, nine times wed, and Reno's rich playboy, Dana Dodge:

(A. P. photo.)
Leah Kewlie

After eight happy years of catching Reno divorcées on the rebound, averaging one a year, Arthur last June led to the altar Mrs. Carol Carrithers, just divorced from an army captain. Ten days later the newest Mrs. Du Pont traipsed off to night clubs with wealthy young Dana Dodge, who already had two wives. When Arthur wanted his wife back, Dodge hit him, the barber said.

Arthur charged Dana with assault. But Dodge was already in more serious trouble, having wed volcanic Leah Kewlie, night club hula dancer, when he was already married to Evelyn Thorne Dodge. Leah learned of it when Dana filed suit in Reno to divorce Evelyn after marrying the dancer. Leah charged bigamy. Dana sued for annulment of his marriage to Leah, filed suit for divorce from Evelyn, and then fled to California.

Barber Du Pont then announced he had fallen in love with Louise Cortez Rodriguez and would wed her as soon as she got her divorce from David Rodriguez of San Francisco and he got a divorce from Carol (remember, the ex-Mrs. Carrithers?).

Meanwhile Dodge obtained an annulment of his marriage to Leah Kewlie without returning to Reno. Then he came back, divorced Evelyn, and now is again seen in the clubs with the hula girl. Du Pont has been going about with his ninth wife, Carol, and now may not lead bride No. 10 to the justice of the peace for a new world's marrying record.

Little wonder that gossip about the Reno bars and boarding house tables is said to be the liveliest in the world.

It is only lately that the world discovered that there is no such thing, comparatively, as taxation in Nevada. This happy condition has come about since 1931, when the Nevada state legislature concluded that if sin intended to flourish in Reno and adjacent areas, it must pay its own way. Heavy license fees were slapped on gambling tables, slot machines, bingo games, and race track wagering. The situation became generally known in 1939, when California business, frightened by the "ham and egg" pension campaign in that state, began looking for new locations. The San Francisco stock exchange discovered Reno and took up leases. Defeat of the pension scheme left the stock exchange and the movie magnates content with California, but numbers of lesser businesses and rich families promptly moved into Nevada.

Wide open Reno of night clubs, gambling, divorces, dude ranches, and legalized vice is the natural and logical outgrowth of the little frontier town that was the play field for rough miners and bull whackers in the days of the rich Comstock lode. The Comstock lode was discovered at the site of Virginia City in 1859, and turned up $900,000,000 of gold and silver before it was exhausted.

News of the strike brought a rush of prospectors to Nevada. Virginia City, wild, roaring frontier town, sprang up near the Comstock, and at nearby silver mines rose Silver City, determined to outdo its sister town in lusty hell-raising. But the miners, of a Saturday night, wanted to get away from their grubby homes to play. They packed their gold bags and headed for Reno.

Reno was fully equal to the opportunity. The Truckee was lined with gambling halls, saloons, dance halls, bagnios, and hop dens. The miners played rough, but they paid well, and Reno boomed. Sin with a capital S became a recognized industry.

When Nevada and the Comstock lode were admitted to the Union in 1864, the young state discovered that its gold hunting population didn't stay in one place long enough to become citizens by usual residence requirements, so six months was fixed as the legal limit. Thus a precedent was set for the present six weeks law.

In 1895 there came to Nevada from Oregon one George Wingfield, a cowhand. At Winnemucca he met George Nixon, a banker, convinced Nixon that he was a business man, and borrowed $150 to set himself up as a dealer of stud at Tonopah. Wingfield prospered, and in 1906 he went to Goldfield, where Tex Rickard and other promoters were benefiting from a gold boom. Wingfield opened a gambling hall, bought up cheap mining stocks, some selling for as little as 10 cents a share. He struck it rich in the Mohawk and January mines, formed the Goldfield Consolidated Mines company and within a year had run an investment of $500 to $6,000,000!

Nixon, Wingfield's partner in the enterprise, started a chain of banks, then left them to Wingfield's charge when he became United States senator from Nevada. Wingfield invested in more mines, gambling halls, erected the famous Riverside hotel in Reno, bought land and race horses, gave Reno Wingfield park, and came to be regarded as Nevada's banker, political boss, and all around first citizen.

About 1910 the Nevada gold and silver supplies began to dwindle. Wingfield encouraged the raising of live stock by generous loans thru his banks, but what he really wanted for Reno was an influx of quick and easy money. He looked around, saw that Sioux Falls, S. D., was enjoying tremendous prosperity as a divorce town, inspected the old Nevada six months residence law, and observed that the liberal Nevada statutes granted divorce on the slightest grounds. Reno issued a call to the marriage misfits.

The first year Reno took in $145,000 from the divorce seekers, not counting what they contributed to the gambling industry. Little enough, but cash. Two years later, however, the Nevada legislators, harkening to the uproar from pulpits and newspapers about the country, changed the divorce law, requiring a year's residence before actions could be filed. Besides that, they outlawed gambling.

These thrusts in behalf of decency brought down a storm. Miners and stock raisers had gambled all their lives, and they did not intend to quit. In their opinion there ought to be just enough law to thwart murder and mayhem in unjustified cases, and no more. The lawyers, merchants, and hotel keepers howled that the new divorce law would starve them. A new legislature went up to Carson City two years later and restored the six months law. Then Reno went out openly and loudly for all the divorce business it could get. As a sop to the moralists, gambling was required to continue under cover.

Divorce at the time had not acquired the respectability it now affects, nor had it been popularized by Hollywood. The Reno area got its first big publicity break in 1920 when Mary Pickford, known as "America's sweetheart" to every movie fan in the country, got her divorce from Movie Actor Owen Moore at Minden, Nev., a few miles south of Reno. The divorce was a sensation of its time, involving as it did three first people of the screen, Miss Pickford, Moore, and Douglas Fairbanks, who, it was said, would marry the actress.

Mary Pickford's divorce was said to have cost her $40,000. One of her attorneys was Patrick McCarran. To him Mary gave the handsome home she had built for her Nevada residence. She went on to wed Douglas Fairbanks and later Charles (Buddy) Rogers. McCarran went on to become Democratic United States senator from Nevada.

In 1927 Nevada decided to encourage the divorce business by reducing the residence period to three months. Business got better, and in 1931 both Arkansas and Idaho, hungrily eyeing Nevada's publicity and income, passed three month laws. Nevada promptly retaliated by reducing residence to six weeks and legalized gambling.

The censure poured upon Reno by outside states was exactly what the town required. The first week after the new law took effect, 275 cases had been filed, 120 degrees granted, and $6,000 in filing fees collected. During 1931 there were 4,745 divorces granted in the town of 18,000 population, and income from the divorce industry was estimated at more than $4,000,000.

Modern Reno may be said to date from 1931, when it became a wide open Monte Carlo. Since then the town has been taken over by wealthy, marriage-jaded men and matrons, mostly from Hollywood and the east, who finance the elaborate gaming halls, pay the checks at Cal-Neva, Cal-Vada, and other fancy resorts on Lake Tahoe, and live luxuriously at the Riverside or in the numerous dude ranches—the Del Monte, Washoe Pines, Franktown's Tumbling DW, and others—just outside the city.

For them the roaring night clubs blare till early morning, when the solid Reno citizens are rising for the day's labors; for them the famous Bank club on Douglas alley, and lesser gambling halls and drinking dives stay open 24 hours a day. For them, principally, there are slot machines in every restaurant, drug store, and cigar store, greedily swallowing dimes, quarters, and dollars (they use real dollars in Reno); for them they have installed bathtubs in even the most rustic ranchhouses, nestled among the sage.

About three-fourths of the divorce seekers are women, and their entertainment has given Reno a new slant on morality. Time was when grizzled prospectors were content to visit the Stockade, or Compound, legal red light district where girls entertain in cribs rented for the night from the syndicate which controls Reno's vice. But now perfumed cowboys and scrubbed up miners visit the bars to meet prospective divorce widows who are looking for excitement and forgetfulness. Not that the Stockade doesn't keep busy. Seventy women, inspected weekly by the city health officers, find employment there, for there are still many hardy westerners who think the man should pay. But the slick professional escort flourishes, and the adenoidal crooning cowboys will whine of the plains and coyotes for the wives who want tamer fun.

Many prospective divorcées do not participate in the gay life Reno so lavishly affords. They come saddened by disillusionment, some bringing their children. They find a healthful, healing life in the numerous Reno boarding houses, or at the dude ranches. They ride in the mountains, go on picnics organized by the dude ranch cowboys, enjoy summer resort life at Lake Tahoe or Pyramid lake, and inspect the crumbling diggings at Virginia City and Silver City. They get honest sympathy and help from their hosts, and, in a good many cases, mountains and sunshine and clean desert air repair a marital rift. They return home happily, and Reno is proud of its part in the drama.

Most visitors, however, partake largely of the opportunity to gamble freely and legally. There are in Washoe county 600 licensed slot machines, each paying $30 license quarterly to the county, $15 extra to Reno when they are within the city limits. There are about 90 licensed gambling games, craps, roulette, blackjack, Big Injun, Klondike, and others. Each table is assessed from $100 to $200 a quarter, depending on the game. Saloons pay a fee of $800 a year, night clubs $1,000, beer parlors $120, and drug stores selling liquor $400. The Bank club, best known of the gambling clubs, pays a total fee of $6,000 a year to the city of Reno. Last year in Washoe county alone the various governments collected more than $150,000 in gambling fees.

During 1940 there were 2,330 divorces in Reno, and 18,912 marriage licenses granted. The number of divorces has been decreased, for many people are going to Virginia City, Minden, and Carson City, where court costs are lower. California, Oregon, Washington, and Utah all have marriage blood test laws which continue to swell the number of Reno honeymooners.

Reno is broad-minded, but the citizens sturdily defend their city against charges of wickedness.

"There's gambling in every town," they say. "Here people gamble without crookedness and no money is paid out for protection. As for divorce, we don't encourage divorce. We simply take advantage of the medieval divorce laws of other states."

NOSTRADAMUS—THE MAN WHO SAW TODAY, CENTURIES AGO!

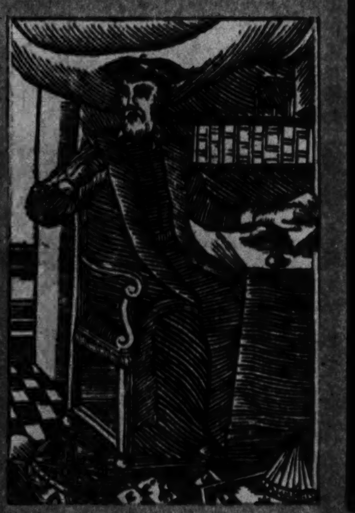
Foreword

Almost four centuries ago Nostradamus, famed physician and astrologer of 16th century France, indited his curious verses foretelling the future of the world to the year 1999. Many of his prophecies Nostradamus saw fulfilled in his lifetime. Others, say his followers, have come to pass with amazing accuracy thru the hundreds of years since his death in 1566. Now students of Nostradamus are finding in his cryptic quatrains predictions of the rise of Hitler and Mussolini, the World war of the present era, and the critical days to follow. ● Whatever moderns may think of Nostradamus, astrology, and the occult arts, his dark curse, heavily uttered in Latin in the year 1555, still arrests the attention of those searching for clews to the future:

"Let those who read these verses meditate them seriously.
Let the profane and ignorant vulgar not handle them!
Let astrologers, fools, and savages stand off! Who acts contrary to this, let him be cursed according to the rites of magic."

PROPHECIES OF NOSTRADAMUS

● Did Michel de Nostradamus, writing in 1550-'65, foretell the present World war, 20th century methods of warfare, the ordeal of defeated France, the fate of England, the rôle of Japan? Following are some of his predictions, one translated from the 1568 edition of Nostradamus' "Centuries" in Newberry library, Chicago; the others are translations made by Dr. Franco Bruno Averardi for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer motion pictures about the life of Nostradamus:



Michel Nostradamus

WAR: 1939

A great war shall burst forth
From fishes of steel
And machines of flying fire . . .
The Germans and neighboring countries
Shall be at war, coming thru the clouds.

WAR AND THE FATE OF FRANCE

A horrible war brews in the west;
The year following will come pestilence
So very terrible that young, old, nor beast (will live);
Blood, fire in the sign of France.

SEES BRITISH VICTORY

The effort of the German eagle shall be great.
The doors to the ocean shall be opened.
The British brotherhood, exposed save for ships,
Shall tremble for seizing the oars too late.
The isles of the commonwealth
Shall recover vigor against their enemies.

ITALY'S ATTACK ON FRANCE

Before the ruin of France
Two leaders meet in their secret temple.
One strikes, the other waits,
Making little noise.
Then he will give the last blow
And they shall divide the corpse.

TRANSFER OF FRENCH CAPITAL TO VICHY

O French nation, thou shalt be greatly changed.
A dagger thrust reaches the heart.
Thy capital transferred: thou shalt be submitted
To new laws and customs.

JAPAN

Twice raised high, twice reduced,
The orient also shall harass the west,
His adversary; after many battles,
Driven thru the seas, shall fall the effort.

● According to Nostradamus, the present war will continue to 1951, at which time the orient will be subjugated and peace will reign in the west. Then, in about 1955, the orient will rise again, invading Europe and destroying European civilization. This war will last nearly 20 years, and the earth will be barren for 40 years after.

By LLOYD WENDT

THE GREAT HALL of the château at Fontainebleau roared with merriment. King Henry II. of France, his nobles and ladies, were feasting a most successful hunt, and the din of their pleasure was like the fury of battle. The illustrious Henry was loudest of all as he shouted insults at his courtiers, banged the table with his tankard, and howled to the musicians for more of the lively Spanish music that so delighted him.

In the midst of the tumult one of the lanzknechts guarding the corridor pushed thru to the Marshal de Montmorency, at the king's right, and handed him a parchment. Montmorency rose at once, thrust his curled black beard over Henry's shoulder, and whispered solemnly into the royal ear:

"Sire! The doctor of Provence! Michel de Notredame has arrived!"

The whisper, on many lips, quickly ran round the hall. "Nostradamus! Nostradamus, the great prophet! Nostradamus, who commands the demons, who communes with the dead, who apprehends the dread cabal of a forgotten orient, who reads the stars, who over mystic vapors and bubbling caldrons mutters incantations to reach the very ears of the great witch of Endor. Nostradamus . . . !"

The nobles and ladies, even to the king's mistress, the lovely but ageing Diana de Poitiers, made signs of protection and drew back. But Henry, who had summoned the prophet, was undaunted.

"Fetch him hither!" he thundered. "Bring us this doctor who conquers the plague and reads the heavens. We would know the glories of France!"

Montmorency signaled, and into the deep silence walked Nostradamus. His robe, of black Lyons velvet, was somber among the gay doublets, the bright gowns, and the sparkling gems of the court. His thin face was pale under his dark, graying beard. His eyes were big, luminous, and calm. Before Henry, Nostradamus bowed low and spoke quietly:

"Most invincible, puissant, and Christian king, Michel Nostradamus, your most humble and obedient servant and subject, wishes victory and happiness."

Henry flashed a delighted smile about the court. Here was deference for you! A man who commanded the seven devils knew his master! He bade Nostradamus rise, ordered the festivities resumed, and the nobles and ladies, given leave, crowded close to hear what the famous astrologer might say.

Thus on that summer evening, August, 1556, Nostradamus foretold the future of his monarch, King Henry II. of France:

The young lion shall overcome the old
On a field of combat in single duel:
He will pierce his eye in a cage of gold—
This is the first of two: he dies a death cruel.

The assembly fell back. Here was effrontery! This mad seer dared prophesy the death of the king; dared predict that a mortal should defeat him in combat. The youthful count of Montgomery paled with fear. Only he and the king wore the sign of the lion. If Henry should think——

But Henry, gone in his cups, shouted uproariously:

"Ho! A duel! Who is the equal of the king of France and could challenge us to combat? A duel! In a golden cage! And who will cage us? A young lion!" His eye fell on quaking young Montgomery, and he was overcome by the humor of it. The lords and ladies laughed till their sides ached. Still Nostradamus stayed at court and cast the royal horoscopes.

In June, 1559, three years later, King Henry II. of France proclaimed a tournament in the Rue St. Antoine in honor of the marriage of his daughter Elizabeth with Philip II. of Spain. For three days there was jousting, Henry pitting himself against all comers. At sunset of the third day the king insisted on still another running. His friends sought to dissuade him, but Henry commanded the count of Montgomery to mount and meet him. When Montgomery tried to excuse himself Henry grew angry, and the two men entered the lists.

Lances fixed, visors down, the combatants charged at the blare of trumpets and thundered down the timbered tilt. There was a crash as Montgomery's lance splintered against the king's shoulder armor, then a cry of horror as his ragged truncheon thrust thru the bars of Henry's gilded visor, piercing his temple near the right eye. Henry suffered torment. Then, July 10, 1559, he died.

The young lion shall overcome the old
On a field of combat in single duel:
He will pierce his eye in a cage of gold—
This is the first of two: he dies a death cruel.

Thus was solidly established in superstitious France of the 16th century the already formidable reputation of a prophet whose record has, in the opinion of his followers, successfully run the test of almost four centuries. For Nostradamus did not limit his prophecy to his own time, but in 1555 and subsequently he published a volume of 1,000 verses in which he charted the future of the world to the year 1999. A few of these original volumes are still in existence. One, published at Lyons in 1568, two years after the death of Nostradamus, may be seen today in the rare book room of the Newberry library in Chicago. It is written, of course, in ancient French, sprinkled with Latin.

Believers in Nostradamus have thru the centuries found in his quatrains and sextains predictions of such events as the defeat of the Spanish Armada by the English, the great fire of London, the French revolution, the birth and campaigns of Napoleon, the ascendency of the maritime British empire, and the first World war, including even intervention by the United States, a nation not born until two centuries after the seer's death.

In the present era students of Nostradamus profess to find in his obscure verses the story of the rise and fall of the league of nations, the collapse of the Spanish republic, the development of aerial and submarine warfare, and the emergence of Mussolini, Hitler, and Stalin. They avidly search the verses for clews to the future just ahead.

What did Michel de Nostradamus, physician and astrologer of the dark 16th century, say of the critical 20th? What of 1942—1945—1950? Will the war end soon? Who will be the victor? Will famine and pestilence in the wake of war doom civilization, as some historians fear? What of the future? The students of Nostradamus think that among his quatrains are the answers.

Who was this man thought to have the prescience of ancient oracles and Biblical prophets?

Michel de Notredame, who took the Latinized name of Nostradamus, was born Dec. 14, 1503, in the town of St. Remy, Provence, France. Only 11 years before, Christopher Columbus, seeking a westerly route to the Indies, had found a new world. France and Spain were the great powers, and England was little reckoned with. Martin Luther had not yet launched the reformation. The Medici were the great Italian bankers. It was 13 years after the birth of Henry VIII. of England. It was an age of exploration and discovery, and also an age of considerable intellectual darkness. Nostradamus' ancestors were among the most enlightened of their community, however, his grandfathers having been physicians and mathematicians and his father a notary, a position of importance at the time.

Nostradamus was first educated by his maternal grandfather, a physician, who took a special interest in astrology and magic arts. He was attached to the court of King René, a petty monarch who developed a fondness for the east while on a crusade. There were many Arabian and Turkish travelers in King René's court, and thru them Nostradamus' grandfather may have obtained rare eastern manuscripts, prescriptions, and knowledge of magic, which he is said to have passed on to the grandson.

Later Nostradamus, a precocious child, attended school at Avignon and the university at Montpellier, a famous medical school. Upon his graduation he was successively pensioned by the towns of Agen, Aix, and Salon de Craux, near Marseilles, in which towns he practiced. He was credited by contemporary writers with being singularly successful against the plagues which ravaged Europe thru the period, and it is said that he would have lived in history as a physician were he not better known as a prophet.

Despite his preoccupation with medicine, Nostradamus maintained his interest in astrology and mathematics and collected rare books on mystic lore. He began to publish almanacs which proved very accurate and popular, and in about 1550 he wrote the first of his "presages" or prophecies of things to come. These he first feared to publish, for, should they displease the authorities, he might be hanged for practicing witchcraft. Finally, however, the popularity of his almanacs emboldened him, and he printed some of his prophetic quatrains in 1555. So successful were they that King Henry II. and Catherine de Medici, his queen, invited the prophet to court. Nostradamus became a kind of royal astrologer, casting the horoscopes of the king's children and advising the royal family on many problems.

One of the early prophecies credited to Nostradamus was that predicting that Felice Peretti, then an obscure Franciscan monk, would some day be Pope in Rome under the name of Sixtus V. That presage, however, could not have established Nostradamus' reputation in his lifetime, since M. Peretti did not become Pope Sixtus V. until 1585, 19 years after the death of Nostradamus. Rather, it appears, his foreboding of the death of Henry II., which he published long before the event, convinced all contemporary skeptics of his inspiration. Following the tragedy he was completely accepted by Catherine and became a court favorite.

Nostradamus not only foretold the death of Henry but prophesied that Catherine would dominate the throne after wearing widow's weeds for seven years, that all of her seven children would meet violent deaths, ending the house of Valois, and that the count of Montgomery would be killed by six men as he lay in bed.

All these things took place. Catherine, who little mourned Henry, was nevertheless forced to continue in mourning for seven years for political reasons. Henry forgave Montgomery before he died, but Catherine turned against him and in 1574 had him killed by six men as he lay abed. It was said by some that these things were done merely to fulfill the prophecies, but over at least one event Catherine had no control. Nostradamus had predicted that the last of her three sons would become king (Henry III.) and that he would die violently in August, 1598, several years after the death of Catherine:

A great king taken by a young man's hand
Close upon communion, and a knife:
Three brothers perish; this death takes the last.

On Aug. 1, 1598, a date fixed by Nostradamus by the astral signs in his verse (not translated), Jacques Clement, a young monk, returning from communion, killed Henry III. with a knife. He was the third brother to die violently, and the tragedy ended the house of Valois.

What was regarded as the inspired accuracy of Nostradamus caused him to be widely read in France after his death. Interest in the prophet spread to England later when, following the great fire of London, it was discovered that the Provençal prophet, dead 100 years, had predicted in his "Centuries" just such a catastrophe. Writing of the 17th century, Nostradamus had foreseen:

The blood of the just of London shall be required,
Burned by saltpeter (fireballs) in thrice twenty and six.
The old church shall crash from the high place.
Many others of the same kind will be destroyed.

Thrice twenty and six, in reference to the 17th century, would be 1666. The great fire began Sept. 2, 1666. Four-fifths of London was destroyed, including the great cathedral of St. Paul and 87 other churches.

Students of Nostradamus' writings have managed to tie his verses to the great events of all ages. In some, definite astrological signs have enabled them to fix the dates within narrow or even exact limits. However, in most cases the verses have been made to fit the occasion by free translation and special interpretation. Even the prophet's stanchest admirers admit that he is extremely obscure, and there is little doubt that most of his quatrains can be quoted against him as handily as they are used for him.

Obscurity has been characteristic of all oracles. The priests at Delphi provided their clients with predictions that could be interpreted a dozen ways and thus prove infallible. It's simply good business for oracles. Nostradamus left scores of quatrains completely unintelligible, but enough appear to fit snugly into actual history to leave him still the marvel of his profession and to insure that his reputation will endure for some years to come.

Modern commentators on Nostradamus insist that it may be wholly possible for some man, or perhaps many men, to develop a sense of prevision such as evidenced by the seer of France. They suggest that he may have been completely scientific in his approach, that the courses of the stars may actually govern events, or that Nostradamus may have possessed the strange sensitivity that guided the prophets of old, the Biblical characters described in the Old Testament.

Nostradamus himself seemed in doubt as to the sources of his strange powers. At times he credited them to the practice of the black arts, derived from the writings of ancient Greeks, Egyptians, and Arabians, writings with which he was familiar. He once wrote to his son that he had burned his books because they contained knowledge dangerous to possess. In this mood he described himself sitting alone by night, in the darkness of his study, upon a brass tripod, a seat long believed to possess magical powers. There he watched eerie flames and vapors called forth from the darkness, while strange voices uttered the prophecies he later inscribed on his manuscript.

In another passage Nostradamus pictures himself holding a quaking branch or wand (perhaps symbolic of Branchus, god of divination) over a basin of fluid, prepared from occult charts, in which he has anointed the hem of his robe and his feet. The wand, moved by the vapors, which seemed to be genii taking form, sent agitations thru his arms, and he wrote, hearing the sounds of voices, feeling an angel near at hand.

Generally it appears that Nostradamus mixed his methods, relying principally upon the stars, but taking care not to offend the religious by giving some credit to God. He once

Yes, now with new Drene, hair lies so smoothly, is so much easier to arrange into new and tricky hair-dos!

Up to 33% More Lustre!

Drene is mild, gentle—yet super-cleanses. Leaves hair gloriously clean—and actually removes ugly loose dandruff every bit as effectively as widely-advertised special "dandruff remover" shampoos. What's more, tests in our laboratories prove hair shampooed with Drene reveals up to 33% more lustre and color-brilliance than when washed with even the finest soap or soap shampoo. That's because Drene does not combine with minerals in water (as all soaps do) to form a beauty-dulling film that dims natural highlights and color.

No Other Shampoo Equals It!

LORETTA YOUNG . . . temperament at the right time.

LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD

with John Chapman

Hollywood.

THE setting is a well appointed living room and the vestibule leading to it. Thru the front door bursts Robert Benchley with a blonde babe.

"Well, I got her!" he burbles.

There is a sharp note of warning in Fredric March's voice from the living room.

"The Princess is back," he says. "The Princess."

And he waves toward Loretta Young, who, erect and graceful looks quite regal in a slender, long sleeved, high necked dress.

So Bob is the goat again and has to take the rap for the babe. He mutters something about settling down and getting married, and tries to escape—but Loretta calmly and amusedly seizes command of the situation and tortures March, Benchley, and Joyce Compton. In rehearsal it's a funny scene, and it should also be funny in the picture, "Bedtime Story," which is shooting on the Columbia lot.

The camera is set way back, to take in the whole room, and Director Al Hall (who made "Here Comes Mr. Jordan") is watching from the camera angle. After the first run-thru, he orders some changes. Benchley shouldn't start talking quite so soon. March should make a panicky gesture. Miss Young should stand six inches to the left. An assistant director pulls little strips of tape off the carpet, shifts them to indicate new places for the actors to stand as the action moves around the room.

Each player does as ordered, much more docilely than a school child who has been ordered to go stick his face in a corner—which is as it should be. Benchley is notoriously affable, Miss Compton is a trouper, March is one of the really good guys of Hollywood, and Miss Young (altho she's a veteran female star and veteran female stars too often are argumentative) does whatever Al Hall says with easy grace, and in so doing reveals two insights into her character: She hasn't got temperament—and she doesn't think she has good sides and bad sides, good angles and bad angles. Joe Walker, the cameraman, says:

As for temperament, Loretta insists that she has it but she keeps it in the right place. She's a free-lance player, going from studio to studio, and her contract always has a few stern requirements. Besides calling for $75,000 or maybe $100,000 per picture, it reserves for her the right to choose her costumes, to okay the script, and even to change the script.

● Loretta is one of an interesting group of young veterans in pictures. There are, of course, the Durbins, Witherses, Temples, Garlands, and Rooneys. There's Jackie Cooper, now 18, with a dozen years of experience. And then there are such as Joan Bennett, now 31, one of the town's noted beauties; Arline Judge, 29; Ginger Rogers, 30—women like that who calmly hold their own against the invasion of new young babes with oomph, sweaters, and silver cups from Atlantic City and Venice.

Joan Bennett

Ginger Rogers

Loretta, now 28, is proud of being a Hollywood veteran—and well she might be, for she is at the peak of her beauty. She made her screen debut 24 years ago, when she was made to have her face washed and go to a studio for an extra part. She did not, however, follow that debut by becoming a child star. The movies saw no more of her for 10 years—10 years spent getting a convent education; then she beat one of her sisters to a job with Mervyn Le Roy at First National and her career really began. Both her sisters, Polly Ann and Betty Jane (known as Sally Blaine), were in films ahead of her, but she soon outstripped them.

The way she got her first rôle is the way of a woman bent upon a career. Le Roy telephoned to the Young home to ask Polly Ann to hurry to the studio for a part. Loretta was the only one home, so she answered the phone and said:

"Polly is out, but I'll take the job."

Then she hung up before Mervyn could think of an answer. The rôle she had commandeered was with Colleen Moore in "Naughty, but Nice." Her real name is Gretchen, and it was Miss Moore who picked the Loretta tag.

Miss Young's marriage last year to Tom Lewis, a New York advertising man, was a Hollywood sensation—because it was contrived with dignity and because it was a surprise to everybody except Miss Young, Mr. Lewis, their families and their friends. For a while it looked as tho there would be a divided household, with Lewis always in New York and Loretta in Hollywood half the time, but recently he was transferred out here, and now they have their own new home.

Loretta's old one is on the market—in the capable hands of her mother, who earns her own way by building, buying, or leasing houses and by decorating them.

Loretta's father was John Earl Young, a traveling railroad auditor. Polly Ann had been born in Denver, Betty Jane in Salida, Colo., and Loretta arrived in Salt Lake City. When she was 4 the family moved to Hollywood, but with no thought of the movies. Then John Earl Young and his wife split up, and Mrs. Young was left to care for four children (a boy, Jackie, having arrived). Soon to come was a fifth child, Georgiana.

An uncle, Ernest Traxler, helped this struggling family. He advanced cash, and he also suggested that the three pretty sisters, Polly Ann, Betty Jane, and Gretchen, might earn an occasional day's pay as movie extras. He was in a position to know, for he was a business manager at Paramount. The three girls did do some movie work.

Meanwhile Mrs. Young rented a big house, furnished it completely on credit, and hung out a "room and board" sign. As soon as her boarding house got going she whisked her daughters right out of the movies and put them in a convent, for she was determined that they should have a normal growing up.

Loretta spent the longest time in school. By the time she got out, her sisters were deep in movie work and Loretta soon was burning to get into the movies, too.

By the time she was 16, Loretta was a married woman—the wife of Grant Withers. But this lasted about a year, and she remained single until 1940. She has an adopted daughter, age 6, name of Judy.

Miss Young takes it easy on the stage—partly because it fits her theory of acting, partly to conserve her energy. As she goes thru her rehearsal in "Bedtime Story" she is the embodiment of ease and grace—for her motto is that of the golfer: "Don't press."

Miss Young's most recently viewed rôle, a fairly light one, was in Frank Lloyd's "The Lady from Cheyenne." Two or three months ago she completed "The Men in Her Life," which started out as "Ballerina." For this one she took ballet lessons in New York. Last year she was in one of Columbia's most successful comedies, "He Stayed for Breakfast."

DISTINGUISHED AMERICANS

HKnox

HENRY KNOX, famous American general of the Revolutionary war, was born in Boston, July 25, 1750. As a boy he was deeply interested in military subjects, and when he reached his teens he was active in the colonial militia.

He was among those in 1770 who tried in vain to prevent the collision between the British troops and the crowds in Boston that resulted in the Boston massacre. In 1771 he became the proprietor of a book store, which led to his reading a great number of books on military tactics and strategy. Thus did he lay the foundation of a military career.

At the outbreak of the War of Independence he joined the colonial army, fighting at the battle of Bunker Hill and planning the defense of the American camps that surrounded Boston, then occupied by the British. For his distinguished service at the battle of Trenton he was made a brigadier general and placed in command of the artillery of the colonial forces. He took part in the battle of Princeton, and it was he who was held chiefly to blame for the mistake of attacking the Chew house at Germantown. It was this attack on the home of Chief Justice Chew of Pennsylvania, which had been seized and garrisoned by British troops, that divided the American forces, held up their advance, and was partly responsible for their retirement.

General Knox served at the battle of Monmouth and the siege of Yorktown, and after the British surrender at the last-named place he was promoted to major general. Thruout the war General Washington placed great confidence in him, not only for his ability in the field but because of his organizing capacities as chief of the artillery.

It was Knox who promoted the formation of the Society of the Cincinnati, an organization of American and French officers who had served in the Revolutionary war. He was its first secretary general, from 1783 to 1799, and in 1805 he became its vice president general.

From 1785 to 1795 Knox was secretary of war, being the first to hold this position after the organization of the federal government in 1789. As head of the war department he urged the establishment of a navy. There was opposition to this, but his ideas prevailed and the nucleus of the first United States fleet was laid down. There was no navy department then (it was not created until 1798), so Knox handled the affairs of both the army and the navy. He resigned from the cabinet before the expiration of Washington's second term and was succeeded by Timothy Pickering.

General Knox was firm in his belief that all male citizens should have some form of military training, and urged that all between the ages of 18 and 60 be enrolled in a national militia. Because of this and his great friendship with Washington he was bitterly assailed by his political enemies.

He died in Thomaston, Me., Oct. 25, 1806.

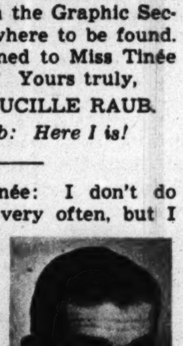
Dear Sirs: I just sat down to write a letter to Miss Mae Tinée, but on looking in the Graphic Section she was nowhere to be found. What has happened to Miss Tinée and her column? Yours truly,

LUCILLE RAUB.

Dear Miss Raub: Here I is!



Bruce Cabot

Dear Miss Tinée: I don't do things like this very often, but I read something recently that made my blood boil and I just had to have my say. I think, Mr. Basche, that every one is entitled his own opinion, and while I haven't always agreed with Miss Tinée, I think she knows what she is talking about. If you like soppy, mushy, melodramatic stuff like the "Men of Boys Town," all right, but please don't try to stuff it down every one else's throat! Now that that is off my chest, I would like to give three rousing cheers for Bruce Cabot in "Flame of New Orleans." I have liked him ever since I first saw him in bit parts. Could you squeeze in a few facts about him? Thanks a million.

PEGGIE KENNEDY.

Dear Miss Kennedy: Well, we can't all think alike, can we? Now about Bruce Cabot. His real name is Jacques De Bujac, and he was born in Carlsbad, N. M. He's 6 feet 1⅛ inches tall, weighs 180 pounds, and has gray eyes and brown hair. Educated Swanee Military academy, Tennessee; University of the South. Divorced Adrienne Ames. Hobby's athletics.

Dear Miss Tinée: I would like to know where I could write to four of my favorite movie stars, who are Charles Boyer, Dennis Morgan, Robert Taylor, and Stirling Hayden. I think this column is a very fine system which you have started. Sincerely yours,

MARGARET MOTHENY.

Dear Miss Motheny: Well, I'm so glad you like our system! Address Charles Boyer care of Universal studio, Universal City, Cal.; Dennis Morgan care of Warners-First National studio, Burbank, Cal.; Robert Taylor care of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, Culver City, Cal.; Stirling Hayden care of Paramount studio, 5451 Marathon street, Hollywood, Cal.

PROTHALAMION

By EDMUND SPENSER

Calm was the day, and thru the trembling air
Sweet-breathing Zephyrus did softly play—
A gentle spirit, that lightly did delay
Hot Titan's beams, which then did glister fair;
When I (whom sullen care,
Thru discontent of my long fruitless stay
In princes' courts, and expectation vain
Of idle hopes, which still do fly away
Like empty shadows, did afflict my brain)
Walk'd forth to ease my pain
Along the shore of silver-streaming Thames;
Whose rutty bank, the which his river hems,
Was painted all with variable flowers,
And all the meads adorn'd with dainty gems
Fit to deck maidens' bowers,
And crown their paramours
Against the bridal day, which is not long:
Sweet Thames! run softly, till I end my song.

There in a meadow by the river's side
A flock of nymphs I chancéd to espy,
All lovely daughters of the flood thereby,
With goodly greenish locks all loose untied
As each had been a bride;
And each one had a little wicker basket
Made of fine twigs, entrailéd curiously,
In which they gather'd flowers to fill their flasket,
And with fine fingers cropt full feateously
The tender stalks on high.
Of every sort which in that meadow grew
They gather'd some; the violet, pallid blue,
The little daisy that at evening closes,
The virgin lily and the primrose true;
With store of vermeil roses,
To deck their bridegrooms' posies
Against the bridal day, which was not long:
Sweet Thames! run softly, till I end my song.

With that I saw two swans of goodly hue
Come softly swimming down along the lee;
Two fairer birds I yet did never see;
The snow which doth the top of Pindus strow
Did never whiter show,
Nor Jove himself, when he a swan would be
For love of Leda, whiter did appear;
Yet Leda was (they say) as white as he,
Yet not so white as these, nor nothing near;
So purely white they were
That even the gentle stream, the which them bare,
Seem'd foul to them, and bade his billows spare
To wet their silken feathers, lest they might Soil their fair plumes with water not so fair,
And mar their beauties bright
That shone as Heaven's light
Against their bridal day, which was not long:
Sweet Thames! run softly, till I end my song.

Eftsoons the nymphs, which now had flowers their fill,
Ran all in haste to see that silver brood
As they came floating on the crystal flood;
Whom when they saw, they stood amazéd still
Their wondering eyes to fill;
Them seem'd they never saw a sight so fair
Of fowls, so lovely, that they sure did deem
Them heavenly born, or to be that same pair
Which thru the sky draw Venus' silver team;
For sure they did not seem
To be begot of any earthly seed,
But rather angels, or of angels' breed;
Yet were they bred of summer's heat, they say,
In sweetest season, when each flower and weed
The earth did fresh array;
So fresh they seem'd as day,
Even as their bridal day, which was not long:
Sweet Thames! run softly, till I end my song.

Then forth they all out of their baskets drew
Great store of flowers, the honor of the field,
That to the sense did fragrant odors yield,
All which upon those goodly birds they threw
And all the waves did strew,
That like old Peneus' waters they did seem
When down along by pleasant Tempe's shore
Scatter'd with flowers, thru Thessaly they stream,
That they appear, thru lilies' plenteous store,
Like a bride's chamber-floor.
Two of those nymphs meanwhile two garlands bound
Of freshest flowers which in that mead they found,
The which presenting all in trim array,
Their snowy foreheads therewithal they crown'd;
Whilst one did sing this lay
Prepared against that day,
Against their bridal day, which was not long;
Sweet Thames! run softly, till I end my song.

"Ye gentle birds! the world's fair ornament,
And Heaven's glory, whom this happy hour
Doth lead unto your lovers' blissful bower,
Joy may you have, and gentle hearts content
Of your love's complement;
And let fair Venus, that is queen of love,
With her heart-quelling son upon you smile,
Whose smile, they say, hath virtue to remove
All love's dislike, and friendship's faulty guile
For ever to assoil.
Let endless peace your steadfast hearts accord,
And blessed plenty wait upon your board;
And let your bed with pleasures chaste abound,
That fruitful issue may to you afford
Which may your foes confound,
And make your joys redound
Upon your bridal day, which is not long:
Sweet Thames! run softly, till I end my song."

So ended she; and all the rest around
To her redoubled that her undersong,
Which said their bridal day should not be long:
And gentle Echo from the neighbor ground
Their accents did resound.
So forth those joyous birds did pass along
Adown the lee that to them murmur'd low,
As he would speak, but that he lack'd a tongue,
Yet did by signs his glad affection show,
Making his stream run slow.
And all the fowl which in his flood did dwell
'Gan flock about these twain, that did excel
The rest, so far as Cynthia doth shend
The lesser stars. So they, enrangéd well,
Did on those two attend,
And their best service lend
Against their wedding day, which was not long:
Sweet Thames! run softly, till I end my song.

At length they all to merry London came,
To merry London, my most kindly nurse,
That to me gave this life's first native source,
Tho from another place I take my name,
An house of ancient fame:
There when they came whereas those bricky towers
The which on Thames' broad aged back do ride,
Where now the studious lawyers have their bowers,
There whilome wont the Templar knights to bide,
Till they decay'd thru pride;
Next whereunto there stands a stately place,
Where oft I gainéd gifts and goodly grace
Of that great lord, which therein wont to dwell,
Whose want too well now feels my friendless case;
But ah! here fits not well
Old woes, but joys to tell
Against the bridal day, which is not long:
Sweet Thames! run softly, till I end my song.

Yet therein now doth lodge a noble peer,
Great England's glory and the world's wide wonder,
Whose dreadful name late thro' all Spain did thunder,
And Hercules' two pillars standing near
Did make to quake and fear:
Fair branch of honor, flower of chivalry!
That fillest England with thy triumphs' fame,
Joy have thou of thy noble victory,
And endless happiness of thine own name
That promiseth the same;
That thru thy prowess and victorious arms
Thy country may be freed from foreign harms,
And great Eliza's glorious name may ring
Thru all the world, fill'd with thy wide alarms
Which some brave Muse may sing
To ages following,
Upon the bridal day, which is not long:
Sweet Thames! run softly, till I end my song.

From those high towers this noble lord issúing
Like radiant Hesper, when his golden hair
In th' ocean billows he hath bathéd fair,
Descended to the river's open viewing
With a great train ensuing.
Above the rest were goodly to be seen
Two gentle knights of lovely face and feature,
Beseeming well the bower of any queen,
With gifts of wit and ornaments of nature
Fit for so goodly stature,
That like the twins of Jove they seem'd in sight
Which deck the baldric of the Heavens bright;
They two, forth pacing to the river's side,
Received those two fair brides, their love's delight:
Which, at th' appointed tide,
Each one did make his bride
Against their bridal day, which is not long:
Sweet Thames! run softly, till I end my song.

Discover That Hidden Beauty!

It's the schoolgirl fashion to wear hair long, trailing, and with some kind of puff or pompadour across the top. At right is one youngster's home-created coiffure, snipped at various lengths.

Above is what a competent hair stylist did for her. Hair is short in front so that it may be arranged in a roll, a broken pompadour, or a halo of soft curls. It's flattering, trim, and easy to care for.

Half of her beauty problem was caused by the nail-biting habit; her finger tips were blunted (at left), her nails, short, ragged, and brittle.

(Above.) Six weeks of corrective manicures not only broke her of the nail-nibbling habit but made the nails long enough to take polish and started them on the path to length and strength.

By ELEANOR NANGLE

BEAUTY BUILDING for the school miss is wonderfully simple these days, with the well equipped, well staffed beauty salon the magic chamber in which wonders are wrought.

Consider the nail biter who is about to go off to college. Never before was she more repentant of her beauty sins, more eager to do anything to achieve long, strong nails. Send her to the beauty salon for frequent manicures and, in our experience, the problem is well on its way to solution.

Bitten nails invite further nibbling because of the ragged cuticle, the thorny nail structure. A series of manicures such as we worked with recently guards against the tempting hangnails and builds up the nail strength. One little nail biter we know went thru a six-week period of oil manicures twice a week, with oiling, buffing and careful shaping, plus applications of white iodine to help build up the tissue. At night (she thought she bit them while she slept) she wore loose cotton mittens over hands and nails saturated with lanolin. The change was amazing. Six weeks of the beauty salon's earnest attention and the habit was broken. What's more, her nails were long enough to carry polish—the first time in her life! She's well on the way toward nails that a movie star might envy.

Most important, she's learned what to do about her nails. It will take time to erase the fruits of years of abuse, but treatment will accomplish wonders. And keeping the nails well manicured will subdue the cracks and hangnails that invite being torn off!

In the same beauty salon this off-to-school girl got hair treatments and a new coiffure. Like all the youngsters, she liked hair that was long and trailing and with a puff in front; the salon did a beautiful job of streamlining the basic effect into something smart, flattering—and easy to keep. Hair short all around the face, so that it could be fluffed any way she liked it, in a roll or soft curls, was a better, smarter frame for her face. And we wish you could have seen how a few expert treatments charged her hair with elasticity and gloss and revealed its glorious color in all its blue-black beauty!

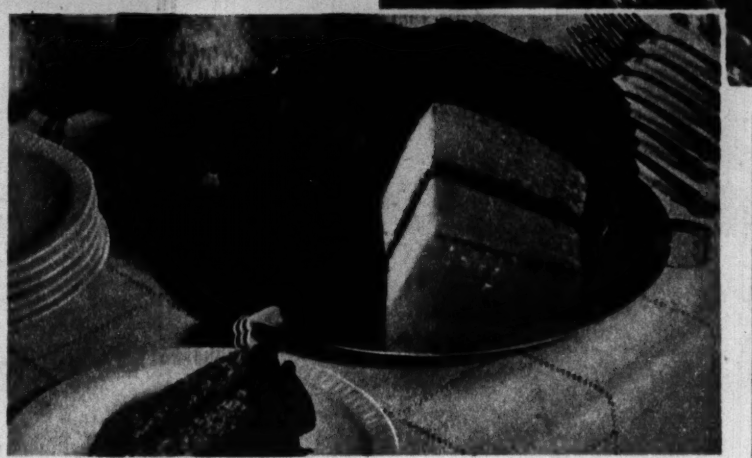
WE ALL LIKE CAKE SO HERE'S CAKE WE ALL LIKE



Above: Here's our old friend, Boston cream pie, dressed up with chocolate and sherry filling. In its new guise it deserves a new name, so colonial cream cake is its title.

At left: The cream cheese and chocolate filling and frosting used on this layer cake will keep several days if stored in a tightly covered jar on a shelf in the refrigerator.

By MARY MEADE

EVERYBODY likes a good layer cake, particularly when there's chocolate in either filling or frosting.

Chocolate filling flavored with sherry wine is delicious with the kind of cake you may know as Boston cream cake or Boston cream pie. This version is called colonial cream cake.

COLONIAL CREAM CAKE WITH CHOCOLATE-SHERRY FILLING

2 cups sifted cake flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter, margarine, or vegetable shortening
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs, separated
⅔ cup milk
Confectioners' sugar

Sift flour with baking powder and salt several times. Cream butter until very light and add sugar gradually. Beat thoroly until mixture is fluffy. Add beaten egg yolks and vanilla. Beat well. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk, beating after each addition. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in two round layer pans which have been greased and lightly floured. Twenty-five minutes in a 375-degree oven should bake the layers. Cool and put together with filling. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar.

CHOCOLATE-SHERRY FILLING—Mix ½ cup sugar, 3 tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon salt and add to 2 egg yolks beaten until light. Heat ¾ cup milk and 1 square unsweetened chocolate in the top of a double boiler. Beat to mix chocolate with milk, using a rotary beater. Add egg yolk mixture gradually, beating constantly, and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Cool slightly and add 3 tablespoons sherry wine. Beat until smooth and fold in ½ cup whipped cream.

The beauty, or one of the beauties, of the chocolate frosted cake is that topping, which may be mixed several days early if you wish. It will keep well when stored in a tightly covered jar in the refrigerator.

CHOCOLATE WONDER FROSTING—Soften one package cream cheese with 2 or 3 tablespoons of milk and work into it 2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar, 2 squares melted unsweetened chocolate, and ¼ teaspoon salt. Beat until smooth.

CHOCOLATE WONDER CAKE

2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
⅔ cup butter or other shortening
1 cup sugar
3 eggs
⅓ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour with baking powder and salt three times. Cream butter until soft and beat in sugar gradually. Add eggs singly, unbeaten, and beat batter thoroly after each. Add flour and milk in alternate portions, beating well after each addition. Add vanilla. Bake in two greased nine-inch layer pans at 375 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes. Cool for five minutes in the pans, then turn out onto a rack and cool. Put together and frost with chocolate wonder frosting.

1 It is 1866. The railroad has just reached Abilene, Kas. At the same time come Dan Thomas (William Holden) and Tod Ramsay (Glenn Ford), seeking jobs. But they are soon in court for stealing food. "Here, sheriff," says a stranger, "I'll pay their fines." It is Windy Miller (George Bancroft), a promoter, who had brought Abilene its railroad.

2 That night at the celebration of the railroad's completion Dan makes an offer. "I'll fight the champ for $200, winner take all." He does, but nobody wins. The fight ends in a riot.

3 Riding on into Texas, Dan and Tod witness a stage holdup. "Look, Dan," whispers Tod in their hiding place, "we'll follow those outlaws, hold THEM up, and turn in the loot." They get the loot all right, but the sheriff gets them before they can explain.

4 In a harmless running fight Dan and Tod escape, in different directions. Dan appropriates a ride. "Pardon me, ma'am," he says to Mike King (Claire Trevor), "but here's where I join you."

5 In Windfall, Tex., Dan runs afoul of the sheriff (Don Beddoe), but a passenger on the looted stage, Doc Thorpe (Edgar Buchanan), comes to his rescue. "He's all right, sheriff. He wasn't one of the bandits. I'd know 'em in a minute. Come on, son." It is the start of an unwise friendship for Dan.

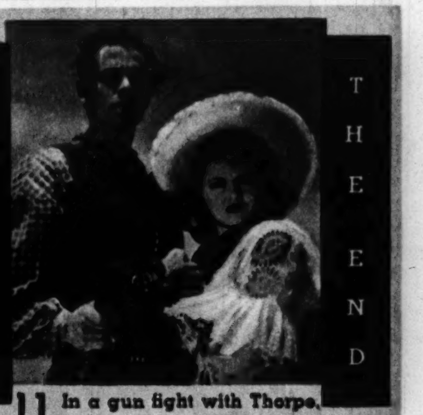
Doc finds Dan a ranch job. Meanwhile Mike King, ruffled and indig- after her wild ride with Dan, ar- home to find Tod as a new hand her father's ranch. "Good after- Miss King," he says affably. you and Dan have a nice trip?" Mike snubs him.

7 But Mike, Dan, and Tod meet again, under tragic circumstances. Mike's father has been killed by marauders who raid herds being driven to the railroad. An indignation meeting is in session in Windfall.

8 Into this meeting comes Windy Miller, offering $2 a head for cattle at the ranch. Most of the stockmen are ready to sell, but Tod intervenes. "Wait, men," he shouts. "You don't need to sell at such prices. Band together—we'll drive one big, well guarded herd to Abilene!" Cheers seal the agreement.

9 But the rustlers get busy. Doc Thorpe, the town dentist and brains of the outlaw group, gives orders to Windy and another henchman. Windy urges Dan to help him, and Dan, jealous of Tod's increasing influence with Mike King, accepts. However, instead of helping Windy, he kills him, takes $20,000, lets the herd get thru, and rushes back to Mike.

10 "Mike, dear," Dan says. "I want you to marry me now. I have a big chance up in Kansas—we'll have to leave right away." But Mike hesitates. "I'd want Tod to be here, Dan. Let's wait." The delay is fatal to Dan, however. The returning ranchers unmask him as Windy's killer, and Doc Thorpe sets out to get him, too.



11 In a gun fight with Thorpe, Dan is killed, but not before he has fatally wounded Doc. The cattle rustlers are gone, the trail to Abilene is open. "Texas is free now, Tod," whispers Mike. "I thought I loved Dan, but now I know I love Texas, and you, much more."

Problem of Convoys

By STANLEY JOHNSTONE

Graphic Laboratory of Popular Science

NO MATTER what happens in Russia, in the near east, in Africa, or in the Mediterranean, Britain can continue to fight the war only so long as she keeps open her sea lanes to the British Isles. The crucial battle of the war is one which commenced within a few hours after hostilities were declared and has continued thereafter 24 hours of every day ever since. It is the battle of the Atlantic—the convoy versus the submarine and airplane.

At the end of May (after 21 months of war) the British admitted the loss of 1,639 ships totaling 6,702,807 tons. The majority of these were merchant ships bearing essential supplies to feed Britain, to supply her munitions industries with raw materials required for her armies, navy, and air force, along with some manufactured weapons from the United States. Since Britain started the war with 16,000,000 tons of shipping, these losses represent more than one-third of all the bottoms upon which the life of Britain depends.

These sinkings occurred and are continuing despite the revival of all the old tricks for fighting the submarine and the reinstitution of convoys, which were developed in 1917 and at that time were successful in defeating the U-boats of imperial Germany. Obviously the war at sea today has changed materially, and expert observers say that the reason for this change is twofold, to wit:

1. Development of the airplane as an aid to the U-boat and as a primary weapon in itself for attacks upon shipping.

2. The extraordinary success enjoyed by the German armies and their conquest of Europe from the Arctic circle to the Spanish frontier. These conquests have changed the geographical and consequently the strategic position of Germany—because they have freed the German navy and submarines from any practical blockade.

In order to understand the battle of the Atlantic as it is being waged from hour to hour at this time it is necessary to trace the history of modern sea blockades and convoys.

In 1914 Great Britain adopted the grand strategy of the blockade as an offensive weapon against Germany. The English channel was closed to German surface ships and for long periods also to U-boats. Daily patrols, mine fields, and mine nets almost closed the North sea to the Germans.

British efforts in this direction were made easier because Holland, Denmark, Norway, and Sweden remained neutral. Belgium was occupied by Germany, but almost the entire French coast, and particularly all the coast of the real "narrows" in the channel, was held and controled by French and English units.

While the British were trying to bottle them up the Germans turned their own blockade on England. Using U-boats almost exclusively, the Germans succeeded in 1917 in putting Britain into such a perilous position that Prime Minister David Lloyd George declared the isles had less than one month's supplies, and unless the U-boat was decisively defeated Britain would lose the war. Peak sinkings, reached in April that year, were 866,000 tons.

At this crucial hour the convoy system was forced upon the navy over objections of admirals who in parliament had protested that it was impossible to convoy. The admiralty said 2,500 ships left British ports weekly, but only a couple of dozen were sunk. The admirals neglected to say that of these only 140 were "blue water" or transoceanic ships, the remainder being coastal vessels. The sinkings were chiefly among the blue water ships—which explained why food was so scarce in England.

But junior officers installed the convoy system with 26 armed trawlers (none of which carried weapons sufficient to enable them to battle with a submarine) across the long end of the channel, from Swansea and Penzance to Brest. This was considered the most dangerous sea lane and was infested with U-boats that had exacted an enormous toll of tonnage.

By the end of May, 1917, Commander (later Admiral) Henderson reported that the trawlers had convoyed 4,000 ships over this route with the loss of only seven. By the end of the war the Penzance-Brest convoys had escorted 38,000 vessels safely across with losses of only 50. The results shown in May forced the admiralty to adopt convoys for all overseas shipping.

The 1917-'18 convoy depended for safety upon its invisibility. Convoying did not mean assigning to a group of merchant ships sufficient naval strength to protect them from any harm. Guns aboard the escort vessels, in fact, were virtually useless against a hidden, submerged U-boat. At best escort vessels could only offer a poor method of avenging losses to merchant ships if they were able to find the attacking submarine.

The whole point of the convoy system was based on the poor range of vision allowed from the low decks of a U-boat. Advocates of the convoy system argued that if 50 vessels were concentrated in one unit—moving as a compact group—they would be perhaps 40 times less likely to be seen than if they went to sea separately and became separate targets scattered over the shipping lanes.

This conception was based on hard experience. The junior officers serving on small vessels or submarines themselves realized that the horizon drops—at sea—at the rate of eight feet a mile. This is due to the curvature of the earth. In other words, a man lying on a raft so that his eyes were only a few inches above the water would be unable to see an object that projected eight feet out of the water only one mile away.

An officer or watch on the conning tower of a submarine is standing only 12 feet above the water. (When the submarine is surfaced the deck is usually four to five feet above the sea and the conning tower another seven feet.) Such a watcher (taking into consideration his height) can see the surface of the water to a point about two miles away. From that point onward a ship's hull begins to disappear, due to the curvature of the earth.

At three miles a man on a submarine can see the top deck, funnels, and masts of a vessel. At 4½ miles he would see the top of the funnels and masts. At five miles a vessel would be invisible. Even these relatively short distances, however, require excellent weather — daylight—and clear visibility. Rain, fog, or bad weather with slashing spray and gray skies would reduce the limits materially.

Today the entire picture has changed. From Norway to Spain the Germans control a 2,000-mile unbroken coastline. From any ports along this coast U-boats and surface raiders have free access to the North sea and the Atlantic, either north or south of England.

Furthermore, the airplane has changed the balance of sea power. In 1914-'18 the Dover patrol plus the North sea fleet and mine fields seized and held the surface waters around England. Today the German air fleets, operating from airfields all up and down the 2,000-mile coastline, have hunted out the British fleet units, bombed them in their supposedly safe harbors, and virtually swept the surface clear. There are no longer large mine fields tended by any daily patrol off Ostend, the Skagerrack, Helgoland bight, Zeebrugge, and across the Strait of Dover.

There are undoubtedly mines thru the channel and the strait, but these are dropped by submarines, by aircraft, or by vessels that under cover of darkness scurry out and quickly home again. There is no organized daylight patrol of mined areas by either side. England has dropped her use of mines as an offensive weapon, as in 1914-'18, but today is using them defensively. She has girt herself in with mine fields to keep off the Germans.

The pressure of aircraft upon the operations of surface vessels is merely incidental. Their direct and most important contribution to the battle of the Atlantic is complete destruction of convoy invisibility. This invisibility was its principal safety factor. In saying this I am saying that aircraft virtually has destroyed the anti-U-boat convoy.

Specifically the airplane is used in the following fashion: Long-range bombers operating from Norway or western France cover a 1,000-mile arc out to sea. Their purpose is to spot convoys and radio their position, speed, and course to U-boats that would be surfaced and awaiting these reports. This information allows the U-boats to take up position ahead of the convoy where they can make their interception at night.

Because the scouting is done systematically over a wide area by aircraft, the U-boats operate in fleets rather than singly or in pairs, as in the past. Today as many as 6 to 10 submarines will operate together. As a fleet they are deadly, because the number of torpedoes available in a massed attack is great.

In attacking one of the U-boat fleet generally is told off to sink the leading escort ship. The others, arranged so that they can deliver a crisscrossing fire of torpedoes diagonally thru the formation of merchant ships, begin delivering their torpedoes as they see or hear the explosion of hits on the leading ship.

German submarines have four forward-firing torpedo tubes and two aft that fire backward. In an attack a submarine delivers the four forward "fish," turns as quickly as possible and fires the two aft tubes. Then it moves off at full speed to avoid the vengeance of other escorting vessels.

Often such an attack, made at night, can be made from the surface. Submarines maneuver better and are speedier when surfaced and consequently can escape quicker if covered by darkness.

The very grouping of the merchant freighters in a convoy, where they steam slowly and close together, is today an assistance to the combined submarine-airplane attackers. When an attack occurs the convoy breaks up into individual vessels, the skippers scattering, but with a plan to meet again at a predetermined rendezvous at a given time. While scattered they are single ships, subject to further attacks. As many as 11 and 12 ships in a convoy of 35 ships have been sunk by such an attack as described here.

Practically the only weapon against the submarine is the depth bomb, which is dropped more hopefully than accurately. Surface boats listen for a submirne with the Asdic electrical or acoustical detectors, determine its approximate position, and heave over the depth charges.

This method is haphazard at best. Submarine commanders today can stand off from a convoy far enough so that the detectors do not show their presence. As long ago as 1919 there were 22-inch torpedoes (diameter) that would run 10 miles. It is certain that today's German torpedoes are no worse than that. While 10 miles is an extreme range seldom used, the method of attacking a convoy is to fire at the group, not the individual. This allows the submarines to stand off a mile, two, three, or five miles, and still be accurate enough to hit something in a large convoy of merchantmen.

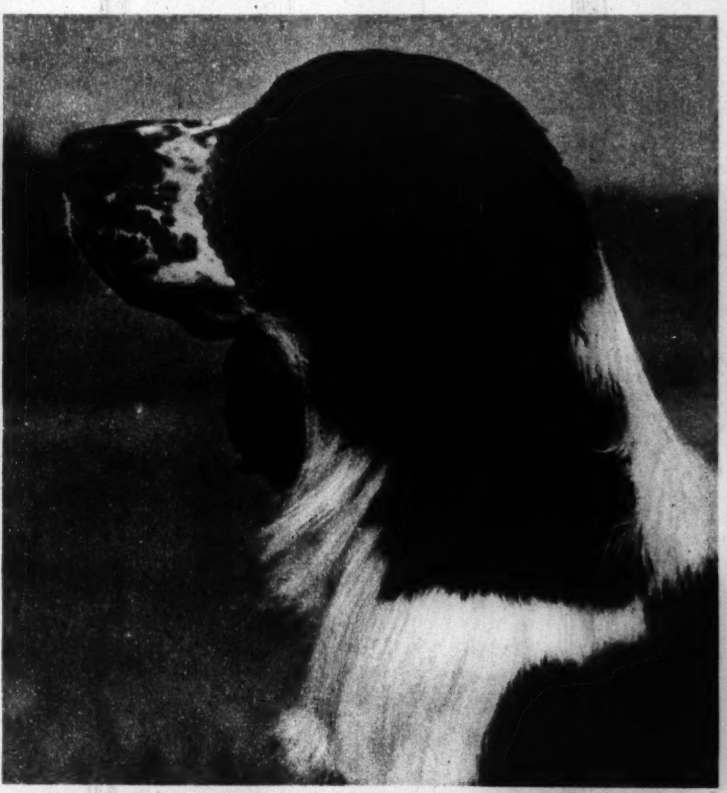
MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS

By BOB BECKER

A rarity in the hunting fields is a pointing Labrador. This specimen, a yellow Labrador, showed a tendency to hesitate when on game, so it was given training to capitalize on this trait. As a result it quickly learned to point and stand steady to shot and flush. The dog, trained by Martin Hogan of Barrington, is owned by Russell Wilcox of Horicon, Wis.



A striking study of a trained springer spaniel. Note the strong muzzle which a spaniel needs to pick up pheasants and other game. This dog is Tops of Davellis, a son of the famous field trial champion Dalshangan Pomme de Terre, owned by David Silberman. Tops will make his debut in field trials this fall.

HUNTERS

DIFFERENT breeds of dogs may rise or fall in public favor as the tastes of American dog owners vary from year to year, but as long as this country has millions of sportsmen who are ardent waterfowl and upland game hunters, the springer spaniel, Labrador retriever, golden retriever, Chesapeake, pointers and setters, hunting cockers, and the American water spaniel have a secure future.

The cocker spaniel, originally bred to hunt woodcock, has forged far ahead as a favored companion dog in the home, but many a springer is going to be seen in the fields during the coming weeks because this husky hunting breed is a great favorite of sportsmen. This is not surprising when you realize that the springer has the typical spaniel disposition—gentle, affectionate, smart, and eager to please—plus a good nose and the zest to move thru cover to find pheasants and rabbits and retrieve in water if necessary.

When we began to bring in springers from Canada and England more than 13 years ago we immediately put them to work here in the middle west. One season of hunting was enough to substantiate the claim that they are all around dogs for rough shooting.

Sagacious, fast, and powerful is the Labrador retriever, which is at home on land or water. This breed has caught the attention of thousands of sportsmen during the last decade.

Altho the springer isn't bred to be an out and out duck dog, it usually goes to water eagerly and thus is able to help a hunter on his waterfowl shooting, unless the going is the type that calls for more power and a protective coat such as you find in the breeds developed especially for water work.

Added to the springer spaniel's other desirable qualities is a pleasing appearance. A springer of good type with well boned legs, strong muzzle, and soundly formed head, plus attractive liver and white or black and white markings, is a very good looking dog. And they make delightful companion dogs, too. Their only limitations (in the field) are those of coat and power. These points usually are brought to the front when the plucky little springer is called upon to face savage cover or bitterly cold water. He never flinches, but obviously he may not be able to carry on as long as a dog of a bigger, stronger breed.

In recent years the Labrador has made the most pronounced strides in popularity among the larger nonpointing breeds which are used for all around land and water work. This has happened despite the fact that it's a pretty big dog, takes up more room in a duck boat, and naturally costs a little more to keep than a dog in the 45 pound class. The way that the Labrador and the golden retriever have continued to do more work alongside the old reliable Chesapeake indicates that the powerful retrievers have attained a very definite position in the sportsman's outdoor program. And the hold of the Labrador on sportsmen is assured by its sagacity, excellent disposition, speed, tremendous power, and a coat that does not pick up burrs.

There is a place for all the rough shooting breeds in the American program of sport, and the fact that each has its enthusiasts makes for more fun and more rivalry in the world of dogs. We have hunted over springer spaniels, cockers, the rare Clumber spaniels, Chesapeakes, Labradors, goldens, pointers, setters, Irish water spaniels, and American water spaniels, and we have helped to stage field trials to demonstrate the ability of most of these breeds.

If a sportsman is trying to make up his mind which to buy as a hunting partner and a companion in the home he should think first about the type of work the dog is going to be called upon to do.

For example, if a sportsman needs lots of canine power and drive in mud, weeds, and heavy marshes (a dog that doesn't tire quickly) it's obvious that a big retriever can do a better job. These 70 pounders have 12 cylinders and four-wheel drive when they get in heavy cover.

But if a hunter is going to spend many of his field days on pheasants and rabbits and grouse with not much difficult waterfowl hunting (especially in very cold weather) he can get an excellent job of dog work done by the springer spaniel. The ideal arrangement for rough shooting in many parts of the country is to use both springers and retrievers.

NEW DEAL'S LITTLE CAESAR

According to evidence in the possession of the Dies committee on un-American activities and inserted in the congressional record of Aug. 8, 1941, Henderson is a member of several communist controled organizations.

The man who decides how much you shall pay for bread and butter, for your next new suit, for your radio, automobile, or living room carpet has had these connections:

He was president of the Washington Friends of Spanish Democracy, upon the executive committee of which were a number of professed communists. He was a sponsor of the Spanish refugee relief campaign, another communist front organization, and a member of the Washington Committee for Democratic Action, the opening meeting of which was addressed by Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, member of the executive committee of the communist party. His radical connections have been testified to on seven different occasions during Dies committee hearings.

Equally significant of Henderson's leftist tendencies are his choices of subordinates to assist him in the task of guiding America's economic destiny.

On June 2, 1941, Henderson employed as an assistant chief of the division of rents in the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply (OPACS), of which Henderson is head, one Tom Tippet at a $5,600 salary.

Tippet, according to evidence put into the record by Chairman Martin Dies, was a member of the Conference of Progressive Labor Action. This organization sets forth its purpose as inspiring the workers "to take control of industry and government, abolish the present capitalistic system, and build a workers' republic and economic system operating for the benefit of the masses and not of the few." The executive secretary of this group was Louis F. Budens, editor of the Daily Worker, official organ of the communist party in the United States.

Another man hired by Henderson as head consultant of OPACS at a $7,500 salary is Robert A. Brady, member of the National Committee of the American League for Peace and Democracy, who in September, 1939, addressed an open letter to the American people and the administration pleading for "closer coöperation with the soviet union."

Brady, Henderson's chief adviser, wrote a book in 1937 entitled "The Spirit and Structure of German Fascism" in which he noted that the "power to enforce price policies is political power." He referred to business as "perhaps the most completely amoral and materialistic single-purpose institution the mind has yet devised" and likened business men to "pirates."

Such is the type of men with whom Henderson has surrounded himself for the task of fixing the price structure of a nation of 130,000,000 people.

An examination of Henderson's activities since he first became the government's "price fixer" on May 29, 1940, gives a hint of the magnitude of the field in which he will exercise the new powers proposed in the pending bill.

Without specific legislative authority, Henderson has confined himself to five types of price control actions. These are:

1. "Requests" made to industry to refrain from raising prices at existing levels or to lower them.
2. "Warnings" that if a price raise is not checked or prices reduced "more drastic action" will be taken.
3. "Informal agreements" with individual producers relating to existing or future prices.
4. "Public announcements" that existing prices are unnecessarily high or that no price rise is in view.
5. "Price schedules" establishing the maximum prices applicable to subsequent sales and deliveries. Altho such schedules depend upon the voluntary coöperation of industry, Henderson has grimly warned that: "The powers of the government to compel the delivery to the government of materials at the established maximum prices, to condemn or requisition properties, to issue priorities, and to use other powers to carry out the defense program will be exerted to the utmost against any person whom we find to be disregarding these ceiling prices."

Under one or another of these five forms of control, Henderson has taken action on the following products:

Bread, sugar, coal, automobiles, canned goods, cocoa, coffee, cotton cloth, cork, farm equipment, furniture, leather, lumber, milk, oil, paper, refrigerators, rents, rubber, silk, wool, pepper, and a wide variety of metals such as aluminum, copper, brass, iron and steel, lead, nickel, quicksilver, and zinc.

Under the price-fixing measure proposed by the President, Henderson could establish prices on any commodity under the sun. "All articles, products and materials" will be subject to his control under the terms of the bill. Excepted only are wages and the rates charged by any common carrier or other public utility.

Rents may be controled under the bill only within "defense areas" to be designated by the President; that is, by Henderson, his appointee. But with most regions affected in one way or another by the arms production program, it is considered likely that Henderson will have control over 90 per cent of rentals in the nation.

Nor may Henderson interfere with the rise of the prices of agricultural commodities until they reach "110 per cent of parity." Parity is the price level of farm products in the 1909-1914 period when farmers enjoyed a comfortable income.

Outside of these restrictions, the cigar chewing price czar will have supreme control over producers and consumers thru his power to establish the amount to be paid for any product. And as Henderson's assistant, Brady, put it so aptly: "The power to enforce price policies is political power."

Henderson's chief recreations are gambling and golf. He's a canny poker player, competent but erratic bridge player, and knows his way in the great American game of craps. He plays for slightly above average stakes. He appears to live within his $12,000 salary, has a home in Arlington, Va., where his wife, Myrlie Hamm Henderson, and his three children, Bebbe, 10; Lyn, 7, and Leon Jr., 2½, reside.

The price dictator's gambling instincts were aroused during the senate committee hearings already referred to. Senator Connally opined that altho Henderson had threatened to fix the price on electrical refrigerators, he would not actually do so.

"I'll lay you a little bet on that," said Henderson with the air of one scenting a sure thing.

"You're going to do it whether congress gives you authority or not?" asked Connally.

"I've got that authority now," said Henderson.

Henderson meant that if the refrigerator industry refused to obey his orders he could crack down upon it indirectly by invoking priorities which would shut off production for nonwarlike purposes. Under the proposed new law he can move more directly, pointing to the section which reads:

"Any person who wilfully violates any provision of this act or any regulation, order or requirement thereunder . . . shall, upon conviction thereof be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both."

According to the official blurb released by the government propaganda service when Henderson was nominated to the securities and exchange commission in April, 1939, the dark complexioned economist is a descendant of Scandinavian ancestors who settled in New Jersey in the last century.

His farmer parents were not well to do and Henderson worked his way thru college. He went first to Pennsylvania, then switched to Swarthmore. According to his own story, he was a newspaper reporter, umpire, referee, factory worker, candy salesman, waiter, and typist during his college days. He played professional basketball, football, and baseball under assumed names.

The United States entered the war after Henderson had been two years at Swarthmore. He enlisted as a private. The value of his statistical mind in the clerical departments of the army was recognized and he emerged as a captain in the ordnance department, accountable for property valued at more than $500,000,000. He did not get to France.

After the war, Henderson finished college. He was a chautauqua lecturer for a while, associate professor of economics at Carnegie institute for two years, then went to work for Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, reclassifying the salaries of state employés. Later he became director of the department of remedial loans of the Russell Sage Foundation in New York. The foundation was after unlicensed loan sharks and was sponsoring a law providing maximum interest of 3½ per cent a month on small loans. Henderson lobbied for this law in almost every state in the Union. His efforts were successful in more than 30 states.

In 1934, he had his run-in with Gen. Johnson of the NRA over some of the proposed codes for industry and thus the doors of the New Deal were opened to him. In 1935 he served as economic adviser to the senate committee on manufactures. In 1936 he was economist for the Democratic national committee. In 1937, his star rising steadily, he became consulting economist to the Works Progress administration under Harry Hopkins. In July, 1938, he was appointed executive secretary of the temporary National Economic committee, better known as the "Monopoly committee."

Henderson gained the attention of President Roosevelt in the spring of 1937. He predicted that the New Deal "recovery" balloon was going to burst within the year. But other government economists didn't agree and Mr. Roosevelt, who likes to hear only words of cheer, turned a deaf ear to Henderson.

When the 1937 depression descended upon the country, fulfilling Henderson's prophecy, the President began to give more heed to his advice and he has been in the inner councils ever since.

A signal demonstration of the Rooseveltian favor was given Sept. 10 when Henderson was given authority to dictate production quantities and allocation of materials for automotive and transportation equipment, paper and pulp, printing and publishing, lumber and building materials, plumbing and heating, electrical products and consumers' goods, industrial machinery and rubber products.

This added authority gave Henderson a complete victory over William S. Knudsen, director general of the Office of Production Management, concerning automobile production. Knudsen wanted a gradual cut in output, Henderson a flat 50 per cent reduction. On Sept. 15 Henderson wielded his new powers for the first time. Automobile production in December will be cut 48.4 per cent below the output of December, 1940.

Thus Henderson's power steadily increases. He has become not only the price commissar but the production dictator of the nation. Tho congress has shown some coolness toward the price-fixing bill, the administration shows no signs of awaiting congressional approval to advance Henderson to the heights. With the President intent upon his foreign policies, Henderson may soon appear as the man supreme in authority over the domestic affairs of the United States.

Know Your Camera

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph. D.

(Managing Editor, Popular Photography Magazine.)

SALONS

THERE is no better way of learning more about photography than to see and analyze good pictures. The best method of doing this is to visit some of the photographic salons where outstanding examples of photography are exhibited in large numbers. There you can study original photographic prints, rather than reproductions, and you can familiarize yourself with many types of photographic technique.

Most amateur photographers have heard about these photographic salons, but many have only a vague idea of what they are. They know the expression "salon print" but don't fully realize just what it means or why it is supposed to denote an unusually good picture.

The so-called salons are exhibitions organized by the larger camera clubs in various parts of the United States and in foreign countries. These clubs announce their plans for holding exhibitions and invite photographers to submit their work. The salons take on the aspect of competitions because the intention of the clubs is to accept only excellent photographs and because in many cases the number of acceptable pictures is limited by the available exhibition space.

It is generally considered an honor to have pictures accepted by some of the internationally known salons which have held exhibitions for many years. But honor is about the only return the photographers receive. To cover the costs of handling they usually have to pay an entry fee, in most cases $1, which permits them to submit four pictures. If any of their pictures is accepted, a sticker is placed on the back of the mount stating this fact. In some cases diplomas are issued to the photographers, but prizes of any kind or trophies are generally shunned.

This naturally brings up the question of why it should be an honor to have prints accepted by salons and to pay for the privilege. The answer is—the reputations of the judges who select the pictures and pass out the honors.

The camera clubs or institutions by whom salons are organized invariably invite several outside judges to select their pictures. These judges are topnotch professional or amateur photographers—or are considered to be such by the salon which invites their services. No matter what system of judging is followed, their personal tastes and opinions determine the results.

A simple closeup of an animal head, taken against a neutral sky background, is a popular salon subject.

The photographic salons have come in for criticism lately. Many photographers feel that the old timers who do the judging are not sufficiently progressive. They are apt to ban certain subjects or even entire types of photography. Others are inclined to look at pictures not as something vital and interesting but as mere expressions of technical skill.

This criticism of salon judges is probably justified in many an instance. Nevertheless it can hardly be disputed that every salon turns up quite a number of excellent photographs which are enjoyed by anybody with a sense for pictures.

If you feel that some of your pictures are good enough to compete against the best current crop, here's how you can go about submitting them to salons. First, you must get a list of salons from a well-informed camera club or a photographic magazine. Second, you must write to the salons for their rules and for entry blanks.

Most salons require that prints be submitted in a standardized form. The prints should be 11x14 inches, mounted on a plain white or light colored board of 16x20 inches. These are the customary dimensions for a "salon print." Some accept either smaller or larger prints.

There's no reason why you should not try your luck with salons if you feel that acceptance of your prints would give you satisfaction. Chances are that you will be "hung" if your pictures are really exceptionally good. And if the first salon does not recognize your genius, try another. With the personal tastes of the judges dominating the selection, it is hard to foretell just what reception your pictures will get.

NOSTRADAMUS

flatly wrote his son that he accomplished his prophecies by the aid of God, but then he added that hidden vaticinations (prophecies) sometimes came to one "by the spirit of fire, by contemplating the remotest stars." He cautioned his son against experimenting with "execrable magic" and warned him to obey the canons of the church.

Later, writing Henry II., he credited his gift of prophecy to "a natural instinct inherited from my ancestors." The latter is probably the most reasonable explanation of all. Perhaps the talk of black magic or divine inspiration was simply showmanship, designed to impress the credulous, or perhaps it offered some psychological benefits Nostradamus required.

In his later prophecies Nostradamus discussed the 20th century, nearly 400 years away. After the event his verses of this period fit the facts remarkably well if a liberal translation is allowed. For example, might not the following verse be taken as a succinct summary of the present war?

By fraud a kingdom and her forces despoiled;
The fleet harassed; passages made by spies.
Two pretended friends rally together,
A hatred a long time asleep shall be awakened.

The defeat of France, an empire as well as a republic, has been charged to fraud and dissension within the country. Spies certainly made passage into France. Two pretended friends might be Italy and Germany. A hatred long asleep could be the old hatred of France for England, now revived.

One verse appears to describe the league of nations, meeting at Lake Leman (ancient name for Geneva), which, says Nostradamus, would spend endless days and years enacting laws, and then, powerless, would condemn its own laws. Another might be applied to Russia:

The easterner shall come from his fort,
Passing the Apennines to see France:
He will pass thru the heavens, waters, and snow
And shall strike down every one with his staff.

Might this be Stalin, ruler of Russia, known as an Asiatic or easterner? Should Stalin defeat Germany, he might advance by air, sea, and land against France, spreading communism thru Europe. What then?

There shall be great efforts by Russia,
A port shall be opened on the ocean;
A kingdom shall be reconstituted on the Isle;
London shall tremble before the sails.

Could that mean that Russia will save England, restoring the kingdom on the isle? Then will London tremble before her communist savior? If so, Nostradamus saves England in the next quatrain:

Following combat and naval war
England shall rise to great height:
The Red adversary will pale with fear,
Taking (to) the great ocean in fright.

How long will the war continue? To 1951, according to the astral signs in one of Nostradamus' verses. Then a new king will be anointed who will reign in peace for a number of years. Democracy or communism, Nostradamus is discomfortingly obscure as to which, will spread its power over the kings of the orient.

After that, according to Nostradamus, the orient will rise again and invade Europe. In about 1988 millions of troops will cross Persia (Iran), and, joined by Mohammedan forces, an oriental leader will attempt to crush out European civilization. There will be fire, pestilence, and bloodshed exceeding anything the world has known.

The war will continue to the 21st century. All signs of Christian culture will be lost and the earth will be barren for 40 years.

A rather dolorous picture, but there is one thing fortunate: we don't have to believe it.

WALK AWAY YOUR Corns

Felt pad (C) helps relieve pain by removing pressure. Medication (D) acts on corn.

In a few days corn is gently loosened so that it may be easily removed.

THINK of it! Now you can actually remove corns including the pain-producing "core" while you walk in comfort!

This simple sensible treatment works easily and gently to help bring you relief without old-fashioned home paring that just affects the top—usually leaves part of the corn still in your toe. Here's how: Felt pad (C) fits over corn, helps relieve pain by lifting off pressure. Blue-Jay medication (D) gently loosens corn so that in a few days it may be easily removed. (Stubborn cases may require more than one application.)

Blue-Jay costs very little—only a few cents to treat each corn —at all drug counters.

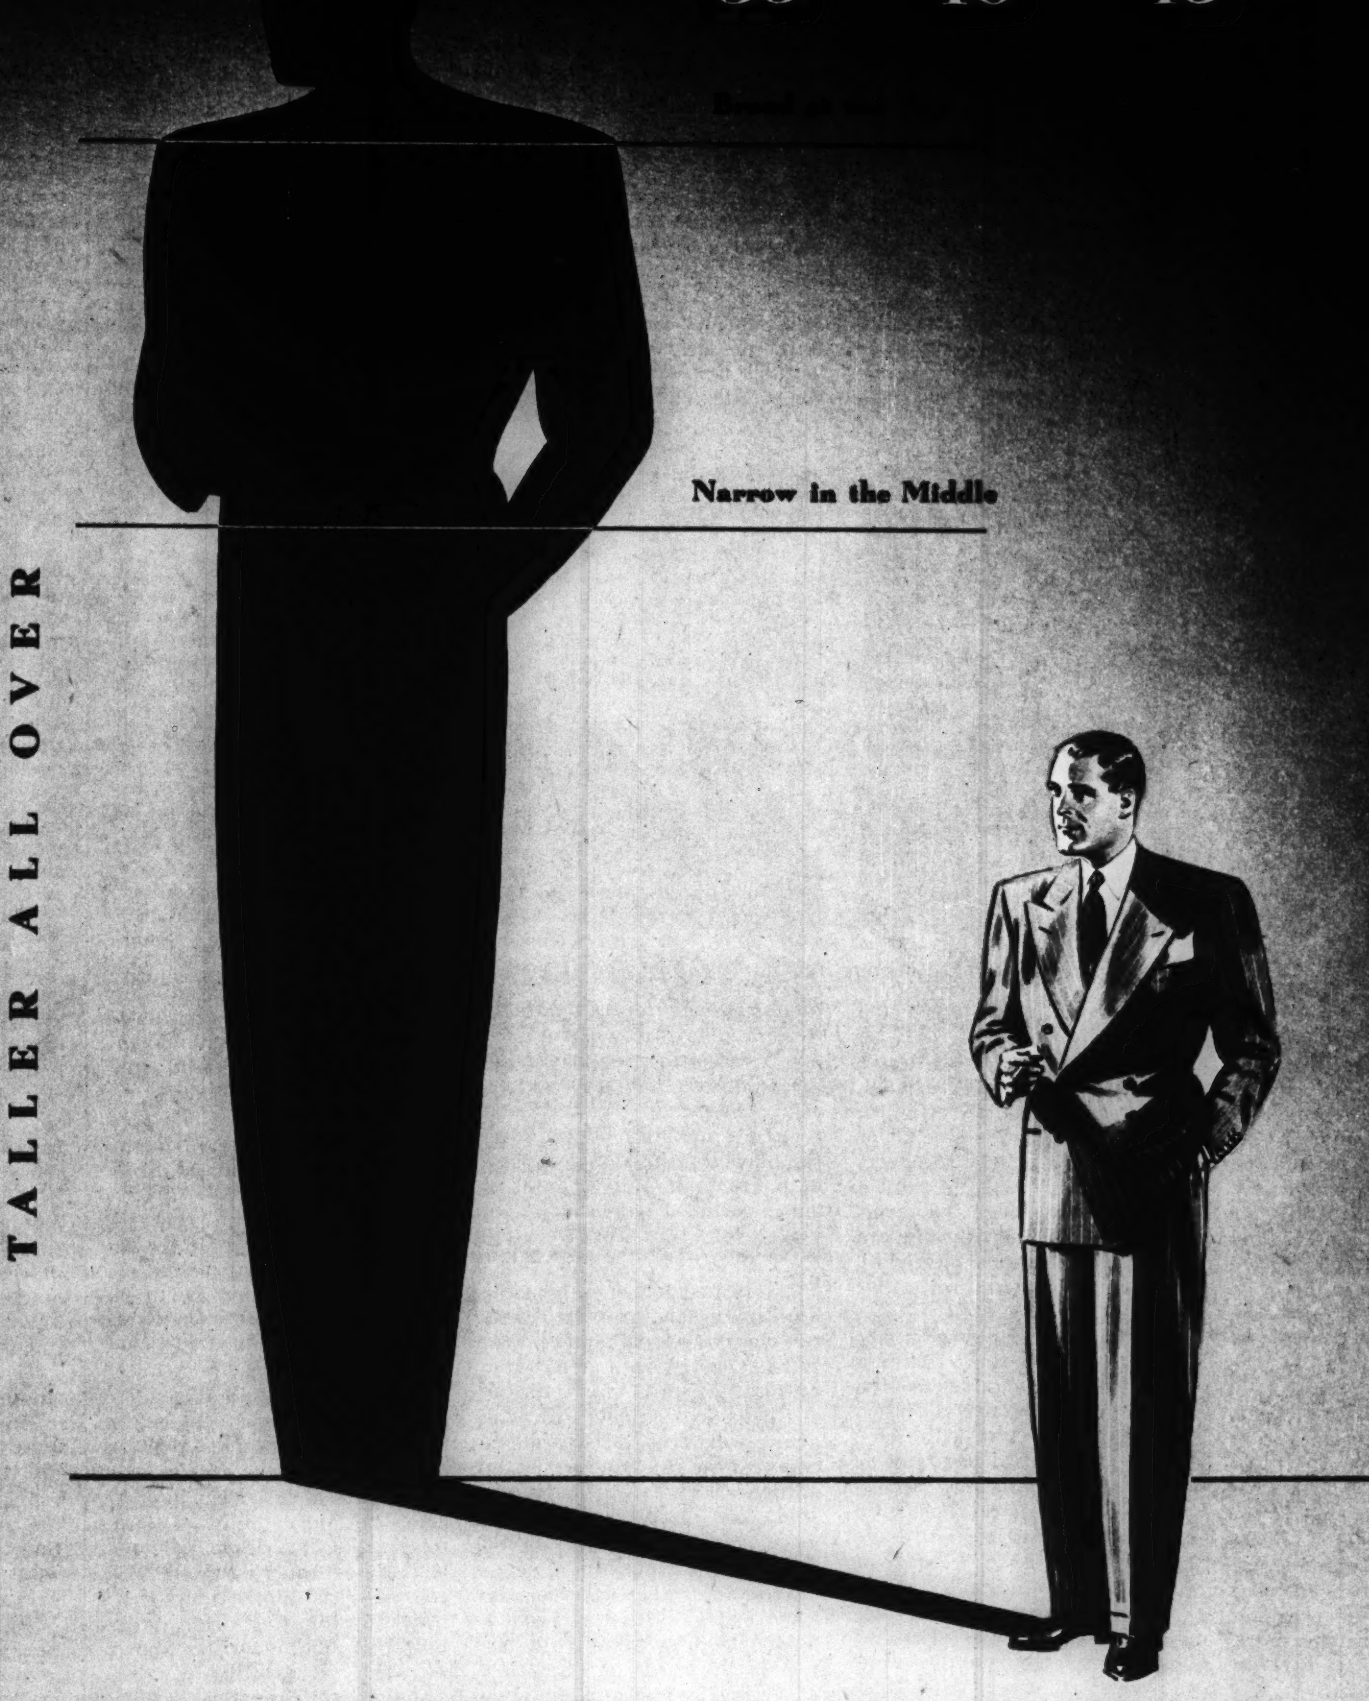
WORSTED-TEX SUITS

$35 $40 $45



THE "TAPERED SILHOUETTE"

Of the Worsted-tex British Lounge Model*

IMPARTS A YOUNGER OUTLINE TO YOUR FIGURE

Notice how this suit makes a man look taller, fuller chested, slimmer hipped and generally younger in appearance. This Tapered Silhouette is the result of new modern clothes designing.

Notice how comfortable it looks. Observe the slightly longer coat, lowered waistline and sweeping lapels creating an illusion of greater height.

The slightly broader shoulders, the folds of fabric at the chest, the width of lapels and the trim line at hips combine to provide an athletic figure.

See how the sleeves and trousers taper down in a V-effect.

Note how low the coat collar sets and how snugly it hugs the neck, showing more shirt collar —a very flattering touch to a man's appearance.

But above all there is nothing extreme about the Worsted-tex British Lounge Model. It is a gentleman's suit of clothes.

All trousers with Waldes Kover-Zip, the invisible slide fastener.

At left: A romantic ball gown of shell pink lace, the fragile pattern of which is outlined with iridescent pink sequins. The long basque top is of the lace, unembroidered, while the soft bands of the shoulders are sequined to match the lower half of the skirt. This gown was designed by Ada Villa of 20 East 50th street, New York City.

Above: Irish green silk brocade, patterned in tiny checks, fashions a gay Nineties bustle costume for formal dinners. Long, fitted sleeves, a high neckline, and buttons covered with the green silk are demure details. The small hat, which has a long veil, also is green. The designer, Nancy Layton of 37 East 58th street, New York City.

At right: A deep sapphire, grosgrain ball gown, using many yards in the wide, billowing skirt which is worn over a crinoline petticoat. Bands of matching blue ostrich feathers trim the skirt, and clouds of blue net fold over the shoulders. The designer is Donald Frist of 458 Blackman street, Clinton, Ind.

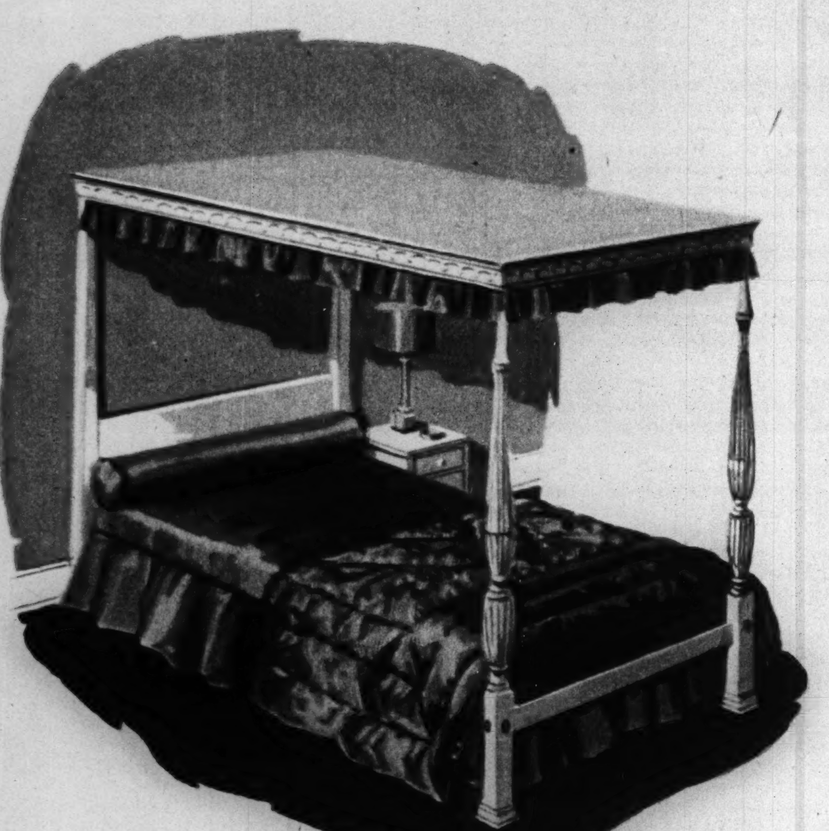
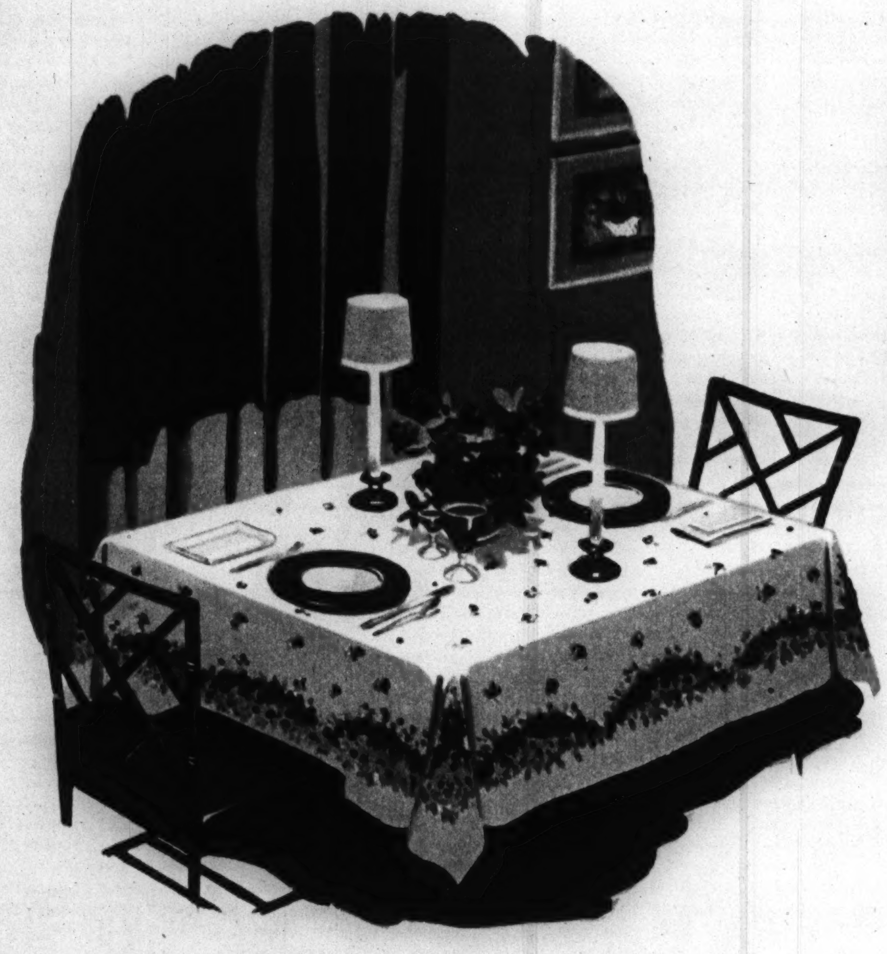
IDEAS



IT'S AN IDEA... to let a luxurious "puff" like this lead a double life! Use it as comforter by night . . . and, during the day, as a decorative accent to your room. The effect can be subtle, dramatic, elegant—as you wish. The cost—very little. Seven colors to choose from. $20

Second Floor, North, State



IT'S AN IDEA... to let your luncheon cloth set the mood of your table! Choose one of rosebuds (or apple blossoms, pussy willows, sweet peas!) and set with a big bowl of red roses and old-fashioned cranberry glass. The effect is enchanting—and individual! The cloth is a grand new one made here in America. Cloth and six napkins, $5.50. Cranberry glass goblets, 75c each, glass plates to match, $1.50 each.

IT'S AN IDEA... to use hummingbird prints on your wall, and repeat them below under a glass-topped desk or chest! These, by Gould, come in exquisite colors; eight different sketches to choose from. Set of any four, framed in natural wood . . . at a beautiful low price. $10 the set. Unframed prints, each, $1.25

ANOTHER IDEA... too good to miss, a white plaster lamp! Perfect singly or in pairs. Wonderful accent for almost any room. $7.95

Prints—Second Floor, South, Wabash

Not at all expensive, either. A complete service for four, 25 pieces, $5.50

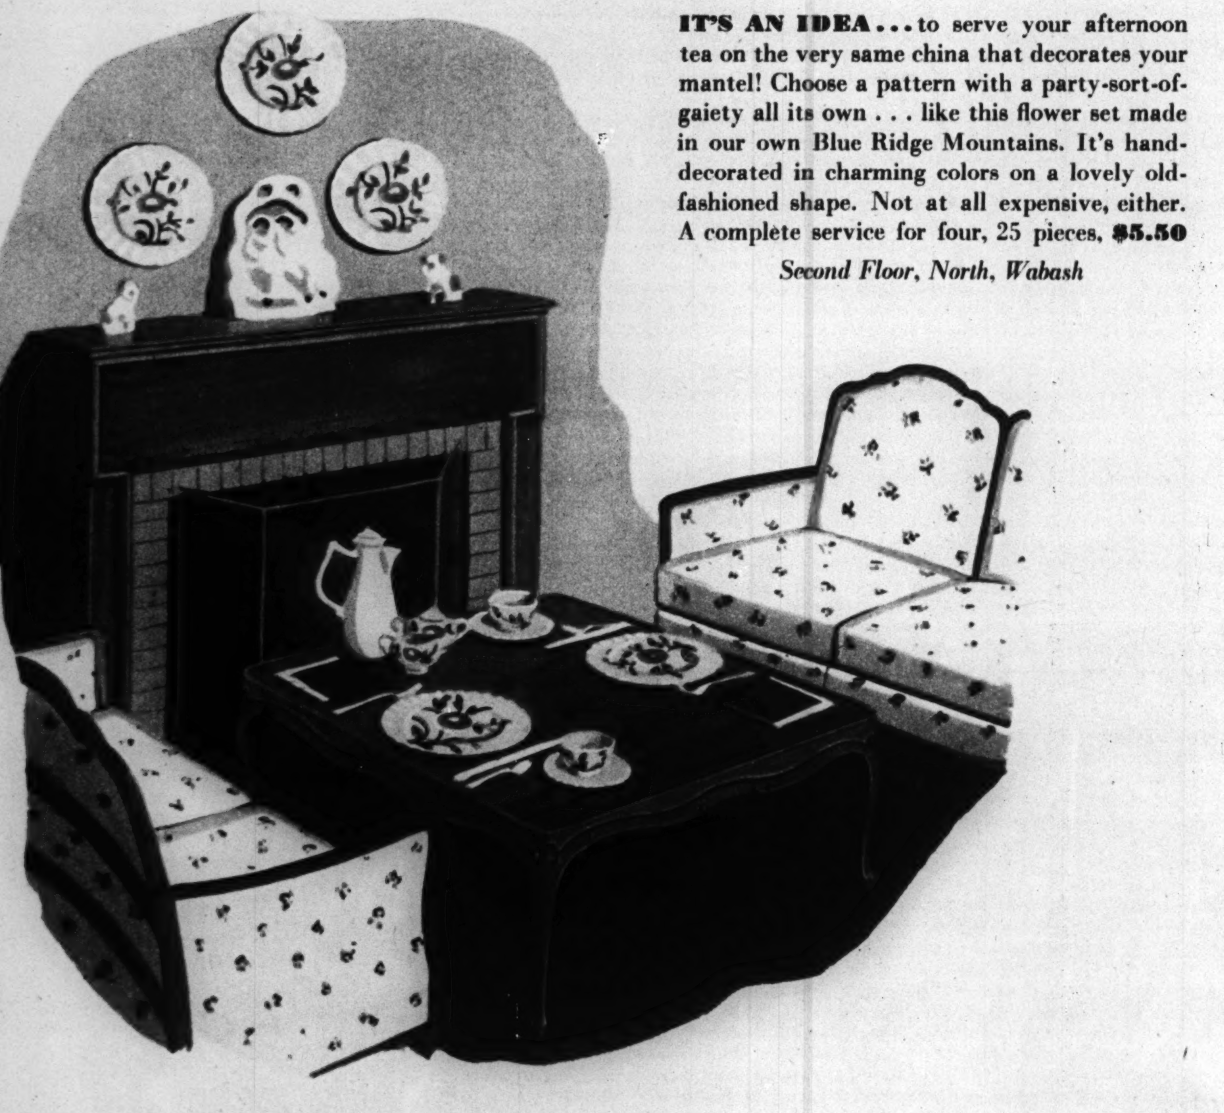
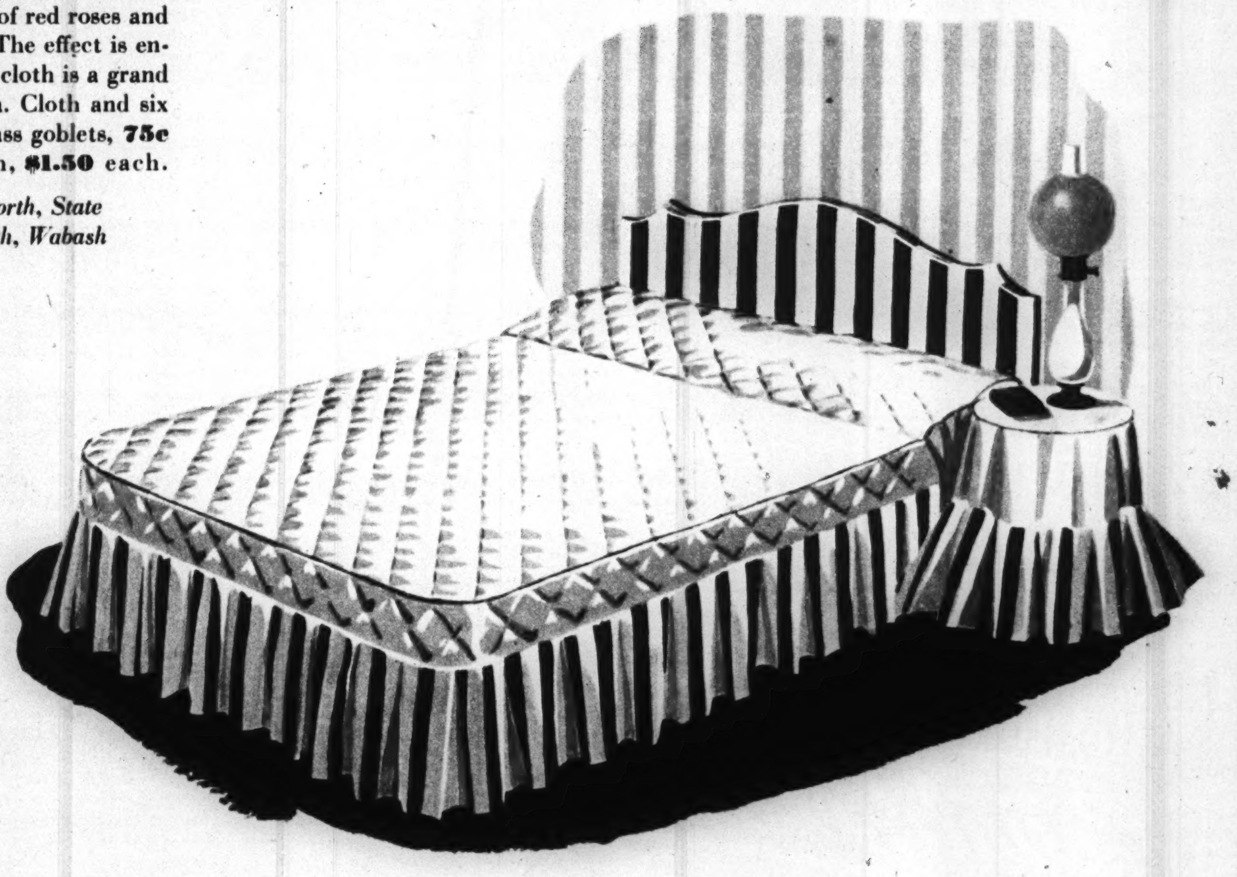
Second Floor, North, Wabash





IT'S AN IDEA... that will please your six-foot-three husband! A wider-than-usual, longer-than-usual headboard bed. Regular pain was my "Social Secretary" ...but not any longer!

BEFORE accepting invitations or making plans, must you always look at the calendar—for fear the time will find you miserable? Is functional menstrual pain your "social secretary", too?

If it is, let Midol take the dread from trying days; redeem them for active living by relieving needless functional pain. Among thousands of women recently interviewed, more reported using Midol for this purpose than all other preparations combined. And 96% of these Midol users said they found Midol effective!

It contains no opiates. One ingredient of Midol is widely prescribed for headache and muscular pain. Another, exclusively in Midol, increases relief by reducing spasmodic pain peculiar to the menstrual period. If you have no organic disorder calling for special medical or surgical treatment, Midol should give you quick comfort. Try it! Large size, only 40¢; small size, 20¢—at all drugstores.

DOMESTIC FIRE EXTINGUISHERS
THE SODA ACID EXTINGUISHER IS THE TYPE FREQUENTLY USED IN PUBLIC BUILDINGS. THE FLUID USED IS SULPHURIC ACID WHICH COMBINES WITH BICARBONATE OF SODA JUST BEFORE USE. FOR THIS REASON THIS TYPE OF EXTINGUISHER MUST BE INVERTED BEFORE IT BECOMES EFFECTIVE, THIS ACTION CAUSING A CHEMICAL COMBINATION AND PRODUCING THE NECESSARY PRESSURE.

BUT YOU'RE WRONG-
YOU COULD SQUEEZE MORE LEMONS INTO IT-

WELL, I'M BACK FROM LUNCH, JERRY. I'LL TAKE OVER NOW!
WELL, DID YOU TURN THAT LITTLE CROOK, DUKE, OVER TO THE PARK COPS?
NO! I HAD A LITTLE TOUGH LUCK, STEVE. HE BROKE AWAY FROM ME AND MADE A GET-AWAY THROUGH THE CRAZY HOUSE.
FREAKS
WHAT DID YOU DO WITH THE POCKETBOOK?
I'M KEEPING THAT. I PUT IT AWAY. WE MAY FIND THE OWNER SOME DAY.
MEANWHILE, OUT IN FRONT —
WELL, TESS, WE DIDN'T HAVE MUCH SUCCESS IN LOCATING YOUR POCKETBOOK OR THE CROOK.
I GUESS IT'S LIKE FINDING THE NEEDLE IN A HAYSTACK.
HEY, LOOK! THE FREAKS! I'VE NEVER BEEN THERE. LET'S GO IN BEFORE WE GO HOME.
FREAKS
THREE!
GOSH! I'VE ALWAYS WANTED TO SEE THAT CALF WITH THE DONKEY'S HEAD.
THE LAST TIME I WAS IN ONE OF THESE PLACES I WAS A KID ABOUT FOURTEEN.
--WHO?
MR. TRACY!
STEVE! WE HEARD YOUR BROADCAST AND WE'RE ALL FOR YOU, STEVE! YOU'RE LOOKING GOOD, MIGHTY GOOD!
I'M A NEW MAN, MR. TRACY, AND I'M MIGHTY HAPPY FOR THE FIRST TIME IN MY LIFE!
YOU'RE LOOKIN' WELL, MISS TRUEHEART. AND YOU, LAD- YOU'RE A SIGHT FOR SORE EYES! CAN I SHAKE HANDS WITH YOU?
SURE, STEVE! HOW ARE YOU?
CAN YOU GET AWAY FOR A FEW MINUTES, STEVE? WE'LL ALL GO SOMEWHERE AND TALK AND HAVE A SODA TOGETHER.
IT WOULD BE A PLEASURE. I'LL TELL THE BOSS.
I'M GOING TO MAKE YOU PROUD OF ME, MR. TRACY. I'LL PROVE TO YOU THAT I'M CHANGED.
AS STEVE REMOVES HIS CAP FROM THE SHELF IT CATCHES ON THE POCKETBOOK, WHICH UNOBSERVED BY HIM DROPS TO THE FLOOR — SURE. GO AHEAD.

EVEN a little perspiration which you may not notice is enough to bring on "B.O." ... but that's a chance you don't have to take. Just use new Zephyr-Fresh Lifebuoy in your daily bath. It's the only popular soap especially made to prevent "B.O." Its creamy, purifying lather is both a protection and a luxury. You'll love it! Zephyr-Fresh Lifebuoy has a deodorizing ingredient found in no other popular soap—germ-removing properties, too. And this modern, better-than-ever Lifebuoy has a new scent that's as fresh and clean as the way you feel after a Lifebuoy bath. Try a big cake of Zephyr-Fresh Lifebuoy your very next bath—for all-over, all-day protection against "B.O."

WIDER ROAD TO AID AIRPORT TRAFFIC

TIME TO ROLL BACK AS EARLE EX-PUPILS MEET

School to Have 'Old Scholars' Night.

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

What a slight-of-hand trickster time is with the years! Why, to Elsie Michelson Shanahan it doesn't seem that it could have been much longer ago than yesterday that she, a teacher fresh out of Normal and scarcely out of her teens, was standing in the makeshift wings of the stage on one of the exciting play nights at the Earle school.

Out on the stage an eighth grade Gabriel, slightly self-conscious in his powdered locks, was dying after an hour and a half of tragic wandering—dying, lingeringly and eloquently, in the arms of a woebegone Evangeline with pretty pink cheeks.

This was her production—Elsie Michelson's. She was responsible. Her face flushed with excitement and daubed with paint, her Gibson girl pompadour askew, her eyes stinging with tears, tears induced partially by emotion but mostly by the fumes of the kerosene lanters in the dressing rooms, she stood in the wings murmuring every word with the actors, ready to whisper a cue if the memories of her stars should falter.

Children Now Pupils.

The children of the Gabriels and the Evangelines are pupils at the Earle school today. And the school setting has changed. Where the truck gardens of the Hollanders stretched away to the western horizon, there is a built up community now. The horse drawn car has vanished from 63d street.

But the boys and girls of those first classes, those who are raising their families in the old neighborhood, those whom the years have scattered, and scores of others who attended in more recent years, are returning to the Earle school at Hermitage avenue and 61st street Wednesday, at the invitation of the Parent-Teacher association, for an "old scholars' night."

Mrs. Shanahan, now a Gage Park High school faculty member, will have a place of honor in the front row. And so will Miss Mary Burke, who came to Earle to teach only a few years after Mrs. Shanahan and has been teaching there ever since. And so will Miss Josephine Padden, whose senority at the school is exceeded only by Miss Burke's.

Will Put on Program.

Miss Shanahan's and Miss Burke's former pupils will put on a program—nothing as ambitious as Longfellow's "Evangeline," but music and informal speeches and the like, so Mrs. Shanahan can sit back and enjoy herself instead of having to worry about prompting.

Catherine Bly Bennett is going to bring her husband, Frank Bennett, to sing duets with her—who, her friends declare, never used to walk thru a doorway if she could climb thru a window, but who has to behave circumspectly now that she has a high reputation in music to live up to.

Nellie Williams, the concert pianist—she used to have long golden curls and a cherub's face, and she played for all the school concerts and assemblies—will weave a medley of yesterday's favorite tunes on the old school piano, and, with Harold Fax directing [he's in real estate now], will play "That Old Gang of Mine" and "School Days" for assembly singing.

John Boyle, class of '15, voice of the 16th ward in the city council chambers, will be the speaker. That is amusing to Miss Burke, who remembers him in school as "an extremely quiet lad, thoughtful, very clever in history, but you could hardly get a 'boo' out of him."

Another of the musicians on the program will be Ray Glover, organist and choirmaster. Even as a schoolboy, Mrs. Shanahan says, Ray was talented. And he had charm. All the girls were "sweet on Ray," she remembers.

Miss Burke hopes someone will induce Dave Williams, who runs a dry goods store a few blocks north on Ashland avenue, to sing on the reunion night. He "had a gorgeous voice."

Will Look for Others.

And these teachers are looking eagerly forward to see scores of others of their favorite former pupils—"Chuck" Palmer, coach of Fenger High school's champion football team; Harry Yates, principal at Harper High school; old Principal Baker's boys, Erwin and David, and his daughter Ruth; Eddie Barrett, former state auditor; Assistant State's Attorney Thomas Buger; "Bert" Jenner, attorney; distinguished Dr. Leo Hart, formerly with the Mayos and now instructing in the medical school of Loyola university, and Dr. Rosemary Despensa, Dr. "Nick" Pavletich, Dr. Roger Provoski; the DeKokers; the Durantes.

Earle Kirkbride, the artist, is another well known alumnus who will be there. His two children are pupils at the Earle school. His wife is program chairman of the PTA and is directing arrangements for Wednesday night. The PTA president, Mrs. Ambrose Lorenz, also was a pupil at Earle.

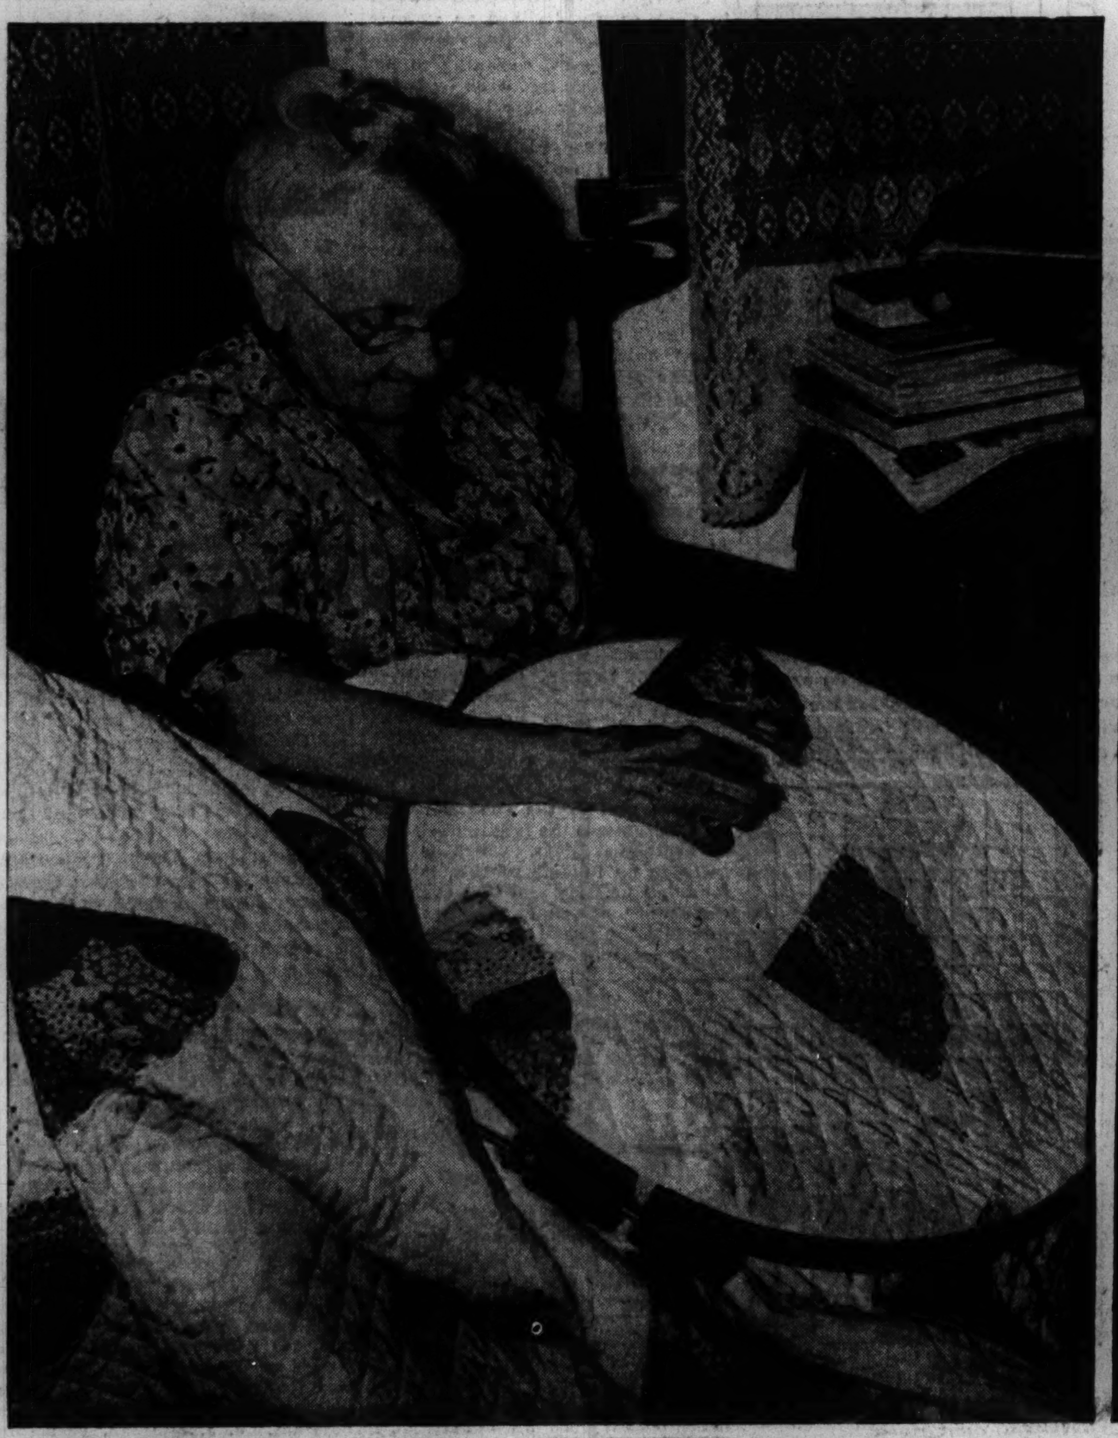
Grandma Shuman Is Ready for Quilt Display of Church Circle



In her day Grandma Shuman has pieced and quilted, she supposes, almost a hundred such coverlets as this, only most of her quilts were made in much more intricate designs than the fan pattern. Some people might think it's time to rest when they get to be 83 years old, but not Grandma Shuman. Not only will she have quilts, but a handsome crocheted tablecloth and a bedspread as well, in a benefit exhibit of handwork which Martha circle is holding next Friday afternoon and evening at the Chicago Lawn Methodist church, 63d place and St. Louis avenue. Grandma Shuman is a native daughter of Chicago. Her articles in the exhibit will be tagged Mrs. Bertha Shuman, but she has been grandma to folks for such a long time that she has almost forgotten the more formal version of her name. At the right is Miss May Blair, who is displaying a quilt which brings exclamations from the connoisseur. Made in the old star pattern, this coverlet was pieced and exquisitely quilted 100 years ago by Mrs. Mary Bookman's grandmother. Mrs. Bookman, a member of the circle, is loaning it for the exhibit.

Chart Guides Daily Training of Our ROTC

For the last three weeks the commands of "Squads left" and other such military jargon have been echoing in 27 Chicago high schools where 10,594 students are undergoing military training as ROTC cadets. The unit is the largest in the nation and the figure represents the greatest voluntary enrollment in the 24 year history of Chicago's ROTC.

Responsibility for training the unit, which is almost the size of a regular army streamlined division, rests with Col. William F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics in the Chicago public schools.

Included in the List.

This includes drill and command, calisthenics, marksmanship, first aid, scouting and patroling, military organization, military history, musketry, and map reading. The cadets spend one period, of 45 minutes duration, each school day in ROTC instruction. Aside from this time many of them spend after school hours of their own accord drilling with their school's crack platoon or practicing with the rifle team.

Each of the school's regular army sergeants, who act as military instructors, follow the chart's outline of study in teaching the cadets. They must devote so many hours during the semester to each of the various phases of instruction. They must forward weekly reports to Col. Morrison's office showing what instruction the cadets have received during the week.

While good outdoor weather prevails, the cadets are receiving four hours a week instruction in drill. The majority of the high schools do not have enough space within the buildings for drilling a hundred or more boys at a time, so when possible they drill on the school grounds.

Hold Officers School.

Altho the military instructors preside over the instruction, the new cadets are taught by the cadet officers who have received their promotions thru competitive examinations. Three or four days a week the military insrtuctors hold officers' school, at which time the instructors outline to the cadet officers the training that is to be emphasized for the following day or week.

As the army uses exercises to put men into the physical shape necessary, so do the cadets attend weekly calisthenics classes. This is the one phase of instruction received thruout the semester.

As the semester progresses the hours of drill will be cut down and in their place the sophomores will get a period of first aid instruction, while the juniors and seniors will be taught the theory of scouting and patroling.

Must Study Textbooks.

Altho much of their military knowledge must be gained from textbooks—such as scouting and patroling, or musketry, which entails maneuvers—the cadets are able to learn marksmanship, first aid, drill, and map reading by actual participation.

Each week or so the cadets will receive instruction in a different phase of military work. They are being given basic military training which will place them far ahead of the raw recruit if and when they are called to duty.

Young Dancers in Church Benefit Friday

Ladies of the chorus, half pint size, will have an important part in an amateur show Friday night at the Mount Vernon school auditorium, Morgan and 105th streets. Here, ready to swing into a tap dance, are (left to right) Jane Bremer, Ruth Olson, Betty Jean Soosh, and Frances and Janet Olson. The night of theatricals is presented by the Men's club of the Washington Heights Methodist church, as a church benefit. Solo singers and instrumentalists, a 20 piece Hawaiian orchestra, an accordion quintet, a magician, and Seeing Eye dog are a few of many attractions listed on the program.

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

William F. Murphy, son of Mrs. Mary J. Murphy, 4604 Union avenue, has been sent from Camp Polk in Louisiana to Fort Knox, Ky., as a member of the cadre for the Fifth Armored division, to be activated Oct. 1. Murphy will have a fourth class specialist rating and will serve as armorer. Among new arrivals at Camp Polk is John J. Skarnulis, son of Mrs. Ursula Skarnulis, 6934 South Campbell avenue. Skarnulis has been assigned to Company A of the 18th ordnance battalion of the Bayou Blitz [Third Armored] division.

From Fort Knox comes word that 13 weeks at the armored force training center there have converted a Blue Island production clerk into an army Hercules. The conscript is Bruce Kent, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kent, 12100 Longwood drive. Bruce has come thru the center's famous obstacle course for the last time. In the "toughening up" process each man must go thru the 580 yard course four times, first without equipment; second, with an empty pack; third, with an empty pack and rifle, and last with a rifle or tommy gun.

Guest Preacher.

The Rev. C. Harmon Johnson of Plainfield, Ill., will be guest preacher at 11 o'clock this morning in the Drexel Park Presbyterian church, 64th street and South Marshfield avenue.

100 Horsemen Join In 2 Day Pleasure Ride

More than 100 horsemen and horsewomen are expected to participate in the two day pleasure ride of the Town and Country Equestrian association. The ride will start from the polo field at Harms and Golf roads in Morton Grove next Saturday.

W. Earle Butler, president, said that preliminary entries indicate the ride, the first of its kind the association has sponsored, will be better attended than any of the 100 mile trail rides which have climaxed the organization's trail activities for each of the last three years. Entries will close tomorrow.

Planned as Pleasure Trip.

"Unlike the 100 mile rides, which were rather severe tests for horse and rider, the two day is a pleasure trip requiring no special preparation," Butler said. "Any rider with ordinary riding skill, and any sound horse accustomed to regular work, can travel the distance of approximately 30 miles and return without difficulty.

The cavalcade will depart at 8:30 a. m. Saturday, following the forest preserve trail northward to Dundee road, thence west to the private trail system of the Riding Club of Barrington Hills. Mounted members of that organization will guide the visitors thru the paths to the ride destination, the Horse farm on Algonquin road four miles southeast of Algonquin.

Evening of Western Fun.

A ranch style dinner and an evening of western entertainment will be held at the farm Saturday. There will be a rodeo, a roaring campfire, and a barn dance in the huge hayloft. Many nonriders will attend the party.

After an outdoor breakfast Sunday morning the return ride will begin. It will double back over the outbound trail, arriving back at the starting point about 6 p. m. Sunday.

The two day is the third and final trail ride on the 1941 association calendar. The first was a breakfast ride held on the west side in June. The second was also a breakfast ride, held in the Palos Hills forest preserve in August.

Fred W. Willis and Frank Maher are in charge of entertainment. William D. Bradley is refreshment chairman. Others assisting in the plans are Dr. Thomas A. Carter, John M. FitzGerald, T. L. J. Klapp, and John Bowers.

New Art Class.

The Blue Island Art association announces that a class has been formed under the direction of Claude Buck, artist. The first meeting was held last Friday night in the Memorial park fieldhouse.

SIX LANE DRIVE TO EXTEND FROM ARCHER TO 63D

Viaduct at Railways Also Planned.

Improvement of Cicero avenue to create a six lane highway from Archer avenue to 63d street will be started this week by the state highway department. Involved in the improvement is a grade separation at the tracks of the Chicago and Western Indiana and Indiana Harbor Belt railroads between 53d and 54th streets, plans for which are being considered by state and city officials.

Cicero avenue, State route 50, is a link in the principal highway carrying Chicago city airport traffic. Most of the traffic coming into the city from the airport moves north in Cicero to Archer, and thence northeastward to the loop.

Reduce Parkway Width.

The state's improvement will add 10 feet of pavement to each of the two 20 foot traffic lanes of Cicero avenue. These concrete drives are now divided by a 30 foot parkway, where formerly street car tracks were bedded. The additional strip of pavement on the east roadway is to be laid on the parkway side, reducing the parkway to a 20 foot width.

When the project is completed the parkway is to be landscaped. All parking in this center area will be prevented by means of a six inch curbing. There will be openings thru the parkway at 55th and 59th streets, at the air mail postoffice entrance south of 59th street, at 60th street, the entrance to the airport parking lot north of 62d street, and at 63d street.

Left turn lanes will be another feature of the improvement. At each important intersection the center parkway will be reduced to 10 feet with a lane cut in for cars, either from the north or south, taking a left turn.

Island to Split Traffic.

With two 30 foot drives and a 20 foot parkway, the improved highway will measure 80 feet across. In a space of 225 feet the road will narrow south of 63d street to merge with the old 40 foot pavement. A channelizing island will be built north of 63d street to divide traffic as it approaches the new roadways.

Work on the road is to progress without interference with traffic.

The total improvement will cover a distance of 7,788 feet, but only 6,580 feet will be paved. No new concrete will be laid at the point of the proposed grade separation with the railroads. A 1,208 foot strip of the old pavement extending from a point north of 55th street to north of 53d street will remain, pending the building of the grade separation.

The entire project has the indorsement of the South Area council of the Chicago Motor club, which was notified last week by the state highway department that the improvement was to be started immediately. The motor club has stressed particularly the importance of the grade separation with the railroads.

More Traffic Expected.

There has been a steady increase in traffic to and from the airport. This volume of traffic is likely to have considerably greater increase, it is pointed out by Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club, now that the new Studebaker aviation engine plant is going up on Archer avenue, just two blocks west of Cicero. It is expected that 4,400 men will be employed at the new works.

When the tracks of the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad were removed from the city airport and placed adjacent to the tracks of the Indiana Harbor Belt Line, a potential hazard was created on Cicero avenue, motorists being obliged to cross the four tracks of the two lines. The preliminary plans for a grade separation call for a viaduct with the six lanes and the parkway of the improved Cicero avenue being carried under the double set of tracks. The cost of this improvement would depend upon the necessary depth of the viaduct and whether or not the railroad tracks would be raised to any appreciable extent.

OPEN HOMEWOOD LECTURE SERIES TOMORROW NIGHT

If public interest proves to be a reliable gauge, most of the population of Homewood, from high school age upward, will be gathered tomorrow night in the village hall where the local Rotary club is presenting the first lecture in a series of four Monday night programs designated as an institute of international understanding.

The speaker tomorrow night is to be Clarence Woodrow Sorensen. Glen Ellyn is his home, but as an explorer and special correspondent, Sorensen has extended his field of adventurous activity around the world.

In the summer of 1940 Sorensen was in Mexico City as foreign correspondent for one of the principal radio systems. Last summer he broadcast from capital cities in South America. His talk in Homewood will be on "Our Carribbean Neighbors."

Dr. Alfred P. Haake will speak on "Our World Neighbors" a week from tomorrow night.

SUBURBAN HIGH ROLLS DECLINE ONLY 1 PER CENT

Less than One-Sixth of Drop in City.

Suburban high school enrollments in Cook county declined an average of only 1.03 per cent this year from last year's figures, according to figures made public last week by Noble J. Puffer, county superintendent of schools. This was less than one-sixth the drop of 6.8 per cent recorded by public high schools in Chicago during the same period.

Eleven of the 21 suburban high schools which are in Puffer's jurisdiction recorded enrollment gains this year. These gains ranged from a tiny fraction to 129.2 per cent. The highest gain was registered by Orland Park Community High, a small school which has just changed from a three year to a four year high school curriculum.

Other School Gains.

The other 10 schools which showed registration gains during the opening week, the period covered by Puffer's comparison, were:

Arlington Heights, Barrington, Leyden Community, Lyons, Maine, New Trier, Niles Center, Northbrook, Orland Park Community, Palatine, and Riverside-Brookfield.

The schools which showed enrollment losses were: Argo, Bloom, Evanston, Lemont, Oak Park-River Forest, Proviso, J. Sterling Morton [Cicero], Thornton Fractional, and Thornton.

Family Size Decreases.

One factor that is responsible for at least part of the suburban high school decline is the falling birth rate of depression days, which is just catching up to high schools, in Puffer's opinion. He said that even the elementary school enrollments indicate that the size of the average family is getting smaller, altho the shrinkage is not as rapid as it was before the business upturn came.

In the table below a comparison is made between opening week enrollment figures for the 21 public high schools in Cook county outside of Chicago.

ROOM SETTINGS STRESSED FOR FURNITURE WEEK

Community Stores Join in Annual Display.

Chicago's neighborhood and suburban stores are joining the loop in the celebration of National Furniture week which opened yesterday and will continue thru Saturday.

This year's exposition will emphasize everything for the home. Electrical appliances, rugs, draperies, and wall coverings will be featured as prominently as chairs, tables, and the larger items which make up the layman's classification of "furniture." The entire plan is built around this season's furniture week slogan, "Happiness Begins at Home."

Show Room Schemes.

One group of neighborhood stores will use displays arranged in "charm" houses. All pieces therein will be correlated not only with each other but with a selection of fabrics and other furniture pieces in the store's stock. A housewife who selects a chair will find drapery material that is correlated in color and pattern suitable to the period of the piece.

This correlation of period, color, and pattern has been worked out by experienced designers. The busy homemaker who makes use of this service saves time and energy.

The three most important furniture styles are modern, 18th century, and Federal American, in the order named. The bleached woods, both mahogany and walnut, and natural light oak are used for the modern styles. Either dark or light mahogany is popular for 18th century, and dark mahogany is used for today's version of Federal American. The Duncan Phyfe pieces are said to epitomize the American Federal period which flourished from Washington's inauguration to 1825.

New Room Settings.

All stores are emphasizing new room settings this year. Special windows are dressed to indicate the 1941-'42 trend in everything from lamps to cake mixers. The season's most popular wood, dark mahogany, is often used with satinwood or boxwood inlay work. Stores have selected special furnishing problems. One is featuring a hall treatment display which includes commodes and mirrors in different styles and periods, and a wide use of statuettes and bric-a-brac.

Chicago Medical Society Auxiliary Unit to Meet

The South Chicago branch of the Women's Auxiliary of the Chicago Medical society will hold its first meeting of the fall season at 1:15 o'clock tomorrow at the home of Mrs. Clyde Landis, 8214 Chappel avenue. J. W. Holloway Jr., director of the bureau of legislation of the American Medical association, will be the speaker. His topic will be "Legislation." Mrs. Oscar Rest will play a group of piano selections.

Mrs. M. C. Lilly Appointed Ashburn Red Cross Head

James B. Forgan, chairman of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross, announces the appointment of Mrs. M. C. Lilly, 8032 South Trumbull avenue, as roll call chairman of the Ashburn Red Cross. She will be assisted by a committee of volunteer workers in conducting the annual campaign for new members when the drive opens in November.

Bacher, W-G-N chief of programs and production, will direct the entire production. The radio adaptation is by Bacher and Malcolm Meacham.

Miss Claire will sing the rôle of Katherine de Vaucelles, a beautiful and high spirited lady of the court. Thomas takes the part of François Villon, genius, thief, poet, and patriot of France.

A double cast headed by Luise Barclay and Bret Morrison as the dramatic stars will portray the speaking rôles.

John Tyson will conduct the program and present the songs and music of the Carter Family, J. E. Mainer's Mountaineers, Patsy Montana, little 6 year old Beverly, and Cowboy Slim Rinehart.

Lum and Abner Start New Series in Chicago

Lum and Abner [Chet Lauk and Norris Goff] started their new series on NBC from Chicago last Monday. The Pine Ridge philosophers who now live in Hollywood have a great deal of affection for Chicago. They did their first network broadcasts from Chicago almost a decade ago. And more than six years ago they became one of the first Mutual network features to be sponsored. They also presented the first program aired from W-G-N's new studio building.

SHARON PEASE TO BE GUEST ON BASIN ST. SHOW ON WEDNESDAY

Sharon Pease, Chicago pianist, teacher and editor, will be featured as guest on the broadcast of the Chamber Music Society of Lower Basin Street at 9 p. m. next Wednesday over WENR and NBC. Pease will endeavor to explain the outstanding characteristics of the style of several boogie woogie exponents. For his solo he will play "Flinging a Whing Ding."

The Rev. George Johnson, head of the department of education of the National Catholic Welfare conference, will be heard in a series of four addresses on "The Practical Aspects of Patriotism," beginning during the Catholic hour at 6 p. m. today over WMAQ. W59C, NEW FM STATION, ADDS NEW FEATURES

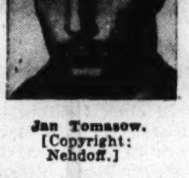
Music Supplemented by Discussion Periods.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

New programs of outstanding music showing off the tonal beauties possible thru frequency modulation have been added to the schedule of W59C, the new FM station of W-G-N, Inc., which was opened a fortnight ago.



Jan Tomasow. [Copyright: Nehdoff.]

W59C, which is on the air from noon to midnight daily, has also added several public service features to supplement the broadcasting of the latest news every hour on the hour.

In addition to frequent concerts by the W-G-N Concert orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, W59C is presenting its own orchestra, conducted by Jan Tomasow, Argentine violinist. The W59C orchestra presents music specially suited to the superiorities of FM from 7:30 to 8 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. They are heard at other times thruout the week—sometimes during the dinner concerts.

Featured As Violinist.

Tomasow came to the attention of Henry Weber, musical director of both stations, last summer during appearances in the Grant Park concert series. Weber liked his work and engaged him for the new station. Tomasow is featured as violinist with the group. Hazel Simms is the pianist; Richard Beidel of the Chicago Symphony orchestra is the 'cellist; Edmund Weingart, second violinist. Preston Sellers, well known organist, presides at the console.

Another new musical feature on W59C is the vocal recital series featuring Kathryn Witwer, soprano, at 4:05 p. m. Wednesdays. She is supported by the FM orchestra.

Other Musical Programs.

The W-G-N Concert orchestra is heard on W59C at 2:30 p. m. Wednesdays and Thursdays; the Dream Ship, a program of soft, relaxing music at 10:30 p. m. nightly.

The Perfectionists' hour, recorded music of the masters, is aired from 9 to 10 nightly except Saturday when it runs from 8 to 9 p. m.

Musical highlight of the week on W59C is the presentation of the Chicago Theater of the Air operettas, sent out over W-G-N and Mutual as well. These are aired from 9:45 p. m. to 11. Next Saturday the "Vagabond King" starring Marion Claire and Thomas Thomas will be the feature presentation.

Many fine recorded programs are presented every day.

Offer Radio Travelog.

W59C broadcasts, besides music and the news, such programs of public interest as the weekly talks by speakers of the Executives' club luncheons at 1:05 each Friday; the Washington comments of Fulton Lewis Jr. at 7 p. m. Mondays thru Fridays, and the American Forum of the Air at 8 p. m. Sundays.

Another new FM feature is "See Chicago," a radio travelog by Robert Doyle, aired weekdays at 1:05 except Fridays. The program presents a calendar of interesting events of the theater and concert halls and presents interesting material about Chicago's history and traditions.

Estelle Barnes, formerly with WAAF as pianist, writer, and program arranger, has been appointed program manager of W59C.

Pixilated Pair

George Burns and Gracie Allen aided by Paul Whiteman and his orchestra will start their new fall comedy series over W-G-N at 9:30 p. m. next Thursday. The show is aired over NBC Tuesdays.

George Burns and Gracie Allen will be back on the air with a new show this fall. They will be heard in Chicago thru W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 p. m. CDST starting next Thursday. They will be heard nationally over NBC, broadcasting twice on Tuesday evenings.

Supporting the comedy team in their new show will be Paul Whiteman's orchestra, Jimmy Cash, singing discovery, and Señor Irving Lee, eccentric guitarist, and Bill Goodwin, announcer.

Gracie will introduce her 25 year old discovery, Jimmy Cash, whom she found working in a Burbank, Cal., grocery. Whiteman, in addition to contributing instrumental novelties to the show, will enter into the fun and will introduce Señor Lee.

Goodwin will appear in comedy stooge rôles which he will create for the series. Goodwin is also heard on two other W-G-N shows, Mutual's "Three Ring Time" with Milton Berle, Charles Laughton, Shirley Ross and Bob Crosby's orchestra, and as announcer for the Jimmy Fidler Hollywood broadcast.

Answer Man's Programs Move to New Periods

Albert Mitchell, the Answer Man, will be heard at a new time starting today, when his W-G-N service feature moves to 7:45 p. m. [CDST]. His Wednesday program is also scheduled at a new time—7:15 p. m. Mitchell answers every question sent to him by his radio audience that is not a quiz question or does not violate professional standards.

JUDY TON GETS HER BIG CHANCE IN 'HAROLD TEEN'

Judy Ton, young Columbus, O., actress, has become a regular member of the "Harold Teen" company on W-G-N. "Harold Teen" is aired at 8:30 p. m. [CDST] Tuesdays.

Judy plagued Chicago radio producers for six weeks before she got her chance. But last week Blair Walliser, producer of "Harold Teen," invited her to play two rôles—a housewife and a colored maid. Then she got sick with laryngitis. She was treated by four doctors and just before rehearsal time her voice came back. By the time she went on the air her voice was in fine form. Walliser invited her to make a curtain speech after the broadcast and she was warmly applauded.

Charles Flynn plays the part of the irrepressible Harold.

HOW TO CHECK RISING PRICES, IS FORUM SUBJECT

What can be done to curb rising commodity prices and rents will be discussed by two economists and a feminine news commentator on the Northwestern University Reviewing Stand on W-G-N and Mutual from 10 to 10:25 a. m. today.

The speakers will be Stewart Y. McCullen, Northwestern university professor of accounting; Harry G. Guthmann, professor of finance at Northwestern, and Mrs. Clifton Utley, executive vice president of the Illinois League of Women Voters and radio commentator.

Cochrane Fight on W-G-N.

A bout between Freddie Cochrane, welterweight title holder, and Lew Jenkins, king of the lightweights, will be broadcast exclusively over W-G-N and Mutual at 10 p. m. tomorrow. Don Dunphy will describe the round-by-round action while Bill Corum will handle the color.

A Young Radio Veteran.

BEVERLY HILLS JUNIORS TO GIVE CHILDREN'S PLAY

Offering Is Based on Cinderella Theme.

One south side theater company always assured a full house and a responsive audience is that of the Beverly Hills Junior Woman's club, which, to fill a community need, began giving plays for children nine years ago in Ridge park fieldhouse.

The stage is set for the 1941-'42 season, which opens Saturday with "Apple of Contentment," a story on the Cinderella theme, starring Mrs. Richard Metcalfe in the rôle of Christine, a patient little slavey who wins the heart of a king.

Mrs. Byron Pereira is to appear as an elfin hillman from whose magic apple seed Christine grows the tree of content that induces a royal romance. Mrs. Donald McFadyen is to play the part of the king and Mrs. George Mason and Mrs. Ivan Haag are to portray the two wicked sisters.

Plan Two Performances.

Because the fieldhouse auditorium no longer is large enough to hold all the boys and girls who want to see the shows, two performances of each play are to be given, the first at 2 o'clock and the second at 4.

Mrs. Roberts Blakeslee directs the children's theater productions. Mrs. Leonard Elias heads the theater committee, and Mrs. Charles E. Faulkner is co-chairman. The production staff includes Mrs. R. B. Ferguson, Mrs. John A. Moilanen, Mrs. McFadyen, Mrs. William E. Smith, Mrs. Paul Betscher, Mrs. George A. Mason, Miss Doris Daly, Mrs. George D. Humphrey and Mrs. Winifred Hooper.

Blue Island Juniors.

Mrs. Glen Charles Finger, heading the junior department of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, will be the special guest of the Blue Island Junior Woman's club at its first meeting Tuesday night in the new headquarters in the Congregational church at 2440 York street.

On an international relations department program, arranged by Miss Mildred Odenthan, colored motion pictures of Nassau and Florida, taken by Mr. and Mrs. Adam Steever, local camera enthusiasts, will be shown and club members will participate in a current events quiz. Miss Patricia Peddicord will sing.

Chicago Lawn Young Women.

A talk on interior decorating by R. Bruce Kopseker will be the highlight of the opening program of the Chicago Lawn Young Woman's club at 8 o'clock tomorrow night at Marquette park fieldhouse, Kedzie avenue and 67th street. Mrs. L. D. Kemp Jr., American home chairman, will be in charge.

Brainerd Juniors.

Wednesday will be opening night for the Brainerd Junior Woman's club at Ridge park fieldhouse. A gift program, presented by the senior organization, will bring Miss Mary E. Courtney in a talk entitled, "How Big Is Your World?" and William Benes, violinist.

Special guests will be Mrs. Walter M. Rennie, third district president; Mrs. William Mason, district president of juniors, and Mrs. Ernest Beler, president of the sponsor club. Miss Edythe Rathje will head the hostess committee. Mrs. Raymond Bohne will preside.

Gresham Juniors.

Miss Dorothy Mezek has called a business meeting of the Gresham Junior Woman's club for 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night at Foster park fieldhouse, 83d and Laflin streets.

Church Wedding

Miss Zillah Norton became the bride of Carlos Max Wheeler recently in the Chicago Lawn Methodist church, which she has attended since childhood. Her attendants were Miss Alvina Pauley and her sister, Mrs. Arthur Knitter. Her brother, Clarence Norton, was in the wedding party. Mrs. Wheeler is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Norton of 3623 West 62d street, and Mr. Wheeler is the son of Mrs. William H. Downes, 5836 Washtenaw avenue.

A parade and celebration will mark the inauguration next Sunday of the new continuous bus service in 103d and 106th streets between Western and Indianapolis avenues. Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], is chairman of the celebration and individuals and organizations from the 9th, 10th, and 19th wards will take part.

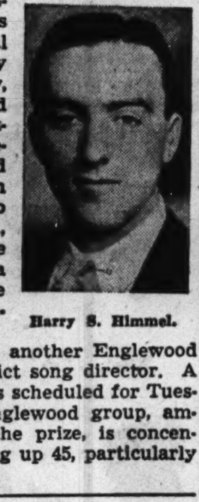
ENGLEWOOD KIWANIS AIMS TO WIN SING AT DISTRICT RALLY

Kiwanis club interest being focused on Springfield, where the Illinois-Eastern Iowa district of Kiwanis International opens a four day convention today, the Englewood group is organizing a large delegation to attend the meeting in compliment to Harry S. Himmel, president of the division and a member of the Englewood organization.



Harry S. Himmel.

Carl Sommers, another Englewood member, is district song director. A singing contest is scheduled for Tuesday, and the Englewood group, ambitious to win the prize, is concentrating on signing up 45, particularly vocal members.

SCOUT CAMPOREE DRAWS 3,000 TO WILLOW SPRINGS

Boys Reveal Skill in Outdoor Craft.

Camp Kiwanis near Willow Springs is a lively Boy Scout capital this week-end, with some 3,000 boys from the seven different communities in the Chicago council's southwest district gathered there for their annual camporee.

Reveille, sounded by the camp trumpeters, will awaken the tent city at 6:30 o'clock this morning and set the troop chefs busy with skillets and ladles preparing an early breakfast. Each troop's campsite is to be in order before the hour for religious services.

The Rev. H. S. MacKenzie, minister at the Morgan Park Congregational church, 112th street and Hoyne avenue, will conduct services for the Scouts of Protestant denominations. Father Walter H. Chelminski, archdiocesan chaplain for Scouting and a director of the Catholic Youth organization, will say mass for the Catholics.

Will Show Campcraft.

Each troop is to have its own campcraft displays and these will be judged by special committees in the forenoon. All types of shelters will be raised—Adirondack lean-tos, Roester tents, new type Dan Beard tents and temporary shelters made of leaves.

The Scouts will demonstrate how to fashion bridges of tree limbs and build different types of outdoor ovens. They will demonstrate their skill in campfire cooking and knot tying, their efficiency in administering first aid, and their prowess in woodcraft and other scouting occupations. Campsites will be judged on the basis of food inspection, grounds and tents, equipment and leadership.

Are Co-Directors.

Co-directors of the camporee are A. H. Haigh, district camp chairman; C. M. Olson, district activities chairman, and K. T. Wood, district commissioner.

Ralph Hell is chief of judges. He is assisted by Casimir Kucharski, Victor Yetterberg, Clarence Patterson, Bert Jurgs, D. S. Wentworth, Leo J. Fregeau, B. A. Scheidt, John Eadon, Royal Schmidt, M. V. Mahlke, George Miller, Fred Schatz, Gerard Votava, Harry Noble, and Edgar Kopp.

CHANGES ERASE LIABILITIES OF DECREPIT HOUSE

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Last week we told the story of the purchase of a lamentably dejected home at 5324 Cumnor road, Downers Grove, and of the plans the new owners made and the hopes they entertained for its renovation. It had taken them quite some time to decide on its purchase. The liabilities of the house were too glaring, the assets too buried beneath a state of semi-dilapidation.

Porch Is Screened.

There were not many structural changes necessary nor was the exterior changed to any extent. It was the interior of the home which had showed the ravages of lack of upkeep over a period of years. A south porch was screened, a new sidewalk laid and there was a general reconditioning of hedges, shrubs, window boxes, and garden plot.

Inside, however, the changes were many.

Now, as you enter the home, the living room and dining room are closely related and beyond the dining room you see the large screened porch. Originally there had been French doors between the living room and dining room and these had cut down the feeling of openness or space. These doors have been removed and a new fireplace wall built.

The dining room sparkles an effective welcome and the large screened porch has been converted into a hospitable spot for lounging and relaxation. One entire wall is banked by a peach tree.

There's a breakfast room, gayly papered in a lively Mexican pattern—red figures on a cream background.

In the kitchen wood cupboards have been built around the base of the sink and over the range, where once was a built-in ironing board, is now an open cupboard for spices.

Has Upstairs Workroom.

Upstairs the four rooms have been put to ingenius use.

There is a master's work room and studio with a deep cedar lined closet built from waste space over the stairs. Since there was no need for a closet in this room, the closet opening was closed off and a new one made in the master bedroom, thus giving this latter room two closets. There is also a playroom for the eight year old daughter of the house, its walls lined with shelves and filled with youthful treasures. The fourth room is the daughter's bedroom now, but later can be made into a study for her.

On School Reunion Program

Catherine Bly Bennett. John Boyle. Nellie Williams.

The old family album yields these pictures of three alumni of the Earle school, 61st street and Hermitage avenue. An old scholars' night reunion will bring them back Tuesday as headliners on the program. Catherine Bly Bennett, who once was the wee miss of the ruffles and wistful expression, will sing. Ald. John Boyle, readily recognized from his graduation picture, will speak. Nellie Williams, who has cut off her long curls, will play the piano.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Oct. 6.

Weather conditions change suddenly at this season and the garden should have all necessary work completed. It is time bulbs were in the ground; tulips may be planted. Replant old beds if they give few flowers. When old bulbs are lifted replant the largest for their flowers but collect the small bulbs until they mature sufficiently to flower.

Due to war conditions and the loss of importations gardeners should take full care of their bulbs. However, American grown bulbs may be had and they are as good as any importation.

Tuesday, Oct. 7.

A well drained, sandy loam, enriched with decayed organic manures is excellent for practically all kinds of bulbs and they should have full sun the greater part of the day. In the colder sections, protect the beds after a heavy freeze with strawy manure, hay, straw, or other material to prevent heaving during early spring thaws and subsequent freezing. This applies to the perennials as well.

Wednesday, Oct. 8.

Plant shrubs, vines, and trees. Vines add much to the general effect. Plant along the porch and to screen buildings. They may be used along the fences, but in all cases they must be properly tended. The Dutchman's pipe is excellent where a heavy, dense growth is desired. It does well in sun or partial shade.

Thursday, Oct. 9.

Most fruit trees can be planted in the fall altho stone fruit tree planting is best done in the spring. Dwarf fruit trees are much to be preferred on the small yard. Dwarf trees are grafted on a slow growing stock and will grow no more than about 12 feet high and about the same distance wide.

Fruit trees grafted with at least five varieties add a fantastic touch to the growth. The espalier form of fruit trees is fast attracting attention; they are trained in fan shape, with the result that they do well grown against the side of the garage or house. Give them good soil.

Friday, Oct. 10.

Many perennials can yet be transplanted, but not when the ground is frozen. Late flowering kinds, such as the hardy chrysanthemums, should not be moved until spring unless well protected, because they simply lie in the ground without adequate rooting.

If necessary, the entire border may be revamped. Simply dig up all the plants, unless certain ones, like the peonies, are permanent and dislike frequent moving, and heel them in in a section of the garden and then fertilize and dig the border after which replanting can be done. Do not overplant.

Saturday, Oct. 11.

Give evergreens, rhododendrons, and other broad-leaved plants a thoro watering before winter for they transpire moisture even tho they appear to be resting. Rains usually will supply sufficient moisture to perennials and other plants.

It is a fine time to visit displays of hardy chrysanthemum and note the kinds that appeal. These plants may be obtained in large variety, but only those that flower early and not later than Oct. 10 should be used or frost may cut them down.

What's in your Powder Box...

Certain shades of powder can be so unflattering! Be sure there's no traitor in your powder box—to accent little lines, to make you look older. Find your LUCKY SHADE!

By Lady Esther

Ask any woman why she uses face powder—and she'll say to improve her appearance—to give her skin a nice soft tone, a youthful texture.

Imagine how shocked she'd be if you told her the powder she puts on with such confidence each morning is a traitor! Yes, a sly traitor that lives in her powder box—undoing all her efforts to look lovely—making her look older, less attractive!

What is your right shade—your lucky shade? You can't tell just by looking at the color in the box. No, you must try the different shades—really see them on your own skin.

So let me send you the nine new shades of Lady Esther Face Powder. Try each one. Your mirror will tell you which makes you look your youngest, your most glamorous.

You'll love the texture of my powder. It's made by my Twin-Hurricane method, which whirls and buffs it to a much softer, smoother texture than any ordinary face powder. That's why it clings so long—4 hours or more!

Try All 9 Shades FREE

Find your most flattering shade of Lady Esther Face Powder—without guesswork and without cost! Send for the 9 fascinating new shades—and try them all. You'll know your lucky shade; it makes you look younger, lovelier! Mail this coupon now, before you forget.

136 PARKS TO OPEN FALL SEASON

SOUTH END WILL WELCOME CROSS TOWN BUS ROUTE

Celebrate Opening Next Sunday.

BY PAUL HEALY.

A parade and celebration will mark the inauguration next Sunday of the new continuous bus service in 103d and 106th streets between Western and Indianapolis avenues. Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], is chairman of the celebration and individuals and organizations from the 9th, 10th, and 19th wards will take part.

While the first buses will run over the new 8½ mile route during the celebration next Sunday, scheduled service will not start until the following day. Then for the first time the residents of Rosemoor, Roseland, Fernwood, Washington Heights, and Beverly Hills will have direct transportation to the industrial areas of Pullman, Irondale, South Chicago, Whiting, Indiana Harbor, and Hammond.

Route of New Buses.

The new line will run from Western avenue along 103d street to Torrence avenue, south in Torrence to 106th street, thence eastward to the Illinois-Indiana state line. It will be the city's southernmost cross-town transportation service. It will be operated by the Chicago Surface lines.

"Two south side improvements have made this new bus line possible," Ald. Lindell said. "One is the million dollar Nickel Plate railroad viaduct at Jeffery avenue, finished four years ago. The other is the new 103d street pavement from Cottage Grove avenue to Torrence avenue.

"The bus line will hasten the reconstruction and paving of 103d street between Cottage Grove and Vincennes avenues, for which the city council has appropriated $275,000. The line will provide a badly needed coordinating link between many south siders' homes and their places of work. It should play a big part in stimulating industrial, business, and residential development."

Mayor Kelly to Speak.

Mayor Kelly will be the principal speaker following the parades, which will start at opposite ends of the new line at 2 p. m., meeting at the reviewing stand at 103d street and Rhodes avenue an hour later. The mayor will clip the ribbon at that point.

Other speakers will be Ald. John J. Duffy [19th]; Charles W. Chase, president of the Chicago Surface lines, and John D. Biggs, chairman of the Illinois Commerce commission.

Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] will be master of ceremonies. The speakers will be presented by Ald. Lindell.

Two Parade Committees.

Thomas Burke, Ralph DeCook, and Frank C. Van Etten are members of the western parade committee, and Stewart Watts, Herbert Peters, and John L. Kelly make up the eastern committee.

The arrangements committee is composed of three ward superintendents, Edwin Watson [9th], William Hoger [10th] and Michael O'Malley [19th].

Twenty-two civic and service organizations will be represented officially in the celebration. The representatives are:

Henry Elliott, president Rosemoor Community association.

William J. Hubrich, president Bellevue Civic association.

Children Will Be Models in South Shore Service League Style Show

Children under 5 years old are expected to steal the spotlight at the South Shore Service league's benefit card party in the South Shore Country club Wednesday, Oct. 15. What the well dressed young couple wear at play will be illustrated by 3 year old Mary Margaret Burner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Burner, 122 East 70th street, and her 4 year old escort, Daniel Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wynn Smith, 6748 Crandon avenue. Chart Guides Daily Training of Our ROTC

For the last three weeks the commands of "Squads left" and other such military jargon has been echoing in 27 Chicago high schools where 10,594 students are undergoing military training as ROTC cadets. The unit is the largest in the nation and the figure represents the greatest voluntary enrollment in the 24 year history of Chicago's ROTC.

Responsibility for training the unit, which is almost the size of a regular army streamlined division, rests with Col. William F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics in the Chicago public schools.

Included in the List.

This includes drill and command, calisthenics, marksmanship, first aid, scouting and patroling, military organization, military history, musketry, and map reading. The cadets spend one period, of 45 minutes duration, each school day in ROTC instruction. Aside from this time many of them spend after school hours of their own accord drilling with their school's crack platoon or practicing with the rifle team.

Each of the school's regular army sergeants, who act as military instructors, follow the chart's outline of study in teaching the cadets. They must devote so many hours during the semester to each of the various phases of instruction. They must forward weekly reports to Col. Morrison's office showing what instruction the cadets have received during the week.

While good outdoor weather prevails, the cadets are receiving four hours a week instruction in drill. The majority of the high schools do not have enough space within the buildings for drilling a hundred or more boys at a time, so when possible they drill on the school grounds.

Hold Officers School.

Altho the military instructors preside over the instruction, the new cadets are taught by the cadet officers who have received their promotions thru competitive examinations. Three or four days a week the military insrtuctors hold officers' school, at which time the instructors outline to the cadet officers the training that is to be emphasized for the following day or week.

As the army uses exercises to put men into the physical shape necessary, so do the cadets attend weekly calisthenics classes. This is the one phase of instruction received thruout the semester.

As the semester progresses the hours of drill will be cut down and in their place the sophomores will get a period of first aid instruction, while the juniors and seniors will be taught the theory of scouting and patroling.

Must Study Textbooks.

Altho much of their military knowledge must be gained from textbooks—such as scouting and patroling, or musketry, which entails maneuvers—the cadets are able to learn marksmanship, first aid, drill, and map reading by actual participation.

Each week or so the cadets will receive instruction in a different phase of military work. They are being given basic military training which will place them far ahead of the raw recruit if and when they are called to duty.

Figures released by the war department revealed that at least half of the 14,300 reserve officers who have been called to active duty are ROTC products. Tho the cadets do not receive commissions for completion of high school ROTC work, their training covers much the same ground as the first two years in senior divisions, or university units, which awards commissions as second lieutenants.

BUSINESS MEN AND EMPLOYES JOIN IN PARTY

Three hundred fifty employés and business men in Woodlawn are expected to attend the "Boost Woodlawn" party and employés' rally sponsored by the Woodlawn Business Men's association tomorrow evening at the Hayes hotel. There will be a buffet supper served at 7 o'clock, four acts of professional entertainment, and dancing until midnight.

Arranging the affair are Milton L. Frank, 1327 East 63d street, chairman; James M. Earle, 1004 East 63d street; Allen L. Osherman, 1153 East 63d street; Ralph Hickson, 1168 East 63d street; William Manchester, 6345 University avenue, and Albert H. Chapman, 841 East 63d street.

The party is being held to acquaint employés of Woodlawn stores with one another and to "sell" Woodlawn to its business people. The committees have promised there will be no formal speeches.

NORTHLAND CLUB PLANS TO OFFER FIRST FESTIVAL

The Northland club will hold its first festival and dance next Saturday evening at Link's hall, 3435 Sheffield avenue, according to the president, J. E. Kolinen.

The organization membership is comprised of former residents of Michigan, Minnesota, and Wisconsin. The club was formed, according to Mr. Kolinen, for the purpose of making the lives of people from these three states more enjoyable in Chicago as well as to foster the spirit of coöperation between Chicago and the northland.

The club is in its second year and meets at 9 o'clock the third Wednesday night of each month at Viking hall, 935 School street.

Benefit Card Party.

100 Horsemen Join In 2 Day Pleasure Ride

More than 100 horsemen and horsewomen are expected to participate in the two day pleasure ride of the Town and Country Equestrian association. The ride will start from the polo field at Harms and Golf roads in Morton Grove next Saturday.

W. Earle Butler, president, said that preliminary entries indicate the ride, the first of its kind the association has sponsored, will be better attended than any of the 100 mile trail rides which have climaxed the organization's trail activities for each of the last three years. Entries will close tomorrow.

Planned as Pleasure Trip.

"Unlike the 100 mile rides, which were rather severe tests for horse and rider, the two day is a pleasure trip requiring no special preparation," Butler said. "Any rider with ordinary riding skill, and any sound horse accustomed to regular work, can travel the distance of approximately 30 miles and return without difficulty.

The cavalcade will depart at 8:30 a. m. Saturday, following the forest preserve trail northward to Dundee road, thence west to the private trail system of the Riding Club of Barrington Hills. Mounted members of that organization will guide the visitors thru the paths to the ride destination, the Horse farm on Algonquin road four miles southeast of Algonquin.

Evening of Western Fun.

A ranch style dinner and an evening of western entertainment will be held at the farm Saturday. There will be a rodeo, a roaring campfire, and a barn dance in the huge hayloft. Many nonriders will attend the party.

After an outdoor breakfast Sunday morning the return ride will begin. It will double back over the outbound trail, arriving back at the starting point about 6 p. m. Sunday.

The two day is the third and final trail ride on the 1941 association calendar. The first was a breakfast ride held on the west side in June. The second was also a breakfast ride, held in the Palos Hills forest preserve in August.

Fred W. Willis and Frank Maher are in charge of entertainment. William D. Bradley is refreshment chairman. Others assisting in the plans are Dr. Thomas A. Carter, John M. FitzGerald, T. L. J. Klapp, and John Bowers.

Mrs. Neil Booth, president and one of the founders of the organization, reports that the club has been almost 100 per cent successful in what it set out to do last spring—stimulate interest in football at Bowen and make it safe for the boys.

Among the things the club has done so far are [1] provide insurance for all boys on the squad; [2] retain a doctor for regular examinations and for attendance at all games, and [3] purchase sideline coats for the squad. Now the mothers are planning to arrange a banquet for the team and add more members to their group.

PAVING OF 106TH TO STATE LINE SOON TO BEGIN

Means Completion of Another Auto Link.

The county highway department will begin paving 106th street between Ewing avenue and the state line within 30 days, it was announced last week. This will mean the completion of another traffic link connecting South Chicago, Roseland, and Beverly Hills. The paving of 106th between Torrence and Ewing avenues, begun a few months ago, is now 75 per cent complete.

The section from Torrence to Buffalo avenue is new paving and from Buffalo to Ewing the center strip formerly used for street car tracks has been filled in. This part of the project cost approximately $140,000.

Pay from Fuel Tax.

Entirely new paving is on the program from Ewing to the state line at a cost of $75,000. The money will come from the county's share of the motor fuel tax. The street will be 50 feet wide with the exception of a short piece in the vicinity of Avenue H which will be 51 feet in width.

The improvement has long been sought by the South Area council of the Chicago Motor club as part of a five million dollar southeast gateway plan. Other projects in the council's plan which have been completed are the repaving of Torrence avenue from 95th to 130th streets, the 130th street bridge over multiple tracks, repaving of 100th street east of Torrence, the opening of Illiana drive from Indianapolis boulevard to 83d street, paving of Avenue L from 100th to 106th streets, repaving of Stony Island avenue between 79th and 95th streets, and installation of street lights on 100th street south of Jeffery avenue.

Provides New Route.

When 106th street is completed it will not only provide a new route from Indianapolis boulevard west to Roseland, Beverly Hills, and sections of South Chicago, but will give a connection to Torrence and Stony Island avenues and relief from Illiana drive.

The new thorofare also will result in improved bus facilities for the south side. Three bus lines will be replaced by one continuous line which will operate from 103d street and Western avenue to 106th street and the state line. The route will be over 103d to Torrence to 106th thru to Indianapolis boulevard.

This will replace the 103d street gas bus line which now operates from Western to Vincennes, the 103d street surface line which operates from Vincennes to Cottage Grove avenue and the old 106th street car line, already replaced by temporary bus service.

Route of New Crosstown Bus Line

The heavy broken line shows the route of the new Chicago Surface lines bus service which will go into operation on Oct. 13 after a big intercommunity celebration next Sunday. This will be the only continuous crosstown transportation route south of 87th street.

ROOM SETTINGS STRESSED FOR FURNITURE WEEK

Community Stores Join in Annual Display.

Chicago's neighborhood and suburban stores are joining the loop in the celebration of National Furniture week which opened yesterday and will continue thru Saturday.

This year's exposition will emphasize everything for the home. Electrical appliances, rugs, draperies, and wall coverings will be featured as prominently as chairs, tables, and the larger items which make up the layman's classification of "furniture." The entire plan is built around this season's furniture week slogan, "Happiness Begins at Home."

Show Room Schemes.

One group of neighborhood stores will use displays arranged in "charm" houses. All pieces therein will be correlated not only with each other but with a selection of fabrics and other furniture pieces in the store's stock. A housewife who selects a chair will find drapery material that is correlated in color and pattern suitable to the period of the piece.

This correlation of period, color, and pattern has been worked out by experienced designers. The busy homemaker who makes use of this service saves time and energy.

The three most important furniture styles are modern, 18th century, and Federal American, in the order named. The bleached woods, both mahogany and walnut, and natural light oak are used for the modern styles. Either dark or light mahogany is popular for 18th century, and dark mahogany is used for today's version of Federal American. The Duncan Phyfe pieces are said to epitomize the American Federal period which flourished from Washington's inauguration to 1825.

New Room Settings.

All stores are emphasizing new room settings this year. Special windows are dressed to indicate the 1941-'42 trend in everything from lamps to cake mixers. The season's most popular wood, dark mahogany, is often used with satinwood or boxwood inlay work. Stores have selected special furnishing problems. One is featuring a hall treatment display which includes commodes and mirrors in different styles and periods, and a wide use of statuettes and bric-a-brac.

Kappa Alpha Theta Holds Dinner Meeting on Oct. 13

A Personal Message . . . after 30 Years

Due to the lack of materials, defense priorities, and the inability to furnish the same services at the usual low prices, we feel it expedient to close our 63rd street Kennedy Beauty Shop.

I would rather use the materials which we have purchased ahead and maintain the same superlative quality work in our other two shops.

For the convenience of our many friends and patrons, we are not dismissing any of our operators. You will find your favorite operator now working at one of our other shops. (Mr. Paul, Miss Watson, Rosemary, June, and Irene at 71st street shop. Miss Wilbur, Alice, Mabel, Mary and Bonnie at 53rd street shop.)

After the present emergency, I hope to return to Woodlawn.

Yours sincerely,
Mrs. Kennedy

W59C, NEW FM STATION, ADDS NEW FEATURES

Music Supplemented by Discussion Periods.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

New programs of outstanding music showing off the tonal beauties possible thru frequency modulation have been added to the schedule of W59C, the new FM station of W-G-N, Inc., which was opened a fortnight ago.

Jan Tomasow. [Copyright: Nehdoff.]

W59C, which is on the air from noon to midnight daily, has also added several public service features to supplement the broadcasting of the latest news every hour on the hour.

In addition to frequent concerts by the W-G-N Concert orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, W59C is presenting its own orchestra, conducted by Jan Tomasow, Argentine violinist. The W59C orchestra presents music specially suited to the superiorities of FM from 7:30 to 8 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. They are heard at other times thruout the week—sometimes during the dinner concerts.

Featured As Violinist.

Tomasow came to the attention of Henry Weber, musical director of both stations, last summer during appearances in the Grant Park concert series. Weber liked his work and engaged him for the new station. Tomasow is featured as violinist with the group. Hazel Simms is the pianist; Richard Beidel of the Chicago Symphony orchestra is the 'cellist; Edmund Weingart, second violinist. Preston Sellers, well known organist, presides at the console.

Another new musical feature on W59C is the vocal recital series featuring Kathryn Witwer, soprano, at 4:05 p. m. Wednesdays. She is supported by the FM orchestra.

Other Musical Programs.

The W-G-N Concert orchestra is heard on W59C at 2:30 p. m. Wednesdays and Thursdays; the Dream Ship, a program of soft, relaxing music at 10:30 p. m. nightly.

The Perfectionists' hour, recorded music of the masters, is aired from 9 to 10 nightly except Saturday when it runs from 8 to 9 p. m.

Musical highlight of the week on W59C is the presentation of the Chicago Theater of the Air operettas, sent out over W-G-N and Mutual as well. These are aired from 9:45 p. m. to 11. Next Saturday the "Vagabond King" starring Marion Claire and Thomas Thomas will be the feature presentation.

Many fine recorded programs are presented every day.

Offer Radio Travelog.

W59C broadcasts, besides music and the news, such programs of public interest as the weekly talks by speakers of the Executives' club luncheons at 1:05 each Friday; the Washington comments of Fulton Lewis Jr. at 7 p. m. Mondays thru Fridays, and the American Forum of the Air at 8 p. m. Sundays.

Another new FM feature is "See Chicago," a radio travelog by Robert Doyle, aired weekdays at 1:05 except Fridays. The program presents a calendar of interesting events of the theater and concert halls and presents interesting material about Chicago's history and traditions.

Estelle Barnes, formerly with WAAF as pianist, writer, and program arranger, has been appointed program manager of W59C.

Cochrane Fight on W-G-N.

A bout between Freddie Cochrane, welterweight title holder, and Lew Jenkins, king of the lightweights, will be broadcast exclusively over W-G-N and Mutual at 10 p. m. tomorrow. Don Dunphy will describe the round-by-round action while Bill Corum will handle the color.

SHARON PEASE TO BE GUEST ON BASIN ST. SHOW ON WEDNESDAY

Sharon Pease, Chicago pianist, teacher and editor, will be featured as guest on the broadcast of the Chamber Music Society of Lower Basin Street at 9 p. m. next Wednesday over WENR and NBC. Pease will endeavor to explain the outstanding characteristics of the style of several boogie woogie exponents. For his solo he he will play "Flinging a Whing Ding."

Miss Claire will sing the rôle of Katherine de Vaucelles, a beautiful and high spirited lady of the court. Thomas takes the part of François Villon, genius, thief, poet, and patriot of France.

George Burns and Gracie Allen aided by Paul Whiteman and his orchestra will start their new fall comedy series over W-G-N at 9:30 p. m. next Thursday. The show is aired over NBC Tuesdays.

George Burns and Gracie Allen will be back on the air with a new show this fall. They will be heard in Chicago thru W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 p. m. CDST starting next Thursday. They will be heard nationally over NBC, broadcasting twice on Tuesday evenings.

Supporting the comedy team in their new show will be Paul Whiteman's orchestra, Jimmy Cash, singing discovery, and Señor Irving Lee, eccentric guitarist, and Bill Goodwin, announcer.

Gracie will introduce her 25 year old discovery, Jimmy Cash, whom she found working in a Burbank, Cal., grocery. Whiteman, in addition to contributing instrumental novelties to the show, will enter into the fun and will introduce Señor Lee.

Goodwin will appear in comedy stooge rôles which he will create for the series. Goodwin is also heard on two other W-G-N shows, Mutual's "Three Ring Time" with Milton Berle, Charles Laughton, Shirley Ross and Bob Crosby's orchestra, and as announcer for the Jimmy Fidler Hollywood broadcast.

DISNEY'S SONG PARADE IS NEW W-G-N FEATURE

"Walt Disney's Song Parade," a new musical feature presenting song hits from all the famous Disney movies, will make its radio debut on W-G-N and 78 Mutual stations from coast to coast at 3:30 p. m. today. Highlight of the first broadcast will be the introduction of the tunes from the new Disney picture, "Dumbo at the Circus."

Walt Disney. [Acme Photo.]

The "Song Parade" will be heard every Sunday afternoon. The opening broadcast will go on at 3:30 unless the world series game interferes. If this happens the new program will be aired at 5:15 p. m.

JUDY TON GETS HER BIG CHANCE IN 'HAROLD TEEN'

Judy Ton, young Columbus, O., actress, has become a regular member of the "Harold Teen" company on W-G-N. "Harold Teen" is aired at 8:30 p. m. [CDST] Tuesdays.

Judy plagued Chicago radio producers for six weeks before she got her chance. But last week Blair Walliser, producer of "Harold Teen," invited her to play two rôles—a housewife and a colored maid. Then she got sick with laryngitis. She was treated by four doctors and just before rehearsal time her voice came back. By the time she went on the air her voice was in fine form. Walliser invited her to make a curtain speech after the broadcast and she was warmly applauded.

Charles Flynn plays the part of the irrepressible Harold.

Virginia Simms' Good-By.

Virginia Simms will say good-by to Kay Kyser and his Musical College at 10 o'clock next Wednesday over WMAQ-NBC. Miss Simms has a new program of her own on CBS Friday.

NEW BOYS TOWN TO BE PROMOTED BY NEGRO GROUP

80 Acre Site Is Donated Near Momence.

James W. Washington.

Plans to raise funds to build a boys' town near Momence are being made by a group of south side Negroes under the leadership of James W. Washington, who was president of the American Negro exposition during the summer of 1940. Eighty unoccupied acres of land in Kankakee county have been given to the group by Mrs. Clara E. Howard, real estate and investment broker, as a site for the project.

Purpose of the plan is to provide a self-governing home for boys who are handicapped by an unhappy or impoverished home life, regardless of their race, religion, or creed. Under its charter, American Boystown, Inc., intends to give boys "adequate training along educational, mechanical, vocational, and military lines in order that they may become useful citizens." Mr. Washington thinks it would be the best answer to the increasing problem of juvenile delinquency.

Plan 21 Buildings.

The 10 year building program outlined by Charles Wheeler Nicol, architect, calls for 21 buildings, plus a baseball diamond, football field, and tennis courts. Thirty acres will be used for the home site and 50 acres will be used for cultivation by the boys as farm land. When completed, American Boystown will be large enough to accommodate 1,000 boys.

Work in constructing the first unit of Boystown is expected to be started in December, according to Mr. Washington. This will consist of a one story superintendent's building; a two story host house, including offices, reception rooms, and dining room; and an administration building, including an auditorium, classrooms, lecture halls, and laboratories. The cost will be $200,000. The total cost of the 10 year building program is expected to reach $5,000,000. So far the organization has $36,000 pledged and contributed. The first group of boys would be quartered in the host house.

Fund Raising Plans.

Mr. Washington has announced a number of plans for procuring money for the project. One of the biggest sources of revenue, he says, will be a national tag day next spring. Most of the governors of the 48 states already have promised to appoint three Negro and two white commissioners to supervise and report on tag day. Other means of collecting funds for the drive will be: Sending out 50,000 donation envelopes to Chicago churches; selling $100 life certificates making the owner an honorary citizen of Boystown; conducting a sale of Boystown stamps to be used as seals; selling gold emblems to automobile owners which will identify them as "Boystown Boosters"; sponsoring a bus tour which will advertise Boystown thruout the nation; and seeking donations, endowments, and subscriptions from the general public.

Another plan is to have benefit musical shows in the principal cities with the crowning of the girl who sells the most tickets as queen in each city. Mr. Washington says that a discount of from 25 to 40 per cent has been obtained on everything spent so far on the project and that contractors and designers have promised discounts on all the materials necessary for construction of the town. He added that the first 40,000 brick needed will be donated free.

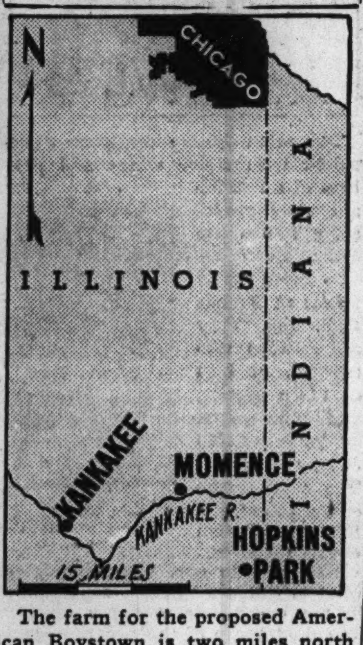
Members of Board.

In addition to Mr. Washington, the board of directors of Boystown, Inc., includes Maston Jones, vice president; Arthur Hutchinson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Koressa Alston Fox, executive secretary; James Carter, business manager; and Dr. G. Smith Hawkins, treasurer. W. Ellis Stewart is chairman of the finance committee.

The site, which is valued at $17,000, is in Pembroke township, seven miles south of Momence and two miles north of Hopkins park. Forty acres are woodland.

American Boystown, Inc., received its charter upon the recommendation of the child welfare division of the department of public welfare of Illinois.

Site of Boystown



The farm for the proposed American Boystown is two miles north of Hopkins park.

Benefit Luncheon.

McHale Englewood court of the Catholic Daughters of America will give a benefit luncheon and card party Thursday at the Home Arts guild, 205 North Michigan avenue. Mrs. Mae Corrigan has been appointed hostess of the party. Mrs. Mary O'Leary is grand regent.

CHANGES ERASE LIABILITIES OF DECREPIT HOUSE

Doors Removed and Porch Added to Rear.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Last week we told the story of the purchase of a lamentably dejected home at 5324 Cumnor road, Downers Grove, and of the plans the new owners made and the hopes they entertained for its renovation. It had taken them quite some time to decide on its purchase. The liabilities of the house were too glaring, the assets too buried beneath a state of semi-dilapidation.

Porch Is Screened.

There were not many structural changes necessary nor was the exterior changed to any extent. It was the interior of the home which had showed the ravages of lack of upkeep over a period of years. A south porch was screened, a new sidewalk laid and there was a general reconditioning of hedges, shrubs, window boxes, and garden plot.

Inside, however, the changes were many.

Now, as you enter the home, the living room and dining room are closely related and beyond the dining room you see the large screened porch. Originally there had been French doors between the living room and dining room and these had cut down the feeling of openness or space. These doors have been removed and a new fireplace wall built.

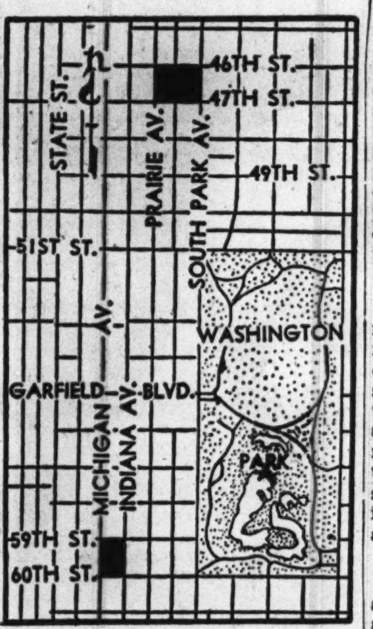
The dining room sparkles an effective welcome and the large screened porch has been converted into a hospitable spot for lounging and relaxation. One entire wall is banked by a peach tree.

Has Upstairs Workroom.

Upstairs the four rooms have been put to ingenius use.

There is a master's work room and studio with a deep cedar lined closet built from waste space over the stairs. Since there was no need for a closet in this room, the closet opening was closed off and a new one made in the master bedroom, thus giving this latter room two closets. There is also a playroom for the eight year old daughter of the house, its walls lined with shelves and filled with youthful treasures. The fourth room is the daughter's bedroom now, but later can be made into a study for her.

Liquor Vote Areas



The blacked in portions indicate the areas which will vote on the sale of alcoholic liquor at the judicial election on Nov. 4.

2 SOUTH AREAS TO VOTE ON SALE OF LIQUOR NOV. 4

Local option elections on the sale of alcoholic liquor will be held in two south side areas reaching into three precincts at the Nov. 4 judicial election, it has been announced by John S. Rusch, chief clerk of the board of election commissioners.

The state liquor law specifies that local option elections must be held in the precincts as they existed in 1932. Thus an election will be held in the 82d and part of the 24th precinct of the 3d ward, an area which in 1932 constituted the 24th precinct.

Backing the fight against the sale of liquor is the John R. Lynch Model Community council, an off-shoot of the Chicago Urban league. Last fall agitation by this group resulted in a dry vote in the 16th, 17th, and 19th precincts of the 3d ward.

Boundaries of the old 24th precinct run from 46th street and South Park avenue west to Prairie avenue, south to 47th street, east to South Park avenue and north to 46th street.

An election also will be held in the 65th precinct of the 5th ward, which has the same boundaries as it did in 1932. Its boundaries are 59th street, Michigan avenue, 60th street, and Indiana avenue.

If the precincts are not voted dry, the question cannot come up again in an election for four years.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Oct. 6.

Weather conditions change suddenly at this season and the garden should have all necessary work completed. It is time bulbs were in the ground; tulips may be planted. Replant old beds if they give few flowers. When old bulbs are lifted replant the largest for their flowers but collect the small bulbs until they mature sufficiently to flower.

Tuesday, Oct. 7.

A well drained, sandy loam, enriched with decayed organic manures is excellent for practically all kinds of bulbs and they should have full sun the greater part of the day. In the colder sections, protect the beds after a heavy freeze with strawy manure, hay, straw, or other material to prevent heaving during early spring thaws and subsequent freezing. This applies to the perennials as well.

Wednesday, Oct. 8.

Plant shrubs, vines, and trees. Vines add much to the general effect. Plant along the porch and to screen buildings. They may be used along the fences, but in all cases they must be properly tended. The Dutchman's pipe is excellent where a heavy, dense growth is desired. It does well in sun or partial shade.

Thursday, Oct. 9.

Most fruit trees can be planted in the fall altho stone fruit tree planting is best done in the spring. Dwarf fruit trees are much to be preferred on the small yard. Dwarf trees are grafted on a slow growing stock and will grow no more than about 12 feet high and about the same distance wide.

Friday, Oct. 10.

Many perennials can yet be transplanted, but not when the ground is frozen. Late flowering kinds, such as the hardy chrysanthemums, should not be moved until spring unless well protected, because they simply lie in the ground without adequate rooting.

Saturday, Oct. 11.

Give evergreens, rhododendrons, and other broad-leaved plants a thoro watering before winter for they transpire moisture even tho they appear to be resting.

What's in your Powder Box...

Certain shades of powder can be so unflattering! Be sure there's no traitor in your powder box—to accent little lines, to make you look older. Find your LUCKY SHADE!

By Lady Esther

Ask any woman why she uses face powder—and she'll say to improve her appearance—to give her skin a nice soft tone, a youthful texture.

Imagine how shocked she'd be if you told her the powder she puts on with such confidence each morning is a traitor! Yes, a sly traitor that lives in her powder box—undoing all her efforts to look lovely—making her look older, less attractive!

What is your right shade—your lucky shade? You can't tell just by looking at the color in the box. No, you must try the different shades—really see them on your own skin.

So let me send you the nine new shades of Lady Esther Face Powder. Try each one. Your mirror will tell you which makes you look your youngest, your most glamorous.

You'll love the texture of my powder. It's made by my Twin-Hurricane method, which whirls and buffs it to a much softer, smoother texture than any ordinary face powder. That's why it clings so long—4 hours or more!

Try All 9 Shades FREE

Find your most flattering shade of Lady Esther Face Powder—without guesswork and without cost! Send for the 9 fascinating new shades—and try them all. You'll know your lucky shade; it makes you look younger, lovelier! Mail this coupon now, before you forget.

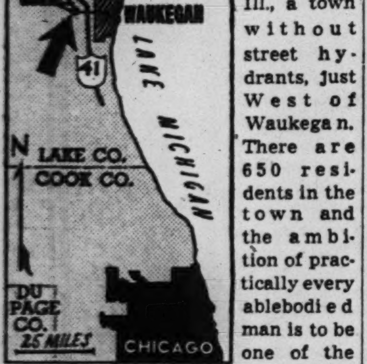
STUDY RISING DEATH TOLL ON SKOKIE

25 MEN AND A WOMAN UNITED IN COMBATTING GURNEE FIRES

She Sounds Alarm, They Do the Rest.

BY DAVID ANDERSON.



There are 25 men and Mrs. Loretta Ray in the volunteer fire department of Gurnee, Ill., a town without street hydrants, just West of Waukegan. There are 650 residents in the town and the ambition of practically every ablebodied man is to be one of the firemen. The waiting list is as long as the fire hose.

It's a quiet little town — except when there is a fire. Then practically all of the 650 residents turn out, some to see the fire, others to help fight it but most of them watch and cheer the volunteer fire department.

Gurnee at those times takes on the aspect of a college town during a football game, or Brooklyn when the Dodgers win a pennant. The volunteer fire department is a team and everybody roots for it.

You'll find the fire department in the rear of McClure's garage on Grand avenue just west of Skokie road. The garage also serves as a sort of unofficial town hall.

One of the trucks is a store-bought $6,500 model which the department purchased ten years ago. The other the men built from an old Chevrolet chassis and they use it for going across fields to fight grass fires. The Chevvie carries two tanks containing 500 gallons of water. For "town" fires, water is pumped from wells and cisterns.

When a fire breaks out, one of the first to know about it is Mrs. Ray, who operates the town's telephone switchboard in her home above McClure's garage.

Starts Siren Going.

During a fire call Mrs. Ray becomes the 26th member of the Gurnee volunteer department. She reaches for a button at her side and the siren above the garage begins its shrieking. And as the men come running to jump into the fire trucks, she opens the window and calls down the location of the fire. Those she didn't reach with the siren, she calls over the "hoot and holler" telephone.

The first ones to respond to Mrs. Ray's screaming siren become the drivers of the trucks. Those who don't catch the trucks follow along in their own cars. Most of the time Chief Joseph J. Dada is among the first. He works as a mechanic in McClure's garage and his home is only two blocks away. He is a broad, husky man, 46 years old, seldom seen without a cigar in his mouth.

Chief Dada helped organize the department in 1931. He was elected at the first meeting and has been chief ever since. Among other things, he also is town constable, village marshal, building commissioner and health officer. "It don't mean an awful lot, but it sure keeps me hoppin'," he says.

All Lend a Hand.

You'll find nearly all the town's occupations represented in the membership of the fire department. For example, there are Laverne Dixon, the town's lawyer; Dr. W. W. Smith, Gurnee's physician; Cole Ferry, owner of the hardware store; Gordon Gillings, engineer at the school; Charles E. Hook and James Campbell, carpenters; Dean Ray, furniture mover; William G. Dalziel, stationary fireman, who works nights in Waukegan, and others employed in various industries.

Gurnee's oldest fireman is 67 year old Jim Campbell. Youngest is Tom Dixon, 23. Chief Dada recently lost two of his volunteers to the draft.

One of the department's founders, John Gart, was killed on Valentine's Day, 1932, almost a year after the fire-fighters had been organized. He fell off the truck as it rounded a corner on an icy road. He died two hours later from a compound skull fracture. The call turned out to be a false alarm.

The fire-fighters are rated Class A by the Illinois board of fire commissioners. They drill weekly and at the end of each practice session, Chief Dada, whose hobby is cooking steaks and French fried potatoes, prepares a feast for the men in the garage.

Deadly on Grass Fires.

The volunteers fight about 65 fires a year, many of them grass fires. "None of the grass fires ever got away from us, either," says Chief Dada. "We use a hose with a flattened out nozzle which sprays the water over a wide area instead of shooting it out in a single stream."

The department's greatest trouble in putting out a blaze is not the fire, but the spectators who get in the way, the chief asserts. "They hinder more than they help," he says.

Chief Dada offers this piece of advice to those whose homes catch fire: "First of all, call the fire department. Don't wait. Second, wherever possible, close the doors and windows. Open doors and windows create draughts which will spread the blaze. The idea is to shut the fire up, isolate and smother it."

CENTRAL NEARS TIME FOR LAST 'NUMBER, PLEASE'

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

The Warren Mutual Telephone company, a small independent line operating in Warren township in central Lake county for nearly 29 years, will be dissolved about Nov. 1. One of the few survivors of the days when nearly every community had its own little telephone company, the Warren Mutual has finally bowed to the interference of high tension wires and the difficulty of keeping a lineman.

When the last phone is disconnected, it will mean that Mrs. Loretta Ray's job for the last 23 years is over. Ever since June 19, 1918, Mrs. Ray, plump, past middle age, and a grandmother, has been the Warren Mutual central. Except for one trip to Des Moines, where she got bit by a cat and came right home, and another to Newark, N. J., she's been on duty practically every minute.

Closed Only Once.

The first Armistice day she closed up and "went to town," she recalls. But day and night for 23 years she has watched the board in the corner of the living room in her five room flat over McClure's garage in Gurnee, the village of 500 that is Warren township's community center. She was newly widowed and had four children when the directors offered her the job at $100 a month.

At first, Mrs. Ray says, she was a nervous wreck. She used to wake herself up at night saying "Gurnee." But now the sound of a shutter drop, tho not loud, comes to her while she's out in her kitchen washing, cooking, or whether she's sleeping. She can see the board from her bed. She has never failed to answer an emergency.

Ears of Community.

Reports of suicide and violent death have come in over Mrs. Ray's little battery operated board. Subscribers have always had the habit of "ringing up central" when they needed help. They simply told Mrs. Ray the trouble, and she carried on from there.

Mrs. Ray has called doctors in the night, has helped a few courtships along, has told a subscriber trying to call another—"Well, I don't think they're home. They were just talking to Soandso and planned to drive in to Waukegan today."

Mrs. Ray can't help but know quite a little of the subscribers' business; she has to listen in to be sure a conversation is finished. Lately, she has had to carry on part of those conversations. Because of the noise on the wire, Mrs. Ray has to tell one party what the other has just said.

Power Wires End Service.

That noise is mentioned in the announcement issued by Mrs. Gladys Ames, secretary-treasurer of Warren Mutual for the last 10 years. She says, "The directors are planning to disband the corporation by vote of the present stockholders because it is hard to find a competent lineman and because we can't bear the expense of equipping the line with a metallic circuit to offset the electricity from the high lines. We're not broke. We expect to cease operations in the clear. And if we could still hear over our phones, we'd stick to them."

The dissolution meeting will take place the evening of Oct. 17 at the Woodman hall in Gurnee.

The subscribers know they'll miss the friendliness of "Central." Mrs. Ray says she has voice acquaintances with dozens of folks she wouldn't know if she saw them. After the switchboard is disconnected — Mrs. Ray says she wants it taken out Nov. 1 so she can get her papering done—the veteran central thinks she may take a trip. She says her "kids" have told her to go to California and go on a sleeper at that.

$5 a Year at First.

The Mutual company was incorporated in 1913 with 116 stockholders, all residents of Warren township. Forty-five of them are still living and include Leo F. Fenlon, Gurnee, the first president; Dr. H. O. B. Young, J. W. Gray, Fred Gillings, Mrs. Nellie Sneesby, R. B. Dixon, M. L. Schryver, A. S. Chandler, to mention several.

Subscribers paid $5 a year for a phone in 1914, and the first operator received $325 a year for "switching," as it is called in the record. The assessment rose to $7 and remained a few years, then went to $8, and increased to $12 in 1920. It dropped to $10 in 1922, but went back to $12 in 1925 and has stayed there ever since.

Mrs. Ray has handled as many as 160 subscribers, but she says "Some of them were bad risks." Some of the recent ones could be better, but all have to have a receipt of paid up bills from Warren before they can get Bell phones.

Dr. L. J. McClure has served as Mutual president since 1931, and M. F. Schryver has been vice president for the same period.

Mrs. Ray will continue to take calls over the fire alarm phone and blow Gurnee's noon day siren. She pushes the button for the 12 o'clock siren by timing it according to "When they pour the fizz water on a radio program I listen to." When there was a lot of talk about a five day week around Gurnee, Mrs. Ray omitted the siren on Saturday, but there was such a fuss about it, she had to blow again, and the five day week talk died down.

The Chief Becomes Chef When Gurnee Firemen Have Party

Busiest man in Gurnee, a little town of 650 residents just west of Waukegan, is Chief Joseph J. Dada of the volunteer fire department Chief Dada also is village marshal, building commissioner, health officer, and constable. He's 46 years old and he works as a mechanic in McClure's garage where the two fire trucks are stored.

On drill nights Chief Dada cooks a midnight spread in the garage for his men. His hobby is making French fried potatoes and grilling steaks. The fire department is 10 years old and Dada has been chief since it was organized. He's seldom seen without a cigar.

Secretary Dalziel is shown standing on the department's homemade truck which the men use mainly for fighting grass fires. The truck, an old model, carries two water tanks, ladders, and hose. Note the roll of ordinary garden hose behind the fender. The men use this hose which is equipped with a flattened out nozzle to spray water over large areas of burning grass.

Mrs. Loretta Ray, who has been the town's operator of the telephone system for 23 years, is the 26th member of the 25 man fire department. When a fire call comes over the old fashioned crank-on-the-wall telephone circuit Mrs. Ray, who operates the switchboard in her flat over the garage, relays the alarm by sounding a siren outside the window of her parlor.

NORTHLAND CLUB PLANS TO OFFER FIRST FESTIVAL

The Northland club will hold its first festival and dance next Saturday evening at Link's hall, 3435 Sheffield avenue, according to the president, J. E. Kolinen.

The organization membership is comprised of former residents of Michigan, Minnesota, and Wisconsin. The club was formed, according to Mr. Kolinen, for the purpose of making the lives of people from these three states more enjoyable in Chicago as well as to foster the spirit of coöperation between Chicago and the northland.

America First Notes

Robert D. Ross, former assistant United States district attorney, will address a meeting of Evanston chapter of America First tomorrow evening at the Ridgeville Community house, Ridge avenue and Seward street. Mr. Ross, who traces his ancestry back to the Revolutionary war, is a descendant of William Dawes, who assisted Paul Revere to spread the alarm that the British had landed. Mr. Ross received his education at Harvard university, Northwestern university law school, and Cambridge university in England.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

More than 100 horsemen and horsewomen are expected to participate in the two day pleasure ride of the Town and Country Equestrian association. The ride will start from the polo field at Harms and Golf roads in Morton Grove next Saturday.

W. Earle Butler, president, said that preliminary entries indicate the ride, the first of its kind the association has sponsored, will be better attended than any of the 100 mile trail rides which have climaxed the organization's trail activities for each of the last three years. Entries will close tomorrow.

Planned as Pleasure Trip.

"Unlike the 100 mile rides, which were rather severe tests for horse and rider, the two day is a pleasure trip requiring no special preparation," Butler said. "Any rider with ordinary riding skill, and any sound horse accustomed to regular work, can travel the distance of approximately 30 miles and return without difficulty.

The cavalcade will depart at 8:30 a. m. Saturday, following the forest preserve trail northward to Dundee road, thence west to the private trail system of the Riding Club of Barrington Hills. Mounted members of that organization will guide the visitors thru the paths to the ride destination, the Horse farm on Algonquin road four miles southeast of Algonquin.

Evening of Western Fun.

A ranch style dinner and an evening of western entertainment will be held at the farm Saturday. There will be a rodeo, a roaring campfire, and a barn dance in the huge hayloft. Many nonriders will attend the party.

After an outdoor breakfast Sunday morning the return ride will begin. It will double back over the outbound trail, arriving back at the starting point about 6 p. m. Sunday.

The two day is the third and final trail ride on the 1941 association calendar. The first was a breakfast ride held on the west side in June. The second was also a breakfast ride, held in the Palos Hills forest preserve in August.

Fred W. Willis and Frank Maher are in charge of entertainment. William D. Bradley is refreshment chairman. Others assisting in the plans are Dr. Thomas A. Carter, John M. FitzGerald, T. L. J. Klapp, and John Bowers.

TALKS ON TELEPHONE FIRST TIME IN LIFE ON 85TH BIRTHDAY

Fritz O. Carlson.

When Fritz O. Carlson celebrated his 85th birthday on Sept. 20, he did something he had never done before—he talked over the telephone. Mr. Carlson, who resides at 1216 Wellington avenue, was born in Tullporten, Sweden, in 1860. He came to this country 61 years ago and has lived in Lake View for 56 years.

He has ridden in automobiles, elevated trains, listened to the radio, seen movies, and, in short, used most of the modern city dweller's machinery. But somehow he never got around to talking over the telephone. His friends and relatives did his phoning for him.

On Sept. 20 his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Carlson gave a surprise party for him at their home, 2126 North Kedvale avenue. His four grandchildren and one great-grandchild were present.

The phone rang. It was a long distance call for Mr. Carlson from his daughter, Frieda, in Lindsborg, Kas. Mr. Carlson picked up the instrument, greeted his daughter and talked to here for a few minutes. His comment, after he had hung up, was, "You know, I could hear every word."

Philatelic Society.

The North Shore Philatelic society will present an old timers' program Monday evening, Oct. 13 at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Chart Guides Daily Training of Our ROTC

For the last three weeks the commands of "Squads left" and other such military jargon have been echoing in 27 Chicago high schools where 10,594 students are undergoing military training as ROTC cadets. The unit is the largest in the nation and the figure represents the greatest voluntary enrollment in the 24 year history of Chicago's ROTC.

Responsibility for training the unit, which is almost the size of a regular army streamlined division, rests with Col. William F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics in the Chicago public schools.

Included in the List.

This includes drill and command, calisthenics, marksmanship, first aid, scouting and patroling, military organization, military history, musketry, and map reading. The cadets spend one period, of 45 minutes duration, each school day in ROTC instruction. Aside from this time many of them spend after school hours of their own accord drilling with their school's crack platoon or practicing with the rifle team.

Each of the school's regular army sergeants, who act as military instructors, follow the chart's outline of study in teaching the cadets. They must devote so many hours during the semester to each of the various phases of instruction. They must forward weekly reports to Col. Morrison's office showing what instruction the cadets have received during the week.

While good outdoor weather prevails, the cadets are receiving four hours a week instruction in drill. The majority of the high schools do not have enough space within the buildings for drilling a hundred or more boys at a time, so when possible they drill on the school grounds.

Hold Officers School.

Altho the military instructors preside over the instruction, the new cadets are taught by the cadet officers who have received their promotions thru competitive examinations. Three or four days a week the military insrtuctors hold officers' school, at which time the instructors outline to the cadet officers the training that is to be emphasized for the following day or week.

As the army uses exercises to put men into the physical shape necessary, so do the cadets attend weekly calisthenics classes. This is the one phase of instruction received thruout the semester.

As the semester progresses the hours of drill will be cut down and in their place the sophomores will get a period of first aid instruction, while the juniors and seniors will be taught the theory of scouting and patroling.

Must Study Textbooks.

Altho much of their military knowledge must be gained from textbooks—such as scouting and patroling, or musketry, which entails maneuvers—the cadets are able to learn marksmanship, first aid, drill, and map reading by actual participation.

Each week or so the cadets will receive instruction in a different phase of military work. They are being given basic military training which will place them far ahead of the raw recruit if and when they are called to duty.

13 KILLED, 225 INJURED IN EIGHT MONTH PERIOD

State to Place More Traffic Lights.

A month long survey of the ever increasing accident rate on Skokie highway, which motorists term the most dangerous on the north shore, was begun last week by the state highway department and the traffic department of the Chicago Motor club.

Accidents on the road have increased every year since 1938 despite the installation of traffic safety lights at many intersections and the erection of warning signs. Engineers will study the reports in an attempt to determine the cause of accidents and take a traffic count of the number of vehicles on the road during 24 hours.

Six Killed in Daylight.

Figures compiled for the eight months ending with August of this year show that 13 persons have been killed and 225 injured on Skokie between Gross Point road and the Wisconsin state line, a stretch of 36 miles. Six of the fatalities and 101 injuries occurred in daytime accidents.

The death and injury toll for the last four years follows:

	Dead.	Injured.
1938	13	180
1939	15	214
1940	15	266
1941 [first eight months]	13	225

The solution to the problem as seen by Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club, is the building of grade separations at intersections and erection of a dividing curb down the center of the roadway. He declared:

"It is very likely that the immediate building of such a project cannot be undertaken at present, what with defense orders using available steel."

Advises Light System.

He said that an express highway such as Skokie should have no cross traffic and that opposite traffic channels along the road should be separated by a center parkway. It should be lighted adequately at all hours of the night, he added.

The state highway department also announced it has made arrangements to erect traffic signals at seven intersections, Berkley road, Clavey road, Lake-Cook county road, Tower road, Winnetka road, Gross Point road, and Main street in Skokie.

Chief of Police Roy Lee of Northbrook asserted that the accident rate along a one mile stretch thru the village is low compared with the rest of the highway. In 1936 this stretch was equipped with sodium vapor lighting, which, he said, resulted in a sharp reduction in the accident rate. The lighted area runs from Dundee road one mile south.

This area, he declared, is so brightly lighted at night that many motorists turn off their headlights while passing under the sodium lamps. This practice, he added, has caused several collisions, for often the motorists forget to turn on their headlights again as they leave the lighted stretch.

FARCE TO OPEN SEASON OF N. U. THEATER OCT. 15

The 13th subscription season of the Northwestern University theater will open Oct. 15 with a presentation of "A Slight Case of Murder," a gangster farce written by Howard Lindsay and Damon Runyan. Performances will be given on the succeeding two nights also.

ROOM SETTINGS STRESSED FOR FURNITURE WEEK

Community Stores Join in Annual Display.

Chicago's neighborhood and suburban stores are joining the loop in the celebration of National Furniture week which opened yesterday and will continue thru Saturday.

This year's exposition will emphasize everything for the home. Electrical appliances, rugs, draperies, and wall coverings will be featured as prominently as chairs, tables, and the larger items which make up the layman's classification of "furniture." The entire plan is built around this season's furniture week slogan, "Happiness Begins at Home."

Show Room Schemes.

One group of neighborhood stores will use displays arranged in "charm" houses. All pieces therein will be correlated not only with each other but with a selection of fabrics and other furniture pieces in the store's stock. A housewife who selects a chair will find drapery material that is correlated in color and pattern suitable to the period of the piece.

This correlation of period, color, and pattern has been worked out by experienced designers. The busy homemaker who makes use of this service saves time and energy.

The three most important furniture styles are modern, 18th century, and Federal American, in the order named. The bleached woods, both mahogany and walnut, and natural light oak are used for the modern styles. Either dark or light mahogany is popular for 18th century, and dark mahogany is used for today's version of Federal American. The Duncan Phyfe pieces are said to epitomize the American Federal period which flourished from Washington's inauguration to 1825.

New Room Settings.

All stores are emphasizing new room settings this year. Special windows are dressed to indicate the 1941-'42 trend in everything from lamps to cake mixers. The season's most popular wood, dark mahogany, is often used with satinwood or boxwood inlay work. Stores have selected special furnishing problems. One is featuring a hall treatment display which includes commodes and mirrors in different styles and periods, and a wide use of statuettes and bric-a-brac.

2 WOMEN'S CLUBS READY TO OPEN JUBILEE YEARS

Rogers Park, Wilmette Groups Will Meet.

Early October usually finds all federated woman's clubs ready for the year's work. Many north side organizations have already held the season's opening meetings. However, this week's schedule shows several important first-of-the-year sessions. Two of them are the initial meetings of clubs celebrating their golden jubilee, the Rogers Park Woman's club and the Woman's club of Wilmette.

Rogers Park members will meet at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the clubhouse at 7077 North Ashland for the official beginning of their 50th club year. The president, Mrs. Ford Hicks, will extend the jubilee greetings. A musical program will be followed by a tea hour and reception. Members of the executive board receiving with Mrs. Hicks are Mrs. Alexander M. Kerr and Mrs. John Fannin, vice presidents; Mrs. Walter N. Emerson, treasurer; Mrs. Augustus H. Mueller, recording secretary; Mrs. Victor R. Clark, corresponding secretary, and the following department chairmen—Mrs. Miles D. Catton, Mrs. Stephen W. Doty, Mrs. Roland Witcraft, Mrs. Thomas O'Leary, Mrs. W. J. Wenrich, Mrs. Peter T. Swanish, Mrs. W. J. Reding, Mrs. Harry G. Bachelor Jr., Mrs. Henry A. Boehmer, Mrs. Harry W. Raymond, and Mrs. William Broan.

Artists who will appear in the afternoon concert are Herbert Silberstein, director and violinist; Walter Brauer, cellist; Phillip Jorgensen, piano; Paula Dohrn, soprano, and Bruce Marvin, tenor.

Woman's Club of Wilmette.

The Wilmette club's golden jubilee opens officially with a meeting at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the clubhouse in the suburb. Like the Rogers Parkers, the Wilmette clubwomen have chosen a musical program for their first meeting. The artists will be five singers chosen by Giacomo Rimini from the recently organized Chicago Opera company. They will present selections from Verdi's operas for a concert designed to commemorate the 40th anniversary of the composer's death. The singers are Lorraine Tomerson, Sandra Kohn, Marguerite Bost, Thomas Brennan, and Victor Corell. Ernesto Barbini will be accompanist and director.

This first day of the club year is also Presidents' day, and Mrs. Arthur Fuller, now president, will present the past presidents attending. Mrs. H. B. Gates, who served the first of her four terms as president in 1894, will be the only charter member introduced. Another early president will be Mrs. Carl Latham, who held office in 1907 and 1908.

Presidents Since 1915.

Among the presidents serving since 1915 are Mrs. Donald Gallie, Mrs. John Clark Baker, Mrs. John C. Mannerud, Mrs. R. E. P. Kline, Mrs. N. P. Colwell, Mrs. Hayes McKinney, Mrs. Harvey A. Bush, Mrs. Arthur J. Dixon, Mrs. A. E. Klunder, Mrs. David J. Davis, Mrs. Frank R. Adams, and Mrs. George B. Williams. Mrs. Williams finished her term last June. Invitations have been sent to all 10th district club presidents to join the former Wilmette presidents for the day.

Mrs. William I. Doan and her committee are planning a reception and tea after the concert. Mrs. William and Miss Bettie Buckett, the president officer of the junior auxiliary, will pour. A silver service, presented as a jubilee gift by the directing boards of 1939, 1940, and 1941, will be used.

Woman's Club of Evanston.

Mrs. Harry Hadley, chairman of the trip committee of the garden group, announces that a tour of the Mill Road Gardens chrysthanthemum show has been arranged for Friday. The tour is open to all members, and cars will leave the clubhouse at 1 o'clock. Reservations must be made at the club.

Neighbors of Kenilworth.

A musical and reception for the president and new members are planned for the opening of the Kenilworth club on Tuesday. The program will open at 2 o'clock in the clubhouse at 410 Kenilworth avenue. Mrs. Vernon C. Beebe will continue as president for the organization's 46th year. Mrs. Paul C. Clovis is 1st vice president and chairman of the program committee. The opening session, planned by the music committee, will bring Miss Kathryn Witwer, soprano, and Miss Helen Leefelt, pianist, before the members. Mrs. A. G. Phillips and Mrs. Fred Stone will be hostesses.

North Town Woman's Club.

The executive board will meet for the first time at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Duncan Brickell, 6893 Wildwood avenue. Mrs. L. J. Cashman will be cohostess. The president, Mrs. J. Ernest Breed, will conduct the session. The board meeting will precede the season's first general program which will tak place at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon at Indian Boundary fieldhouse.

"Our American Heritage" is the general theme for this year, according to the program chairman, Mrs. Edward P. Johnson. Mrs. Johnson will collaborate with the music chairman, Mrs. Henry Martinson in presenting Neumon Leighton, baritone, for the season's opening. Mrs. Agnes Sendell, social chairman, will be in charge of the tea following.

Hamlin Park Woman's Club.

The Hamlin Park club is only one year younger than this season's jubilarians. It will open for the 49th season with program at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the clubrooms at 3035 North Hoyne avenue. Mrs. John R. Caldow, newly elected president, will preside at the meeting which will include reports of the state convention.

Mrs. John L. Bluemer and Mrs. Otto Kaiser are 1st and 2d vice presidents of the club. Mrs. Lloyd van Dermark is recording secretary, and Mrs. George Kaufmann is treasurer.

Welles Park Woman's Club.

Presidents' day will be held at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon at Welles park fieldhouse, Montrose and Western avenues. The American home department, of which Mrs. C. A. Selleneit is chairman, will be in charge of the program. Mrs. I. J. Sweeney will read a report of the General Federation convention in Atlantic City. SMART CLOTHES ON DISPLAY IN SUBURBAN SHOPS

BY REA SEEGER.

Many of the smart clothes of the 1941 collections can be found in the fascinating shops in the suburbs. In these shops women of the suburbs can select their clothes with the same discrimination that marks a buying trip to town.

Suburban shoppers find clever daytime dresses for spectator sports and casual country clothes that have been designed for country living. The shops also have the sophisticated new dinner costumes and the loveliest of evening gowns as well as the newest accessories to complete all of these finds, from hats to footwear.

Country Clothes Featured.

The country clothes are featured. Dresses of soft wools are cleverly detailed so that they can serve a double purpose—for suburbia or a day in town. There are suits of all kinds, dress suits of slim distinctive dress and a companion jacket. There are dramatic fur trimmed suits, equally beautiful fur trimmed coats, and the suits without fur to be worn either with or without a topcoat usually of the same wool but of a dashing contrast color.

But the star attractions in these shops and stores are the superb showings of country clothes, simply cut wool dresses, the separate skirts, jackets, wool blouses and sweaters ready for mixing and matching.

Football clothes of every imaginable color and contrast and material assure an ideal selection for any weather and for every budget.

Evening Gowns Are Dramatic.

Outstanding showings of new evening gowns are dramatic. There are slinky dinner clothes and gala occasion formal evening gowns of sensational beauty or subdued elegance. The sketch in the adjoining column presents four new finds from a high fashion suburban shop. The clothes are:

1. A new suavely fitted dinner dress of coal black crepe. This is a costume of great elegance; the jacket and gown being trimmed with gold and gold bead embroidery beautifully stitched.
2. A glamorous evening gown of black net trimmed with dozens of ermine tails. The bodice is extremely tight and fitted with band shoulder straps and a swathed top.
3. Russet suede sports dress with side fullness in the skirt and a shirtwaist top with short sleeves.
4. One of the most unusual dress suits of the fall showings, a duet of slim, distinguished dress of soft wool in a taupe tone and a fitted jacket of the same fabric with a wide collar of smoke gray fox fur. This is a dress parade model, ideal for afternoon teas, cocktail parties and Sunday night teas.

Miss Claire will sing the rôle of Katherine de Vaucelles, a beautiful and high spirited lady of the court. Thomas takes the part of François Villon, genius, thief, poet, and patriot of France.

The "Song Parade" will be heard every Sunday afternoon. The opening broadcast will go on at 3:30 unless the world series game interferes. If this happens the new program will be aired at 5:15 p. m.

A Young Radio Veteran.

GEORGE AND GRACIE, PAUL WHITEMAN IN NEW SHOW ON W-G-N

George Burns and Gracie Allen will be back on the air with a new show this fall. They will be heard in Chicago thru W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 p. m. CDST starting next Thursday. They will be heard nationally over NBC, broadcasting twice on Tuesday evenings.

Supporting the comedy team in their new show will be Paul Whiteman's orchestra, Jimmy Cash, singing discovery, and Señor Irving Lee, eccentric guitarist, and Bill Goodwin, announcer.

Gracie will introduce her 25 year old discovery, Jimmy Cash, whom she found working in a Burbank, Cal., grocery. Whiteman, in addition to contributing instrumental novelties to the show, will enter into the fun and will introduce Señor Lee.

Goodwin will appear in comedy stooge rôles which he will create for the series. Goodwin is also heard on two other W-G-N shows, Mutual's "Three Ring Time" with Milton Berle, Charles Laughton, Shirley Ross and Bob Crosby's orchestra, and as announcer for the Jimmy Fidler Hollywood broadcast.

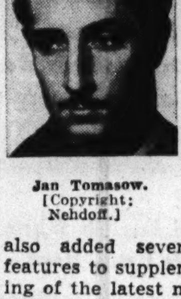
W59C, NEW FM STATION, ADDS NEW FEATURES

Music Supplemented by Discussion Periods.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

New programs of outstanding music showing off the tonal beauties possible thru frequency modulation have been added to the schedule of W59C, the new FM station of W-G-N, Inc., which was opened a fortnight ago.



Jan Tomasow. [Copyright: Nehdoff.]

W59C, which is on the air from noon to midnight daily, has also added several public service features to supplement the broadcasting of the latest news every hour on the hour.

In addition to frequent concerts by the W-G-N Concert orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, W59C is presenting its own orchestra, conducted by Jan Tomasow, Argentine violinist. The W59C orchestra presents music specially suited to the superiorities of FM from 7:30 to 8 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. They are heard at other times thruout the week—sometimes during the dinner concerts.

Featured As Violinist.

Tomasow came to the attention of Henry Weber, musical director of both stations, last summer during appearances in the Grant Park concert series. Weber liked his work and engaged him for the new station. Tomasow is featured as violinist with the group. Hazel Simms is the pianist; Richard Beidel of the Chicago Symphony orchestra is the 'cellist; Edmund Weingart, second violinist. Preston Sellers, well known organist, presides at the console.

Another new musical feature on W59C is the vocal recital series featuring Kathryn Witwer, soprano, at 4:05 p. m. Wednesdays. She is supported by the FM orchestra.

Other Musical Programs.

The W-G-N Concert orchestra is heard on W59C at 2:30 p. m. Wednesdays and Thursdays; the Dream Ship, a program of soft, relaxing music at 10:30 p. m. nightly.

The Perfectionists' hour, recorded music of the masters, is aired from 9 to 10 nightly except Saturday when it runs from 8 to 9 p. m.

Musical highlight of the week on W59C is the presentation of the Chicago Theater of the Air operettas, sent out over W-G-N and Mutual as well. These are aired from 9:45 p. m. to 11. Next Saturday the "Vagabond King" starring Marion Claire and Thomas Thomas will be the feature presentation.

Many fine recorded programs are presented every day.

Offer Radio Travelog.

W59C broadcasts, besides music and the news, such programs of public interest as the weekly talks by speakers of the Executives' club luncheons at 1:05 each Friday; the Washington comments of Fulton Lewis Jr. at 7 p. m. Mondays thru Fridays, and the American Forum of the Air at 8 p. m. Sundays.

Another new FM feature is "See Chicago," a radio travelog by Robert Doyle, aired weekdays at 1:05 except Fridays. The program presents a calendar of interesting events of the theater and concert halls and presents interesting material about Chicago's history and traditions.

Estelle Barnes, formerly with WAAF as pianist, writer, and program arranger, has been appointed program manager of W59C.

Familiar Music Aired.

The Music America Loves Best by the Artists America Loves Best, a new series of recorded programs of semi-classical music, is aired Mondays thru Fridays from 9:30 to 9:45 a. m. over WMAQ.

SHARON PEASE TO BE GUEST ON BASIN ST. SHOW ON WEDNESDAY

Sharon Pease, Chicago pianist, teacher and editor, will be featured as guest on the broadcast of the Chamber Music Society of Lower Basin Street at 9 p. m. next Wednesday over WENR and NBC. Pease will endeavor to explain the outstanding characteristics of the style of several boogie woogie exponents. For his solo he he will play "Flinging a Whing Ding."

JUDY TON GETS HER BIG CHANCE IN 'HAROLD TEEN'

Judy Ton, young Columbus, O., actress, has become a regular member of the "Harold Teen" company on W-G-N. "Harold Teen" is aired at 8:30 p. m. [CDST] Tuesdays.

Judy plagued Chicago radio producers for six weeks before she got her chance. But last week Blair Walliser, producer of "Harold Teen," invited her to play two rôles—a housewife and a colored maid. Then she got sick with laryngitis. She was treated by four doctors and just before rehearsal time her voice came back. By the time she went on the air her voice was in fine form. Walliser invited her to make a curtain speech after the broadcast and she was warmly applauded.

Charles Flynn plays the part of the irrepressible Harold.

. . . but, "like a phantom of delight when first it gleams upon your sight; it's often just a lovely apparition sent to be a moment's ornament."

From Wordsworth, whose pen dripped this and other gems of thought, we pass to another form of beauty which "Like fairy-gifts, only too soon fade away." That beauty is the boudoir luxury known as a North Star, Hudson Bay, St. Mary's, Nashua or other fine make of all-wool blanket. Take North Star's colors alone: Ashes of Roses, Delft Blue, French Blue, Eggshell, Dusk Orchid, Rosepink, Araby Green. Why, we shudder to think what home washing would do to these dream creations. Hard water, alkali in home soaps and the mechanical action of a home washer will take the color and purr out of any blanket.

We here at Skokie know, because we've had blankets, shrunk many inches as a result of home washing, come to us to be restored to original length. So if you want YOUR things of Beauty to REALLY be a Joy forever just try sending your blankets to Skokie, where they'll be washed AT NO EXTRA CHARGE in the Sun-Glo Special . . .

√SHIRTS professionally ironed at NO EXTRA CHARGE.

√WOOL BLANKETS washed soft as a baby's skin, moth-proofed, and wrapped in moth-proof bag.

√HANDKERCHIEFS ironed and perfectly folded.

√NO CHARGE for buttons or mending shirts.

√KNIT PIECES like cotton undershirts, bathrobes, sweaters, socks, etc., fluffed dry in clean, dust-free sterile air—no ironing needed.

√WEARING APPAREL, dry and folded.

√ALL FLAT pieces will be returned gloriously radiant with a bright new freshness and charm.

SELECT YOUR SCHOOL CAREFULLY

Any person can become a wonderful dancer, but like any other study, you must learn it. Here you are taught to move your body thru your brain and not thru your feet.

We teach you to dance from your brain downward and not from your feet upward. This is how the good dancer understands it.

In DANCING, as we teach it, you get all the VITAMINS known.

Thru our way of teaching, you function the very muscles, which thru lack of functioning, cause you to become old and fat.

Yes, you too, be you man or woman, can retain your youthful figure. How about the 90 pound girl weighing a ton, and the 160 pounder dancing like a feather? We hope you understand us.

At this school we teach dancing so you can dance equally well with any partner. YOU, TOO, can learn that.

Unless a girl moves herself under her own power the man must partly carry her, and they are not carrying 'em this year. So there! Come here and have your dance troubles cured.

You can live the LIFE OF YOUTH all the time thru dancing. Learn to DANCE THE HUNTINGHOUSE WAY and live happy ever after.

SUBURBAN HIGH ROLLS DECLINE ONLY 1 PER CENT

Less than One-Sixth of Drop in City.

Suburban high school enrollments in Cook county declined an average of only 1.03 per cent this year from last year's figures, according to figures made public last week by Noble J. Puffer, county superintendent of schools. This was less than one-sixth the drop of 6.8 per cent recorded by public high schools in Chicago during the same period.

Eleven of the 21 suburban high schools which are in Puffer's jurisdiction recorded enrollment gains this year. These gains ranged from a tiny fraction to 129.2 per cent. The highest gain was registered by Orland Park Community High, a small school which has just changed from a three year to a four year high school curriculum.

Other School Gains.

The other 10 schools which showed registration gains during the opening week, the period covered by Puffer's comparison, were:

Arlington Heights, Barrington, Leyden Community, Lyons, Maine, New Trier, Niles Center, Northbrook, Orland Park Community, Palatine, and Riverside-Brookfield.

One high school—Blue Island—had exactly as many enrollees during the opening week this year as it had in 1940.

The schools which showed enrollment losses were: Argo, Bloom, Evanston, Lemont, Oak Park-River Forest, Proviso, J. Sterling Morton [Cicero], Thornton Fractional, and Thornton.

Family Size Decreases.

One factor that is responsible for at least part of the suburban high school decline is the falling birth rate of depression days, which is just catching up to high schools, in Puffer's opinion. He said that even the elementary school enrollments indicate that the size of the average family is getting smaller, altho the shrinkage is not as rapid as it was before the business upturn came.

In the table below a comparison is made between opening week enrollment figures for the 21 public high schools in Cook county outside of Chicago.

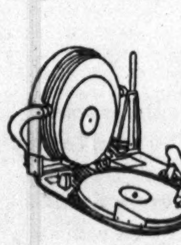
$349.50

THE fame of the Capehart automatic radio-phonograph has been built upon the rich reproduction of its radio unit and automatic record changing phonograph. Now, with FM (Frequency Modulation), the bright star of Capehart performance outshines all the firmament of radio-phonograph entertainment. For, as Capehart was built for the best AM (ordinary broadcast) reception, it naturally follows that its FM unit is nothing short of superb! Static and electrical interference of all kinds is virtually eliminated . . . and there's a new fidelity of tone that's almost unbelievable . . . a natural tone that only the rare combination of Capehart and FM could give you! Capehart offers you FM in both the Capehart De Luxe and the lower-priced Capehart-Panamuse. In most models of the De Luxe, it is standard equipment. In the Capehart-Panamuse, there is a slight additional charge. And don't forget—Capehart superiority is manifested in its gorgeous custom-styled period consoles as well!



Only the CAPEHART DE LUXE has the Automatic TURN-OVER Record Changer!

This is the famous record changer that plays up to 40 selections, 10" and 12" intermixed, turning over each record in succession, if you wish, to bring you up to 3 full hours of your favorite operas, symphonies, musicomedies and the like in their correct playing sequence! CHANGES ERASE LIABILITIES OF DECREPIT HOUSE

Doors Removed and Porch Added to Rear.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Last week we told the story of the purchase of a lamentably dejected home at 5324 Cumnor road, Downers Grove, and of the plans the new owners made and the hopes they entertained for its renovation. It had taken them quite some time to decide on its purchase. The liabilities of the house were too glaring, the assets too buried beneath a state of semi-dilapidation.

Porch Is Screened.

There were not many structural changes necessary nor was the exterior changed to any extent. It was the interior of the home which had showed the ravages of lack of upkeep over a period of years. A south porch was screened, a new sidewalk laid and there was a general reconditioning of hedges, shrubs, window boxes, and garden plot.

Inside, however, the changes were many.

Now, as you enter the home, the living room and dining room are closely related and beyond the dining room you see the large screened porch. Originally there had been French doors between the living room and dining room and these had cut down the feeling of openness or space. These doors have been removed and a new fireplace wall built.

The dining room sparkles an effective welcome and the large screened porch has been converted into a hospitable spot for lounging and relaxation. One entire wall is banked by a peach tree.

There's a breakfast room, gayly papered in a lively Mexican pattern—red figures on a cream background.

In the kitchen wood cupboards have been built around the base of the sink and over the range, where once was a built-in ironing board, is now an open cupboard for spices. The built-in pantry shelves and cupboards were left, but abundantly fitted with hooks for all manner of pots and pans.

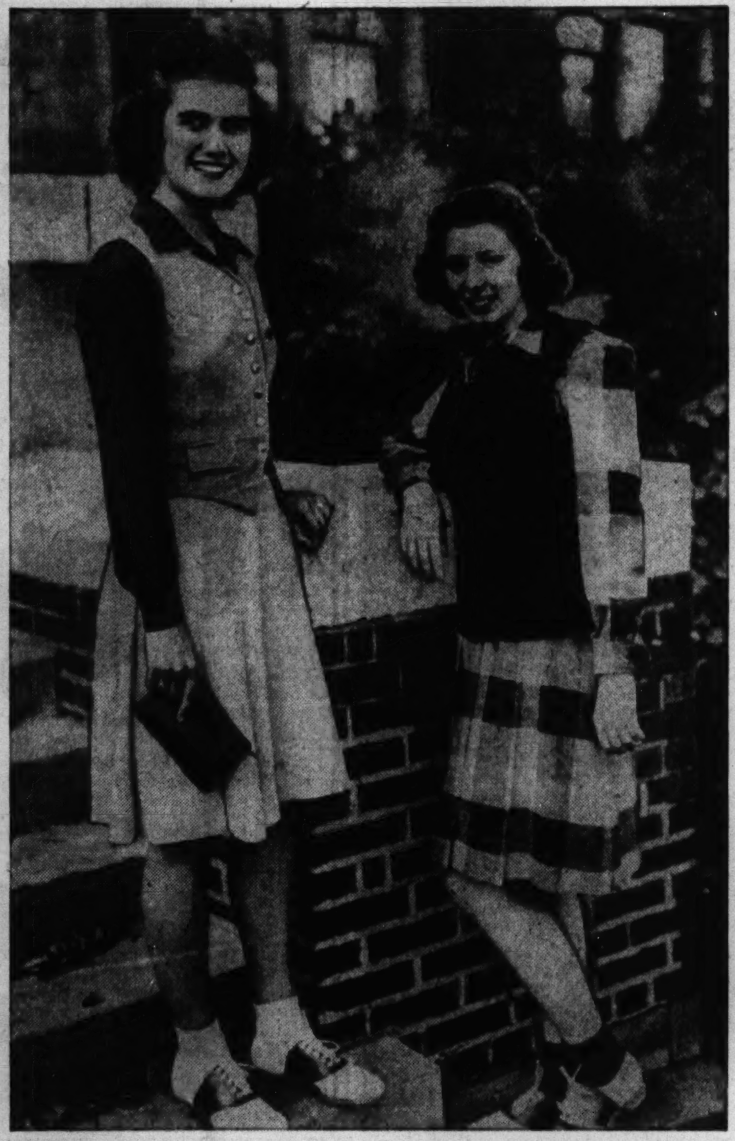
Has Upstairs Workroom.

Then, too, the stair wall to the basement has not been neglected but has been utilized with nails and hangers for garden equipment.

Upstairs the four rooms have been put to ingenius use.

There is a master's work room and studio with a deep cedar lined closet built from waste space over the stairs. Since there was no need for a closet in this room, the closet opening was closed off and a new one made in the master bedroom, thus giving this latter room two closets. There is also a playroom for the eight year old daughter of the house, its walls lined with shelves and filled with youthful treasures. The fourth room is the daughter's bedroom now, but later can be made into a study for her.

Show Fashions for School



Dottie Lew Dixon, left, and Charmion Nilsen pose for a prevue of two of the outfits to be worn at the Amundsen PTA fashion show Thursday afternoon in the school. Miss Dixon's beige wool skirt is topped by an emerald silk blouse and a watermelon pink wool wescoat. Miss Nilsen's brown and gold plaid classic dress is worn with a brown corduroy jerkin. An Amundsen junior, Nancy Colver, is staging and directing the show. She will be the commentator on Thursday.

FIRST MEETING OF N. U. CIRCLE IS NEXT FRIDAY

The school year's first meeting of the University circle of Northwestern university will be held in Scott hall at 2:15 o'clock Friday afternoon. A preview of the season's activities will be embodied in a skit written and directed by Mrs. Leon Kranz, Mrs. Lester Bockstahler, Mrs. Lloyd Herrold, and Mrs. Frank McKibben, Mrs. Lawrence Lawson, president, Mrs. Franklyn Bliss Snyder, and officers of the circle will greet members at the tea following the program.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Oct. 6.

Weather conditions change suddenly at this season and the garden should have all necessary work completed. It is time bulbs were in the ground; tulips may be planted. Replant old beds if they give few flowers. When old bulbs are lifted replant the largest for their flowers but collect the small bulbs until they mature sufficiently to flower.

Tuesday, Oct. 7.

A well drained, sandy loam, enriched with decayed organic manures is excellent for practically all kinds ot bulbs and they should have full sun the greater part of the day. In the colder sections, protect the beds after a heavy freeze with strawy manure, hay, straw, or other material to prevent heaving during early spring thaws and subsequent freezing. This applies to the perennials as well.

Wednesday, Oct. 8.

Plant shrubs, vines, and trees. Vines add much to the general effect. Plant along the porch and to screen buildings. They may be used along the fences, but in all cases they must be properly tended. The Dutchman's pipe is excellent where a heavy, dense growth is desired. It does well in sun or partial shade.

Thursday, Oct. 9.

Most fruit trees can be planted in the fall altho stone fruit tree planting is best done in the spring. Dwarf fruit trees are much to be preferred on the small yard. Dwarf trees are grafted on a slow growing stock and will grow no more than about 12 feet high and about the same distance wide.

Fruit trees grafted with at least five varieties add a fantastic touch to the growth. The espalier form of fruit trees is fast attracting attention; they are trained in fan shape, with the result that they do well grown against the side of the garage or house. Give them good soil.

Friday, Oct. 10.

Many perennials can yet be transplanted, but not when the ground is frozen. Late flowering kinds, such as the hardy chrysanthemums, should not be moved until spring unless well protected, because they simply lie in the ground without adequate rooting.

Saturday, Oct. 11.

Give evergreens, rhododendrons, and other broad-leaved plants a thoro watering before winter for they transpire moisture even tho they appear to be resting.

It is a fine time to visit displays of hardy chrysanthemum and note the kinds that appeal. These plants may be obtained in large variety, but only those that flower early and not later than Oct. 10 should be used or frost may cut them down.

What's in your Powder Box...

Age? Youth?

Certain shades of powder can be so unflattering! Be sure there's no traitor in your powder box—to accent little lines, to make you look older. Find your LUCKY SHADE!

By Lady Esther

'Ask any woman why she uses face powder—and she'll say to improve her appearance—to give her skin a nice soft tone, a youthful texture.

Imagine how shocked she'd be if you told her the powder she puts on with such confidence each morning is a traitor! Yes, a sly traitor that lives in her powder box—undoing all her efforts to look lovely—making her look older, less attractive!

What is your right shade—your lucky shade? You can't tell just by looking at the color in the box. No, you must try the different shades—really see them on your own skin.

So let me send you the nine new shades of Lady Esther Face Powder. Try each one. Your mirror will tell you which makes you look your youngest, your most glamorous.

You'll love the texture of my powder. It's made by my Twin-Hurricane method, which whirls and buffs it to a much softer, smoother texture than any ordinary face powder. That's why it clings so long—4 hours or more!

Try All 9 Shades FREE

Find your most flattering shade of Lady Esther Face Powder—without guesswork and without cost! Send for the 9 fascinating new shades—and try them all. You'll know your lucky shade; it makes you look younger, lovelier! Mail this coupon now, before you forget.

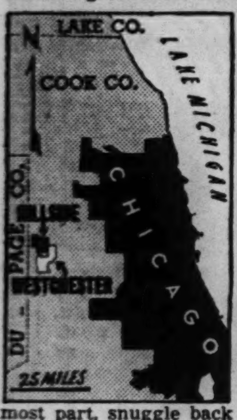
FESTIVAL TO OPEN NEW BUS SERVICE

WAIL OF SIREN SENDS VILLAGE FIREMEN ON RUN

Hillside Volunteers Keep Loss Low.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

One long wail of the siren at Bohlander's greenhouse means "fire!" in Hillside. After that, location of the blaze is designated by a signal code. The village is divided into five fire zones. Householders awakened in the middle of the night may, for the most part, snuggle back into the bed covers. Not the 13 chosen volunteers who have pledged themselves to protect property from flames. To them, the sound of the siren is a challenge.



What accounts for the smug assurance on the part of Hillside residents? Why is it that the Chicago Board of Underwriters gives property owners in the village the same classification as those in nearby Chicago? Why are fire losses in the suburb as low as three mills per capita per year? With observance of Fire Prevention week at hand, let's pay a visit to the Hillside volunteer fire department headquarters.

Test of a Fireman.

This is one of those drill nights that fall on the first and third Mondays of each month. To belong to the Hillside volunteer fire department you must welcome drill nights. The 500 gallon pumper with its 1,450 feet of hose may not be called upon for days on end. Always, of course, there is an air of expectancy about the red truck with the gold lettering on its side. But the excitement of a real fire is comparatively rare. If you look upon drill nights as tedious then you have no place in the department.

To Chief Theodore Geisler and his crew of a dozen, practice is as important as an actual fire run. Gone are the days when self-appointed leaders waited until something happened and then argued with each other over fire fighting tactics. The "sidewalk" chief may still have his say but he's given no chance to handle the hose.

As custodian of the Hillside public school building close to the fire station, Chief Geisler is handy when the siren sounds. He and John Trippel, foreman for the Public Service company and assistant chief, have been members of the department 15 years. John's brother, Karl Trippel, a machinist, is secretary of the organization.

Who Fireman Are.

There is another set of brothers in the group—John Sobol, a machinist, and Joseph Sobol, a cemetery foreman. The captain, Fred Bohlander, is a Hillside florist. Lieut. Harry Nieman is an electrician. Other members of the company are Edmund Mueller and John Altergott, employés of the American Can company; Leo Osborn, foreman for the Public Service company; George Holborn, machinist; Thomas O'Leary, nurseryman, and Lawrence Power, service station employé. Mr. Power, 20, is the youngest of the firemen.

"Our first requirement," explained Chief Geisler, "is that a member of the company be a resident of Hillside. By giving their time and effort they assure their loyalty to the community and we are assured that there are enough of them in town, day and night, to man the pumper. Our four officers are drivers of the pumper, and every man in the company has been schooled to drive it.

Paid for Each Run.

"Would it be too much to bring out that we're holding a benefit dance Oct. 11 at the Maywood club? You see, we receive no regular pay—$2 a call for the men and $3 for the chief.

"There may not be a man at the station when Bohlander get the telephone call, but there's always some one at the greenhouse day and night and the year around. We reach the scene of the fire in three and one-half minutes on the average run. We need at least three men on the truck. The rest follow in their own cars.

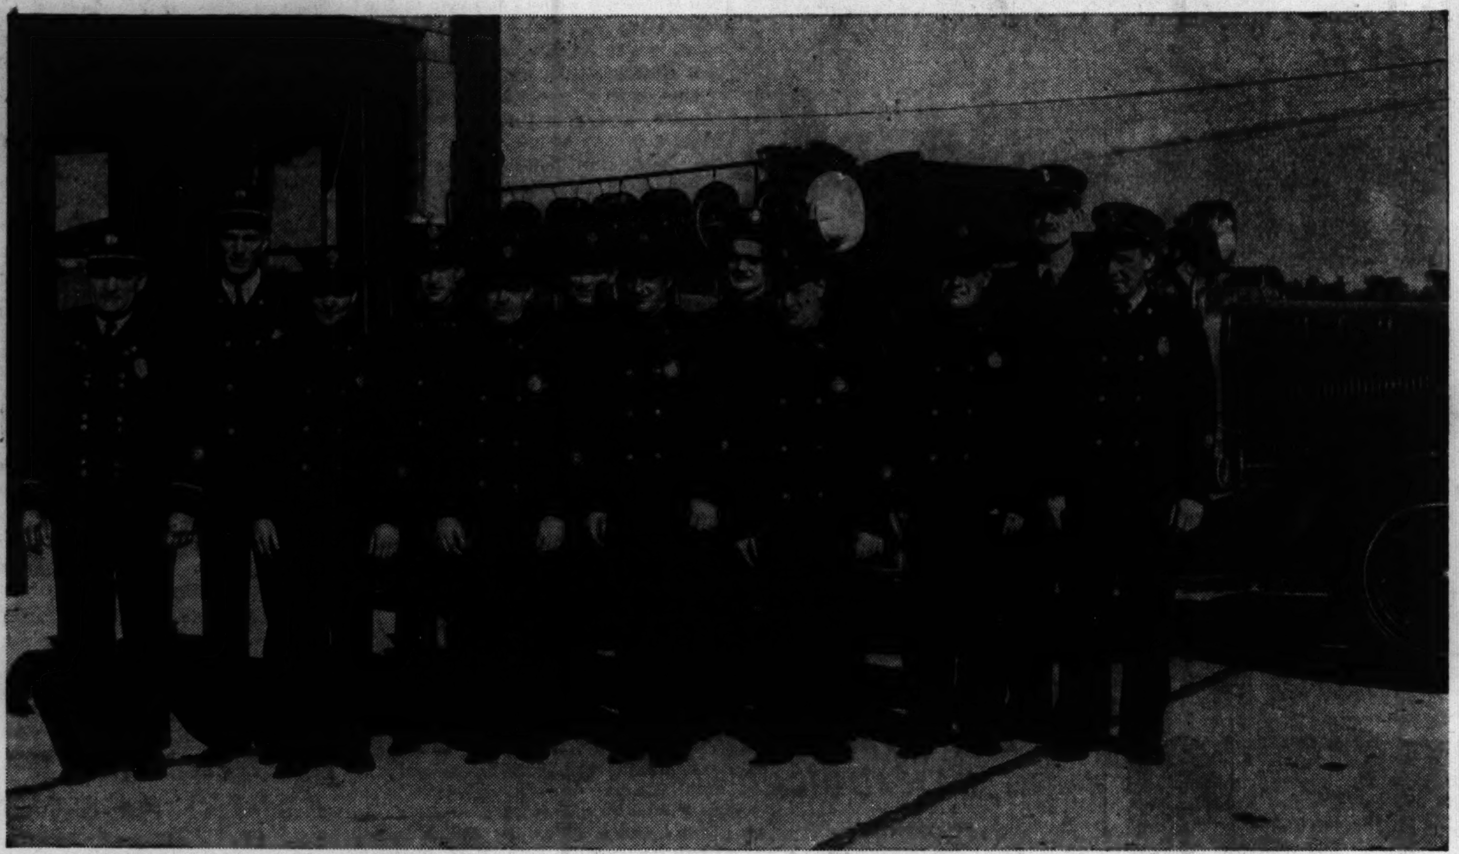
"If the fire is in the middle of the night a man can leave his house wearing his raincoat, helmet, and rubber boots. Earlier in the evening, a fellow may be dolled up for some social event and risk ruining his clothes."

Rookie Gets Trial.

In a department like the one at Hillside, each member must be versatile. His duties may not be the same at two consecutive fires. No one applies for a place on the department. If a vacancy occurs, a survey is made of eligible material. There is a 90 day trial during which the rookie must expect to take considerable razzing. When he makes the grade he considers it a compliment and so do the townspeople.

The water tower which has a 100,000 gallon capacity, provides 52 pounds of pressure at the far reaches of the town.

Fire Prevention Week Finds Hillside Prepared



Fire Prevention week finds the Hillside volunteer department fully conscious of its responsibility to the community. Lined up in front of the station, left to right, are Chief Theodore H. Geisler, Capt. Fred Bohlander, Lawrence Power, Secretary Karl Trippel, John Altergott, Thomas O'Leary, Joseph Sobol, John Sobol, George Holborn, Treasurer Edmund Mueller, Lieut. Harry Nieman, and Assistant Chief John Trippel. Leo Osborn, absent when the picture was taken, is the thirteenth member of the department.

Property protection in the village depends on the speed and efficiency with which the volunteers handle the hose. Only those who have taken training are permitted to go into action when fire threatens, and the voice of command must come from some one with long experience. Even in the smallest suburbs fire fighting no longer is left to self-appointed amateurs.

E. J. Thiele, president of Hillside for 18 years and formerly a member of the department, watches with interest while Chief Geisler (seated) and Assistant Chief Trippel make a fire report. Fire losses in the village have been as low as three mills per capita per year.

BERWYN CHURCH GROUP TO GIVE COMEDY TUESDAY

"Oh, My Stars," a comedy, will be presented Tuesday night at St. Leonard's auditorium, 33d street and Clarence avenue, Berwyn.

Members of the church group, directed by David Kinsman, who will take part in the play are Charlotte Kassel, Harlan Grillot, Dolores Jira, Tony Libal, Adam Serwat, Beatrice Mickenbecker, Jeannette Kraul, Bill Nolan, Lois Mlady, and Helen Zelesnik.

The Rev. Francis A. Ryan, pastor of St. Leonard's church, invites those who wish to cash in on their laugh insurance these troubled days to attend the play.

NEW CAR MODELS ON VIEW TODAY AT BERWYN SHOW

Automobile dealers of the west suburbs today will show the 1942 models at an exhibition to be held at 31st street and East avenue, Berwyn. Fourteen dealers, handling automobiles of every domestic manufacture, will take part in the show.

Entertainment will be provided by "Suicide" Siemers and his group of "dare devil" drivers. There will be an exhibition of precision driving, a firewall crash, a 40 foot dive crash and roll-over, and a stunt in which a car is driven over a hurdle of two automobiles and crashes into a third.

A football game also is planned as a sports event of the show.

CHURCH PARTY WILL AID FUND FOR REWIRING

To provide funds for the rewiring of Holy Family church, Roosevelt road and May street, a party will be held tomorrow night in the Morrison hotel. The original wiring was installed in the 81 year old church more than 40 years ago.

The fund has been named the Brother Thomas Mulkerins, S. J., memorial fund. Brother Mulkerins, as sacristan of the church for 52 years, tended the lights in the building for 36 years. More than 400 lights illuminate three hand-carved altars from the floor to the pinnacle, a height of 52 feet, shedding their light on the famous Murillo painting of the Holy Family and Sebastian Buscher's bas relief carving of Da Vinci's "Last Supper" on the main altar.

The organization membership is comprised of former residents of Michigan, Minnesota, and Wisconsin. The club was formed, according to Mr. Kolinen, for the purpose of making the lives of people from these three states more enjoyable in Chicago as well as to foster the spirit of coöperation between Chicago and the northland.

The club is in its second year and meets at 9 o'clock the third Wednesday night of each month at Viking hall, 935 School street.

OAK PARK CLUB KEEPS IDEAL OF LIFE BEAUTIFUL

19th Century Group Starts Jubilee.

For 50 years the 19th Century Woman's club of Oak Park has been dedicated to the proposition that life can be beautiful. Up the sweeping driveways, thru the Grecian pillared club entrance and to the flower trimmed tea tables, generations of women have walked for a half century in quest of culture.

This month another generation of women who swim in the modern pool and keep figures trim in the athletic department will look back at the founding of the club in celebration of its golden anniversary. Today it boasts more than 900 members, a score of philanthropies, a complete school of study courses for all women in the community and a list of celebrated artists, authors, and composers who share their secrets with the ladies at Monday afternoon meetings.

Tomorrow the golden anniversary year opens with president's day, a reception and a musical. From 3 to 6 o'clock. Sunday afternoon, Oct. 19, village officials will be fêted at tables arranged by Mrs. Charles Ward Seabury.

Picture Club's History.

The club history will be told thru "The Cavalcade of the 19th Century Woman's club," a historical narrative illustrated with tableaux and music, at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, Oct. 20.

At this meeting the members will turn back the pages of year books to find something of former ways. In the club days of 1891 there was no time for swimming or reducing exercises. Culture and political fact were crammed into an afternoon. In article VII. of the club constitution was the warning, "Members must endeavor to prepare themselves upon the work assigned to them."

At the second meeting in the autumn of '91 a Mrs. Ball spoke on "The Political Condition of England." Mrs. Talbot spoke on "The Political Condition of France," and a Mrs. Horton revealed "The Political Condition of Spain." Immediately following her talk a Mrs. Conant jumped to her feet and reiterated on "The Political Condition of Italy."

For dessert on this world-wide afternoon, a Mrs. Remick wound up with "The Influence of the Napoleonic Wars on Europe." The historian of the club, Miss May Estelle Cook, who prepared a golden anniversary treatise for the 1941-'42 yearbook, writes, "Thus the founders gave proof that they were determined to be cosmically correct in their thinking."

Voted for Relaxation.

Even pioneers need relaxation and Miss Cook writes in her history, "Programs became finite in length but subjects were still staggering—so much so that in the middle of the year a motion was passed that 10 minutes be given in the midst of the session for social intercourse."

The causes sponsored in 50 years also have been world-wide and varied. As early as 1894 the members wanted the vote. That year women were permitted to go to the polls but the only candidates they could vote on were University of Illinois trustees.

The club poured to the polls and voted for trustees with a dogged insistence. They indorsed homes for delinquent children, for kindergartens in the public school system, for a truant school, for high school libraries, gave $100 to the Legal Aid society, started a village library,

Causes Kept On.

The causes kept on. Between lectures and listening to symphonies the women appealed to the senate to pass arbitration treaties with Great Britain and France, protested against the desecration of Niagara Falls by the building of a power plant, fought for a 10 hour day for women, urged the increase of salaries for women teachers, and the forbidding of spitting in public.

With the coming of the first World war the women made sacrifices. A Red Cross unit was formed within the club. Teas were given up and no white bread was served at the luncheons.

Money was sent to the marines in France and one club member alone sold $41,000 worth of the fourth Liberty loan.

Had Other Objectives.

In Illinois the club indorsed bills for the preservation of the White Pine forest, for a mothers' pension, for prohibition of traffic in the plumage of birds. The club censored movies and demanded the enforcement of the ordinances regulating cigaret and liquor sale.

Miss Cook, who is one of the founders of the club still active, ends her history with an exhortation. She writes: "Let us hope that such a spirit as theirs may continue to 'Pour upon our lifted foreheads the boon of endless quest.'"

This year the club program is different than for the meeting days of long ago. Program chairman, Mrs. Edward A. Ribal, says she has eliminated all controversy and all propaganda. She says, "Political changes are constantly taking place. Our only heritage lies in culture." The women will listen to music critics and authors of books and plays. They will read poetry and confine their international relations to talk of South America.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

THE recent wedding of Miss Anne Elizabeth Bruner to Harold Penn took place as scheduled but only thru the coöperation of modern medical science with Dan Cupid. Six days before the date set for the church wedding, the prospective bridegroom was stricken with appendicitis and was rushed to the Garfield Park hospital for an operation. Two hundred invitations had been issued, catering service had been arranged, and every detail worked out for the wedding.

[Marshall Photo.]

Three days passed and the physician reported the patient doing well. Three days later at 3:30, o'clock in the afternoon, nurses and attendants helped Harold into his formal clothing. Two hours later he stood at the altar of the Warren Park Presbyterian church. The Rev. Stuart Pratt, pastor, prayed for the complete recovery of the groom and asked the wedding guests to "go easy" in their congratulations. The only alteration of original plans was the cancellation of the honeymoon trip.

Mrs. Penn is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Grant Bruner, 1607 South 60th court, Cicero. Mr. Penn is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Penn of Downers Grove.

JEANNETTE FLITCRAFT STETSON, 633 South Maple avenue, Oak Park, has been named vice chairman of the central committee of the General Conference of the Religious Society of Friends at its sessions held at George School, Pa. Mrs. Stetson is partly responsible for a new Friends [Quakers] meeting once a month in the home of her parents. She also is conducting knitting classes for those who wish to aid the American Friends service committee. To a newcomer, a Quaker meeting may appear strange. There is no pastor, no ceremonies take place, and no program for the service exists. Everything is centered upon the invisible communion of the soul with God.

Miss Helen Kurtti, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kurtti, 3508 Congress street, is the new treasurer of the student council of Manchester college, North Manchester, Ind. Miss Kurtti is a member of Tri Alpha, honorary dramatics society and the Women's Athletic association at the school.

ENJOYING visits with their relatives and friends, Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Pilz recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at their home, 119 Washington boulevard, Oak Park. Mr. Pilz was born in Kanigsberg, East Prussia, in 1865. He came to Chicago at the age of 18 and engaged in the dairy business. He is said to be the oldest milk distributor in the Chicago area. Mrs. Pilz was born in Chicago in 1871. A son, William Pilz, resides in Maywood. A daughter, Mrs. W. H. Wanderer, is a resident of Oak Park. There are nine grandchildren.

St. Ignatius Mothers' club will hold a reception for freshmen mothers at its first fall meeting Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in Damen hall, 1076 Roosevelt road. Mrs. John Station will be chairman.

ANN HRYNKO BECOMES MISS 20,000 AMONG TELEPHONE MAKERS

If there was such a number as HAWthorne 20,000 it should belong to Miss Ann Hrynko, 21, of 2225 West Walton street, recently acclaimed "Miss 20,000," by telephone makers at the Western Electric's Hawthorne plant. Miss Hrynko is the 5,976th person hired at Hawthorne works since September, 1940, when employment stood at 14,024. Not since 1937 has the figure been above 20,000. Miss Hrynko, whose parents were born in the Ukraine, was assigned to a department engaged in making telephone equipment for defense locations. She is a graduate of Wells High school.

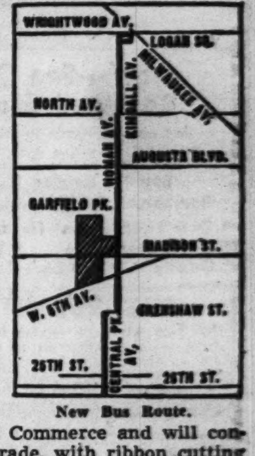
LINE TO OPERATE ON KIMBALL AND HOMAN AVENUES

Route Is from 25th to Logan Square.

Opening of feeder bus service on Kimball and Homan avenues from Logan Square to 25th street will be celebrated tomorrow night by civic and business leaders, public officials, and residents of Chicago's west side generally. The celebration is being sponsored by the West Towns Chamber of Commerce and will consist of a parade, with ribbon cutting ceremonies, taking place at Logan Square and at Roosevelt road on Central Park avenue. W. H. McManus, vice president of the West Towns chamber, general chairman of the celebration, will be assisted by Frank R. Campbell and Julian T. Fitzgerald.



New Bus Route.

Members of the committee in charge of the ceremonies at Logan Square are Charles V. Falkenberg, chairman, and Milton Friend and Representative Raymond T. O'Keefe, cochairmen. Festivities at Roosevelt road and Central Park avenue will be under the direction of Fred Fishman, chairman, and Coroner A. L. Brodie and Arthur Schimmel, cochairmen.

Will Hold Parade.

The big parade, which will travel the entire route over which the new buses will operate, will follow the ribbon cutting ceremonies to be held at 6:30 o'clock at Logan Square. Phillip E. Scanlan will be grand marshal. Division marshals are Harry Weimer, C. H. Nygren, Dr. Samuel M. Rakow, James J. Curtis, Charles Serum, Henry Feddersen, and William Devlin.

New buses for the run, purchased by the Chicago Surface lines, will be put into service immediately after the opening ceremonies.

Agitation for the feeder bus service was begun in January, 1935, when the West Towns Chamber of Commerce, represented by Fred J. Loyda and supported by more than 25 other west side organizations, petitioned the Illinois Commerce commission for permission to establish the service. At the time the groups produced evidence showing the inadequacy of north-south transportation facilities between Western and Cicero avenues, a distance of three miles.

Pays Tribute for Aid.

Chairman W. H. McManus pays special tribute to the support given the West Towns Chamber of Commerce by Milton Friend and the Logan Square Business Men's association, as well as their representatives, Mr. Falkenberg and Representative O'Keefe.

Among other organizations advocating the service were the West Side Traffic and Transportation association, Central Austin club, Chicago West Metropolitan league, West Property Owners' association, West Side Federation of Clubs, West Side Citizens Voters' league, Mid-West Side Kiwanis club, Merchants' Community council, West Towns Property Owners' alliance, Congress Street Development council, Austin Merchants association, and the Mid-West Chicago Avenue Business association.

Permission to establish the service was granted by the commerce commission in September 1940. However, the last serious barrier was only recently removed when the park district agreed to hand over to the city jurisdictional rights to two blocks on Homan avenue between Lake and Madison streets.

New Service on Way.

Farther west there is rejoicing over an order recently entered by the commerce commission directing the Chicago and West Towns Railways, Inc., and the Leyden Motor Coach company to operate motor buses on short stretches of North avenue, west of the city, to form connecting links with other routes of the companies. The new operation was scheduled to begin within 30 days.

The West Towns company was directed to operate a motor bus line on North avenue between Wolf road, present terminal of its North avenue route, and the city limits of Elmhurst, where the company operates a bus line on North avenue.

The Leyden company was directed to operate buses on North avenue between La Grange road and the city limits of Elmhurst, thereby connecting the present line on La Grange road with the local service in Elmhurst. The new buses will aid workers in going to and from the new Buick plant at La Grange road and North avenue. The plant, now under construction, will make airplane motor parts for the federal government.

Piano Recital to Feature Austin Academy Reception

A piano recital by Lester Hayes will feature the annual open house and faculty reception Tuesday night at the Austin Academy of Fine Arts, 631 North Central avenue.

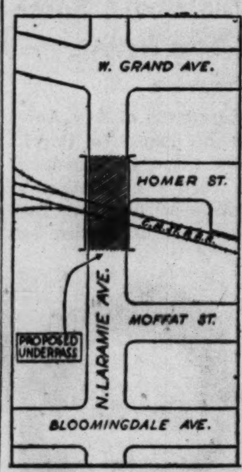
STATE APPROVES UNDERPASS FOR LARAMIE AVENUE

$392,000 of Cost to Be Borne by City.

Construction of the $392,000 Laramie avenue roadway under the tracks of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad near Grand avenue was ordered by the Illinois Commerce commission in a ruling handed down last week.



According to the commission ruling, the entire cost of construction, $392,000 must be borne by the city of Chicago. The railroad will pay the remaining $66,000 to elevate its tracks. If the ruling is accepted by city authorities, money will be appropriated from the city's share of the motor fuel tax fund.

In hearings before the commerce commission, the West and Northwest Area councils of the Chicago Motor club and representatives of civic and business organizations on the west and northwest sides expressed the need for another connecting link between the two sections of the city as represented by the opening of Laramie avenue.

Third Important Project.

The underpass will represent the third important project constructed in the area during the last few years. A similar depressed thorofare was opened for Austin avenue traffic in 1939. In 1940 the West and Northwest councils obtained the completion of one of their major projects in the opening of the Central avenue bridge across the same tracks.

According to Chief Engineer Arthur Engh of the city special improvement division the underpass will require an excavation 767 feet long with a grade of 4 per cent. The roadway under the eight tracks at this point will be 125 feet in length and 44 feet wide. There will be a sidewalk eight feet wide and the supporting columns will stand at the curb line.

Plan Recessed Lighting.

There will be a vertical clearance of 13 feet, 6 inches. Lighting will be of the recessed type used on Austin avenue. The project will also include the paving of Laramie avenue as far south as Bloomingdale avenue and north to Grand avenue. Here, too, the roadway will be 44 feet wide and there will be a five foot parkway and a six foot sidewalk. The railroad tracks will be raised two and a half feet. Laramie avenue is the beginning of the Galewood yards of the Milwaukee road.

The event, traditional of the season, is of city-wide interest and will be held at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of Oct. 14 in the grand ballroom of the Palmer House. The Rev. Lawrence Frawley is pastor of St. Giles church.

LEYDEN MASONS OBSERVE 25TH YEAR SATURDAY

Ritual and Dinner on Jubilee Program.

Wallace Clark.

Leyden lodge, No. 993, A. F. & A. M., the oldest Masonic group in Leyden township, will celebrate its 25th anniversary next Saturday afternoon and evening.

The program, under the direction of Wallace Clark, general chairman, will begin at 1:30 p. m. at Leyden Masonic temple. Master Mason degrees will be conferred by past masters of the lodge and memorial services will be held for deceased members. The services will be followed at 5 o'clock by a fellowship get-together.

More than 700 lodge members, wives, and friends will attend a banquet at 6 p. m. in the dining room of Leyden Township High school. The school band will present a half hour concert in the auditorium at 7:30.

Dance Is Climax.

M. Z. Sax will be master of ceremonies at the program for the evening beginning at 8 o'clock which will include music by the West Suburban Glee club and the introduction of past masters and charter members. The main address will be delivered by James W. Workman, D. D., LL. D., associate secretary of the general board of lay activities of the Methodist church. At 10 o'clock the floor will be cleared for dancing. Delegates from La Grange, Oak Park, River Forest, and other lodges in the district are expected to attend.

Thirteen of the original 54 members are still active and will take a prominent part in the anniversary festivities. They are Bellett Lawson, John Funk, Roscoe K. Fife, John Christian Grandt, August B. Kirchoff, William J. Koenig, Oscar A. Lundquist, John A. Newhouse, Klass W. Pelsma, Maurice Z. Sax, Thomas Henry Tiedemann, Elmer H. Tiedemann, and Arthur T. Tiedemann.

Recall Early Trials.

Robert E. Swen, worshipful master, has appointed more than 50 lodge members to assume responsibility for the celebration. Chairmen of the various committees include W. J. Koenig, anniversary book; T. H. Kirchoff, banquet; W. A. Wasson, publicity; Barney Reeves, public address system; C. E. Paetschow, auto parking; Charles Slocum, interlodge publicity; M. Z. Sax, program; P. T. Tiedemann, reception; Henry Taubman, decorations; E. P. Reeves, admission; R. A. Grubbs, dancing, and D. E. Radel, ushers.

Charter members of the lodge recall numerous anecdotes of the early days when automobiles were scarce and lodge meetings held in Des Plaines made transportation a problem. The members, however, would not be denied the privilege of attending lodge, so they used to rattle down the Soo line tracks on a hand car. Later they obtained permission to use an engine. This method of transportation was used until one winter night when the watchman, who was left to care for the engine, fell asleep, let the fire go out, and the engine froze.

Riverside Bride

Mrs. John F. Clark was Miss Carol Stapleton before her recent marriage in the rectory of St. Mary's church in Riverside. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude M. Stapleton of Riverside. A reception was held for 125 guests at the Oak Park Arms hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Clark are at home at 65 North Batavia avenue, Batavia, after a wedding trip thru New England.

ROOM SETTINGS STRESSED FOR FURNITURE WEEK

Community Stores Join in Annual Display.

Chicago's neighborhood and suburban stores are joining the loop in the celebration of National Furniture week which opened yesterday and will continue thru Saturday.

This year's exposition will emphasize everything for the home. Electrical appliances, rugs, draperies, and wall coverings will be featured as prominently as chairs, tables, and the larger items which make up the layman's classification of "furniture." The entire plan is built around this season's furniture week slogan, "Happiness Begins at Home."

Show Room Schemes.

One group of neighborhood stores will use displays arranged in "charm" houses. All pieces therein will be correlated not only with each other but with a selection of fabrics and other furniture pieces in the store's stock. A housewife who selects a chair will find drapery material that is correlated in color and pattern suitable to the period of the piece.

This correlation of period, color, and pattern has been worked out by experienced designers. The busy homemaker who makes use of this service saves time and energy.

The three most important furniture styles are modern, 18th century, and Federal American, in the order named. The bleached woods, both mahogany and walnut, and natural light oak are used for the modern styles. Either dark or light mahogany is popular for 18th century, and dark mahogany is used for today's version of Federal American. The Duncan Phyfe pieces are said to epitomize the American Federal period which flourished from Washington's inauguration to 1825.

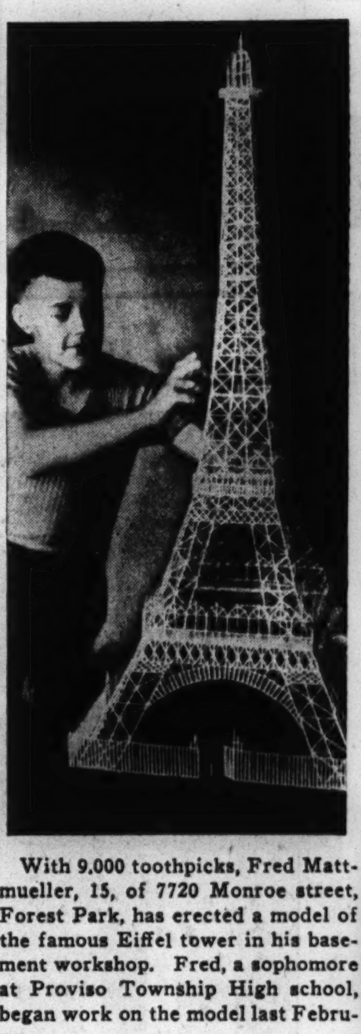
New Room Settings.

All stores are emphasizing new room settings this year. Special windows are dressed to indicate the 1941-'42 trend in everything from lamps to cake mixers. The season's most popular wood, dark mahogany, is often used with satinwood or boxwood inlay work. Stores have selected special furnishing problems. One is featuring a hall treatment display which includes commodes and mirrors in different styles and periods, and a wide use of statuettes and bric-a-brac.

EASTERN STAR UNIT TO SPONSOR FALL FESTIVAL

Prairie State chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, will hold a fall festival at 2 o'clock this afternoon in Clyde Community house, 61st avenue and 27th street, Cicero. Until 9 o'clock in the evening merchandise booths will be open for the selling of fancy work, bakery goods, novelties, dolls, and candy. Mrs. Stella V. Kampic is general chairman. Admittance will be free and a hot supper will be served in the ecommunity house.

Eiffel Tower Replica



With 9,000 toothpicks, Fred Mattmueller, 15, of 7720 Monroe street, Forest Park, has erected a model of the famous Eiffel tower in his basement workshop. Fred, a sophomore at Proviso Township High school, began work on the model last February.

YWCA HEALTH LEADERS HOLD PARLEY AT CAMP

Fun and discussion will feature a conference today of YWCA health education department at Camp Sagawau near Lemont. Attending will be athletes and health activity leaders of the West Side Center YWCA, 101 South Ashland avenue.

Mrs. Alice Ducey, health education director of the west side center, will be in charge of games. Representing the center on the steering committee are Mrs. Gladys Rasche, Maywood; Miss Blanche Sutton, 103 South Ashland avenue; Miss Margaret Burns, Cicero, and Miss Mildred Beck, 3420 West Van Buren street.

Miss Mina Comtes, 215 South Winchester avenue; Miss Barbara Petrick, 1740 Huron street; Miss Betty Cross, 1360 Washington boulevard, and Miss Blache Sutton are members of a city-wide committee that has prepared a quiz program.

Motor Club Places Signs Warning Drivers in Suburbs

Seven school crossing signs were erected on Lyons streets during the last few days by the Chicago Motor club and six signs were placed at strategic points on Maywood streets. Charles M. Hayes, motor club president, says the signs were placed at points on the city's streets where there is acute danger of traffic mishap involving both motorists and pedestrians.

NORTH CENTRAL COLLEGE OFFERS PILOT TRAINING

For the primary course, applicants must be United States citizens between 19 and 26 years of age, have completed one year of college training if now in attendance or have completed two years or more in college if not attending school now. Applicants also must pass the required physical examination.

Proviso Choir Alumni Plan Breakfast in Woods Today

Observing the third anniversary of the Proviso choir alumni, 125 members of the group will take breakfast together this morning at 7 o'clock in Thatcher's woods. All members have sung under the direction of R. Lee Osburn, head of Proviso High school music department.

Over Flying Fields

Robert Edison, 7121 Stanley avenue, Berwyn, recently passed all requirements for his private pilot's certificate. Edison has been flying the last year from Stinson airport, 55th street and East avenue. His instructor is Clarence Dittman.

Instructor Henry Douglas has moved into a new office at Stinson airport. The room has been painted cream and trimmed with red. A new blackboard awaits the names of pupils who solo. In making the move, "Doug" fell heir to a huge mirror. Girls, take notice. Few airports have mirrors.

Vernon Hodson of La Grange has organized a one-man committee against the weather. On the date set for him to go up for his private's license the wind blew and the rain dripped all day. The big day had to be postponed to Oct. 9.

"Like daughter, like father." Helen Zaborkrtsky won her flight license last May. Then Dr. James Zaborkrtsky took up flying. He has soloed and is now almost as enthusiastic as his daughter. The Zaborkrtskys reside at 436 North Elmwood avenue, Oak Park.

TWO DAY RIDE WILL BE CLIMAX OF TRAIL SEASON

BY HAROLD SMITH.

More than 100 horsemen and horsewomen are expected to participate in the two day pleasure ride of the Town and Country Equestrian association. The ride will start from the polo field at Harms and Golf roads in Morton Grove next Saturday.

W. Earle Butler, president, said that preliminary entries indicate the ride, the first of its kind the association has sponsored, will be better attended than any of the 100 mile trail rides which have climaxed the organization's trail activities for each of the last three years. Entries will close tomorrow.

Planned as Pleasure Trip.

"Unlike the 100 mile rides, which were rather severe tests for horse and rider, the two day is a pleasure trip requiring no special preparation," Butler said. "Any rider with ordinary riding skill, and any sound horse accustomed to regular work, can travel the distance of approximately 30 miles and return without difficulty.

The cavalcade will depart at 8:30 a. m. Saturday, following the forest preserve trail northward to Dundee road, thence west to the private trail system of the Riding Club of Barrington Hills. Mounted members of that organization will guide the visitors thru the paths to the ride destination, the Horse farm on Algonquin road four miles southeast of Algonquin.

Evening of Western Fun.

A ranch style dinner and an evening of western entertainment will be held at the farm Saturday. There will be a rodeo, a roaring campfire, and a barn dance in the huge hayloft. Many nonriders will attend the party.

After an outdoor breakfast Sunday morning the return ride will begin. It will double back over the outbound trail, arriving back at the starting point about 6 p. m. Sunday.

The two day is the third and final trail ride on the 1941 association calendar.

BIG CHART KEEPS TRACK OF 10,594 IN ROTC ARMY

Nerve Center in Office of Col. W.F. Morrison.

For the last three weeks the commands of "Squads left" and other such military jargon have been echoing in 27 Chicago high schools where 10,594 students are undergoing military training as ROTC cadets. The unit is the largest in the nation and the figure represents the greatest voluntary enrollment in the 24 year history of Chicago's ROTC.

Responsibility for training the unit, which is almost the size of a regular army streamlined division, rests with Col. William F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics in the Chicago public schools.

Included in the List.

This includes drill and command, calisthenics, marksmanship, first aid, scouting and patroling, military organization, military history, musketry, and map reading. The cadets spend one period, of 45 minutes duration, each school day in ROTC instruction. Aside from this time many of them spend after school hours of their own accord drilling with their school's crack platoon or practicing with the rifle team.

Each of the school's regular army sergeants, who act as military instructors, follow the chart's outline of study in teaching the cadets. They must devote so many hours during the semester to each of the various phases of instruction. They must forward weekly reports to Col. Morrison's office showing what instruction the cadets have received during the week.

While good outdoor weather prevails, the cadets are receiving four hours a week instruction in drill.

Hold Officers School.

Altho the military instructors preside over the instruction, the new cadets are taught by the cadet officers who have received their promotions thru competitive examinations. Three or four days a week the military insrtuctors hold officers' school, at which time the instructors outline to the cadet officers the training that is to be emphasized for the following day or week.

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

The silver wings and gold bars of a lieutenant were presented recently to William R. Schuler, 933 Wenonah avenue, Oak Park, at his graduation from the air corps advanced flying school at Brooks field, Texas. Schuler is the son of Mrs. Gertrude M. Schuler. He completed the final phase of the air corps training program under the direction of Lieut. Col. Stanton T. Smith. He has spent seven and one-half months as an aviation cadet in the United States army air corps, is now trained in formation flying, instrument flying, interception problems, and day and night cross country flying.

The first anniversary of Corporal Walter Kulbieda as an enlisted soldier in the United States army was celebrated by his younger brother enlisting and leaving for Chanute field. The young brother is already a fourth class specialist. His name is Henry J. Kulbieda and he is in the 1st school squadron, barracks 192, at Chanute field, Rantoul. Walter is with Battery C, 10th brigade of the 4th infantry regiment at Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

West side boys sent to Camp Polk, Louisiana, where they will serve with the 3d armored division are Ralph Rabe, Maywood; Albert Zaloudek, Berwyn; Raymond Pergler, Berwyn; Charles Pierce, 23 South Mason avenue; George Stephens, Cicero, and Leonard Poteracki, 2443 Augusta boulevard.

Among the trainees at Fort Knox armored force training center named to special duty this week at the discharge section is Private Charles L. Gauger, River Forest, who has been placed in the office of this branch of service temporarily to help arrange the disposal of more than a thousand selectees who will be discharged before December.

CHANGES ERASE LIABILITIES OF DECREPIT HOUSE

Doors Removed and Porch Added to Rear.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Last week we told the story of the purchase of a lamentably dejected home at 5324 Cumnor road, Downers Grove, and of the plans the new owners made and the hopes they entertained for its renovation. It had taken them quite some time to decide on its purchase. The liabilities of the house were too glaring, the assets too buried beneath a state of semi-dilapidation.

Porch Is Screened.

There were not many structural changes necessary nor was the exterior changed to any extent. It was the interior of the home which had showed the ravages of lack of upkeep over a period of years. A south porch was screened, a new sidewalk laid and there was a general reconditioning of hedges, shrubs, window boxes, and garden plot.

Inside, however, the changes were many.

Now, as you enter the home, the living room and dining room are closely related and beyond the dining room you see the large screened porch. Originally there had been French doors between the living room and dining room and these had cut down the feeling of openness or space. These doors have been removed and a new fireplace wall built.

The dining room sparkles an effective welcome and the large screened porch has been converted into a hospitable spot for lounging and relaxation. One entire wall is banked by a peach tree.

There's a breakfast room, gayly papered in a lively Mexican pattern—red figures on a cream background.

In the kitchen wood cupboards have been built around the base of the sink and over the range, where once was a built-in ironing board, is now an open cupboard for spices. The built-in pantry shelves and cupboards were left, but abundantly fitted with hooks for all manner of pots and pans.

Has Upstairs Workroom.

Upstairs the four rooms have been put to ingenius use.

There is a master's work room and studio with a deep cedar lined closet built from waste space over the stairs. Since there was no need for a closet in this room, the closet opening was closed off and a new one made in the master bedroom, thus giving this latter room two closets. There is also a playroom for the eight year old daughter of the house, its walls lined with shelves and filled with youthful treasures. The fourth room is the daughter's bedroom now, but later can be made into a study for her.

Freshmen Guests at Tea

Monday, Oct. 6.

Weather conditions change suddenly at this season and the garden should have all necessary work completed. It is time bulbs were in the ground; tulips may be planted. Replant old beds if they give few flowers. When old bulbs are lifted replant the largest for their flowers but collect the small bulbs until they mature sufficiently to flower.

Due to war conditions and the loss of importations gardeners should take full care of their bulbs. However, American grown bulbs may be had and they are as good as any importation.

Tuesday, Oct. 7.

A well drained, sandy loam, enriched with decayed organic manures is excellent for practically all kinds of bulbs and they should have full sun the greater part of the day. In the colder sections, protect the beds after a heavy freeze with strawy manure, hay, straw, or other material to prevent heaving during early spring thaws and subsequent freezing. This applies to the perennials as well.

Wednesday, Oct. 8.

Plant shrubs, vines, and trees. Vines add much to the general effect. Plant along the porch and to screen buildings. They may be used along the fences, but in all cases they must be properly tended. The Dutchman's pipe is excellent where a heavy, dense growth is desired. It does well in sun or partial shade.

The Akebia quinata, with its five foliate leaves and dark colored flowers of unique appearance need support. Plant Boston ivy on walls. It will do no harm to walls but it must be kept trimmed along window casings. It can be grown from seed sown in fall.

Thursday, Oct. 9.

Most fruit trees can be planted in the fall altho stone fruit tree planting is best done in the spring. Dwarf fruit trees are much to be preferred on the small yard. Dwarf trees are grafted on a slow growing stock and will grow no more than about 12 feet high and about the same distance wide.

Fruit trees grafted with at least five varieties add a fantastic touch to the growth. The espalier form of fruit trees is fast attracting attention; they are trained in fan shape, with the result that they do well grown against the side of the garage or house. Give them good soil.

Friday, Oct. 10.

Many perennials can yet be transplanted, but not when the ground is frozen. Late flowering kinds, such as the hardy chrysanthemums, should not be moved until spring unless well protected, because they simply lie in the ground without adequate rooting.

If necessary, the entire border may be revamped. Simply dig up all the plants, unless certain ones, like the peonies, are permanent and dislike frequent moving, and heel them in in a section of the garden and then fertilize and dig the border after which replanting can be done. Do not overplant.

Saturday, Oct. 11.

Give evergreens, rhododendrons, and other broad-leaved plants a thoro watering before winter for they transpire moisture even tho they appear to be resting.

It is a fine time to visit displays of hardy chrysanthemum and note the kinds that appeal. These plants may be obtained in large variety, but only those that flower early and not later than Oct. 10 should be used or frost may cut them down.

EXCEPT FOR R. R. CHURCH WOULD BE CENTENARIAN

So Glen Ellyn Unit Is Noting Fifty Years.

If the railroad had not come to Glen Ellyn, the First Methodist church in that suburb already would have celebrated its centennial instead of observing its golden anniversary this month.

W. L. Fergus, digging into the records for the publication of a book to be distributed during the jubilee, finds that church services were conducted by circuit riders in the log cabins of early settlers on the Du Page river as early as 1837. Deacon Winslow Churchill, the first settler, was a Methodist class leader whose descendants still reside in the community.

The Churchill family almost constituted a congregation in itself. With other settlers, they built a church so well that the structure, altho long since devoted to other purposes, still stands. The site was at the top of the hill at what is now the "five corners" in Glen Ellyn where Geneva and St. Charles roads fork at Main street. In the early days, the spot was called Du Page Center, and it was an important stop for stage coaches on their way to Galena. Blacksmithing and carriage work were the principal industries.

Couldn't Foresee Change.

One of the four blacksmith shops was used for church services and Sunday school meetings while the church was being built in what seemed destined to continue as a thriving community.

When the railroad came, it skirted around the high hill a good mile to the south. The stagecoach business began to lose out, and all other businesses and most of the inhabitants moved down the hill to the town of Danby, now the heart of the Glen Ellyn business district.

Eventually, the pioneer preachers forsook the church on the hill, and it was not until the fall of 1891 that the present Methodist church was organized.

During the Civil war the little old church was moved down to Danby and for 30 years was used for worship by the Congregational church of Glen Ellyn. In its location on Crescent boulevard, between Forest avenue and Park boulevard, the building was utilized first as a public hall and then as a private residence. It has now been converted into small apartments.

To Celebrate Anniversary.

The Methodist church of Glen Ellyn this month will observe its 50th anniversary under the general chairmanship of Ray C. Carlson, with the Rev. Roy Crocker, pastor, as honorary chairman.

Today will be rally day at the church where members of the congregation will gather their forces for events to follow. Next Sunday, families of the church will sit together as did Deacon Churchill's family more than a hundred years ago. It will be Family Sunday.

Oct. 19 will be Loyalty Sunday, at which time Dr. C. A. Bloomquist, a former pastor who served at the time the present church structure was built, will return to the pulpit. A feature of the program will be calling of the Roll of Honor for 25 year members.

Bishop to Preach.

Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf will preach the anniversary sermon on Homecoming Sunday, Oct. 26. C. D. Nickey and F. R. Hayworth will be in charge of Homecoming day.

Dr. Merton S. Rice of the Metropolitan church in Detroit will speak at the anniversary banquet, Oct. 21, in the church dining room. The banquet will be in charge of Mrs. Earl M. Hardine and Mrs. C. E. McKee.

Those in charge of publicity for the anniversary celebration are W. L. Fergus, John Gilbert, Emile Kaltenbach, Mrs. C. E. Shattuc, Ralph Canfield, Nevin Gage, and Walter Julius. Others active in the arrangements are Mrs. Inez Hubbard Hicks, music; Mrs. C. E. McKee, tickets; Lee Harlan, Sunday school, and Edith Hookham, young people's groups.

Painter to Give Lecture at Elgin Academy Today

Anita Willets-Burnham, painer, author, and traveler, will lecture this afternoon at the Sears art gallery of the Elgin academy, Elgin, which will open its fall season with an exhibition and tea. Hostesses will be members of Alpha Zeta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Ralph Abel.

COUPLE TO CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING AT CHURCH HOMECOMING

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. H. Melville Mills will be celebrated today at the annual homecoming services of Millard Avenue Presbyterian church, 1908 South Millard avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Mills, who were married in St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 7, 1891, have been residents of Chicago since that time and members of the church since 1915.

Altho they now reside at 1140 North La Salle street, Mr. Mills, 75, and his wife, 76, make the long trip to the church by street car each Sunday morning. In addition, Mr. Mills is usually at the church several evenings each week.

Mrs. Mills is a direct descendant of Nathaniel Hawthorne. Included in the family tree of Mr. Mills are Miles Standish and John Alden. Mr. Mills has been active in the church publishing business for 50 years. For many years he was secretary of the Cook County Sunday School association. He now is superintendent of the Sunday school at the Millard avenue church.

There will be a tea and reception for Mr. and Mrs. Mills at 5 o'clock. The golden wedding observance will be at 7:30 o'clock, and the homecoming service will be at 8 o'clock.

SUBURBAN HIGH ROLLS DECLINE ONLY 1 PER CENT

Less Than One-Sixth of Drop in City.

Suburban high school enrollments in Cook county declined an average of only 1.03 per cent this year from last year's figures, according to figures made public last week by Noble J. Puffer, county superintendent of schools. This was less than one-sixth the drop of 6.8 per cent recorded by public high schools in Chicago during the same period.

Eleven of the 21 suburban high schools which are in Puffer's jurisdiction recorded enrollment gains this year. These gains ranged from a tiny fraction to 129.2 per cent. The highest gain was registered by Orland Park Community High, a small school which has just changed from a three year to a four year high school curriculum.

Other School Gains.

The other 10 schools which showed registration gains during the opening week, the period covered by Puffer's comparison, were:

Arlington Heights, Barrington, Leyden Community, Lyons, Maine, New Trier, Niles Center, Northbrook, Orland Park Community, Palatine, and Riverside-Brookfield.

The schools which showed enrollment losses were: Argo, Bloom, Evanston, Lemont, Oak Park-River Forest, Proviso, J. Sterling Morton [Cicero], Thornton Fractional, and Thornton.

Show Industrial Demand.

The losses for the most part were heaviest in industrial communities where the high schools have been emphasizing industrial arts in their curriculums. This bears out the explanation advanced by Chicago school officials for their enrollment losses that the defense program is making a heavy demand on all institutions teaching the mechanical skills.

High school faculty members both in and near Chicago have reported that help-starved industry is hiring every artisan who has any semblance of mechanical training. The trend of high school students from classrooms to factories is heaviest in the eleventh and twelfth grades, they report.

A case in point is the Sterling Morton High school in Cicero, the largest suburban high school in the Chicago area with a 1941 enrollment of 5,506, down 390, or 6.67 per cent below last year. This school, which stresses industrial arts heavily, is near the Western Electric company plant and others engaged in manufacture colsely allied to the preparedness effort, and has lost many of its upper classmen to such institutions.

Family Size Decreases.

One factor that is responsible for at least part of the suburban high school decline is the falling birth rate of depression days, which is just catching up to high schools, in Puffer's opinion. He said that even the elementary school enrollments indicate that the size of the average family is getting smaller, altho the shrinkage is not as rapid as it was before the business upturn came.

In the table below a comparison is made between opening week enrollment figures for the 21 public high schools in Cook county outside of Chicago.

Walt Disney.
[Acme Photo.]

"Walt Disney's Song Parade," a new musical feature presenting song hits from all the famous Disney movies, will make its radio debut on W-G-N and 78 Mutual stations from coast to coast at 3:30 p. m. today. Highlight of the first broadcast will be the introduction of the tunes from the new Disney picture, "Dumbo at the Circus."

The "Song Parade" will be heard every Sunday afternoon. The opening broadcast will go on at 3:30 unless the world series game interferes. If this happens the new program will be aired at 5:15 p. m.

JUDY TON GETS HER BIG CHANCE IN 'HAROLD TEEN'

Judy Ton, young Columbus, O., actress, has become a regular member of the "Harold Teen" company on W-G-N. "Harold Teen" is aired at 8:30 p. m. [CDST] Tuesdays.

Judy plagued Chicago radio producers for six weeks before she got her chance. But last week Blair Walliser, producer of "Harold Teen," invited her to play two rôles—a housewife and a colored maid. Then she got sick with laryngitis. She was treated by four doctors and just before rehearsal time her voice came back. By the time she went on the air her voice was in fine form. Walliser invited her to make a curtain speech after the broadcast and she was warmly applauded.

Charles Flynn plays the part of the irrepressible Harold.

Repeal of Neutrality Act, Topic of Forum of Air

"Repeal of the Neutrality Act" will be the subject for debate from 8 to 8:15 tonight [CDST] on W-G-N and the Mutual network when the American Forum of the Air presents two senators and two congressmen who will argue the administration's latest move to aid England. Opposing the repeal of the bill will be Senator Guy M. Gillette of Iowa and Representative James F. O'Connor of Montana. Arguing in favor of a change will be Senator Albert B. Chandler of Kentucky and Representative James W. Wadsworth of New York.

'TERRY AND PIRATES' TO MAKE BOW OVER W-G-N TOMORROW

"Terry and the Pirates," for many years a favorite adventure strip of Chicago Tribune readers, will make its radio debut on W-G-N at 5:15 p. m. tomorrow. Pat, Burma, Terry, the Dragon Lady, and the other characters created by Milton Caniff are to be portrayed every Monday thru Friday in this radio serial.

The radio series will be built around the adventures of Terry and his friends in the Chinese war. Caniff had been approached many times before to allow his comic strip characters to become radio personalities. But he had always refused, saying that he didn't want "Terry and the Pirates" to become just another "kid show."

The radio version of his story starting tomorrow has been written to conform with his newspaper standards. The script will blend sophistication and sheer romantic adventure. Pat Ryan and his sundry girl friends will live a spicy life of their own in this story of the Chinese war, while Terry and other characters will be interwoven in an endless train of hair raising events.

W59C, NEW FM STATION, ADDS NEW FEATURES

Music Supplemented by Discussion Periods.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Jan Tomasow.
[Copyright: Nehdoff.]

New programs of outstanding music showing off the tonal beauties possible thru frequency modulation have been added to the schedule of W59C, the new FM station of W-G-N, Inc., which was opened a fortnight ago.

W59C, which is on the air from noon to midnight daily, has also added several public service features to supplement the broadcasting of the latest news every hour on the hour.

In addition to frequent concerts by the W-G-N Concert orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, W59C is presenting its own orchestra, conducted by Jan Tomasow, Argentine violinist. The W59C orchestra presents music specially suited to the superiorities of FM from 7:30 to 8 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. They are heard at other times thruout the week—sometimes during the dinner concerts.

Featured As Violinist.

Tomasow came to the attention of Henry Weber, musical director of both stations, last summer during appearances in the Grant Park concert series. Weber liked his work and engaged him for the new station. Tomasow is featured as violinist with the group. Hazel Simms is the pianist; Richard Beidel of the Chicago Symphony orchestra is the 'cellist; Edmund Weingart, second violinist. Preston Sellers, well known organist, presides at the console.

Another new musical feature on W59C is the vocal recital series featuring Kathryn Witwer, soprano, at 4:05 p. m. Wednesdays. She is supported by the FM orchestra.

Other Musical Programs.

The W-G-N Concert orchestra is heard on W59C at 2:30 p. m. Wednesdays and Thursdays; the Dream Ship, a program of soft, relaxing music at 10:30 p. m. nightly.

The Perfectionists' hour, recorded music of the masters, is aired from 9 to 10 nightly except Saturday when it runs from 8 to 9 p. m.

Musical highlight of the week on W59C is the presentation of the Chicago Theater of the Air operettas, sent out over W-G-N and Mutual as well. These are aired from 9:45 p. m. to 11. Next Saturday the "Vagabond King" starring Marion Claire and Thomas Thomas will be the feature presentation.

Many fine recorded programs are presented every day.

Offer Radio Travelog.

W59C broadcasts, besides music and the news, such programs of public interest as the weekly talks by speakers of the Executives' club luncheons at 1:05 each Friday; the Washington comments of Fulton Lewis Jr. at 7 p. m. Mondays thru Fridays, and the American Forum of the Air at 8 p. m. Sundays.

Another new FM feature is "See Chicago," a radio travelog by Robert Doyle, aired weekdays at 1:05 except Fridays. The program presents a calendar of interesting events of the theater and concert halls and presents interesting material about Chicago's history and traditions.

Estelle Barnes, formerly with WAAF as pianist, writer, and program arranger, has been appointed program manager of W59C.

BREAKFAST TIME FROLIC BACK AS W-G-N FEATURE

"Breakfast Time Frolic," W-G-N morning program that was popular with early risers last fall and winter, will be back on the air from 6 to 7 a. m. starting tomorrow. The show will be heard every Monday thru Friday.

John Tyson will conduct the program and present the songs and music of the Carter Family, J. E. Mainer's Mountaineers, Patsy Montana, little 6 year old Beverly, and Cowboy Slim Rinehart.

Special features to be added this year will include a complete weather report at 6:30, hometown spotlight greetings, highlight flashes of rural news notes, and a time reading every five minutes.

Familiar Music Aired.

The Music America Loves Best by the Artists America Loves Best, a new series of recorded programs of semi-classical music, is aired Mondays thru Fridays from 9:30 to 9:45 a. m. over WMAQ.

Pixilated Pair

George Burns and Gracie Allen aided by Paul Whiteman and his orchestra will start their new fall comedy series over W-G-N at 9:30 p. m. next Thursday. The show is aired over NBC Tuesdays.

George Burns and Gracie Allen will be back on the air with a new show this fall. They will be heard in Chicago thru W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 p. m. CDST starting next Thursday. They will be heard nationally over NBC, broadcasting twice on Tuesday evenings.

Supporting the comedy team in their new show will be Paul Whiteman's orchestra, Jimmy Cash, singing discovery, and Señor Irving Lee, eccentric guitarist, and Bill Goodwin, announcer.

Gracie will introduce her 25 year old discovery, Jimmy Cash, whom she found working in a Burbank, Cal., grocery. Whiteman, in addition to contributing instrumental novelties to the show, will enter into the fun and will introduce Señor Lee.

Goodwin will appear in comedy stooge rôles which he will create for the series. Goodwin is also heard on two other W-G-N shows, Mutual's "Three Ring Time" with Milton Berle, Charles Laughton, Shirley Ross and Bob Crosby's orchestra, and as announcer for the Jimmy Fidler Hollywood broadcast.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK WILL BE MARKED BY W-G-N

Anthony J. Mullaney, deputy chief fire marshal, and several other Chicago fire department officials and firemen will take part in a special broadcast on W-G-N at 11 a. m. today, first day of Fire Prevention week.

The broadcast will come from headquarters of Engine Company No. 5 at 326 South Des Plaines street, commanded by Capt. Thomas Mulcahy. The program will be presented thru the W-G-N mobile unit and short wave transmitter. Members of the W-G-N Special Events department will be in charge, with Charles Victor the announcer.

Chief Mullaney will describe preparations made by the department for Fire Prevention week. Capt. Mulcahy then will lead a tour of the fire station. Firemen on the broadcast will be Hugh Prendergast, John Daly, and Richard Houren.

On Wednesday at 3 p. m. CDST, W-G-N and the Mutual network will present a talk by Alvah Small, president of the National Fire Protective association. Wednesday is the 70th anniversary of the great Chicago fire.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

BLIND STUDENTS KEEP PACE WITH SEEING FRIENDS

Marshall High Helps Six Toward Education.

Six of the freshman students who entered Marshall High school this month are blind. They take the same courses, write their papers, and do the same reference work, however, as the other students.

They sit in the same classes and find their way from classroom to classroom amid the mad rush of fellow students. There is no special allowance made for their blindness and they don't need any. The braille department at Marshall High school is founded on the theory that the blind child must be educated to adapt himself to a sighted world.

Two Special Teachers.

The only difference between the braille department student and the sighted student is that he has two special teachers, Mrs. Grace Heck and Mrs. Helen Rueben. These teachers figure out ways to help their students "see" a figure in geometry and they devise ways for the braille student to work his algebra problems.

The six freshmen are Helen Migala, James Riley, Virginia Kolacki, Darwin De Brown, Rena Albarello, and William Johnson. Rena has to come the longest distance to school because her home is at 11360 Champlain avenue. A good friend of hers, Grace Wilder, transferred from Hyde Park High school so the girls could come to Marshall together. Grace acts as guide on the long trek by railroad and bus.

Each student was assigned to an upper class sponsor who is also a student in the braille department. Immediately the blind freshman becomes a part of the group and feels at home. A schedule of his courses is made for him by Mrs. Heck or Mrs. Rueben on a braille typewriter.

All Use Typewriters.

The blind students are never set apart. There is a bingo game which they can play with their sighted friends, for numbers are written both in braille and in print. They type all papers using the touch system on regular typewriters so the classroom instructors can read them.

Three of the students are taking Latin this semester. They use a copy of the Latin book in braille. Algebra is the only class which they have in the braille department rooms. This is taught by Mrs. Rueben who has devised a series of cut outs and a slate for working problems.

Must Interpret Phrases.

There must be a special teacher on hand to interpret vocabulary now and then. Mrs. Rueben one day was reading a poem from Longfellow in which there was the phrase, "the muted beam." How could a teacher translate the meaning of this phrase to a child who could not see? How could a teacher explain what a shaft of sunlight with dancing dust particles would look like?

Somehow the special teacher must make the child see by comparing this shaft of light to something the child has experienced, a current of air. Patiently the teacher explains about the dancing dust in the beam of light and slowly the poem takes on beauty and meaning. The special teachers get their rewards when the braille student's face lights up and he says smiling, "Yes, indeed, I see what you mean."

FESTIVAL TO OPEN NEW BUS SERVICE

SIREN'S SCREAM BRINGS SUBURB FIREMEN ON RUN

Palatine's Chief Is First at Blaze.

BY HARRY FISHER.

Every day at noon the siren behind the Palatine fire house whines out a harsh tocsin to let the townfolk know it's time for lunch. It's been doing that faithfully now for 15 years and has become as much a part of village life as the 4 o'clock milk train or the morning chat in front of the postoffice.

The 12 o'clock whistle has a high, sustained pitch, but at any other time of the day or night the villagers note its excited vacillating quality. They know this means fire. And so do the 24 members of the Palatine volunteer fire department who can be seen scurrying to the station from every part of town and in varying stages of dress.

The first three men there jump on the village's newest fire truck and race off. More men arrive and the second truck roars away, followed closely by a third. Stragglers who miss the last truck must get to the blaze under their own power, but that's seldom necessary so keen is the competition to be first on the scene.

Chief Goes on Ahead.

Meanwhile the telephone operator, who sounded the alarm by pressing a button above her switchboard, has called Fire Chief Wesley R. Comfort Jr. He usually speeds to the fire ahead of the others.

Excepting this one diversion—"mania" some of the wives call it—the members of the department live pretty normal lives. Take Henry Roesner, the assistant chief, for instance. Most of the time you'll catch him waiting on customers in his grocery. Elmer Walter, secretary of the outfit, and Orville Helms, treasurer, are butchers.

Among the others—Oscar Weide, Fred Hahnfeldt, John Ahlgrim, Bill Roder, Bill Gaare, Bob Ward, Harold Hestrupe, Leonard Nebel, Ralph Hayford, Bill Wulff, Arnold Tody, Herbert and Clarence Lytle, Fred Harmening, Albert Haptke, and Wes R. Comfort III.—you'll find electricians, truck drivers, painters, salesmen and dry cleaners.

Most Fires at Night.

Then there's Cliff Wente, the iceman, who lives in perpetual fear of hearing the siren when he's in the middle of his delivery route. Cal Collignon faces a similar problem. He has the early morning milk route. Luckily for him tho, most fires around Palatine have a habit of starting at night.

Last year the volunteers answered 47 calls to good sized fires. Most of them were on chill winter nights. "We get requests to rescue cats from trees, too," explains Chief Comfort, "and we never know when we may be called from business to douse a grass fire."

The Palatine firemen answer as many calls in the country as in town. The department was one of the first members of the Rural Fire league. "Whenever a barn or a farmhouse catches fire," says the chief, "neighboring farmers, hearing our sirens, fill all their available milk cans with water, load them on their trucks and hurry to the blaze. We've never run dry on a rural fire. In town of course there are hydrants."

Led in Organizing.

In 1933 the Palatine department was instrumental in forming the Cook County Suburban Firemen's association, now active in 24 towns. Wesley Comfort was first president and wears a gold badge to show for it. Recently the government defense bureaus urged all departments to adopt a standard fire hose thread so that neighboring companies could cooperate in case of an extreme emergency. The association took this precaution in 1934.

The department surpasses many paid outfits in the state in equipment and performance. Entrance requirements are stiff and a place along the brass rail of one of the three shiny red trucks is a coveted possession.

The force consists of 18 regulars and 6 apprentices, the latter appointed by the regulars on approval of the village board. They sometimes serve three or four years before getting a regular berth. At present there are 16 young aspirants on the waiting list hoping to be taken on as apprentices. The average age of the men is 40. A village ordinance requires members to be at least 18 years old and sets 60 as the retirement age.

Equipped by Firemen.

Perhaps the most unusual thing about the group is that every piece of equipment has been bought and paid for thru the efforts of the firemen themselves. Five years ago they held a fall festival which has become an annual affair. Out of the proceeds they have supplied the village with three modern fire trucks, two of which have 500 gallon booster tanks for use in rural areas, hundreds of feet of hose, axes, helmets, coats and all the other necessary paraphernalia.

Two years ago they bought an inhalator. It is the only one available for miles around. Soon after its purchase one of the firemen was stricken with asthmatic pneumonia. Doctors

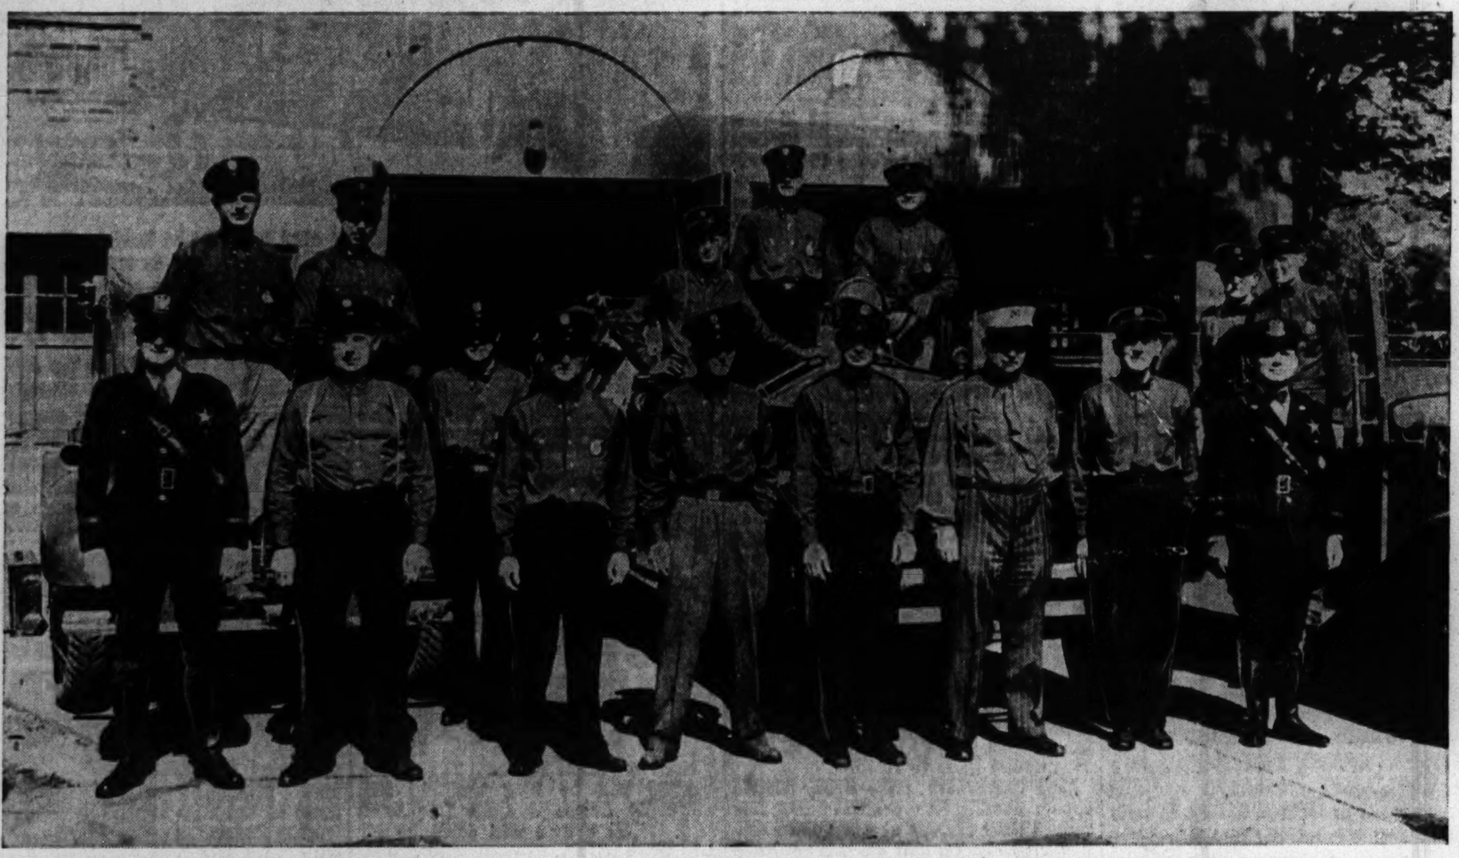
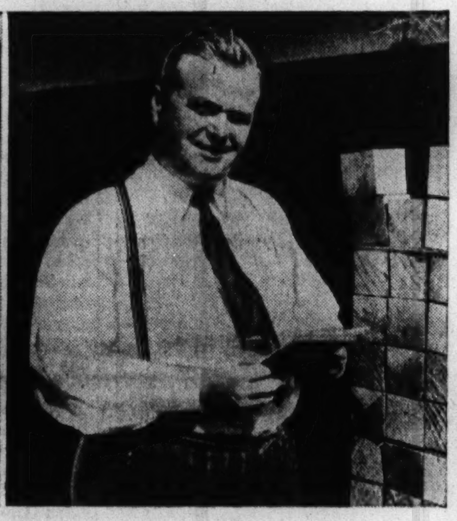
There's Nothing Amateur About Palatine's Splendid Volunteer Fire Department

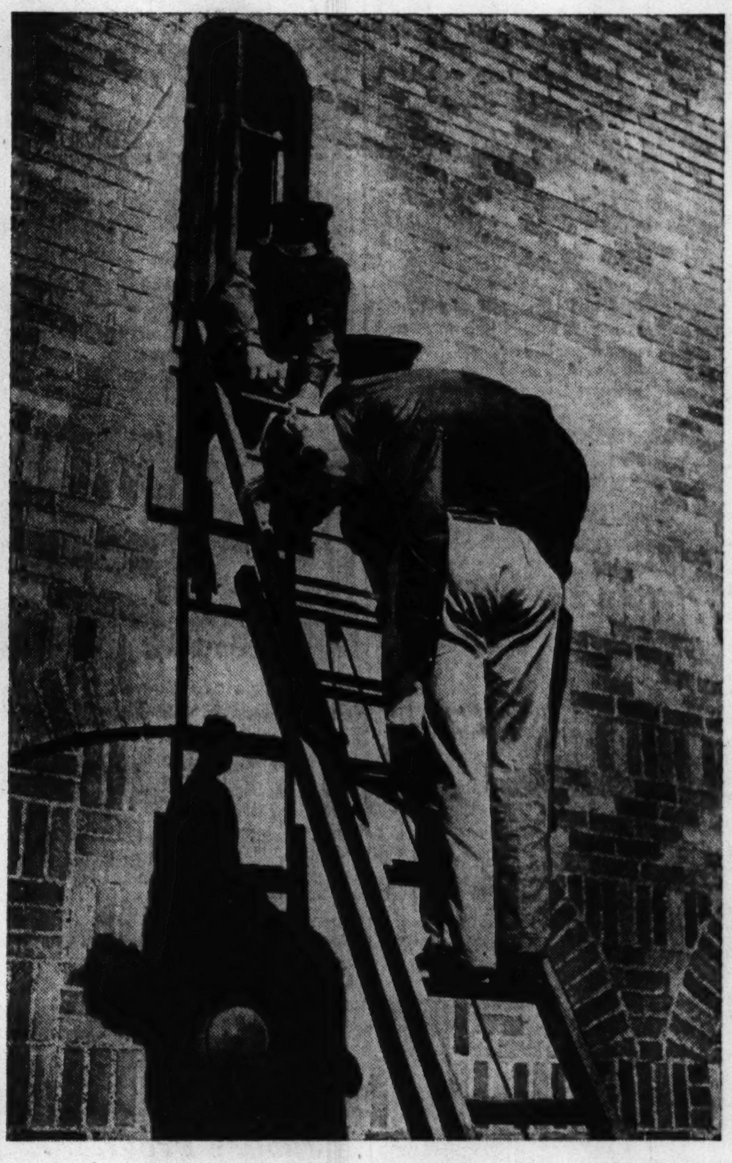


These are the firemen who guard the lives and property of Palatine citizens and farmers in the surrounding territory. The Palatine fire department is a volunteer one, but that doesn't mean they're "amateufs." They surpass many paid departments in equipment and performance. Standing before their three modern trucks are left to right, first row, Charles Folz, state policeman; Arnold Tody, Harold Hestrupe, Wesley R. Comfort III., Robert Ward, Fire Chief Wesley R. Comfort Jr., William Roder, and William Kable, policeman. Mounting the trucks are Cal Collignon, Elmer Walter, Ralph Hayford, John Ahlgrim, Leonard Nebel, Oscar Weide, William Wulff, and Orville Helms. Ten other members, always on hand when the siren behind the fire house whines the alarm, are absent from the picture.

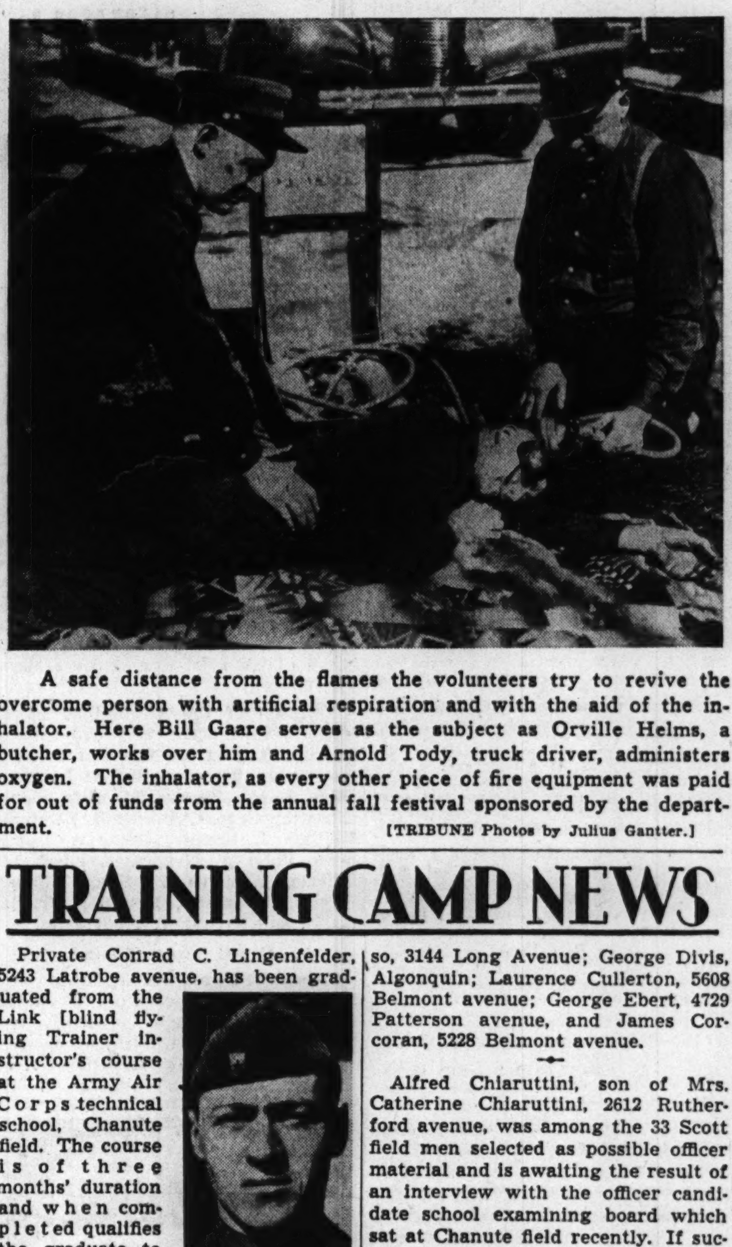
Keeping the equipment in tiptop condition is also the job of the volunteers. At the left John Ahlgrim, a sand and gravel dealer, and Leonard Nebel, local store manager, examine two glistening hose nozzles. To the right Cal Gollignon, who rises with the dawn every day to deliver the village's milk, puts a high polish on the department's newest truck.



Sparkplug of the Palatine department is Chief Wesley R. Comfort Jr., who has held his position since 1934 and was assistant fire chief for several years before. He joined the force 21 years ago, just a month after his marriage and his 21st birthday. When he's not fighting fires he operates a building and lumber company.



The volunteers drill regularly at the station to be prepared for any emergency. Here Bill Gaare, a lumber yard foreman, steadies the ladder while Salesman Oscar Weide carries a "victim," Bob Ward, an electrician, to safety. Next spring the firemen will build a new fire station for the village out of the proceeds of their annual fall festival.



A safe distance from the flames the volunteers try to revive the overcome person with artificial respiration and with the aid of the inhalator. Here Bill Gaare serves as the subject as Orville Helms, a butcher, works over him and Arnold Tody, truck driver, administers oxygen. The inhalator, as every other piece of fire equipment was paid for out of funds from the annual fall festival sponsored by the department.

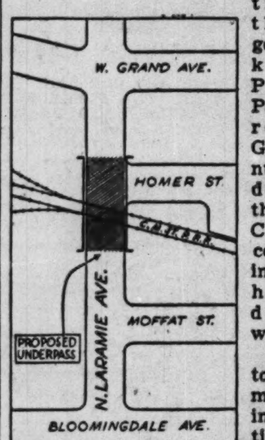
State Orders Underpass on Laramie Ave.

Construction of the $392,000 Laramie avenue roadway under the tracks of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad near Grand avenue was ordered by the Illinois Commerce commission in a ruling handed down last week.



According to the commission ruling, the entire cost of construction, $392,000 must be borne by the city of Chicago. The railroad will pay the remaining $66,000 to elevate its tracks. If the ruling is accepted by city authorities, money will be appropriated from the city's share of the motor fuel tax fund.

In hearings before the commerce commission, the West and Northwest Area councils of the Chicago Motor club and representatives of civic and business organizations on the west and northwest sides expressed the need for another connecting link between the two sections of the city as represented by the opening of Laramie avenue.

Third Important Project.

The underpass will represent the third important project constructed in the area during the last few years. A similar depressed thorofare was opened for Austin avenue traffic in 1939. In 1940 the West and Northwest councils obtained the completion of one of their major projects in the opening of the Central avenue bridge across the same tracks.

According to Chief Engineer Arthur Engh of the city special improvement division the underpass will require an excavation 767 feet long with a grade of 4 per cent. The roadway under the eight tracks at this point will be 125 feet in length and 44 feet wide. There will be a sidewalk eight feet wide and the supporting columns will stand at the curb line.

Plan Recessed Lighting.

There will be a vertical clearance of 13 feet, 6 inches. Lighting will be of the recessed type used on Austin avenue. The project will also include the paving of Laramie avenue as far south as Bloomingdale avenue and north to Grand avenue. Here, too, the roadway will be 44 feet wide and there will be a five foot parkway and a six foot sidewalk. The railroad tracks will be raised two and a half feet. Laramie avenue is the beginning of the Galewood yards of the Milwaukee road.

ANN HRYNKO BECOMES MISS 20,000 AMONG TELEPHONE MAKERS

If there was such a number as HAWthorne 20,000 it should belong to Miss Ann Hrynko, 21, of 2225 West Walton street, recently acclaimed "Miss 20,000," by telephone makers at the Western Electric's Hawthorne plant. Miss Hrynko is the 5,976th person hired at Hawthorne works since September, 1940, when employment stood at 14,024. Not since 1937 has the figure been above 20,000. Miss Hrynko, whose parents were born in the Ukraine, was assigned to a department engaged in making telephone equipment for defense locations. She is a graduate of Wells High school.

27,845 GOLFERS UTILIZE PARKS' DRIVING RANGES

The park district's four golf driving ranges have closed for the season, according to Sam Pecoraro, park district supervisor of golf and beaches. They are at Jackson park, Columbus park, Lincoln park extension, and the Diversey course in Lincoln park.

The range attendance of 27,845 is 4,310 over last season's. Of these 5,295 shot balls at Jackson, 5,820 at Columbus, 5,811 at Waveland, and 10,919 at Diversey.

The 18 hole courses at Jackson and the nine hole ones at Columbus, Waveland, and Marquette will stay open until Nov. 15, weather permitting. There is a 50 cent charge at Jackson and 25 cent charge at the others.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

More than 100 horsemen and horsewomen are expected to participate in the two day pleasure ride of the Town and Country Equestrian association. The ride will start from the polo field at Harms and Golf roads in Morton Grove next Saturday.

W. Earle Butler, president, said that preliminary entries indicate the ride, the first of its kind the association has sponsored, will be better attended than any of the 100 mile trail rides which have climaxed the organization's trail activities for each of the last three years. Entries will close tomorrow.

Planned as Pleasure Trip.

"Unlike the 100 mile rides, which were rather severe tests for horse and rider, the two day is a pleasure trip requiring no special preparation," Butler said. "Any rider with ordinary riding skill, and any sound horse accustomed to regular work, can travel the distance of approximately 30 miles and return without difficulty.

The cavalcade will depart at 8:30 a. m. Saturday, following the forest preserve trail northward to Dundee road, thence west to the private trail system of the Riding Club of Barrington Hills. Mounted members of that organization will guide the visitors thru the paths to the ride destination, the Horse farm on Algonquin road four miles southeast of Algonquin.

Evening of Western Fun.

A ranch style dinner and an evening of western entertainment will be held at the farm Saturday. There will be a rodeo, a roaring campfire, and a barn dance in the huge hayloft. Many nonriders will attend the party.

After an outdoor breakfast Sunday morning the return ride will begin. It will double back over the outbound trail, arriving back at the starting point about 6 p. m. Sunday.

The two day is the third and final trail ride on the 1941 association calendar.

Fred W. Willis and Frank Maher are in charge of entertainment. William D. Bradley is refreshment chairman. Others assisting in the plans are Dr. Thomas A. Carter, John M. FitzGerald, T. L. J. Klapp, and John Bowers.

Legion Auxiliary Dance.

The annual fall dance given by the auxiliary of Belmont Park American Legion post will be held Saturday evening, Oct. 18, at 5100 Belmont avenue.

BARRINGTON WOMEN VOTERS WILL OPEN SEASON WEDNESDAY

A membership tea to be held Wednesday afternoon at the Barrington township home of Mrs. George O. Fairweather is scheduled to inaugurate the fall meetings of the Barrington League of Women Voters.

Mrs. W. W. Ramsey, vice president of the Illinois League of Women Voters, will speak at the gathering. A charter member of the league, Mrs. Ramsey was actively engaged 20 years ago in encouraging women's right to vote. Her topic on Wednesday will concern the history policy, and effectiveness of the national organization.

Mrs. Fairweather, president of the Barrington society, will direct the meeting. Officers who will outline plans for the season include Mrs. William R. Stephens Jr., chairman of government and its operation group; Mrs. Sumner Koch, foreign policy; Mrs. William D. Horne Jr., education; Mrs. C. F. Marshall, social welfare, and Mrs. Walter M. Ditfurth, head of the economic welfare committee.

If successful he will begin a three months' training course in the near future.

Northwest area had two representatives in the class recently graduated from the 6th corps area quartermaster motor transport school for mechanics at Fort Sheridan. Walter J. The two are qualified for promotion and appointment as instructor or foreman of a unit of soldier mechanics.

Hal Davies, 2757 Pine Grove avenue, a professional dancer, will do his "hoofing" during the next few months for the boys at Fort McDowell, Cal., where he has been assigned for preliminary training.

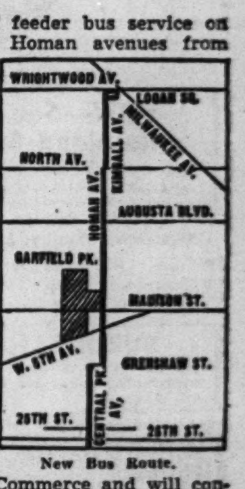
Walter Wisowaty, 4311 Kammerling avenue, and Leonard Plummer, 4842 Spaulding avenue, have been assigned to the engineering replacement training center at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

Three northwest siders are wintering in the south at government expense. They are Roy Mander, 4736 Spaulding avenue, who is at Fort Eustis, Va.; Floryan Petsch, 5107 Cullom avenue, Fort Bragg, N. C., and Alfred Schwass, 5257 Fletcher street, Camp Polk, La.

LINE TO OPERATE ON KIMBALL AND HOMAN AVENUES

Route Is from 25th to Logan Square.

Opening of feeder bus service on Kimball and Homan avenues from Logan Square to 25th street will be celebrated tomorrow night by civic and business leaders, public officials, and residents of Chicago's west side generally. The celebration is being sponsored by the West Towns Chamber of Commerce and will consist of a parade, with ribbon cutting ceremonies, taking place at Logan Square and at Roosevelt road on Central Park avenue. W. H. McManus, vice president of the West Towns chamber, general chairman of the celebration, will be assisted by Frank R. Campbell and Julian T. Fitzgerald.



New Bus Route.

Members of the committee in charge of the ceremonies at Logan Square are Charles V. Falkenberg, chairman, and Milton Friend and Representative Raymond T. O'Keefe, cochairmen. Festivities at Roosevelt road and Central Park avenue will be under the direction of Fred Fishman, chairman, and Coroner A. L. Brodie and Arthur Schimmel, cochairmen.

Will Hold Parade.

The big parade, which will travel the entire route over which the new buses will operate, will follow the ribbon cutting ceremonies to be held at 6:30 o'clock at Logan Square. Phillip E. Scanlan will be grand marshal. Division marshals are Harry Weimer, C. H. Nygren, Dr. Samuel M. Rakow, James J. Curtis, Charles Serum, Henry Feddersen, and William Devlin.

New buses for the run, purchased by the Chicago Surface lines, will be put into service immediately after the opening ceremonies.

Agitation for the feeder bus service was begun in January, 1935, when the West Towns Chamber of Commerce, represented by Fred J. Loyda and supported by more than 25 other west side organizations, petitioned the Illinois Commerce commission for permission to establish the service. At the time the groups produced evidence showing the inadequacy of north-south transportation facilities between Western and Cicero avenues, a distance of three miles.

Pays Tribute for Aid.

Chairman W. H. McManus pays special tribute to the support given the West Towns Chamber of Commerce by Milton Friend and the Logan Square Business Men's association, as well as their representatives, Mr. Falkenberg and Representative O'Keefe.

Among other organizations advocating the service were the West Side Traffic and Transportation association, Central Austin club, Chicago West Metropolitan league, West Property Owners' association, West Side Federation of Clubs, West Side Citizens Voters' league, Mid-West Side Kiwanis club, Merchants' Community council, West Towns Property Owners' alliance, Congress Street Development council, Austin Merchants association, and the Mid-West Chicago Avenue Business association.

Permission to establish the service was granted by the commerce commission in September 1940. However, the last serious barrier was only recently removed when the park district agreed to hand over to the city jurisdictional rights to two blocks on Homan avenue between Lake and Madison streets.

New Service on Way.

Farther west there is rejoicing over an order recently entered by the commerce commission directing the Chicago and West Towns Railways, Inc., and the Leyden Motor Coach company to operate motor buses on short stretches of North avenue, west of the city, to form connecting links with other routes of the companies. The new operation was scheduled to begin within 30 days.

The West Towns company was directed to operate a motor bus line on North avenue between Wolf road, present terminal of its North avenue route, and the city limits of Elmhurst, where the company operates a bus line on North avenue.

The Leyden company was directed to operate buses on North avenue between La Grange road and the city limits of Elmhurst, thereby connecting the present line on La Grange road with the local service in Elmhurst. The new buses will aid workers in going to and from the new Buick plant at La Grange road and North avenue. The plant, now under construction, will make airplane motor parts for the federal government.

Guild Luncheon.

The Guild of Grace Evangelical church, Wrightwood and Kimball avenues, will sponsor a luncheon, the chairman of which is Mrs. A. H. Pagenkopf, on Wednesday at the church.

LEYDEN MASONS OBSERVE 25TH YEAR SATURDAY

Ritual and Dinner on Jubilee Program.

Leyden lodge, No. 993, A. F. & A. M., the oldest Masonic group in Leyden township, will celebrate its 25th anniversary next Saturday afternoon and evening.

Wallace Clark.

The program, under the direction of Wallace Clark, general chairman, will begin at 1:30 p. m. at Leyden Masonic temple. Master Mason degrees will be conferred by past masters of the lodge and memorial services will be held for deceased members.

More than 700 lodge members, wives, and friends will attend a banquet at 6 p. m. in the dining room of Leyden Township High school.

Dance Is Climax.

M. Z. Sax will be master of ceremonies at the program for the evening beginning at 8 o'clock which will include music by the West Suburban Glee club and the introduction of past masters and charter members. The main address will be delivered by James W. Workman, D. D., LL. D., associate secretary of the general board of lay activities of the Methodist church.

Thirteen of the original 54 members are still active and will take a prominent part in the anniversary festivities. They are Bellett Lawson, John Funk, Roscoe K. Fife, John Christian Grandt, August B. Kirchoff, William J. Koenig, Oscar A. Lundquist, John A. Newhouse, Klass W. Pelsma, Maurice Z. Sax, Thomas Henry Tiedemann, Elmer H. Tiedemann, and Arthur T. Tiedemann.

Recall Early Trials.

Robert E. Swen, worshipful master, has appointed more than 50 lodge members to assume responsibility for the celebration. Chairmen of the various committees include W. J. Koenig, anniversary book; T. H. Kirchoff, banquet; W. A. Wasson, publicity; Barney Reeves, public address system; C. E. Paetschow, auto parking; Charles Slocum, interlodge publicity; M. Z. Sax, program; P. T. Tiedemann, reception; Henry Taubman, decorations; E. P. Reeves, admission; R. A. Grubbs, dancing, and D. E. Radel, ushers.

Charter members of the lodge recall numerous anecdotes of the early days when automobiles were scarce and lodge meetings held in Des Plaines made transportation a problem. The members, however, would not be denied the privilege of attending lodge, so they used to rattle down the Soo line tracks on a hand car. Later they obtained permission to use an engine. This method of transportation was used until one winter night when the watchman, who was left to care for the engine, fell asleep, let the fire go out, and the engine froze.

After a wedding trip thru the east Mr. and Mrs. Vail will be at home at 5119 North Menard avenue.

SIREN'S SCREAM BRINGS SUBURB FIREMEN ON RUN

Palatine Chief Races Ahead to Blaze.

gave up hope for his life. His buddies, at the request of the man's wife, kept a three day bedside vigil with the oxygen tank and saved him.

Now that the department is adequately equipped, next year's festival funds will be turned over to the village for a public park. From the proceeds of the last two festivals, the volunteers plan to erect a two story, colonial style fire station. The building has been designed by Chief Comfort's son, Wesley III., and construction will begin next spring.

Desinged Their Home.

Young Wesley is only 19, but he's no greenhorn when it comes to architecture. Three years ago he drew up plans for the Comforts' new home. As for his fire fighting ability the chief says, "he keeps the old man stepping." It's always a race between father and son to get to the fire first.

"You can yell over young Wes' bed till you're blue in the face," says Mrs. Comfort, "but just whisper the word 'fire' once and he's up like a jack-in-the-box." For 21 years Mrs. Comfort has been hustling her husband off to fires. He joined the department a month after they were married and has been chief since 1934. "I used to worry about him when he was younger and foolhardy, but now, after seeing him off, I don't have a bit of trouble getting back to sleep."

The volunteers make every second count. During an electrical storm last month they arrived at a blazing farmhouse two and a half miles from town just six minutes after the call was received. If the alarm wakes them out of a sound sleep, they don't bother to dress. "Underwear is taboo," says the chief. There's just time to slip into shoes and a jacket over pajamas. Shoe strings are tied on the run.

Wives Play Active Part.

Firemen's wives play an active part in the community too. They always take charge of the booths and concessions at the fall festival. One night when a fire broke out in the Comfort lumber yard, several of them were on hand to serve coffee to their menfolks.

The firemen and their wives have picnics and get-togethers but always on a coöperative basis. Most recent was a fish fry at the Comfort home after the two Wesleys had returned from a successful week-end in the north woods. The rest of the crowd chipped in on beverages and potato salad.

The volunteers draw no pay. From the Rural Fire league, the department receives a lump sum of $300 annually and in years past members have voted to use the money for additional equipment. For every run within the village they each get $3. But as the chief says, "that hardly pays the cleaning bill if you're in your street clothes."

Why do they do it? Let Chief Comfort explain: "Maybe it's the excitement, the danger. Maybe the cold streams from the hoses soak right into your blood. But have you ever seen the look in a man's face after you saved his home or felt a mother's gratitude for saving her child's life?"

ROOM SETTINGS STRESSED FOR FURNITURE WEEK

Community Stores Join in Annual Display.

Chicago's neighborhood and suburban stores are joining the loop in the celebration of National Furniture week which opened yesterday and will continue thru Saturday.

This year's exposition will emphasize everything for the home. Electrical appliances, rugs, draperies, and wall coverings will be featured as prominently as chairs, tables, and the larger items which make up the layman's classification of "furniture." The entire plan is built around this season's furniture week slogan, "Happiness Begins at Home."

Show Room Schemes.

One group of neighborhood stores will use displays arranged in "charm" houses. All pieces therein will be correlated not only with each other but with a selection of fabrics and other furniture pieces in the store's stock. A housewife who selects a chair will find drapery material that is correlated in color and pattern suitable to the period of the piece.

This correlation of period, color, and pattern has been worked out by experienced designers. The busy homemaker who makes use of this service saves time and energy.

The three most important furniture styles are modern, 18th century, and Federal American, in the order named. The bleached woods, both mahogany and walnut, and natural light oak are used for the modern styles. Either dark or light mahogany is popular for 18th century, and dark mahogany is used for today's version of Federal American. The Duncan Phyfe pieces are said to epitomize the American Federal period which flourished from Washington's inauguration to 1825.

New Room Settings.

All stores are emphasizing new room settings this year. Special windows are dressed to indicate the 1941-'42 trend in everything from lamps to cake mixers. The season's most popular wood, dark mahogany, is often used with satinwood or boxwood inlay work. Stores have selected special furnishing problems. One is featuring a hall treatment display which includes commodes and mirrors in different styles and periods, and a wide use of statuettes and bric-a-brac.

Women's friendly interest makes sales come easier!

How the Chicago Tribune's women editors and writers can help you make more friends for your product among Chicago's largest constant audience of women.

The friendlier the prospect, the easier the sale. When women look for your advertising and read it with friendly interest, you get across your story and product faster.

This principle works for you when you make the Tribune your basic medium in Chicago.

Women like the Tribune for its comprehensive news reports and vigorous editorial comment. Seven days a week they depend on the Tribune for accurate, understandable accounts of current affairs. And in the field of exclusively feminine topics they turn to the Tribune as an indispensable guide.

Shown on this page are the women editors and writers of the Tribune who help to make this newspaper so interesting to Chicago's largest constant audience of women.

Beauty, cookery, homemaking, fashions, child care—to cover these and all the other special interests of women, the Tribune spares no expense to engage the most capable women in every field.

They are provided with every facility with which to give full play to their individual talents. They are sent by the Tribune to gather and report the significant new trends in the world of feminine activities. They are continually pioneering new fields of interest to women in order to keep pace with the Tribune's wide-awake women readers.

Because they have a sympathetic understanding of women's needs and interests, these women staff members are known and liked by a host of followers.

The size of this following and the confidence it reposes in the Tribune is indicated by the volume of response from women, totaling in a year—by mail, phone, and personal visit—in excess of 1,500,000.

This friendly relationship existing between the Tribune and Chicago's largest constant audience of women is a positive factor working to the advantage of advertisers in the Tribune.

Chicago women are accustomed to look to the Tribune for buying ideas and to base their day to day purchases on the advertising in its columns.

By first hand experience, Chicago retailers know the economy of basing their sales promotion on the Tribune. They place in the Tribune far more advertising addressed to women than they place in any other Chicago newspaper.

To win more friends for your product in Chicago, build your advertising program around the Chicago Tribune.

Total net paid circulation now in excess of 1,000,000 every day of the week.

SUBURBAN HIGH ROLLS DECLINE ONLY 1 PER CENT

Less than One-Sixth of Drop in City.

Suburban high school enrollments in Cook county declined an average of only 1.03 per cent this year from last year's figures, according to figures made public last week by Noble J. Puffer, county superintendent of schools. This was less than one-sixth the drop of 6.8 per cent recorded by public high schools in Chicago during the same period.

Eleven of the 21 suburban high schools which are in Puffer's jurisdiction recorded enrollment gains this year. These gains ranged from a tiny fraction to 129.2 per cent. The highest gain was registered by Orland Park Community High, a small school which has just changed from a three year to a four year high school curriculum.

Other School Gains.

The other 10 schools which showed registration gains during the opening week, the period covered by Puffer's comparison, were:

Arlington Heights, Barrington, Leyden Community, Lyons, Maine, New Trier, Niles Center, Northbrook, Orland Park Community, Palatine, and Riverside-Brookfield.

One high school—Blue Island—had exactly as many enrollees during the opening week this year as it had in 1940.

The schools which showed enrollment losses were: Argo, Bloom, Evanston, Lemont, Oak Park-River Forest, Proviso, J. Sterling Morton [Cicero], Thornton Fractional, and Thornton.

Almost without exception the big gains were made in communities where there has been considerable recent residential building. Especially heavy gains were chalked up for Arlington Heights, Niles Center, Northbrook, and Palatine, all of which have resounded for many months with the noise of home builders' tools.

Show Industrial Demand.

The losses for the most part were heaviest in industrial communities where the high schools have been emphasizing industrial arts in their curriculums. This bears out the explanation advanced by Chicago school officials for their enrollment losses that the defense program is making a heavy demand on all institutions teaching the mechanical skills.

High school faculty members both in and near Chicago have reported that help-starved industry is hiring every artisan who has any semblance of mechanical training. The trend of high school students from classrooms to factories is heaviest in the eleventh and twelfth grades, they report.

A case in point is the Sterling Morton High school in Cicero, the largest suburban high school in the Chicago area with a 1941 enrollment of 5,506, down 390, or 6.67 per cent below last year. This school, which stresses industrial arts heavily, is near the Western Electric company plant and others engaged in manufacture colsely allied to the preparedness effort, and has lost many of its upper classmen to such institutions.

Family Size Decreases.

One factor that is responsible for at least part of the suburban high school decline is the falling birth rate of depression days, which is just catching up to high schools, in Puffer's opinion. He said that even the elementary school enrollments indicate that the size of the average family is getting smaller, altho the shrinkage is not as rapid as it was before the business upturn came.

In the table below a comparison is made between opening week enrollment figures for the 21 public high schools in Cook county outside of Chicago.

PALATINE TWP. VOTES AGAINST SCHOOL MERGER

Rising Federal Taxes Seen as Cause.

The little red schoolhouse is here to stay—for awhile at least. Citizens in Palatine township last week rejected by a 946 to 646 vote a proposal to consolidate nine grade school districts into one.

Harry E. Smith, chairman of a citizens' committee in favor of consolidation, said another attempt would be made to pass the measure next winter. Considerable opposition, he said, was felt in predominately farming districts where the voters feared the consolidation would be accompanied by a sharp rise in taxes.

Will Check Tax Figures.

Mr. Smith stated that the committee was making a check of individual taxes and would soon issue a report presenting accurate figures showing what such taxes would be should the measure be passed.

Had the proposal won a new school costing between $150,000 and $190,000 would have been erected in the village of Palatine and the pupils of the nine schools would have been concentrated there.

Harrison A. Kincaid, president of the Palatine Township High school board, said the measure was defeated largely because of the rising federal taxes.

Fear Rising Taxes.

"The people in the township took into consideration the fact that Washington is boosting taxes," he said. They don't know how much more taxes are going up, but they are afraid they will get worse. Accordingly they didn't want to saddle themselves with any more costs at this time."

Three outlying districts voted in favor of the proposal. District 15, within the village limits, was against the measure by 128 votes. Balloting according to districts is shown below:

District.	For.	Against.
10	0	37
12	18	59

WRIGHT COLLEGE YOUTHS PREPARE FOR HOMECOMING

Students and faculty members at Wright City college are engaged in making arrangements for the 1941 homecoming on Nov. 7 and 8. The homecoming queen, her maid of honor, and the members of her court will be elected at a pep assembly to be held at the school on Tuesday, Oct. 28.

The queen will be crowned on Nov. 7 at an all-college rally on the campus. After presiding at the homecoming dance Friday evening in the school gym, the queen will be presented to returning alumni members Saturday between halves at the Wright-Wilson football game.

Miss Melba A. Moore, dean of women, and C. R. Hutchinson, dean of men, are co-managers of the celebration. Russell A. McCormac was appointed to head the publicity staff. The faculty committee includes: Dr. Paul Cundiff, Miss Ellen Drew, Miss Lorraine Loeb, and John Carrig, president of the alumni. Dean William H. Conley, administrative head of Wright college, will supervise the event, which will be climaxed Saturday night with the alumni dance at the Lake Shore club.

TALKS ON TELEPHONE FIRST TIME IN LIFE ON 85TH BIRTHDAY

When Fritz O. Carlson celebrated his 85th birthday on Sept. 20, he did something he had never done before—he talked over the telephone. Mr. Carlson, who resides at 1216 Wellington avenue, was born in Tullporten, Sweden, in 1860. He came to this country 61 years ago and has lived in Lake View for 56 years.

Fritz O. Carlson.

He has ridden in automobiles, elevated trains, listened to the radio, seen movies, and, in short, used most of the modern city dweller's machinery. But somehow he never got around to talking over the telephone. His friends and relatives did his phoning for him.

On Sept. 20 his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Carlson gave a surprise party for him at their home, 2126 North Kedvale avenue. His four grandchildren and one great-grandchild were present.

The phone rang. It was a long distance call for Mr. Carlson from his daughter, Frieda, in Lindsborg, Kas. Mr. Carlson picked up the instrument, greeted his daughter and talked to here for a few minutes. His comment, after he had hung up, was, "You know, I could hear every word."

CHORUS TO SING IN WESTWOOD CHURCH TONIGHT

The Westwood Evangelical Lutheran church, 78th avenue and George street, Elmwood Park, will present the Grieg Male chorus in a concert this evening at the church. Peter Olson, Chicago director, will lead the musicians. The chorus will be accompanied by Mrs. Esther Arneson Dryness, the organization's regular pianist.

Proceeds from the free will offering, which will be requested during the concert, will be used to buy chimes for the church organ. The Rev. Theodore W. Brosche is pastor of Westwood church.

Winners in the 1937 Chicagoland Music Festival, members of the Grieg chorus, will present a concert of sacred songs including "Jesu Joy of Man Desiring," by Bach, and one group of familiar tunes, one of which is Romberg's "Stout Hearted Men."

Nerve Center in Office of Col. W. F. Morrison.

For the last three weeks the commands of "Squads left" and other such military jargon have been echoing in 27 Chicago high schools where 10,594 students are undergoing military training as ROTC cadets. The unit is the largest in the nation and the figure represents the greatest voluntary enrollment in the 24 year history of Chicago's ROTC.

Responsibility for training the unit, which is almost the size of a regular army streamlined division, rests with Col. William F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics in the Chicago public schools.

Included in the List.

This includes drill and command, calisthenics, marksmanship, first aid, scouting and patroling, military organization, military history, musketry, and map reading. The cadets spend one period, of 45 minutes duration, each school day in ROTC instruction. Aside from this time many of them spend after school hours of their own accord drilling with their school's crack platoon or practicing with the rifle team.

Each of the school's regular army sergeants, who act as military instructors, follow the chart's outline of study in teaching the cadets. They must devote so many hours during the semester to each of the various phases of instruction. They must forward weekly reports to Col. Morrison's office showing what instruction the cadets have received during the week.

While good outdoor weather prevails, the cadets are receiving four hours a week instruction in drill.

Hold Officers School.

Altho the military instructors preside over the instruction, the new cadets are taught by the cadet officers who have received their promotions thru competitive examinations. Three or four days a week the military insrtuctors hold officers' school, at which time the instructors outline to the cadet officers the training that is to be emphasized for the following day or week.

Does Your Face Powder Lie About Your Age

at the critical "2-foot line"?

By Lady Esther

A man's eyes can be so unkind! They can be like magnifying mirrors that accent every little line in your face—exaggerate every tiny defect of your skin.

Never mind how you look across the room or from a distance! How does your skin look up close? How old does your face powder tell him you are, when his eyes are only two feet away?

The impression you make depends so much on the face powder you use. If it streaks a little—if it cakes at the sides of your nose—if it makes your pores look bigger—if it lies about your age, makes your skin look even the tiniest bit older —it's not the powder for you!

A New Kind of Face Powder

Ask any skin specialist! He'll tell you that a coarse powder tends to make the texture of the skin look coarse and unattractive, too.

But you'll be taking no such risk when you use Lady Esther Face Powder! For it's as flattering in a close-up as it is from a distance.

Why? Because it's blown by Twin Hurricanes until it's softer and smoother by far than any ordinary powder! Because its shades are unlike any you've ever known—alive and fascinating. And, most important—because it's loyal! It doesn't fade, streak, cake, dissolve, discolor, disappear—the way old-fashioned face powders often do.

Try it! See why more beautiful women now use it than any other kind of face powder!

Try All 9 Shades FREE

Find your most flattering shade of Lady Esther Face Powder—without guesswork and without cost! Send for the 9 new shades and try them all. You'll know your lucky shade—it makes your skin look younger, lovelier! Mail this coupon now, before you forget.

'VAGABOND KING' NEXT OPERETTA IN AIR THEATER

Marion Claire, Thomas to Be Stars Saturday.

The Chicago Theater of the Air will present its second production of the season—Rudolph Friml's "The Vagabond King" from 9:45 to 11 p. m. [CDST] next Saturday over W-G-N, W59C, the new FM station and the Mutual system. Marion Claire and Thomas Thomas will sing the leading parts.

Luise Barclay.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak during the broadcast of the Theater of the Air.

The musical background for the operetta will be provided by Henry Weber and the W-G-N orchestra and the ensemble under the direction of Robert Trendler. William A. Bacher, W-G-N chief of programs and production, will direct the entire production.

Miss Claire will sing the rôle of Katherine de Vaucelles, a beautiful and high spirited lady of the court. Thomas takes the part of François Villon, genius, thief, poet, and patriot of France.

A double cast headed by Luise Barclay and Bret Morrison as the dramatic stars will portray the speaking rôles.

The complete cast of the operetta follows:

Narrator	John Weigel
Margo	Hazel Dopheide
Rene	Herb Butterfield
Hugette	Donna Reade
Tabarie	Marvin Mueller
Louis XI.	Bob Jellison
François Villon [singing]	Thomas Thomas
François Villon [speaking]	Bret Morrison
Katherine de Vaucelles [singing]	Marion Claire
Katherine de Vaucelles [speaking]	Luise Barclay
Tristan	Malcolm Meacham
Thibaut D'Aussigny	Willard Waterman
Captain of Archers	Les Spears

Butterfield will double as Jehan, Mueller as the priest, Waterman as the Herald, and Spears as Guy. Louis James serves as voice coach for the operettas.

DISNEY'S SONG PARADE IS NEW W-G-N FEATURE

"Walt Disney's Song Parade," a new musical feature presenting song hits from all the famous Disney movies, will make its radio debut on W-G-N and 78 Mutual stations from coast to coast at 3:30 p. m. today. Highlight of the first broadcast will be the introduction of the tunes from the new Disney picture, "Dumbo at the Circus."

Walt Disney. [Acme Photo.]

The "Song Parade" will be heard every Sunday afternoon. The opening broadcast will go on at 3:30 unless the world series game interferes. If this happens the new program will be aired at 5:15 p. m.

JUDY TON GETS HER BIG CHANCE IN 'HAROLD TEEN'

Judy Ton, young Columbus, O., actress, has become a regular member of the "Harold Teen" company on W-G-N. "Harold Teen" is aired at 8:30 p. m. [CDST] Tuesdays.

Judy plagued Chicago radio producers for six weeks before she got her chance. But last week Blair Walliser, producer of "Harold Teen," invited her to play two rôles—a housewife and a colored maid. Then she got sick with laryngitis. She was treated by four doctors and just before rehearsal time her voice came back. By the time she went on the air her voice was in fine form. Walliser invited her to make a curtain speech after the broadcast and she was warmly applauded.

Charles Flynn plays the part of the irrepressible Harold.

Repeal of Neutrality Act, Topic of Forum of Air

"Repeal of the Neutrality Act" will be the subject for debate from 8 to 8:15 tonight [CDST] on W-G-N and the Mutual network when the American Forum of the Air presents two senators and two congressmen who will argue the administration's latest move to aid England. Opposing the repeal of the bill will be Senator Guy M. Gillette of Iowa and Representative James F. O'Connor of Montana. Arguing in favor of a change will be Senator Albert B. Chandler of Kentucky and Representative James W. Wadsworth of New York.

[ADVERTISMENT]

'TERRY AND PIRATES' TO MAKE BOW OVER W-G-N TOMORROW

"Terry and the Pirates," for many years a favorite adventure strip of Chicago Tribune readers, will make its radio debut on W-G-N at 5:15 p. m. tomorrow. Pat, Burma, Terry, the Dragon Lady, and the other characters created by Milton Caniff are to be portrayed every Monday thru Friday in this radio serial.

The radio series will be built around the adventures of Terry and his friends in the Chinese war. Caniff had been approached many times before to allow his comic strip characters to become radio personalities. But he had always refused, saying that he didn't want "Terry and the Pirates" to become just another "kid show."

The radio version of his story starting tomorrow has been written to conform with his newspaper standards. The script will blend sophistication and sheer romantic adventure. Pat Ryan and his sundry girl friends will live a spicy life of their own in this story of the Chinese war, while Terry and other characters will be interwoven in an endless train of hair raising events.

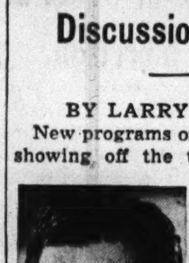
W59C, NEW FM STATION, ADDS NEW FEATURES

Music Supplemented by Discussion Periods.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

New programs of outstanding music showing off the tonal beauties possible thru frequency modulation have been added to the schedule of W59C, the new FM station of W-G-N, Inc., which was opened a fortnight ago.



Jan Tomasow. [Copyright: Nehdoff.]

W59C, which is on the air from noon to midnight daily, has also added several public service features to supplement the broadcasting of the latest news every hour on the hour.

In addition to frequent concerts by the W-G-N Concert orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, W59C is presenting its own orchestra, conducted by Jan Tomasow, Argentine violinist. The W59C orchestra presents music specially suited to the superiorities of FM from 7:30 to 8 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. They are heard at other times thruout the week—sometimes during the dinner concerts.

Featured As Violinist.

Tomasow came to the attention of Henry Weber, musical director of both stations, last summer during appearances in the Grant Park concert series. Weber liked his work and engaged him for the new station. Tomasow is featured as violinist with the group. Hazel Simms is the pianist; Richard Beidel of the Chicago Symphony orchestra is the 'cellist; Edmund Weingart, second violinist. Preston Sellers, well known organist, presides at the console.

Another new musical feature on W59C is the vocal recital series featuring Kathryn Witwer, soprano, at 4:05 p. m. Wednesdays. She is supported by the FM orchestra.

Other Musical Programs.

The W-G-N Concert orchestra is heard on W59C at 2:30 p. m. Wednesdays and Thursdays; the Dream Ship, a program of soft, relaxing music at 10:30 p. m. nightly.

The Perfectionists' hour, recorded music of the masters, is aired from 9 to 10 nightly except Saturday when it runs from 8 to 9 p. m.

Musical highlight of the week on W59C is the presentation of the Chicago Theater of the Air operettas, sent out over W-G-N and Mutual as well. These are aired from 9:45 p. m. to 11. Next Saturday the "Vagabond King" starring Marion Claire and Thomas Thomas will be the feature presentation.

Many fine recorded programs are presented every day.

Offer Radio Travelog.

W59C broadcasts, besides music and the news, such programs of public interest as the weekly talks by speakers of the Executives' club luncheons at 1:05 each Friday; the Washington comments of Fulton Lewis Jr. at 7 p. m. Mondays thru Fridays, and the American Forum of the Air at 8 p. m. Sundays.

Another new FM feature is "See Chicago," a radio travelog by Robert Doyle, aired weekdays at 1:05 except Fridays. The program presents a calendar of interesting events of the theater and concert halls and presents interesting material about Chicago's history and traditions.

Estelle Barnes, formerly with WAAF as pianist, writer, and program arranger, has been appointed program manager of W59C.

BREAKFAST TIME FROLIC BACK AS W-G-N FEATURE

"Breakfast Time Frolic," W-G-N morning program that was popular with early risers last fall and winter, will be back on the air from 6 to 7 a. m. starting tomorrow. The show will be heard every Monday thru Friday.

John Tyson will conduct the program and present the songs and music of the Carter Family, J. E. Mainer's Mountaineers, Patsy Montana, little 6 year old Beverly, and Cowboy Slim Rinehart.

Special features to be added this year will include a complete weather report at 6:30, hometown spotlight greetings, highlight flashes of rural news notes, and a time reading every five minutes.

Familiar Music Aired.

The Music America Loves Best by the Artists America Loves Best, a new series of recorded programs of semi-classical music, is aired Mondays thru Fridays from 9:30 to 9:45 a. m. over WMAQ.

Pixilated Pair

George Burns and Gracie Allen aided by Paul Whiteman and his orchestra will start their new fall comedy series over W-G-N at 9:30 p. m. next Thursday. The show is aired over NBC Tuesdays.

George Burns and Gracie Allen will be back on the air with a new show this fall. They will be heard in Chicago thru W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 p. m. CDST starting next Thursday. They will be heard nationally over NBC, broadcasting twice on Tuesday evenings.

Supporting the comedy team in their new show will be Paul Whiteman's orchestra, Jimmy Cash, singing discovery, and Señor Irving Lee, eccentric guitarist, and Bill Goodwin, announcer.

Gracie will introduce her 25 year old discovery, Jimmy Cash, whom she found working in a Burbank, Cal., grocery. Whiteman, in addition to contributing instrumental novelties to the show, will enter into the fun and will introduce Señor Lee.

Goodwin will appear in comedy stooge rôles which he will create for the series. Goodwin is also heard on two other W-G-N shows, Mutual's "Three Ring Time" with Milton Berle, Charles Laughton, Shirley Ross and Bob Crosby's orchestra, and as announcer for the Jimmy Fidler Hollywood broadcast.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK WILL BE MARKED BY W-G-N

Anthony J. Mullaney, deputy chief fire marshal, and several other Chicago fire department officials and firemen will take part in a special broadcast on W-G-N at 11 a. m. today, first day of Fire Prevention week.

The broadcast will come from headquarters of Engine Company No. 5 at 326 South Des Plaines street, commanded by Capt. Thomas Mulcahy. The program will be presented thru the W-G-N mobile unit and short wave transmitter. Members of the W-G-N Special Events department will be in charge, with Charles Victor the announcer.

On Wednesday at 3 p. m. CDST, W-G-N and the Mutual network will present a talk by Alvah Small, president of the National Fire Protective association. Wednesday is the 70th anniversary of the great Chicago fire.

Lum and Abner Start New Series in Chicago

Lum and Abner [Chet Lauk and Norris Goff] started their new series on NBC from Chicago last Monday. The Pine Ridge philosophers who now live in Hollywood have a great deal of affection for Chicago. They did their first network broadcasts from Chicago almost a decade ago. And more than six years ago they became one of the first Mutual network features to be sponsored. They also presented the first program aired from W-G-N's new studio building.

SHARON PEASE TO BE GUEST ON BASIN ST. SHOW ON WEDNESDAY

Sharon Pease, Chicago pianist, teacher and editor, will be featured as guest on the broadcast of the Chamber Music Society of Lower Basin Street at 9 p. m. next Wednesday over WENR and NBC. Pease will endeavor to explain the outstanding characteristics of the style of several boogie woogie exponents. For his solo he will play "Flinging a Whing Ding."

CHANGES ERASE LIABILITIES OF DECREPIT HOUSE

Doors Removed and Porch Added to Rear.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Last week we told the story of the purchase of a lamentably dejected home at 5324 Cumnor road, Downers Grove, and of the plans the new owners made and the hopes they entertained for its renovation. It had taken them quite some time to decide on its purchase. The liabilities of the house were too glaring, the assets too buried beneath a state of semi-dilapidation.

Porch Is Screened.

There were not many structural changes necessary nor was the exterior changed to any extent. It was the interior of the home which had showed the ravages of lack of upkeep over a period of years. A south porch was screened, a new sidewalk laid and there was a general reconditioning of hedges, shrubs, window boxes, and garden plot.

Inside, however, the changes were many.

Now, as you enter the home, the living room and dining room are closely related and beyond the dining room you see the large screened porch. Originally there had been French doors between the living room and dining room and these had cut down the feeling of openness or space. These doors have been removed and a new fireplace wall built.

The dining room sparkles an effective welcome and the large screened porch has been converted into a hospitable spot for lounging and relaxation. One entire wall is banked by a peach tree.

There's a breakfast room, gayly papered in a lively Mexican pattern—red figures on a cream background.

In the kitchen wood cupboards have been built around the base of the sink and over the range, where once was a built-in ironing board, is now an open cupboard for spices. The built-in pantry shelves and cupboards were left, but abundantly fitted with hooks for all manner of pots and pans.

Has Upstairs Workroom.

Upstairs the four rooms have been put to ingenius use.

There is a master's work room and studio with a deep cedar lined closet built from waste space over the stairs. Since there was no need for a closet in this room, the closet opening was closed off and a new one made in the master bedroom, thus giving this latter room two closets. There is also a playroom for the eight year old daughter of the house, its walls lined with shelves and filled with youthful treasures. The fourth room is the daughter's bedroom now, but later can be made into a study for her.

HOW TO CHECK RISING PRICES, IS FORUM SUBJECT

What can be done to curb rising commodity prices and rents will be discussed by two economists and a feminine news commentator on the Northwestern University Reviewing Stand on W-G-N and Mutual from 10 to 10:25 a. m. today.

The speakers will be Stewart Y. McCullen, Northwestern university professor of accounting; Harry G. Guthmann, professor of finance at Northwestern, and Mrs. Clifton Utley, executive vice president of the Illinois League of Women Voters and radio commentator.

Juan Arvizu to Be Guest of Kostelanetz Today

Juan Arvizu, Latin American tenor, will make a guest appearance with Andre Kostelanetz and Albert Spalding at 4:30 p. m. today over WBBM-CBS. Arvizu will sing "Cielito Lindo," by Fernandez and "Ay, Ay, Ay," by Perez Freire.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Oct. 6.

Weather conditions change suddenly at this season and the garden should have all necessary work completed. It is time bulbs were in the ground; tulips may be planted. Replant old beds if they give few flowers. When old bulbs are lifted replant the largest for their flowers but collect the small bulbs until they mature sufficiently to flower.

Due to war conditions and the loss of importations gardeners should take full care of their bulbs. However, American grown bulbs may be had and they are as good as any importation.

Tuesday, Oct. 7.

A well drained, sandy loam, enriched with decayed organic manures is excellent for practically all kinds of bulbs and they should have full sun the greater part of the day. In the colder sections, protect the beds after a heavy freeze with strawy manure, hay, straw, or other material to prevent heaving during early spring thaws and subsequent freezing. This applies to the perennials as well.

Wednesday, Oct. 8.

Plant shrubs, vines, and trees. Vines add much to the general effect. Plant along the porch and to screen buildings. They may be used along the fences, but in all cases they must be properly tended. The Dutchman's pipe is excellent where a heavy, dense growth is desired. It does well in sun or partial shade.

Thursday, Oct. 9.

Most fruit trees can be planted in the fall altho stone fruit tree planting is best done in the spring. Dwarf fruit trees are much to be preferred on the small yard. Dwarf trees are grafted on a slow growing stock and will grow no more than about 12 feet high and about the same distance wide.

Friday, Oct. 10.

Many perennials can yet be transplanted, but not when the ground is frozen. Late flowering kinds, such as the hardy chrysanthemums, should not be moved until spring unless well protected, because they simply lie in the ground without adequate rooting.

Saturday, Oct. 11.

Give evergreens, rhododendrons, and other broad-leaved plants a thoro watering before winter for they transpire moisture even tho they appear to be resting.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.

Furnishings Show Smart New Trend

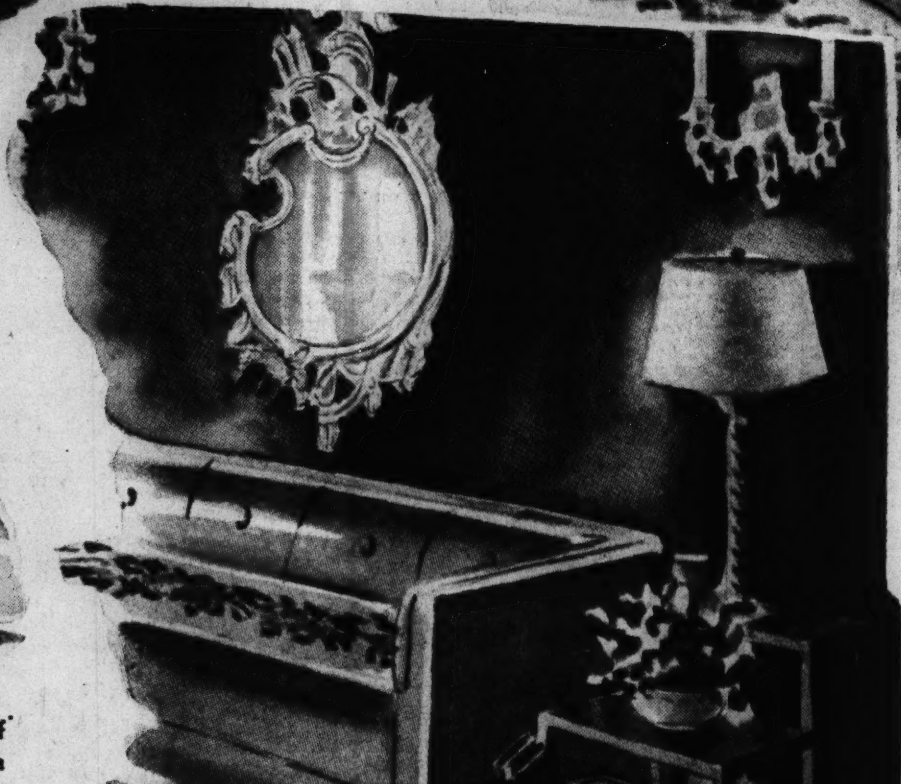
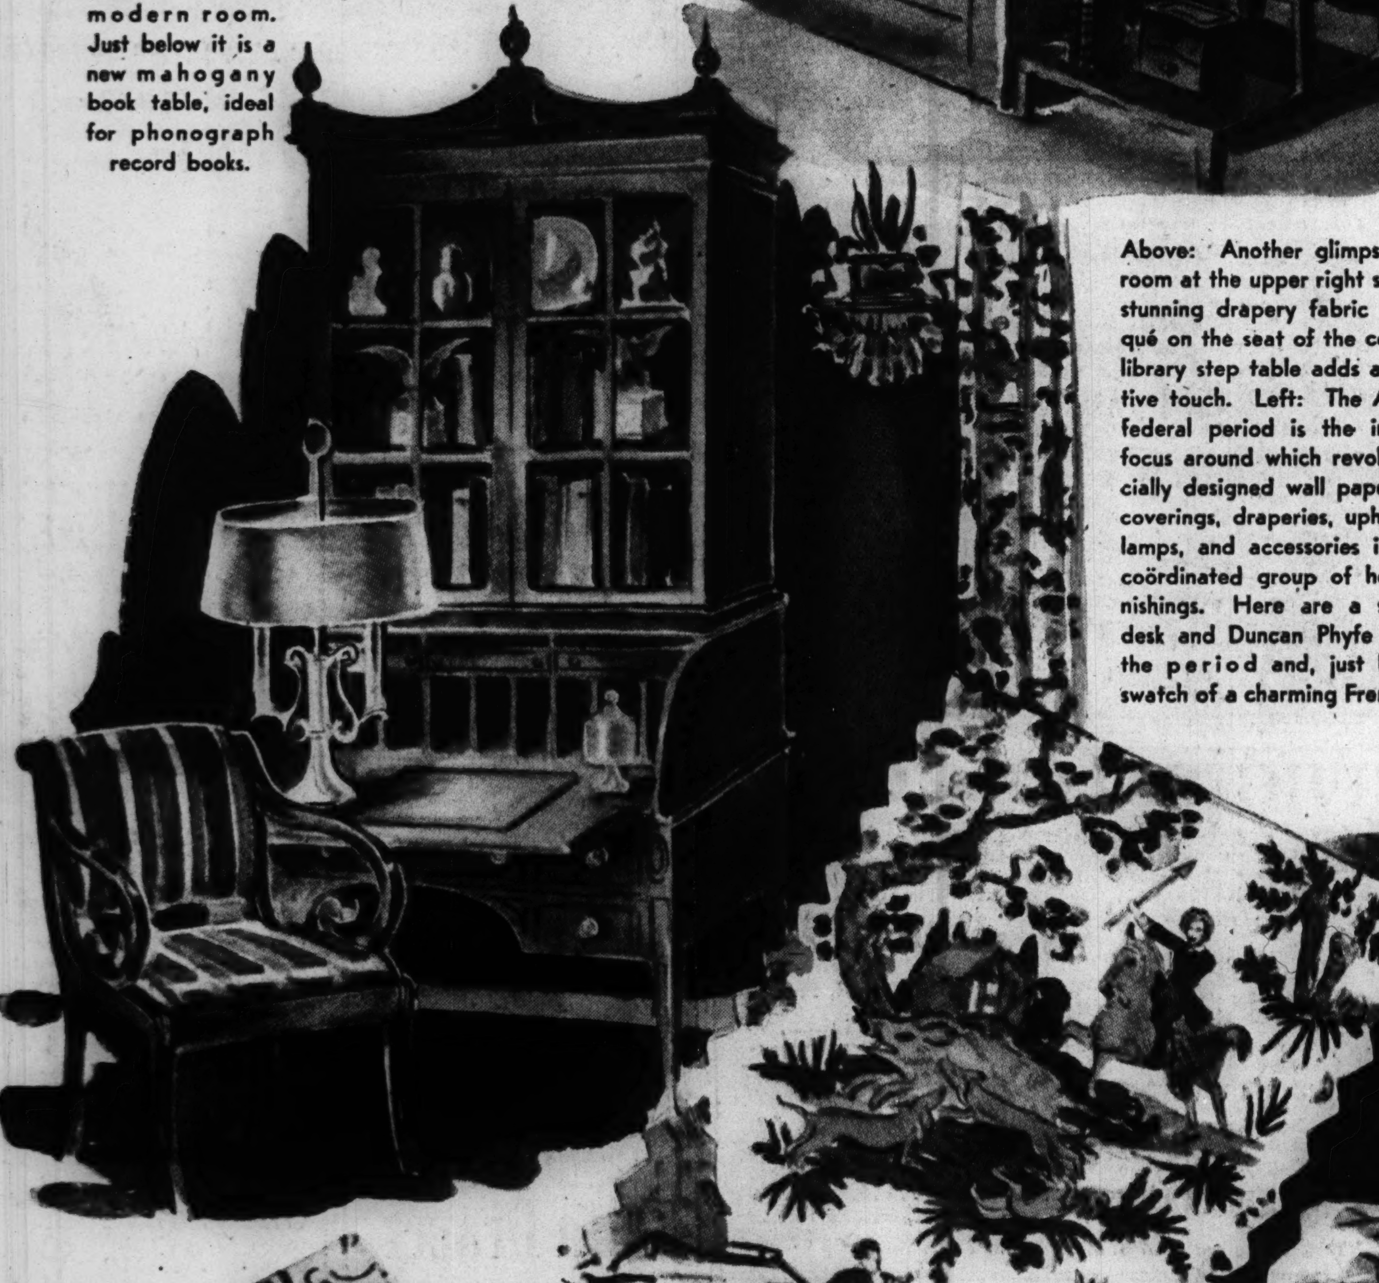
At upper left: A good looking, efficient shelf table made to fit neatly into the corner of a modern room. Just below it is a new mahogany book table, ideal for phonograph record books.





Above: Another glimpse of the room at the upper right shows the stunning drapery fabric in appliqué on the seat of the couch. A library step table adds a decorative touch. Left: The American federal period is the important focus around which revolve especially designed wall papers, floor coverings, draperies, upholsteries, lamps, and accessories in a new coördinated group of home furnishings. Here are a secretary desk and Duncan Phyfe chair of the period and, just below, a swatch of a charming French toile.

By EDITH WEIGLE

THE COMING DAYS are to be filled with home furnishings styles shows, for it's National Furniture week in stores in Chicago and all over the country. It's the time when draperies, floor coverings, lamps, electrical appliances, wall papers and paints, and furniture are brought to the fore in hundreds of interesting displays, and when the spotlight of attention is focused on the newest fashions in room arrangements.

The sketches in color on this page show some of these new ideas in making your home more beautiful. All the merchandise is available in Chicago stores.

At the upper right is a distinguished grouping of modern and traditional pieces. The chairs, covered in a pastel fabric that closely resembles a hand-loomed material, are simple in line, comfortable, and an adaptable, conservative modern.

Between them are low tables faced with mirror glass. The fireplace wall is entirely of this glass, which adds greatly to the apparent depth of any room. In old silver metal brackets are bunches of carnations, repeating the same touch of color in the quaint 18th-century mahogany bird cage against one wall. The unusually stunning floral stripe in the white drapery fabric has been copied in the design of the rug and also is put on in an appliqué on the seat of the couch.

The federal American theme, one of the dominant decorative trends this season, is illustrated in the grouping of secretary, lamp, and chair seen at the lower left. The drapery fabric is seen in the swatch and is a most artistic copy of an old French toile, available in several different colors. These items are only a few in 2,000 that make up a special coördinated line of home furnishings and that now are being shown in stores all over this country and in Canada.

The colorful rug swatches are samples of floor coverings made by a local manufacturer and answer the problem of the woman who likes a design on her floor, but nothing so definite that it influences the entire color scheme, as does an oriental rug.

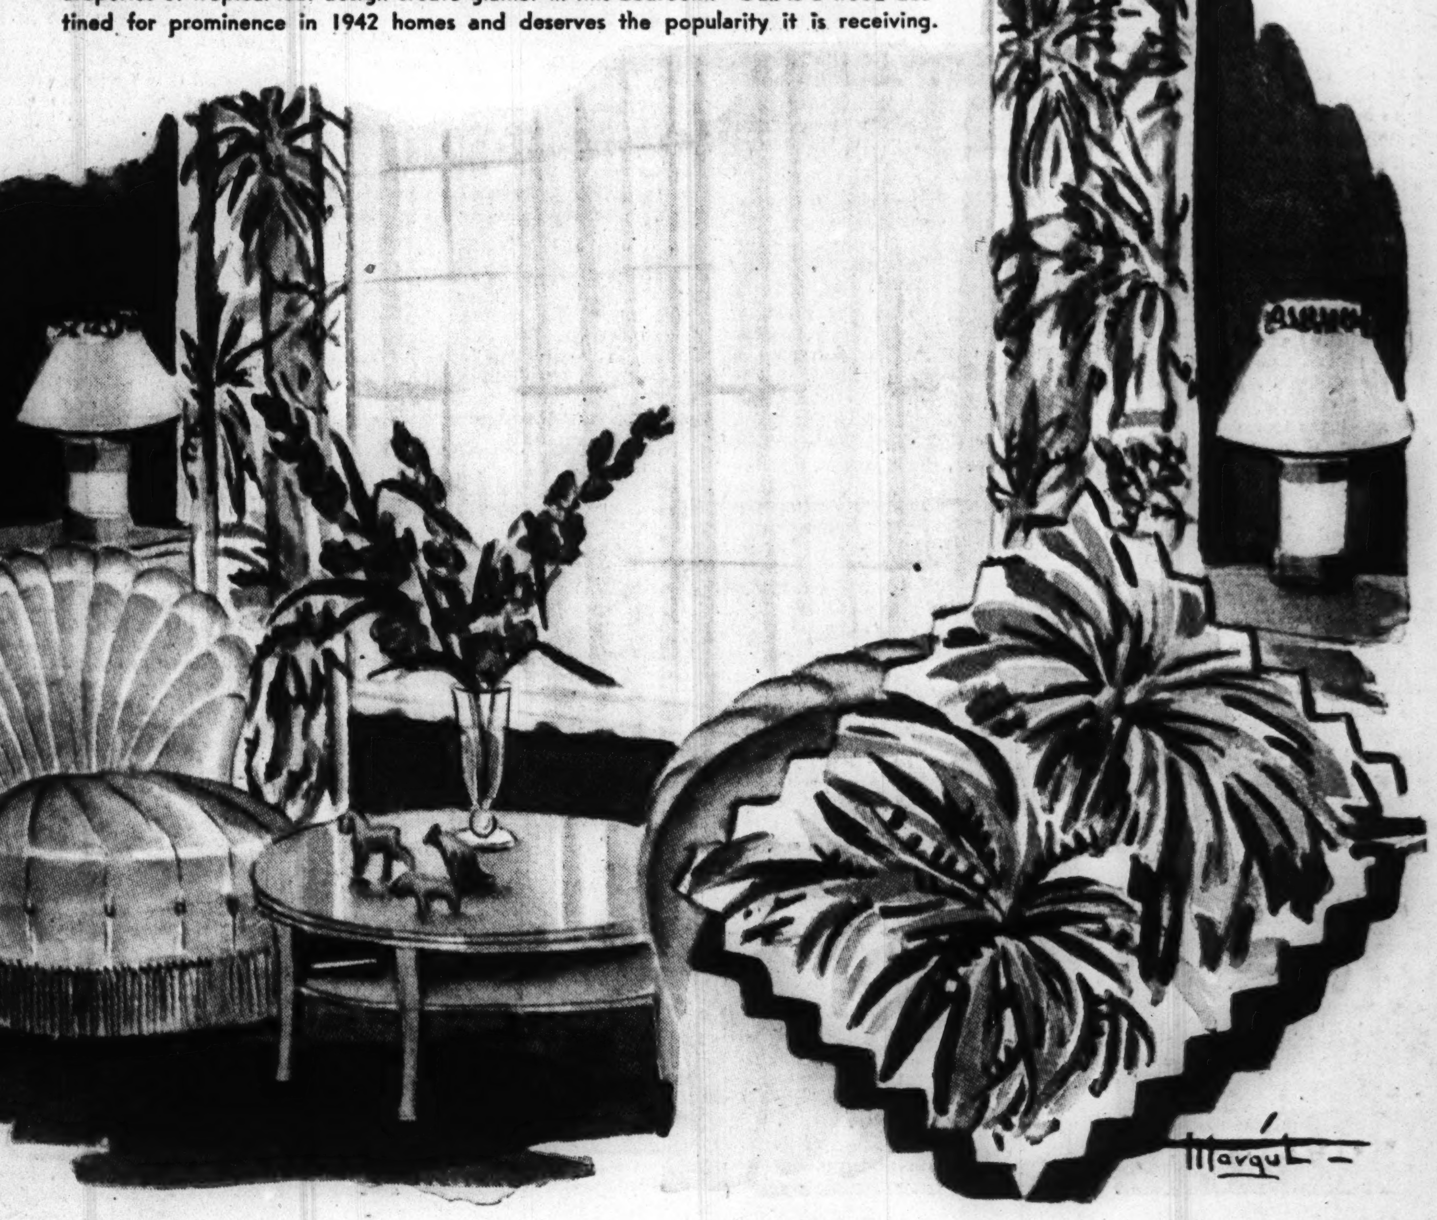
At the lower right are pieces in a new furniture line of light oak in the modern vein. Cabinets, desks, and tables are made in the same height and are interchangeable. Thus, no matter what your space or requirements, you can find the right piece of furniture. All are excellently styled and nicely finished.

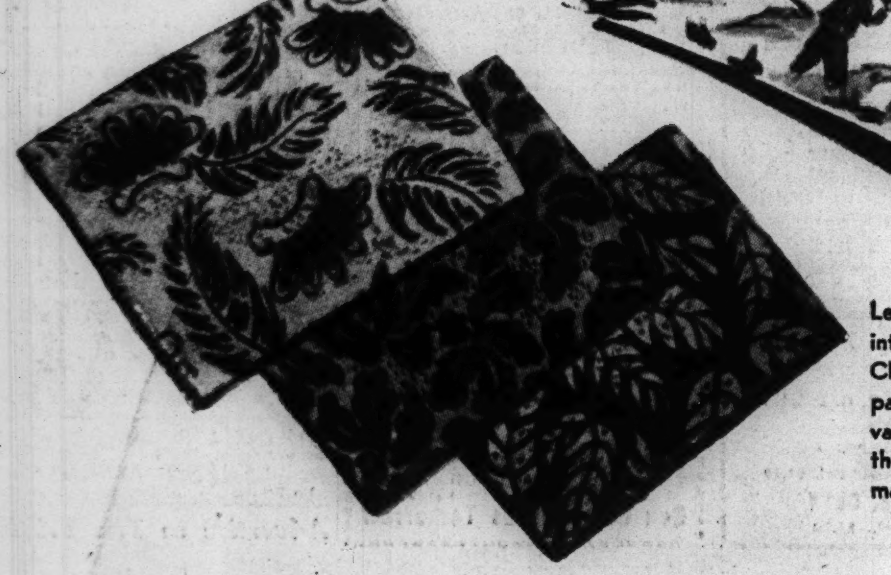
The drapery swatch shown is called Tropical and has a charming big, splashy pattern of jungle foliage on a creamy beige ground.

The small lamp and book table at the upper left is a new container for phonograph record books, and the good looking wedge-shaped table above it fits neatly into a corner to hold books, magazines, and what have you.

These are only a few of the displays from hundreds that are being put on by the stores here for National Furniture week. So, whether you are considering one new item or a houseful, now is an ideal time to make your selection.

Below: Huge, comfortable chairs, modern furniture in brand new light oak and full draperies of tropical leaf design create glamor in this bedroom. Oak is a wood destined for prominence in 1942 homes and deserves the popularity it is receiving.





Left: Here are samples of interesting new rugs made in Chicago. Graceful foliage patterns are worked out in various tints and shades of the background color. They may be used in many types of rooms.

'Louisiana Purchase' Coming to Erlanger Stage October 13

Star-Studded Cast Appears in Gay Revue

By Cecil Smith.

Chicago would be a happier city than it is if at least two bright, handsome and gay musical comedies were always available, winter and summer, in the loop theaters. There is nothing better than a well balanced musical, with plenty of dancing and singing and buffoonery, and with costumes and decors and girls to delight the eye, to counteract jitters and world-weariness

As things stand now, we have not had a musical show to deflect our cares since "Hellzapoppin" left in early July; and "Hellzapoppin," if you ask me, was scarcely the answer to one's fondest prayers, anyway. Finally, however, the shortage is about to be relieved, and if we Chicagoans are generous in our patronage we need not be without musical diversion between Oct. 13 and Easter.

"Louisiana Purchase," of which more will be said in subsequent paragraphs, provides us with the season's first musical comedy, beginning at the Erlanger theater a week from tomorrow. "Pal Joey," an equally skilful concoction with Cottage Grove avenue, right here in Chicago, as its locale, will be along somewhat later. And "Panama Hattie," with the robust Ethel Merman as Hattie, is expected during the Christmas holidays.

The title of "Louisiana Purchase" is not to be taken literally. As will be evident from the moment the curtain goes up, the libretto has nothing whatever to do with the celebrated land transaction of 1803, in which we acquired so much territory for so little money. The plot is based, rather, upon the celebrated political scandals of a few years ago, as a result of which the state of Louisiana obtained a great deal of publicity and notoriety. The opening chorus boldly proclaims that the characters in the play are not necessarily to be regarded as fictional.

In "Louisiana Purchase" Victor Moore, the timid, abashed little comic genius, appears in Chicago for the first time since "Leave It to Me," in which his talents were somewhat obscured by the immense size of the Auditorium theater, where the producers ill-advisedly elected to stage that excellent musical comedy. In the Erlanger theater, which provides perhaps the most complete rapport between audience and stage of any legitimate house in Chicago, the remarkable nuances of his style should register more completely.

[Vandamm Photo.]

William Gaxton, who reached the top of the musical comedy profession in "A Connecticut Yankee" back in 1927 and has remained at the top ever since, serves again as a high class "straight man" for Mr. Moore, an office he has previously performed with distinction—and bravado in "Anything Goes" and "Leave It to Me." He also was teamed with Mr. Moore in the twin Gershwin satires, "Of Thee I Sing" and "Let 'Em Eat Cake," in both of which he was seen as John P. Wintergreen, alleged President of the United States.

"Louisiana Purchase" brings Vera Zorina, the lovely blonde dancer, to Chicago in her second engagement outside the Ballet Russe. Miss Zorina's not-to-be-forgotten enchantment as the Angel in "I Married an Angel" made her the darling of Chicago in the spring of 1939. In "Louisiana Purchase" she again has an acting part, as she had in the earlier musical, which grants her ample opportunity to dance in George Balanchine's elaborately conceived ballet sequences. Her partner is Charles Laskey, who appeared with her in "I Married an Angel."

Nor do these citations complete the list of first line performers associated with "Louisiana Purchase." Irene Bordoni, the twinkling French star, returns to the Chicago legitimate stage, to which she has not lent her vivacious presence since "Paris" in 1929. Her saucy Gallic manner is particularly credible and likable in the New Orleans locale of the story.

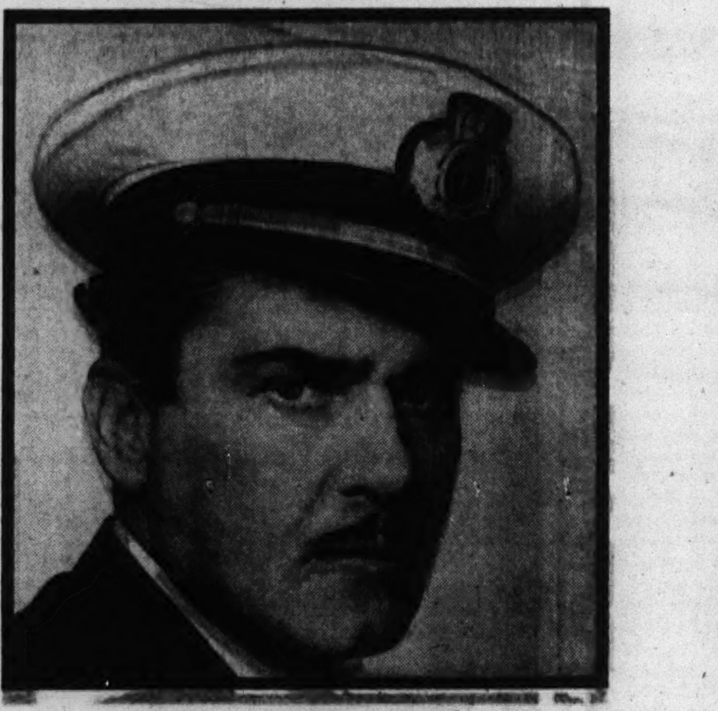
In writing the musical score for "Louisiana Purchase" Irving Berlin, lately a slave to the cinema, made his first contribution to the legitimate stage in almost eight years. So exhilarating was his success, it would seem, that he now promises to spend more of his energies on behalf of the flesh and blood theater, preparing a new "Music Box Revue" to celebrate the 20th anniversary of the opening of the Music Box theater in New York.

Other well known names connected with the production are those of Morrie Ryskind [co-author with George S. Kaufman of "Of Thee I Sing"], who wrote the book; George Balanchine, who created the ballets; Carl Randall, who devised the other dances, and Edgar McGregor, who directed the book. The luxurious settings and costumes were designed by Tom Lee.

The cast consists of nearly a hundred performers, when the chorus girls are added in. Among the featured participants are Nick Long, Althea Elder, Charles La Torre, Edward H. Robins, Ralph Riggs, Chet Bree, Robert Pitkin, John Eliot, Arlyne Varden, the Conways, and the Buccaneers.

APPEARS IN 'THEATER'



[Lucas-Pritchard Photo.]

Notes of the Theater

For another week John Golden remains the sole theatrical producer represented by plays in the loop. "Claudia" has struck its stride as a hit, and enters its fourth week at the Selwyn theater tonight. Cornelia Otis Skinner in "Theater" has just completed her initial week at the Harris, next door to the Selwyn on Dearborn street. Mr. Golden, incidentally, has been hiding one of his talents under a bushel in recent years. The production of "Theater" reveals again, after a considerable time lapse, his gift for direction. At one time he used to stage most of his own productions; he directed such successes as "Dear Me," "Thank You," "Pigs," and "Seventh Heaven." More recently he has experimented, usually with good results, in letting authors direct their own scripts, as in the cases of Rachel Crothers' "Susan and God," Samson Raphaelson's "Skylark," and Rose Franken's current "Claudia." It was at Miss Skinner's urgent request that he undertook the direction of "Theater."

Ruth Draper.

Ruth Draper comes to the Civic theater Oct. 17 and 18 for three bills of her celebrated solo dramas. Brought up in a theatrical and artistic family, Miss Draper began giving recitations at parties at a tender age. Later she made one, and only one, appearance in a play, "A Lady's Name," with Beryl Mercer. In 1920 she began her professional career as a solo performer in London. In the succeeding two decades she has constantly had to suffer the indignity of hearing people call her a monologist, or a diseuse, or an impersonator. "I am not any of those," Miss Draper says firmly. "I am an actor."

It is now possible to give full factual details about "Father's Day," the comedy which was first announced under the title "Western Union, Please." Its star, of course, is Charles Butterworth of Hollywood fame, and its opening time and place are Sunday, Oct. 19, and the Studebaker theater. Important members of the supporting cast are Ruth Weston, who played in "George Washington Slept Here" in New York last year; Mabel Paige, who appeared there in "Out of the Frying Pan"; Otto Hulett, who spent 35 weeks in Chicago with John Barrymore in "My Dear Children"; and Philip Faversham, who was diverted from his intention of driving an ambulance by the abrupt sinking of the Zamzam. Mr. Faversham, it should be added, acted here in "The Man Who Came to Dinner." Players with briefer assignments are Frances Reid, Watson White, William H. Callahan, Nina Foch, Peggy Van Vliet, John Shellie, and Robert Toms. The authors are Frances Goodrich, author of the scenarios for the first three "Thin Man" pictures, and Albert Hackett, author of the stage play "Up Pops the Devil." Arthur Sircom directed "Father's Day," and Donald Oenslager designed the setting. The opening tryout performance took place in Cleveland last Monday. The play has not yet been seen in New York.

Two notes about "Claudia": [1] The first European performance of Miss Franken's comedy drama will be given in Stockholm next month—in Swedish, of course—at the Royal theater. [2] A "Claudia Club" has been organized to band together all the girls and women of that name. Apply to the Secretary, Claudia Club, 119 North Clark street. John Pollock, Mr. Golden's Chicago representative, estimates — somewhat optimistically, this department fears—that there are a million Claudias in the country. One out of every 65 women. At their meetings the Chicago Claudias, of whom Claudia Cassidy, the beautiful and gifted dramatic critic of the Journal of Commerce, is bellwether, will talk about the play and the books, and have opportunities to meet important people concerned with the performance at the Selwyn theater.

Owen Davis Jr. and Anita Louise will have the title rôles in "Mr. and Mrs. North" when that mystery play goes on tour, which is tomorrow in Baltimore. We have heard nothing about its Chicago date, but it would not be surprising to learn that it will come here shortly after its visit to Detroit later this month. That would seem to involve economy in the purchase of railroad tickets, at least.

Something called "The Distant City," which was given at Michiana Shores in the summer of 1940, opened in New York one night with Gladys George in the cast, and closed the next. Edwin B. Self wrote the play, and John Tuerk produced it.

Play Parade, a new little theater group, opens its season Oct. 19 at Tooker Village playhouse, 869 North Dearborn street, with Paul Osborn's "Morning's at Seven." The group is financed on a coöperative basis. Later bills will include "Sweet Aloes," "Penny Wise," a new play by a Chicagoan, and a Shakespeare production.

The Canterbury players, directed by Luella Canterbury, will give "Ladies in Retirement" in Curtiss hall, 410 South Michigan avenue, next Sunday evening.

Ad Man Self Angel to New Theater Flop

By Burns Mantle.

Gladys George.

NEW YORK [Special].—New plays come and go at this time of year. Frequently the goings are more interesting than the comings. That was true this week. A drama which came in was called "The Distant City." It was written by an advertising executive, Edwin B. Self, and lasted two performances. Self also stood the cost of it, I'm told, and the adventure ran into money. Among other items he was obliged to post a bond of $6,000 with actors' equity to guarantee the actors two weeks' salary. Which naturally recalls the bad old days when such a closing would have left 15 or 20 actors stranded, without jobs or money, and the best weeks for job hunting in their profession behind them, wasted on profitless rehearsals.

Self is a persistent angel. Advertising is his business, but the drama is his passion. He used to be in rubber, with Dayton, O., headquarters. Now, they tell me, he has switched to beer, and works out of Milwaukee. I met him first, professionally, so to speak, back in 1927 when he fathered a little something he quite courageously called "Junk." Naturally, the play reviewers lost no time in suggesting that, as far as that play was concerned, its author knew best. "Junk" lasted nine performances.

Several years later, a second Self-inspired script turned up on Broadway that had to do with a very old woman who was pushed around the living room of a southern shack for three acts without ever muttering a sound. Then she backed a villainous seductress thru a side door that let her drop a hundred feet onto the rocks, and spoke for the first time. "Where's Grace?" was her cue line. "In hell, where she belongs!" answered the old crone, and went back to playing dead. "Two Strange Women" this one was called. It lasted a week, and again Self footed the bill.

He evidently likes to write about strange women. "The Distant City" tells of a shuffling oldster who, by her own confession, had been a bit of a trollop in her youth. When a son was born to her she determined to rear him as best she could, and did. He turned out to be a nice boy and got a job on the sanitary squad, collecting garbage "in a big western city." He loved his old mother devotedly, but she did get in his way a lot after she broke her hip and he had to do the housework. So he fixed a stout hook in the wall and used to hang an armchair, with mother in it, on the hook. She couldn't jump down, because of her hip. She just had to stay there and sulk until he got the work done. When she tired of being sulky, she would spend her time thinking up insults to hurl at him. Novel idea but, unfortunately, the only one in the play.

After that the boy discovered that the neighbor girl he loved was going to have a baby for which the minister's son was responsible. Trouble threatened, so the minister's son drugged the boy, strangled the girl, and arranged enough circumstantial evidence to send the boy to the chair.

With this turn of affairs the old mother, who had been an atheist all her life, took to praying for her son. She didn't save him. But she came to believe that there is a God, and that in that distant city, which was the heaven to which they both were going, little people were just as important as big people.

"The Distant City" was generously cast. Gladys George, young and comely in her own right, as you will recall from her assignments in "Personal Appearance" and "Lady in Waiting," put on a gray wig, dug up a querulous voice and played the old woman with considerable skill. Her husband, Leonard Penn, was the seducer, Ben Smith was the boy, and Lee Baker fussed around laboriously with the rôle of the minister. But "The Distant City" lasted only two days. Self is learning how to apply the stop loss order to show business. If his advertising jobs and his enthusiasm hold out, I wouldn't be surprised if he wrote a salable play one of these days.

"The Distant City" was no sooner off the skids than we were notified that there was to be a new vaudeville revue introduced, called "Newcomers of 1941." Sounded a little uncertain, and the fact that Will Morrissey was producing it added considerably to that uncertainty. Morrissey is one of the old time unpredictables of the theater, always on the verge of doing big things in a producing way, but never quite managing to make the grade.

The day before "Newcomers" was scheduled to open, word came that an operatic impresario, Amadeo Passeri, had a previous claim to the theater and refused to release it. Morrissey insisted that his show would open just the same, and practically locked himself in the theater to make sure. Midnight found him trying to get out by climbing an iron gate guarding the alley leading to the stage door. He had gotten as far as the top of the fence, which he had straddled precariously, when a police car came along. His conversation with the police when they demanded an explanation decided them to put him in a safe place for the night, on a charge of disorderly conduct.

The judge let Morrissey off next morning, and he went immediately back to producing. His show would go on, he telephoned, if he had to produce it on the sidewalk. If he were barred there, he would take it into the café of the Hotel Forrest across the street, which, as it turned out, he did. His first night audience, however, consisted of no more than a couple of dozen interested idlers and a group of amused friends.

Solid Music by Les Brown at the Blackhawk; Smoothies Stay On

By Will Davidson.

There's Les Brown and more solid music in the Blackhawk now than you've heard in a long time.

Les was first heard in Chicago as the house band at Mike Todd's bottle field last spring. He gave the distinct, and rather loud impression that he knew music. And no wonder. Master Brown is the son of musicians, and has been playing in or in front of bands since he was 9 years old. All the way thru school he studied music, and his one purpose in life was to become a very good musician. Life, which usually picks up drug clerks or medical students and makes them over into musicians, followed the logical path in his case. And there is great rejoicing among Les Brown's body of idolators.

Music done Brown has a lively tang, and the humorous, whimsical touch that marked Raymond Scott's early efforts. Les formerly arranged for big names like Isham Jones, Red Nichols, and Larry Clinton, but until he was his own boss his delightful talent never had full and free reign. Now he's coming fast into his own, and he has the instrumentation back of him to put over his wide range of musical styles. There's a little matter of personality, too, that makes Les Brown the band leader you want to watch in the swing field.

The Smoothies are staying on and on at the Blackhawk, and for obvious good reason. No trio has yet captured quite that individual something that makes Babs, Charlie, and Little such favorites.

Will Bradley.
[Bruno of Hollywood photo.]

They are panting at the Panther room, and all on account of Will [Beat Me] Bradley. Will set about organizing his band like a business man—on paper. Then he got the men. Now he gets the jobs. If you like boogie-woogie in its more mature forms, you'll like Bradley. If you like good solid, recognizable swing, you'll probably like him, too, unless you are one of those fanatics who tack the word corn onto anything outside what you personally decide is the wheat bin. If you like fairly gentle dinner music you shouldn't be too unhappy with Bradley. On this, his first time out in the local night club field, he looks like a comer.

Bradley's star performer, of course, is Ray McKinley—a drummer who stacks up along with any of them. His solo, "Hall of the Mountain King," is sheer percussion wizardry. Lynn Gardner and Terry Allen are Bradley's handsome vocalists, and the Boogie Woogie Trio — Fiddler Felix Giobbe, Pianist Billy Maxted, and McKinley — form a musical Bunsen burner.

The Dorothy Byton dancers, Cedric and Algie, a tricky acrobatic combination, and Carl Marx, the town's favorite clown, fill out the show.

Boswelling the Bistros: It sometimes pays to sing while you work. Avis Kent, a professional model, did and the result was a singing contract. Now she's doing a gracious performance nightly at the Stevens hotel, in the Continental room. . . . Earl [Father] Hines is back at the Grand Terrace, where he belongs, if crowds are an indication. . . . Bob Moonan, Del Courtney's organist at the Stevens, has his questionnaire . . . and Bill Garner has traded his Heidelberg octet uniforms for an officer's outfit in the army. . . . The Yar is in full swing again, with Georges Scherban and his gypsy ensemble playing divinely in the Boyar dining room. Correct, gracious Louis Steffen again is maitre for Col. W. W. Yaschenko. . . . Les Brown's version of the inevitable Blackhawk Sunday matinée fan group is a Record club. Fifteen members will be selected each Sunday, by lottery. Each gets a recording, not only when selected but every two weeks thereafter. Further, Les will let the club select by weekly eliminations what piece he will record each month. . . . The Piccadilly circle, atop Harry's New Yorker, is open again, featuring the "Three Knights of Harmony." . . . Del Courtney has organized a bowling team that will meet the winner of a series of service men's elimination games for a trophy test. Imagine the nerve of that guy, inviting the army and navy into an alley!

Vaudeville

June St. Clair.
[Bloom Photo.]

Paul Remos, novelty entertainer with his famous midget twins; the Stapletons, ballroom dancers; Lester Cole and the Six Debutantes, vocal ensemble, and the theater's ballet are the current stage attractions at the Chicago theater. On the screen is "Lady Be Good."

The stage show at the Rialto theater offers June St. Clair, Connie Fonslau, Ona Lee, and Ann Valentine. "Daybreak" is the motion picture.

Seven of motion pictures' stars and starlets are to be seen in person in the State Lake theater's current stage revue, "Hollywood Sweater Girls Revue." The players are June Preisser, Cecelia Parker, Barbara Pepper, Mary Healy, Peggy Moran, Peter Lind Hayes, and Dick Baldwin. The charming Three Kim Loo Sisters, and a comedy team, Stuart and Taylor, complete the vaudeville bill. The film is "Spooks Run Wild."

Impressive Cast for Musical "Let's Face It"

Danny Kaye, Eve Arden, Benny Baker, Edith Meiser, Mary Jane Walsh, Vivian Vance, Betty Moran and Nanette Fabares make up the impressive list of principals who will appear in the latest Cole Porter musical comedy, "Let's Face It," which Vinton Freedley will shortly produce.

Opera Season Opens November 8 with 'A Masked Ball'

Miss Rethberg, Bjoerling, and Thomas in Cast

By Edward Barry.

As if mindful of the shortness of its season, the Chicago Opera company refuses this year to start cautiously and to build toward its first big climax by gradual steps. Instead, it will present at the very beginning of its 1941 season one of the most important performances of the whole year—the revival of Verdi's "A Masked Ball."

This opera, which has not been heard in a downtown performance by the resident companies for eleven years, nor in any fully professional performance in the Chicago district for ten, will be presented at the Civic Opera house on Saturday evening, Nov. 8, as the gala nonsubscription opening of the 1941 season. [The subscription season will begin Nov. 10 and run to Dec. 13.]

John Charles Thomas. [Seymour photo.]

The cast announced for "A Masked Ball" is headed by Jussi Bjoerling, the extraordinary Swedish tenor, as Richard, and Elisabeth Rethberg, the eminent German soprano, as Amelia. The American baritone, John Charles Thomas, is to sing Reinhart, and the American soprano, Josephine Antoine, Oscar [a boy's part taken by a woman]. The rôle of the seeress will go to the American mezzo, Anna Kaskas. The two conspirators will be sung by Virgilio Lazzari and Roberto Silva, the latter a Mexican who will be making on this occasion his Chicago operatic debut.

The conductor is to be the same Emile Cooper who was in charge of all four of the 1930 performances of "A Masked Ball" at the Civic Opera house. Other links between the forthcoming performance and those of 1930 are provided by Thomas and Lazzari, both of whom appeared in the opera one or more times that season. A link with the last Ravinia performance of the opera, which took place on Aug. 28, 1931, is Rethberg, who sang Amelia then and will sing the same rôle next month.

"A Masked Ball" is interesting for several reasons. First, it is one of the very few European operas with an American setting ["The Girl of the Golden West" and "Manon Lescaut" are the only others which occur at the moment, and the latter has only one scene laid in the new world]. Second, this opera and its composer took on great political significance during the turbulent years which preceded the unification of Italy. Third, "A Masked Ball" is not an early Verdi work, as so many of us thoughtlessly believe, but a product of that interesting transitional period between "La Traviata" and "Aïda."

The story of how "A Masked Ball" acquired its Boston setting is a strange one. The scene was originally laid in Sweden, and the story concerned Gustavus III., who was assassinated at a masked ball in Stockholm in 1792. Since violence to rulers was and is a ticklish subject in Europe, and since an Italian revolutionist made an attempt on the life of Napoleon III. while rehearsals for "A Masked Ball" were in progress, the authorities took alarm and forbade performance of the opera. A suggestion that the music be adapted to an entirely different libretto found the composer adamant. The problem was solved by transferring the scene to colonial Boston. Even in the unquiet Italy of 1859 it was felt that the assassination of so distant and unimportant a potentate as the governor of Boston would not put ideas into the heads of local malcontents.

The political significance of Verdi and of his opera had its rise at the same time and from the same causes. During the excitement caused by the decision of the censors to ban "A Masked Ball," turbulent nationalists began using the phrase "Viva Verdi" as an acrostic for "Viva Vittorio Emmanuele, Re D'Italia" ["Long Live Victor Emanuel, King of Italy"]. This was in the days before the unification of Italy, and the name of the head of the house of Savoy was a rallying cry of those who were working for such unification.

The popular idea is that a long, unproductive period intervened between the completion of the early big three of Verdi's operas—"Rigoletto," "Il Trovatore," and "La Traviata"—and the beginning of his work on "Aïda." Yet the fact is that between "La Traviata" [1853] and "Aïda" [1869-'71] the composer produced "Sicilian Vespers," "Simon Boccanegra," "A Masked Ball," "The Force of Destiny," and "Don Carlos." It is curious that none of these has held the stage as well as the three which had immediately preceded them nor as "Aïda," which followed. Probably no blanket reason for this which could cover all five operas can be given, altho there is some validity in the statement that during this period the composer was experimenting, not always happily, with different and more ambitious dramatic and musical styles. Not that Verdi ever became or desired to become anybody but Verdi, but he was naturally not insensitive to the artistic winds which were blowing thru Europe at the time, many of them from the direction of Paris.

"A Masked Ball" was first produced in 1859, and has held a fairly high place even among Verdi's output by reason of the vitality and the great dramatic power of its music and by reason of the exciting, blood and thunder quality of the libretto [which had been derived by a certain Somma from Scribe's libretto for Auber's "Gustave III."]. The story in a nutshell follows:

Richard, count of Warwick and governor of Boston, loves Amelia, the wife of his secretary and friend, Reinhart. She returns his affection, but she is deeply conscious of guilt and seeks from the sorceress, Ulrica, a potion to kill this illicit love in her and make her a happy wife once more. Richard also consults the sorceress, but in jest, and is told by her that he shall be murdered by that friend whose hand he next shakes. This turns out to be Reinhart, of whose loyalty Richard is so certain that he scoffs at Ulrica's prediction. However, Reinhart later surprises Richard with a veiled woman. What this veiled woman [who is Amelia] is doing is telling Richard that their ways must part, but certain conspirators who have resolved on Richard's death tear the veil from her face and reveal her identity to her husband. He, convinced that Richard and Amelia have betrayed him, now joins forces with the conspirators and draws lots to see who shall murder Richard. The choice falls on him. He goes to the governor's masked ball, learns Richard's disguise from the page, Oscar, and stabs him dead.

Notes of Music and Musicians

Johann Strauss' deservedly popular waltz, "Tales from the Vienna Woods," will be included some time this season on the programs of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. The score calls for the services of a zither player and, since the gentleman who regularly played the part with the orchestra has left Chicago, it has been necessary to find a substitute from among local zither players. Accordingly a contest will be held, the winner of which will be given the opportunity of performing with the Chicago Symphony. Zither players are urged to inquire about the contest regulations from Henry E. Voegeli, manager of the orchestra, 220 South Michigan avenue.

On Thursday at 7.30 the Hull House Symphony orchestra will get under way for another season. Arthur Zack has succeeded Herbert Butler as director of the ensemble, which is composed of nonprofessional players with the slogan: "Play for your own pleasure; play for the pleasure of others." Mr. Zack has had previous experience as a conductor with the Cincinnati Civic orchestra, the New Orleans Symphony, and the Oklahoma State Symphony. An invitation is extended to all instrumentalists, whether associated with Hull House or not, to join the group.

Ida Krehm, pianist, will be the soloist on the opening program of the Chicago Woman's Aid on Tuesday at 2 o'clock. Miss Krehm won several piano awards in her native Canada before coming to Chicago in 1929 to study. In 1937 she won three major national awards, the Walter W. Naumburg Foundation award, the National Federation of Music Clubs biennial contest, and the Schubert Memorial award. Since then she has toured the country extensively, playing in recital and with various symphony orchestras, including that of Chicago. The Chicago Woman's Aid clubrooms are at 185 North Wabash avenue.

The Sunday Evening club opens its 35th season tonight in Orchestra hall. The Marshall Field & Co. chorus, directed by Edgar Nelson, will take part in the 7 o'clock service, while the club's regular 125 voiced choir, also conducted by Mr. Nelson, will sing at the 8 o'clock service. The soloists for the latter meeting remain the same with the exception of Louisa Hoe, who has just been appointed the soprano soloist. The others are Virginia Auyer, contralto; Charles Sears, tenor, and Mark Love, bass. Stanley Martin and Robert Yale Smith continue to serve the Sunday Evening club as organist and pianist respectively.

In commemoration of the 40th anniversary of the death of Giuseppe Verdi the Opera theater will present a program of selections from the composer's operas on Wednesday at 2:15 at the Woman's Club of Wilmette, which is celebrating its 50th anniversary. The performers will be Lorraine Tommerson and Sandra Kohn, sopranos; Marguerite Bost, mezzo-soprano; Thomas Brennan, tenor; Victor Carell, baritone, and Ernesto Barbini, pianist and conductor. "Nabucco," "Macbeth," and "Don Carlos" together with more familiar operas by the Italian master are listed on the program.

On Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock the Musical guild will begin its seasonal activities with a program and reception in the Fine Arts building. Marjorie Morgan, soprano, and Lucille Turner Parkhill, violinist, will perform.

Four concerts by internationally famous artists are scheduled on the Winnetka Music club's 18th recital series. The list presents Grace Moore, soprano, Oct. 20; Ruth Draper, monologist, Nov. 24; Nathan Milstein, violinist, Jan. 26, and Vronsky and Babin, duo-pianists, Feb. 23. The programs will be held in the New Trier High school auditorium in Winnetka. Inquiries concerning the series may be made to the club at Box 206, Winnetka. It should be noted that there will be no north shore series in Highland Park this season.

The free concert of recorded music, presented by the Chicago Public library in its assembly hall, Randolph street and Michigan avenue, next Saturday afternoon at 1:30 will offer two symphonies, Sibelius' First and Beethoven's Fifth.

At noon today the Paulist choristers return to Old St. Mary's church to open their 38th season as a church and concert choir. For the 14th consecutive year they will be under the direction of Father O'Malley. The choristers prepared for the coming season during the past summer at the Paulist choir summer school in Rhinelander, Wis. On April 26 the famous group will give its annual concert in Orchestra hall. For the occasion Leo Sowerby, Chicago composer, has written a Latin motet in honor of St. Paul.

The Sibelius club, a Finnish male chorus, is busily rehearsing in its studios at 4219 Lincoln avenue. Its first concert is scheduled for Dec. 6, after which it expects to tour.

16 Concerts by Chamber Music Groups Planned

By Cecil Smith.

For years chamber music has had hard going in Chicago. While concert audiences have, in general, supported orchestral music well and have even managed to keep the breath of life in our opera company, they have been chilly toward the proposition that music played by a small handful of musicians can be as interesting and valuable as the sort of music that produces more decibels of volume. Each season brought a smaller number of concerts by small ensembles than the one before, until the season of 1940-'41 became nothing short of a public scandal in its neglect of chamber music literature.

There are now a number of encouraging signs that Chicago, which liked it very much a generation ago, is again discovering chamber music. At Ravinia last summer the programs by the Budapest quartet were notably, even sensationally successful. Several thousand listeners found, perhaps for the first time, that Schubert's C major quintet is fully as satisfying when it is played beautifully as Schubert's C major symphony.

This morning it is my pleasant privilege to give a forecast of no fewer than 16 attractive events in the realm of chamber music. While 16 is a small number of chamber music concerts if the total is compared to the wealth of orchestral and operatic programs a Chicago musical season brings forward, it still represents an immense increase over last year's activities in this field.

The Manuel and Williamson Harpsichord ensemble opens the chamber music season this evening, with a program divided between Henry Purcell and Johann Sebastian Bach. The concert is the first of three to be played in the Goodman theater on consecutive Sundays. [Next Sunday's concert takes place at 4 in the afternoon; tonight's program and the one on Oct. 19 begin at 8:30]. The second of the programs in this Festival of Ancient Music will be devoted to works by Handel and Mozart, with Bruce Foote, baritone, and Florian Mueller, oboeist, assisting the ensemble of harpsichord and strings. A remarkable novelty on this occasion will be Mozart's "Fantasy for Barrel Organ," which Philip Manuel and Gavin Williamson will play on two harpsichords. On Oct. 19, with the assistance of Robert Quick, violinist, and a group of madrigal singers, the ensemble will present works by a variety of 17th and 18th century Italian composers, from Monteverdi to Vivaldi.

The guiding spirits of the harpsichord ensemble are Philip Manuel and Gavin Williamson, who have performed pioneer service for preclassical music in Chicago for a decade or more. The other members of the group are Dorothy Lane, harpsichordist; Leonard Sorkin and Oscar Chausow, violinists, Milton Preves, violist, and Dudley Powers, cellist.

Under the energetic and constructive leadership of its president, Mrs. Harrison H. Havner, the Lake View Musical society will sponsor the Philharmonic String quartet in a cycle of three Goodman theater concerts on the evenings of Oct. 26, Nov. 23, and Jan. 25. The members of the quartet, all players in the Chicago Symphony orchestra, are John Weicher, the orchestra's concertmaster, Robert Quick, Walter Hancock, and Dudley Powers.

The charter of the Lake View Musical society stipulates that the members shall endeavor to "stimulate musical interest in Chicago." In the past the society has supported the Chicago and Woman's Symphony orchestras, and has awarded $10,000 worth of scholarships to promising music students. Feeling the pressing need for more chamber music in Chicago, the society last spring voted to broaden its scope by promoting and underwriting the concerts of the Philharmonic String quartet. The first program has not been announced as yet, but the music for the entire series will be chosen by the quartet in consultation with Hans Lange, associate conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, who is eager to assist in the development of interest in chamber music here.

The Fine Arts String quartet, another ensemble of Chicago Symphony orchestra players, announces a similar series of three concerts to be given at the "twilight" hour of 5:30 on Nov. 2, Dec. 14, and Jan. 18, in Fullerton hall in the Art Institute. The members of the group are Leonard Sorkin, Ben Senescu, Sheppard Lehnhoff, and George Sopkin. At each concert one or more assisting artists will appear with the quartet, making possible the performance of works written for a variety of instrumental combinations. The supplementary instruments will be both strings and woodwinds.

For seven seasons the Russian trio has given regular series of morning concerts in the Arts club. Not everybody, obviously, can spare the time for a chamber concert at 11 o'clock on Tuesday morning. Finally the members of the trio have been persuaded to undertake an evening concert in the Goodman theater on Oct. 21. The Arts club morning series also will take place, as in other years. The membership of the trio consists of Nina Mesirow Minchin, pianist; Michael Wilkomirski, violinist, and Ennio Bolognini, cellist. The Goodman theater program will include the Brahms Trio in C minor, opus 101; Rachmaninoff's "Trio Elegiac," opus 9; and a trio by Gaspar Cassado.

Current Music News

One of the world's unique opera companies moves into Kimball hall on Monday night for a week's stay. It is the Victor Puppet Opera company, in which, as the name implies, the performers are puppets manipulated by unseen human beings. The tiny figures, clad in costumes modeled after those used by contemporary opera stars, go thru the traditional stage routines of the operas like veterans as the recorded voices of such opera stars as Helen Jepson, John Charles Thomas, Giovanni Martinelli, Claudia Muzio and Lawrence Tibbett sing the familiar and well loved tunes. This week's répertoire will require the services of 408 marionettes, including the conductor, who is affectionately known as "Tosci."

Ernest Wolff. [De Bellis Photo.]

The troupe is the creation of its current director, Ernest Wolff. It was in 1939 at the New York World's Fair that the company made its first big hit. Since then it has enjoyed prosperous tours thruout this country and Canada, and when "Faust" is given on Tuesday night it will celebrate its 2,000th performance. Altho the ensemble has its origins in this city, it has played here only once before, and this will be its first full Chicago engagement.

Much as the absent San Carlo Opera company used to do, the puppet troupe will open the fall operatic season on Monday night with "La Traviata." The répertoire continues on Tuesday with "Faust," Wednesday with "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci," Thursday with "Rigoletto," Friday with "Carmen," Saturday afternoon with "Faust," and Saturday evening with "Il Trovatore."

Naomi Cook, soprano, and Jacobeth Kerr, pianist, will be heard on a program before the Chicago Musical Arts club at 4 o'clock today in the Fine Arts building, suite 212. Rudolph Ganz will address the gathering on "American Youth and Music."

Daniel Ericourt, French-American pianist, has joined the faculty of the Sherwood Music school. He is well known here thru his many recital appearances. This season he will be heard in concert on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 7.

Sonia Sharnova, contralto of the Chicago Opera company, will give a lecture recital on Jewish music before the Temple Emanuel Sisterhood at 701 Buckingham place at 2 o'clock on Tuesday. David Chausow, violinist, and Esther Hirshberg, pianist, will be the assisting artists.

Dances from the Russian territories now being attacked by the German armies will be given authentic representation by Vytautas Finadar Beliajus and his group of dancers at International house, 1414 East 59th street, on Saturday night at 8 o'clock. The program will be followed by general folk and ballroom dancing.

Citizenship Is Basis of New College Setup

By the Rev. John Evans.

Macalester college, St. Paul, Minn., has announced a new curricular setup which will place citizenship at the core of all studies. The announcement made by Charles J. Turck, president of Macalester, spoke of two years spent in experimental studies of curricular problems arising from the proposal that all courses should revolve about and be related to citizenship.

Macalester freshmen will have the option of a five hour course in the humanities or a combination of two courses, one in history and the other in religion. Dr. Norman F. Coleman, former president of Reed college, Portland, Ore., will have charge of the studies in the humanities. This course covers the highlights of history, philosophy, literature, art, and music that form the background of the present day world.

The combination of courses in history and religion will represent the more usual approach to the understanding of the modern world thru emphasis on the time sequence of events rather than on a philosophical analysis characteristic of the overall view of the optional humanities course.

Sophomores will have a choice between courses on social forces which are moulding America and, government and the economic order. The former makes a historical approach to modern society to be followed by a study of the present social scene from the standpoint of the sociologist. The course will be under joint direction of Herbert J. Wood, historian, and William A. Cornell of the sociology department.

The alternative sophomore course is based on study and discussions of the economic and political tensions under the leadership of Frrest A. Young of the economics department and Marion W. Boggs, political science teacher.

Despite the fact that juniors and seniors will devote larger portions of time toward their major subjects, Dr. Turck stated that these students will not be permitted to depart from citizenship as the core of their work. Psychology and physiology will be emphasized during those years on the ground that the working knowledge of body and mind is basic to the understanding human behavior.

Dr. Turck explained that members of the senior seminar who have majored in natural or social sciences, or in the humanities, will be presented with many approaches to the understanding of basic human and social problems so they may "see life steadily and see it whole." He added that the sequence of courses is not rigidly obligatory but that the courses must stand on their own merit and win the support of the students.

Classical Recordings

Victor has just released a recording of Mozart's Serenade for Wind Instruments in E Flat Major. The work is scored for two oboes, two clarinets, two horns, and two bassoons. It is played by members of the Alumni orchestra of the National Orchestral association.

This serenade is a beautiful example of what might be called good minor Mozart—and good minor Mozart is very good music indeed. Exquisitely contoured melodies bubble up from a seemingly inexhaustible spring. Each is presented with intoxicating grace and ease. So perfect is the workmanship that no joint or seam in the work's soft bright surface is apparent.

Unlike such later products of the composer as the "Jupiter" symphony or the opera, "Don Giovanni," this serenade seeks neither to deal with Olympian subjects nor to probe the more profound of human emotions. Instead it sings along in a sweet, almost always carefree manner. Its dominant note is good humor, almost merriment.

There are, it is true, foreshadowings here and there of a later, different, graver Mozart—but by the time the last movement is reached all is gayety once again.

The serenade has five short movements and comes on three double faced records. The performers are careful and musicianly, and lay themselves open in only two or three tiny episodes to the charge of a too literal and too unimaginative interpretation.

Good Morning!

Have a look! Are we agreeing as to September's "bests"?

Quoting from original reviews:

"When Ladies Meet" [featuring Joan Crawford, Greer Garson, and Robert Taylor]. "Joan Crawford . . . proceeds to make herself completely at home on the high plane she has achieved. . . . Magnificent performances by Greer Garson and Robert Taylor. . . . Trite old situation BUT—Miss Crawford makes a one horse shay look like a fluid drive automobile. . . . Audience loved Mr. Taylor. . . . Lavishly staged . . ."

"Father Takes a Wife"—"Gloria Swanson's comeback movie" . . . really tonic-y. . . . Gloria will be like a shot in the arm to women of her generation . . . just as young looking and twice as peppy as I remember her in the old days. . . . Adolphe Menjou et al, splendid. . . . Picture never hands you a minute's letdown.

"Here Comes Mr. Jordan"—" . . . comedy both droll and grisly. . . . You will like Robert Montgomery much. . . . Claude Rains scores in title rôle. . . . James Gleason STEALS THE SHOW. . . . An all around interesting and unusual photoplay . . ."

"Tanks a Million"—" . . . Chuckle bearing farce relating the remarkable adventures in training camp of an information clerk [William Tracy] with a photographic memory . . ."

"Sun Valley Serenade"—" . . . Best picture Sonja Henie's made to date . . . has everything with which to intrigue ANY audience . . ." Leading man—John Payne.

"Here Is Ireland"—" . . . serenely enchanting travelog . . . one of the sweetest screen potpourri that has ever lent its fragrance to an idle hour. . . . Not only for the Irish is this picture . . . we all need it and many more like it. . . . For it is by things such as this that we keep our balance and a true perspective . . ."

See you tomorrow.

Children Vary in the Tempo at Which They Do Studies

It Is Unwise to Rush Them Into a Task

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"How is John's arithmetic?" asked a mother of her son's teacher in a new school.

"He's failed," was the answer. "When the other children are doing 18 examples, he's usually doing about 12," was the answer. "I've had to mark him 'failed.'"

That night, in talking it over, John said: "I know I'm slow, mother. I can't work with my eye on the clock. We were given just so much time to do those examples, and I didn't finish and the others did. But I had all my 12 right and hardly any one else who did all 18 had even 12 right. I know I'm slow, but, gosh mom, arithmetic's a subject you've got to be accurate in, and I don't see much sense in being quick and getting them half wrong."

Slow John was, but painstaking and accurate. This is a true story.

"Some of the fellows have certainly got it down pat," the college freshman told me. "We have lots of outside reading to do in a few courses, and some of the fellows can read three or four books in a semester in such a way that they can make good book reports, and that sure makes a hit with the instructors. They seem to know how to skim them over and use a lot of words in their reports, 'padding.' I can't do that. I wish I could, because this way I can't give in enough reports. When I read I have to read thoroly. I can't seem to help it, and that slows me up."

But he thinks well as he goes along, this student, and remembers what he reads. He has a thoro mind, scientific in its quality.

A boy I know gets into difficulties with his family. He is quick and capable, but he has great enthusiasm plus persistence. He must finish a thing without stopping, once he's started it. He even wants to go without food until he's thru.

A young girl I know is quite the opposite of these other young persons. She is the most facile person. Brilliant, she can do almost anything quickly and with ease, but she works in rushes. A dress is made in a rush, then there's a lull. A school play is written in a rush, then she does nothing special with her spare time. This troubles her rather plodding mother, who neither understands nor approves. Her own kind of mind and her tempo are so different that she is constantly at odds with her child.

Children have different speeds. This usually is an inherent thing. It is natural for each individual to function at a certain rate, but I am not speaking particularly now of those slow "phases" that children go thru at certain ages, and outgrow. It is a child's whole natural tempo I have in mind. Nature has geared them to be slow, medium, or fast, in mental or physical activities, or both. It is almost impossible for us to change that natural tempo.

Many children's lives would be made happier, and friction in the family and classroom lessened, if adults would realize that. So I want to stress the fact that children are very individual in the speed at which they work. They also vary in the quality and continuity of their work. We can make reasonable efforts to train them in thoroness and concentration, but when it comes to changing their speed, we should be careful not to interfere too much. To say "hurry, hurry, hurry" to the child who is naturally deliberate, or even slow, is a great mistake.

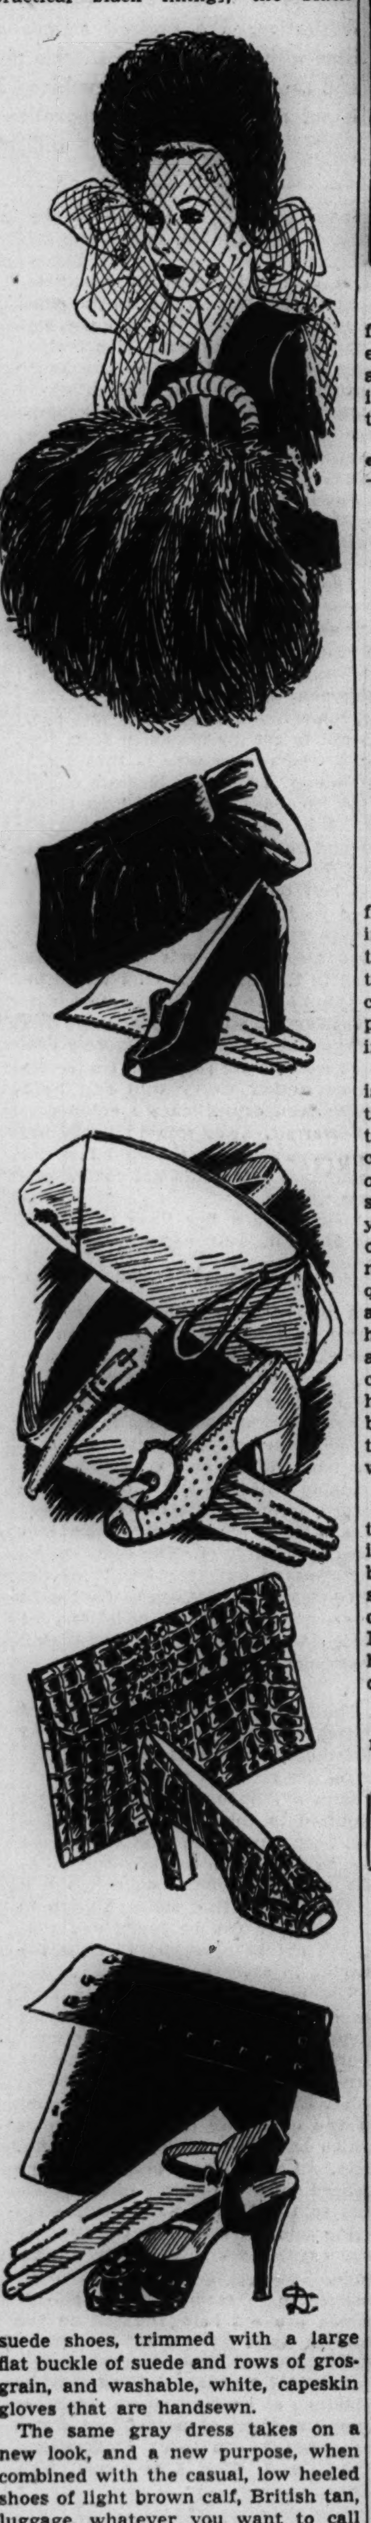
Here is a wonderful tale, with illustrations, not about how the elephant got his trunk, but the equally fabulous story of how one carefully chosen dress can switch from dressy affairs to spectator sports or tailored events, as well as all the stages between the two extremes, by means of the accessories which are worn with it.

The dress must be simple, untrimmed, and undecorated in order to be a satisfactory foil. It should be elegant looking, whether the price tag indicates it or not.

For our purposes let us decide on a simple, straight dress of dark gray or even taupe. For dressy luncheons or cocktail parties, or afternoon teas or matinées it becomes a dressy costume with the silver fox muff and black felt hat with silver fox pompadour. The hat and muff are sold in sets—the combination for $37.95.



The costume is completed by the black suede, envelope purse [with practical black lining], the black suede shoes, trimmed with a large flat buckle of suede and rows of grosgrain, and washable, white, capeskin gloves that are handsewn.

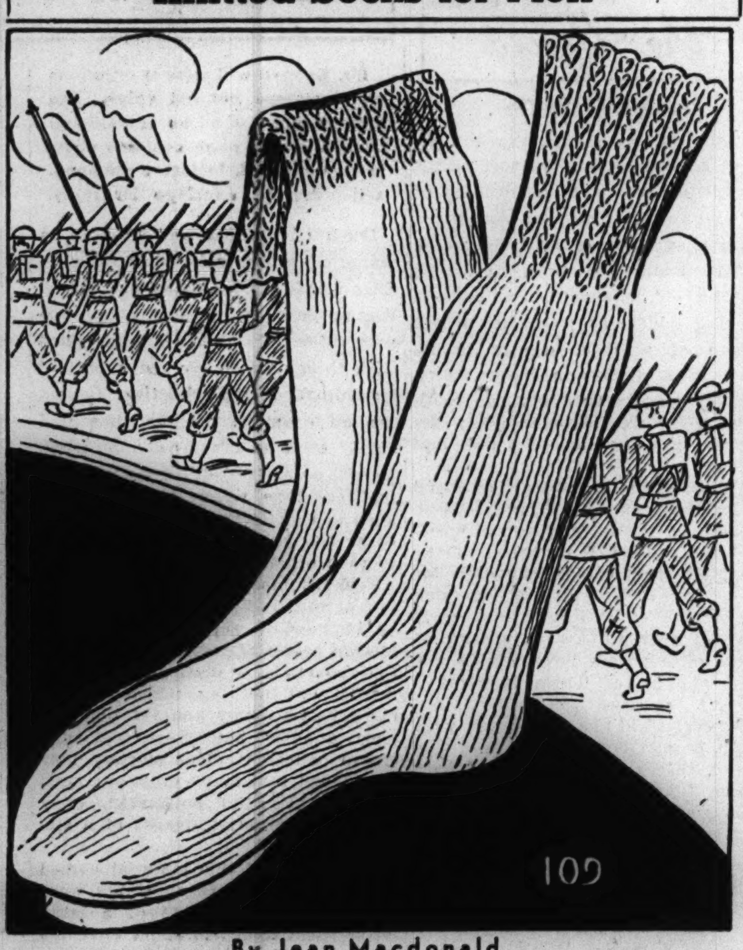
The same gray dress takes on a new look, and a new purpose, when combined with the casual, low heeled shoes of light brown calf, British tan, luggage, whatever you want to call it. The pouchy bag with double zipper opening and the narrow leather belt are of the same color. Light beige fabric gloves, handsewn.

For tailored street wear we show brown, simulated alligator pumps with a medium heel. Under $3. And a very flat alligator envelope bag, $3.

The suede, high heeled sandals at the bottom of the sketch are of a sagey green, with gold studs around the platform sole and across the toe. The calf bag of the same color also is trimmed with the studs, and a nice color accent is provided by the chamois colored, fabric gloves.

For information, call Angela, Superior 0200. Mail requests should be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Knitted Socks for Men



By Jean Macdonald.

It is just the season of the year to begin thinking about keeping the feet warm. This is a problem confronting men as well as women, and especially those who are constantly outdoors. Knitted of soft wool, these aids to comfort are not difficult to make. The directions are simple and include instructions for altering the socks to fit any size. Started now, these items are an excellent solution to the problem of Christmas gifts.

For instructions in knitting the men's socks, No. 109, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

With the first brisk weather, mail from the poorer sections of the city increases by leaps and bounds. Winter is something to be dreaded by those who are poorly housed, fed, and clothed, and appeals for help in preparing for the severe weather pour into this office.

The case of Mrs. O. is typical. She is a widow and has an income of less than two dollars per day with which to feed, clothe, and house her three children. She has been managing well on this small income, with the aid of small items earned by caring for youngsters or any other work she can obtain. However, she is badly in need of a stove to heat her small quarters during the coming winter, and since she needs every penny of her income, simply cannot afford the amount of money necessary to purchase a heating unit. If any reader has a soft coal stove, Mrs. O. would be happy to have it and can arrange transportation. The address is on the west side of the city.

A family on the southwest side of the city has the same need. Mrs. L. is on relief, and is caring for her husband, a hopeless invalid, and three small children. Her budget permits only food, rent, and medical care for Mr. L., so if some reader has a stove he would like to donate, it would be of great assistance to this woman.

◆

Miss A. is a sponsor of a community project on the west side of the city. Its purpose is to provide quarters for safe recreation for youngsters in the neighborhood. It includes a reading room, open to the children every day after school hours. However, they have only a small garbage burner which does not throw sufficient heat, and since many of the children come in primarily to get warm, a better stove will be necessary during the coming winter. The name and address will be given to any interested reader.

I feel sure some reader will be interested in helping the writer of the following letter:

"Dear Miss Brown: I am an elderly man in my 63d year.

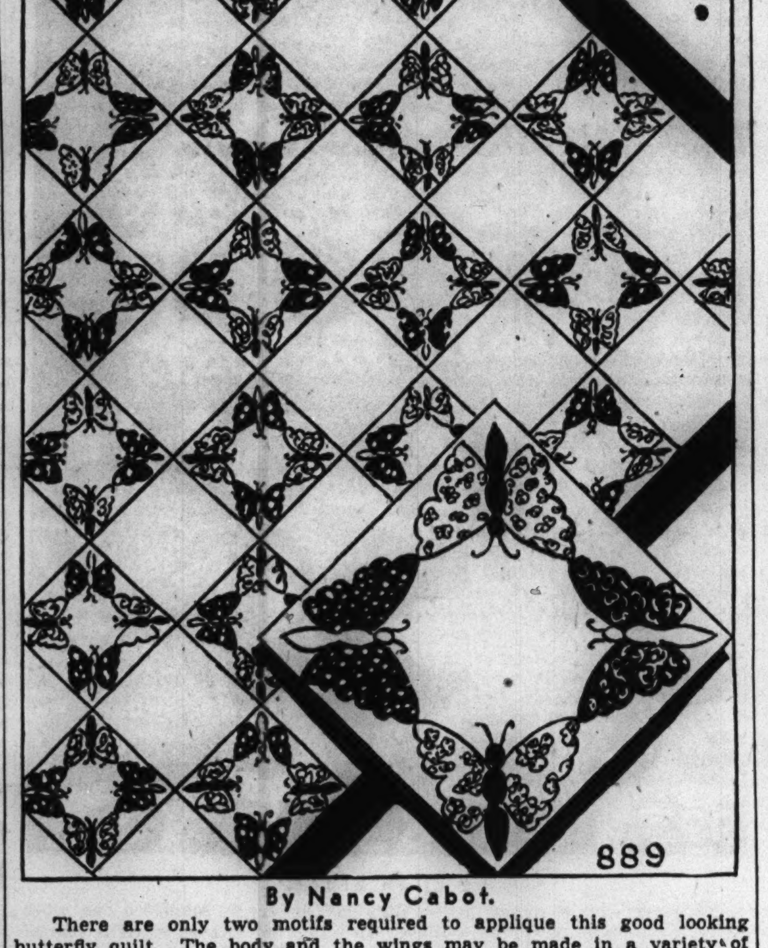
"Continued illness has left me in a condition such that I am unable to work, and because of that I have had no income for several years and am on relief rolls.

"I am all alone, a widower, with no family. I love music, having played the piano and clarinet when younger. If some of your many readers might have a small radio which could be donated to me, I'd appreciate it very much. It would help to brighten many hours when I am kept indoors, as I will be during the coming winter.—F. F."

The man lives in a poor district west of the loop.

There are six children in the M. family, ranging in age from 14 to 3. They recently moved from a crowded three room flat, and now have five rooms, but the only furniture they possess is a double bed and cot, one kitchen chair, a stove, and other minor items. They are much in need of chairs, a studio couch, rugs of any kind, a full size bed, a dresser, and living room furniture of all kinds. The worker will arrange transportation, if readers have anything to offer.

Butterfly Quilt Pattern



By Nancy Cabot.

There are only two motifs required to applique this good looking butterfly quilt. The body and the wings may be made in a variety of printed materials combined with plain fabrics. No two squares need necessarily be alike, or all may be uniform in color and arrangement. The applique blocks are set together in an alternate arrangement with plain ones.

Social Problem of Signatures Is Clarified

By Helen Bartlett.

Names and signatures seem to furnish one etiquet problem which never gets quite settled in women's minds. The question comes up again and again. "When is Mrs. Mary Smith the correct title?" is a common puzzle.

The correct usage is more complicated for married women than for single ones, as you might suppose. That is because the two names [the social title and the legal signature] differ. A single girl has only to precede her legal name [Helen Jones] by the title "Miss" in order to arrive at her social name.

• • •

A married woman's legal signature is her given name, maiden name, and husband's last name. No title. This is used in signing all letters, cards, or legal documents. The title "Mrs." never is included in the actual signature, but, in instances in which it is necessary for her to indicate her husband's name or her social status, she writes below her signature, enclosed in parentheses, "Mrs. John." Here is an example.

Helen Adams Smith
[Mrs. John]

The social title "Mrs. John Smith" is the name used on correspondence directed to her, and in any social intercourse.

Perhaps the matter can be made clearer by saying that the legal name is the one the married woman applies to herself. And the social name is the one other persons apply when addressing her or speaking to her.

Just remember that the title Mrs. never is used with the given name. Mrs. Helen Smith never is correct.

A widow's name does not change with the death of her husband. Her legal signature is Helen Adams Smith, and her social title remains Mrs. John Smith.

A divorcee's social status is distinguished by combining her maiden name and husband's last name, and preceding it by the title Mrs., such as Mrs. Adams Smith, but her signature is as it was before the divorce.

And when married couples sign greeting cards or letters jointly they use their given names, just as they would have done individually. The woman's name appears first in such a case: Helen and John Smith.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1941: By Ely Culbertson.]

An intimate knowledge of squeezes, coups, and other advanced maneuvers, perfect timing and generally flawless technique—all these are not enough to insure that a player will get up from the table a winner in most of his sessions. Above everything else, he must be able to "get along" with his partners! An English authority, R. Lederer, writing in the Bridge World magazine, offers some cogent advice on this point. I commend it to my readers' attention:

"The basis of successful play with a weaker partner is to restrict your game to within the confines of his understanding.

"Forget your dazzling psychics, your inferential forces, your shaded suits, your asking bids. Study his weaknesses and adjust your own game to protect them. But never let him spot that you are doing all these things. Give him the impression that you are playing your normal game; that you have every confidence in him, that in fact the two of you are combining splendidly. And then, tho you will not, of course, achieve anything like par results on your cards, you will at any rate achieve far better results than the majority of his other partners.

"Do not attempt to teach him the game. Time is too short, and besides you will cut against him the next rubber.

"For instance, there are still many players today who cannot grasp the importance of adequate trump support; auction diehards who raise your suit on queen and another. It is quite obvious by now that they never will grasp it, so, when you cut one of them, stop bleating despairingly that you are in the habit of bidding four card suits. Stop bidding four card suits. It is better to miss an occasional game in such a suit than to find yourself continuously in doubled game contracts with six trumps between you.

"The same principle applies to those partners who persist in treating every opening lead as the fourth highest of your longest suit. Obviously with these partners short leads can only succeed in those cases where you find him with length and most of the honors in the suit led. In all other cases, even where theoretically they should succeed, they will fail. Partner will conscientiously return your opening lead every time he gets in, and end up by cursing you for the failure to defeat the contract.

Bridge Problem.

	NORTH ♠ J 7 ♥ K ♦ K ♣ A 9 5 4
WEST ♠ — ♥ 7 5 ♦ Q 10 5 ♣ Q J 7		EAST ♠ Q 10 9 ♥ 8 6 ♦ 9 7 3 ♣ —
	SOUTH ♠ 8 5 4 ♥ A 10 ♦ A 6 4 ♣ —

Hearts are trump and South leads. North and South are to win six tricks against any defense.

Solution: South leads the six of diamonds. West and East both play high cards. North returns the king of hearts, which South wins, and makes his ace of diamonds before returning the trump. This is to see which of the adversaries is going to be in the lead on the third round of diamonds. North sheds a club.

South now leads the heart 10, and if West has the high diamond, North sheds a spade. If East has kept the top diamond, North discards a club.

South leads the diamond four, and North makes the same discards as before, so as to win two clubs from West, or a spade and club from East.

"With such partners, I open my fourth highest even tho it seems to me that there may be a better lead on the hand.

"Concerning signals and 'come-on' cards, here is a familiar situation:

"You are sitting on the right hand of the declarer, defending a three no trump contract, and hold:

♠432 ♥J652 ♦8 ♣AKQJ10

"Your partner leads a spade and the first trick shows quite clearly that it is no use pursuing the suit. Declarer now plays out the ace and king of diamonds, looks disappointed when you show out, and plays a third diamond which your partner wins with the queen. What should you discard on this trick?

"The expert will discard the heart five. [He has discarded the heart deuce on the second diamond.] He will argue, quite correctly, that this is equivalent to calling for a club and they might as well get the contract two down instead of one. He is then very hurt when partner goes into a long trance and, with a shrug of his shoulders, leads another spade.

"Discard your ace of clubs! Who cares if it does waste a trick. You are not playing match points. Make it easy for your partner!

"Another point. Because your partner plays his hands badly it does not follow that you must attempt to play every hand yourself. When the bidding shows clearly that the best contract reduces you to the rôle of dummy, accept the situation gracefully. It is, on the whole, better for a hand to be played badly in the right contract than brilliantly in the wrong one.

"It happens frequently that an alleged master player plays a hand superbly in three no trump to go one down while if he had allowed the mutt opposite to struggle with a four spade contract, the latter could hardly have helped making five.

"Hands, which the bidding suggests are going to be difficult to play, call for a certain amount of discretion. This discretion should not take the form of attempting to play the hand in your own declaration but rather in a slight underbid in partner's suit.

"For example, if the bidding goes:

North	South
1 spade	2 diamonds
2 hearts

and you, South, hold:

♠6 ♥J542 ♦KJ10843 ♣Q2

it is obvious that you must have a sporting chance of making four hearts. But it will probably call for accurate play which your partner is generally incapable of producing.

Do not bid four hearts or even three hearts. With a rabbit the latter bid is equivalent to bidding four. He will bid game over it irrespective of his holding.

"Pass two hearts and collect a comfortable part-score.

"But—should the hand turn out to be easy, or should the rabbit, by some minor miracle, play it correctly and make four—do not tell him the real reason for your underbidding. Apologize and explain that somehow or other you did not fancy the hand should produce game.

"Finally—resist the temptation to show off verbally. When a rabbit inquires whether he could have made any more, say 'No.'

"It only annoys him to be told he could have made his contract on a triple squeeze."

"Dear Miss Blake: Would you consider marriage if the man is six years younger than the girl? They are very much in love with each other.

Carrots Are Inexpensive and Vitamin-Rich Vegetable

Right Cooking Method Saves Food Values

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1941: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Carrots, one of our most economical foods, are 88 per cent water. But that doesn't mean that they are lacking in food value. On the contrary, carrots are among the most health bringing vegetables. They are rich in vitamins and calcium. Vitamin content decreases with age, and also with long cooking or cooking in too much water.

Raw carrots, fresh ones, of course, probably are more valuable than cooked ones. Most children love crisp carrot sticks, ground or chopped carrot sandwiches, carrot and lettuce salads. When carrots are cooked they should be cooked whole or, if sliced, in a small amount of water, so that by the time they are tender all of it will have been absorbed, and none of the valuable vitamins need be poured away in the cooking water.

Cooked carrots with salt, pepper, butter, and a speck of sugar can't be beat for flavor, but for variety add a little more sugar and a sprinkling of lemon juice once in a while.

Chopped parsley is good on buttered carrots, too. If the carrots are very young, chop up a tablespoonful or two of their tender tops and use them as you would parsley. Carrot tops and parsley are related, you know, and both are good vitamin sources.

The recipes I've gathered here illustrate the versatility of the carrot as a food. Remember that the methods of preparation which require least cooking are best from the vitamin standpoint, but the pudding, which requires long cooking, is perfectly delicious, and a good way to use large, winter stored carrots.

Carrot, Celery and Peanut Salad.
[Serves four.]

1 cup ground carrots
1 cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup chopped peanuts
2 tablespoons chopped pickle
Mayonnaise or boiled dressing
Lettuce or other greens

Combine carrot, celery, peanuts and pickle with enough dressing to moisten. Serve cold on lettuce or other greens. If the mixture is shaped with an ice cream scoop or a cup, it looks more attractive than otherwise.

Steamed Carrot Pudding.
[2 cans.]

1 cup ground raw carrots
1 cup ground raw potatoes
½ cup melted shortening
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1½ cups raisins or currants

Add carrots, potatoes, shortening and vanilla to combined and sifted dry ingredients into which raisins have been stirred. Stir together quickly, but thoroly, and fill greased pudding molds not more than two-thirds full. Cover tightly and steam for two hours. Serve hot with hard sauce or lemon sauce.

I have another good carrot pudding recipe which contains suet and molasses. I'll send it to any reader who sends me the customary stamped and self-addressd envelope.

Creamed Carrots.

Use a medium white sauce on boiled or steamed carrots. Other vegetables combine well with carrots in a creamed dish. Peas probably are most commonly used. Onions are good. So are turnips or string or lima beans. Leftover cauliflower, broccoli, or Brussels sprouts and carrots may be contained in a good creamed dish.

Carrot Souffle.
[Four servings.]

1 cup boiled and mashed carrots
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 cup medium white sauce
2 eggs, separated
Salt, paprika

Add carrots, onion, and seasonings to white sauce. Beat egg yolks until light and fold them in. Beat egg whites until stiff, and fold into mixture. Turn into buttered baking dish, place dish in a pan of hot water, and bake at 350 degrees for half an hour, or until firm and puffy. Serve at once from the baking dish.

Lyonnaise Carrots.

Use young, boiled, whole carrots. Chop a small onion finely and add with salt and pepper to carrots. Sauté seasoned carrots in butter until brown.

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

The business girl, who can't trot about an office in clouds of too seductive perfume, will love a new cologne in the scent of mountain heather. It's refreshing, feminine and in perfect taste. She can have dusting powder and talc to match.
[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

The requirements of the working girl in the way of fragrances seem to us to be rather special. She likes something gay and attractive, that does the right things for her own spirits and the kind of clothes she wears. But, of necessity, it can't be too romantic or too pungent. It just doesn't do to flit about an office in clouds of seductive scent.

Our idea of a perfect kind of daytime perfume for the business girl is a new one, a cologne [with dusting powder and talc to match] in a scent called "mountain heather." It's in perfect taste for her and it has so much charm that it will give her great satisfaction to wear it.

It's rather a hard fragrance to describe. It's not turbulent, but it's gay; it's not overpoweringly sweet, but it mellows into clean, slightly romantic loveliness. It's the kind of scent you like to wear with tailored work clothes, probably because it's not too tailored. It's balanced for the workaday atmosphere without being too, too frivolous.

The cologne is remarkably lasting. The dusting powder, too, scents the skin for rather a long time. And none of the three items in the nice new scent is expensive, another point in its favor from the working girl's standpoint.

Highly concentrated perfumes are not in good taste in an office. In this cologne there is just the right degree of perfume to give you and the bystanders an awareness of the lovely fragrance, but not an overpowering attack of it. Using the dusting powder or the talc will round it out nicely.

The packaging of these preparations is as lovely as the elusive scent itself. Around the pink boxes is a design of white heather bells and turquoise ribbons. The bottle for the cologne is a quaint form of a Victorian lady with wasplike waist and flowing skirts.

Lady of the House

Twilight of the Year.

Aunt Ella says that September, October, and November are sort of the vesper time, twilight and evening of the year's day. It does its last chores and settles down to rest. Sort of a drying, mellowing time, too, like growing old, she says. September's ripening middle age; October, a last flareup of youthful energy in its bright, zestful days—a dream which may come again tomorrow, but with duller color and dimmer gold; November, graying into old age and night.

It all reminds me of trays of sliced apples drying in the sun; nuts—hazel, hickory, butter—spread on the woodshed roof; bunches of herbs in the attic; all sorts of things stored for winter use. Saffron always interested me, because of its bright flowers. It was not true saffron [a species of crocus with purple flowers from the dried stigmas of which is made a coloring for foods and fabrics], but Safflower, thistle-like plant with bright orange flowers used as a substitute, that grew in that first herb garden I knew.

Long after, an old Cornish woman gave me the rule for the saffron bread she served for Sunday breakfast, and which she assured me gave the English girls their lovely complexions.

October Wind.

As I went walking down the street,
A naughty wind I chanced to meet.
He huffed at me and puffed at me,
Blew smoke into my eye;
Then pelted me with golden leaves,
As he went skipping by.

Storm Over Kelly Field.

It is interesting to watch a storm come up over a big air field. From my desk in the tower I could see something coming, so I went up on the platform outside the radio control room to see. Wind direction and velocity gauges in the weather office keep them in constant touch, but soldiers were popping out every few minutes to inspect the clouds. There were two sections [about 100 planes each] in the air and suddenly huge billows of white smoke arose at each end of the field—the signal for all planes to skedaddle for the hangars.

In just a couple of minutes, altho originally not more than 10 or 15 ships had been visible, they came zip-zip-zipping into the field. The airdrome officer and his assistant checked off the numbers. Only two ships up; but neither in sight, the wind shifting 180 degrees and jumping to 24 miles per hour. Rain sweeping down with it and marching toward the field like a panzer division. The first drops fall and just as the first squall draws a blackout curtain across flying visibility the last two ships come in with a swoop, a bounce, and a roaring, splashing taxi up to the line. The whole field relaxes as those last two boys come down and in.

After the first squalls, when it settles down to a steady wind and solid rain, the weather ship takes off with a veteran pilot at the stick. The little ship taxies away from the line to the south side of the field, splashes into a turn, and comes roaring toward us out of the mist of rain which swallowed it up out there a few hundred yards. It goes rocketing and bouncing over the hangar line, dropped 20 feet and tossed up 50 by gusts of wind, to ride thru the storm and radio its size, strength and course to the weather office. In half an hour it's back. Word goes down the line to prepare the ships for flying by 11. At 10:45 the rain has slowed to intermittent drizzles and a couple of hundred 450 horse power engines snarl into life again.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

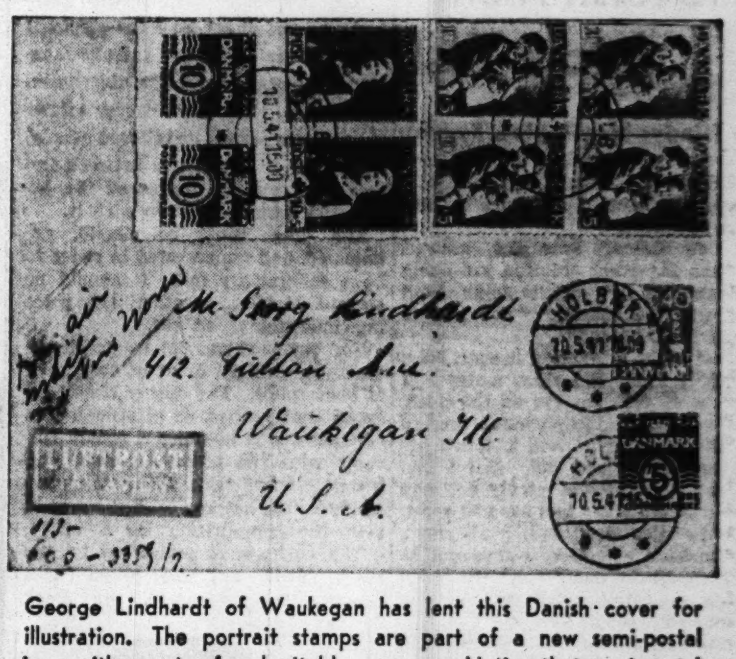
Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps but not value. The Stamps and Coins advertising column in this page contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Much of the fun and interest in stamp collecting is found in the sidelines which are developed as the collecting goes on. Almost every one who collects has some albums filled with things which are not a part of an ordinary stamp collection. Covers are an example, for the time will surely come to every collector when he will obtain something on the original envelope which he desires to keep in that form and after the first cover has been kept it will be easy to save others.

Perhaps his interest becomes historical and even stampless covers will be included to show how mail was treated before stamps were invented. Such covers show postmarks and rate marks, but nothing which can be classed as a stamp and yet they are very popular among present day stamp collectors. This sideline may be divided into many branches, such as territorial postmarks, early straight line marks, marks of a single state, etc.

Since most of this material passed thru the post before envelopes were invented, and consisted of a large letter sheet folded to about envelope size and sealed with a wafer, the letters themselves have been preserved. Very often a collector turns up something of prime historical value and there is no question but that it pays to read all the letters carefully.

Nearly every collector of such material has found something of interest which he prizes. Here for example is a collection of covers bearing postmarks of the frontier military posts of the United States. These are not postmarked at towns bearing names of early forts, but at the actual forts themselves. One cover bears the mark of Fort Gibson, Ark., June 22, and was written in 1846. Fort Gibson when established was in Arkansas territory, but was left out in the public domain when the territory was reduced in 1828. For want of a better index to its location the postmark continued to show the abbreviation "Ark.," even years after Arkansas became a state and the public domain around Fort Gibson became Indian Territory.



George Lindhardt of Waukegan has lent this Danish cover for illustration. The portrait stamps are part of a new semi-postal issue with a surtax for charitable purposes. Notice that semi-postal and regular stamps are combined in one block. A similar instance is not recalled and this innovation may give the catalogers some difficulty.

This Fort Gibson cover is addressed to Mr. Spencer, Secretary of War, Washington, D. C., and illustrated one of the methods used at that date to fill the company ranks. In the words of the writer:

"Dear Sir: I take this opportunity to write you a few lines. I am Private Andrew J. Harbison, first regiment of dragoons, Company A, Capt. W. Eustis, commander. Here is my message. I want to get my discharge from the army, the reason why is that I am too young. I am only 16 years old in June. When I enlisted I was made drunk by the sergeant who enlisted me and he told me that the army was easy for a young person, but I cannot half do my duty. I have never been paid yet and if you would discharge me I won't ask one cent. I have never been well since I have been in the army and O! I would be so thankful to you for my discharge. I am very small for my age and the officers think that I am not very useful because I am so small. I have behaved myself very well and have never been drunk since I enlisted.

"Dear sir, if you would only let me be discharged, how thankful I would be. Maybe you would not read a private's letter.

"Write me a few lines to inform me about it. Your servant, Private Andrew Harbison."

A portion of the double sheet on which this was written has been removed. It is supposed that the missing part bore the recommendation by the secretary and that an autograph collector had access to the correspondence before the letter fell into the hands of a stamp collector.

Stamp collectors and autograph collectors tread a little on each others toes at times, snipping signatures and tearing out stamps. The early collectors wanted only the kernel of the nut—stamps or signatures. Now each wants whole documents or letters, but many that are found were mutilated years ago.

The 1942 edition of Scott's Standard Postage Stamp catalog is now being distributed. In this volume 1,613 pages are required to list the world's stamps as compared with 1,543 pages required in the 1941 catalog, and it has been announced that this is the last edition which can be prepared in one volume. General collectors will sincerely hope that some solution to this problem can be found and that it will not be necessary to issue the catalog in several sections.

The new catalog contains a very large number of price changes. Some quotations are reduced to correspond more nearly with current market prices as governed by recent auction sales. Others are reduced on account of the quantities of current stamps which have been brought in by refugees. In many cases prices have advanced since the supply of wholesale lots in the United States is rapidly being sold out and there is no longer any regular source of supply in Europe. This change in prices is most noticeable in medium grade stamps which are not being offered on the auction floor.

The 1942 standard catalog may be obtained at book or stamp stores, at stamp sections of department stores or direct from Scott Publications, Inc., No. 1 West 47th street, New York.

The Zunks will sponsor a bi-colored cachet for Halloween with cover to be postmarked at Devil's Tower, Wyo. Send cover stamped and addressed, but unsealed and unstuffed, to G. H. Hamilton [RCD 264], 908 Locust street 19, Pittsburgh, Pa., with 1 cent additional as forwarding fee for each cover desired. Deadline, Oct. 20. Commemoratives on wrappers, please.

Weston Satterly, RCD 118, Box 34, Station Y, Brooklyn, N. Y., will sponsor a cachet for the first Christmas card ever issued. Send name and address and a three cent stamp before Dec. 10. Limit one to each collector.

Robert J. Hamilton, 46 Keystone avenue, River Forest, Ill., who has written a stamp column in Oak Leaves for many years under the byline "Uncle Rob," is now giving an illustrated lecture called "Fun with Stamps." The material for this lecture is Mr. Hamilton's prize winning entry in Dave Elmon's Hobby Lobby at the 1939 New York World's Fair. Program chairmen may find Mr. Hamilton's talk just the thing to provide a new and interesting form of entertainment.

The first day sale of the 15 cents stamp of the new air mail series at Baltimore, Md., on Aug. 19, was as follows: Covers, 74,000; stamps sold, 86,000.

The use of special cancellations to mark the commissioning of new naval vessels was discontinued for several months on the ground that they violated a policy of secrecy. The revival of these marks was authorized on Sept. 8 by the navy department.

Additional postal service for the army and navy and civilian personnel at the leased base at Quidi Vidi, Newfoundland, is provided by the establishment of A. P. O. 801-D. Mail addressed to persons at this base should include, as well as name and address, the rank and unit, if in the military or naval service, the A. P. O. number and the location of the base.

Bettina Bedwell Says:

You could hiss the slogans that apply to the most spectacular phase of the fall and winter fashions, which is the dressup part, because virtually all of the words that describe them begin with S, and hissing would be a tribute. Words such as scintillating, slender, sophisticated, spangled, and satin-shiny come to mind at once. Also, the clothes are made for sirens, and grade-A sirens at that.

High points in such styles are slinky, slim, shiny, black evening dresses that cover up most of the flesh but leave no single curve of the body lines unspotlighted. They have super-slim draped skirts that are slit to the knees and supposed to show a goodly length of shapely legs. There are just as many dresses, constructed along similar lines as to the chassis, but in colors that might have been inspired by a Hollywood designer's dream of a harem in technicolor!

Your Stars ★ Today ★

Too much leaning toward risk and taking chances today; be cautious in personal dealings and also out on the highways. Week ahead calls for careful threading of the way to avoid pitfalls, but there's also a sprinkling of minor opportunities.

The Pattern.

The average person views life as disconnected experiences; he doesn't perceive that there is a pattern in his life which connects past, present, and future. So long as his experiences present only small problems, he is content to view them separately. But when they are not simple, when they involve the past or the future, or both, he finds himself needing an expanded viewpoint.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead from November to February is especially opportune, if this is your birthday. Seek just deserts. From July use past experience to plan occupational advances. Danger: Now-Nov. 22; May 7-15; Sept. 21-Oct. 6.

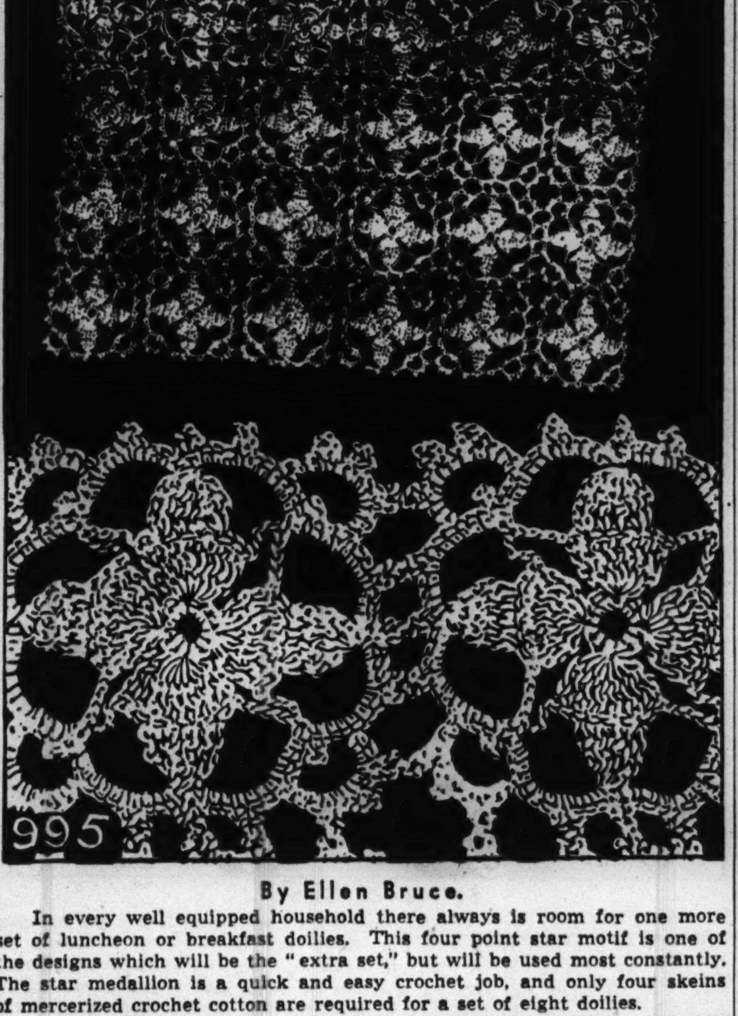
Star Luncheon Medallion



By Ellen Bruce.

In every well equipped household there always is room for one more set of luncheon or breakfast doilies. This four point star motif is one of the designs which will be the "extra set," but will be used most constantly. The star medallion is a quick and easy crochet job, and only four skeins of mercerized crochet cotton are required for a set of eight doilies.

For instructions in crocheting the four point star luncheon medallion, No. 995, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

"Sophisticated" Describes Fashions for Debs and Sub-Debs

Dining-Dancing Models Rate the Excitement

By Rea Seeger.

When the debs and subdebs dine at night and dance afterward they wear the same smooth dinner clothes of the more sophisticated shoppers. They shop with the same discrimination, they hunt for the same distinction of contrast color, streamline, and combination of high fashion colors and materials, and what's more, they find all these important qualities without straining the limits of their clothes allowances.

This fall the dinner clothes collections are worth, and rate, all the shopping excitement. There are full skirted affairs with fitted, short jackets; there are plenty of slinky smooth creations to satisfy the budding femme fatale; there are dreamily romantic nets; there are the big excitement of the hour, sequin flickering creations; and there are velvets, taffetas, and clinging crêpes. Colors, too, lead a grand march of shades, from the clear, strong, high colors to subtle and delicate pastels. Long sleeves, high covered-up necklines, gathered skirts, circular-cut skirts, draped skirts, dozens of differently managed peplums, and everything else that has made the fashion headlines, are ready for the youthful shopper with definite ideas of what she needs to dramatize her own individuality.

There are demure velvet and satin combines, with brief, puffed sleeves, a mere scrap of bodice, and excitingly wide, full skirts. There are picture book black velvets with ermine trim, brilliant red gowns, cerise and wine shades, star sapphire blue gowns, and all the fascinating new shades of copper and gold. Many of them shine with gold braid, with sequins, and with beaded embroidery. All are tops in flattery.

There are airy nets with bodices gone supersophisticated in jersey. There are gowns made entirely of jersey that are suavely draped in the bodice and with the same draping repeated in the skirt. Any number of sheath dresses are featured and star attractions, because they are new and accentuate the slender lines of the body to perfection. Bright colors and the dark blues, some deep purples, the flattering tones of copper are extremely popular. Dull black dinner suits, very eye-blinding because of the sequin and blazing gold or silver decorations, or the winking black jet trim, are going out in record time, but the waltz gowns teamed with long sleeved jackets, ready for formal dinner and later without the jacket for ballroom dancing, run a close second in shopping records among the younger set.

Jackets still are tops for any dinner or evening gown. Hardly a dress but what comes with the companion jacket, whether it be one of the lion tamer affairs in gorgeous colored glory and decorative trim, or the kind made of the same material as the gown. Long sleeved jackets even slide over the long sleeved dinner dresses. Extra jackets are all over town, in every color imaginable, with elbow length, full length, and short sleeves, and they come in short fitted numbers, in long straight box models, and in the peplum-ed ideas copied from the Persian costumes. Chiffon velvet, corduroy, fine smooth flannel, taffeta, bengaline, moiré, and satin are some of the materials.

Long evening coats and wraps and capes to slide over these new dinner clothes on a chilly night are gallant looking affairs in tweed wool, in velvet, and in combinations of wool and silk, or wool and velvet. The reds, whites, and pastels are more abundant than last year. The blacks are classics, and the colored embroidery and gold or silver braid trim still flash dramatically from chest, shoulders, and cuffs.

Sketched, four brand new arrivals in the deb stronghold of a smart boulevard shop in Chicago. Others temptingly priced, and just as gay and flattering, are included in the same collection. These models feature the newest designs in streamlining, new color, new details, and the very last gasp of what it takes to stagger the stag line. For information, call Superior 0200.

For new or remodeling work this fall there is a paint which utilizes soy bean protein as a binder to increase its adhesiveness. This water thinned product is available in a number of charming pastel shades and can be applied to plastered or papered walls. Sizing is not required and it is claimed that this paint, which is easily applied by brush, will cover any wallpaper regardless of color.

For the small home, small bathroom, or lavette, where space is scant and must be carefully conserved, there's a neat little space saving lavatory which will fit into a bathroom corner. This new enameled cast iron unit measures only 16 inches along the sides and some 20 inches from corner to front. It has an angular shelf that offers 55 square inches of usable space. And of course there's a compact, chromium plated, mixer type fitting with pop-up drain.

It isn't hard to "antique" wood which has been painted in white or light cream shade and this finish is very attractive. Neither is it hard to "silver" open grained woods. This is done by filling the grain and wood with a material of contrasting color. This treatment produces a silver finish and can give a new face to paneling, trim, and furniture.

Fashions as I See Them

By Judith Cass

A lovelier hostess gown than the one Cornelia Otis Skinner wears in the second act of "Theater" would be difficult to find. It is of garnet velvet, svelte and sophisticated, depending upon its rich color and material for its beauty. There is clever gowning in this play, for in the first act, when the actress seems to have lost her actor-husband and is wondering whether she has any appeal left, she wears an orange hostess gown that is unattractive and unbecoming, just the sort of shapeless creation a middle-aged woman who has no interest in her husband might wear! The emerald handkerchief completes a picture of what not to wear if you love your husband and want to appear desirable in his, and other men's, eyes. But, by the second act Miss Skinner has become the chic, charming woman she is in real life, and also in the play, and the garnet velvet robe does its part in the transformation. Her third act gown, in which she portrays the beauteous Lola Montez, is a dream, but definitely a costume. The gray jacketed dinner dress and flame wrap in which she makes her startling and unexpected exit are lovely, just the sort of outfit every woman in the first night audience probably wished she were wearing. . . . One of the handsomest feminine members of that smart audience was Miss Mera Galloway, recently returned to Chicago after having lived in Boston for several years. Her gown was black, severely simple but cut on good lines, and her cape, with wide shoulders, was canary yellow, just a shade lighter than her gorgeous hair. The yoke of the cape was embroidered lightly in tiny pearls and gold thread. . . . Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson has a stunning theater outfit this season, a gray dress and jacket with revers faced in ocelot. With this she wears a blue fox cape. . . . "They're not only beautiful, they're wearable," remarked a surprised onlooker, as one fall costume after another was paraded before her eyes at the 15th annual Winnetka fashion show of the Northwestern University settlement. Her remark struck the keynote of the gala show and, indeed, of most fashion previews that are given these days. No longer does one expect to see striking, but impractical, creations. The style show has become a real "shopper's friend," to judge from the serious expressions of the onlookers as they take mental notes from the models.

Wearable, indeed, were the costumes at the Winnetka show. One could have stepped right into Mrs. G. Brainerd Chapman III's gold wool suit and been off for a shopping expedition in the city. Her simple costume had no trimming except gold buttons at the pockets. Her large bag and off the face hat were of nutria, and a fine brown veil covered her face. For brisk football afternoons Miss Margot Webbe showed a belted greatcoat of deep-piled beige wool, worn over a Northwestern purple wool dress with matching hat. Her dress was buttoned up to the neck, and bands of pale blue and fuchsia encircled the skirt. . . . A feminine costume of the "afternoon tea" type that received volleys of applause was worn by Mrs. Edward Hall Taylor. Her dress was an attractive version of the popular "turn-about" style which uses a back of one color and a front of another. Black velvet was the basis of Mrs. Taylor's dress, with a contrast of sea spray crêpe in the front of the bodice and of the long sleeves. Her large black velvet hat was swathed in sheer black veiling. Designed to be "lived in" were Miss Diana Hill's plaited brown wool skirt and checked jacket; Miss Sylvia Peter's black wool dress with bowknots, worn under a beige jacket with black revers; Mrs. John Trainer's hunt club red reefer with black lamb collar and pockets; Miss Gertrude Scribner's Australian opossum swagger, and Miss Evelyn Gardner's natural otter coat, a blend of warmth and smartness. . . . For the young in heart Miss Marie Louise Richards showed a flame colored fleece topper with a great raccoon collar and matching cuffs. Beneath the short coat showed the skirt of a navy jersey dress. A pert gob hat of navy blue completed the costume. Ready for the campus, too, was Miss Alice Graff's white lamb topcoat bound in bottle green, which swung open to reveal a bottle green suit with four tomato red pockets. Her green bellboy cap had a chou of white feathers above the forehead, and her peasant mittens were embroidered in green and tomato color. . . . Miss Jean Wolcott took her turn on the runway in a slim wool dress of brown, orange, and yellow plaid. A wide ruching of the same material banded the V neckline and the elbow length sleeves. Miss Jane Hardy's costume took its inspiration from Victorian days. A snug little jacket of gray-brown wool was buttoned over a short, full skirt of a rich blue plum shade. The tiny round muff she carried matched her jacket, and her down-in-back turban was of the blue plum material. Carrying out the color scheme were her high heeled pumps of blue fox suede.

Accessories, of course, played an important rôle in the show. Especially suited to Miss Eunice Hale's straight bangs was the smart black snood she modeled. Made from a square of black wool with beaded borders, it was held in place by a pink and white rubrum lily at each temple. Mrs. John Holloway's pink and blue draped turban was destined for gay occasions, for a string of golden bells edged a scarf of the material which floated free. . . . The black wool cloche hat which Miss Barbara Warner wore was spiraled in bands of tiny, bright green, crocheted leaves. Her large "squashy" handbag, too, was covered with little green leaves, and a blackamoor pin was fastened to her dressy black suit, which had a velvet collar and a peplum. Miss Marjorie Hamilton, whose rôle was to model shoes, stepped down the runway in a pair of smart, luggage tan, platform pumps, with rosettes of calfskin outlined in tiny gold nailheads. . . . There were dresses for quiet dinner parties and for the most elegant evenings, with Mrs. Neil Williams and Miss Frances Clow prepared for the two extremes. Miss Clow's hyacinth blue, satin ball gown had a wide skirt caught into puffs by vertical bands of shirring. Sprays of beaded leaves in three shades of orchid outlined each panel in the skirt. For more informal occasions, Mrs. Williams wore a nude pink, crêpe dinner gown, its waist entirely covered with hand crocheted, pink bouclé. . . . Miss Paisley Rockwell appeared in a wool dinner coat of a melting shade of gold. The zipper down the front was concealed within a row of tiny gold nailheads. Also of wool, this time in jersey, was Miss Mary Lyon's dinner dress of palest eggshell, sprinkled all over with gold sequins. The gown was cut on dressmaker lines, with clusters of glistening sequins for buttons and a wide belt entirely covered with the sparkling trim.

Ruth T., Valparaiso, Ind.—I am still waiting and hoping for the day when all typewriters will have some sort of standard ink container to insure the ribbon a constant supply of fresh ink when needed!

Mrs. C. H., Chicago—Every so often, as needed, I get a supply of lintless cheesecloth and dip it in kerosene. Then I wring it out, let it dry and use it as a dustless dustcloth. This supply of cheesecloth makes several such dusters and they are a convenience to have on hand.

Mrs. K. L., Chicago—My husband thought up a good idea for my comfort this fall. He took a rubber stair mat [the corrugated type] and hung it over the edge of my laundry tub. It is convenient when some small piece of laundry must be well rubbed and is less cumbersome than a washboard when only occasional rubbing is necessary.

You Can Bleach Your Skin to a Lighter, Prettier Hue with Mercolized Wax Cream

FASHION indicates the return to favor of fairer, softer skin. Ever in stride with the latest mode, Mercolized Wax Cream lends its subtle bleaching and beautifying action to help you win a fashionable, lighter, lovelier complexion. Mercolized Wax Cream hastens the natural shedding of the dull, surface skin and uncovers the fairer, softer, smoother underskin. The action takes place so gradually that the actual flaking process is not visible. But soon you become aware of the improved appearance of your complexion. Start bleaching your skin tonight using Mercolized Wax Cream according to directions and you will be pleased.

REMOVE FACIAL HAIR with PHELACTINE DEPILATORY—Phelactine not only takes off the surface hair, but actually extracts the portion embedded under the skin, leaving no fuzz or stubble. It can be applied quickly and easily in a few seconds. Not a cream or powder. Has no obnoxious odor. You will like Phelactine.

TRY SAXOLITE ASTRINGENT, the DELIGHTFUL SKIN FRESHENER. It is a quick acting, refreshing aid for daily care of the skin. Saxolite reduces excess oil on the surface skin; and its contracting action temporarily tightens the skin tissue. Simply dissolve Saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel and pat this lotion briskly on the skin several times daily.

These two tailored models will find favor with school and college girls, and with young business women, too. The trim lines are softened into femininity, a fashion "must" this autumn.

At the left, a jumper model with hearts as the theme. It's a grand little frock for fraternity house parties, for all kinds of informal dates, and for everyday wear as well. The heart pockets are, of course, optional, so you may omit them if you're making the dress for business wear. Use woolen, velveteen or corduroy for the jumper skirt, and some washable fabric for the blouse.

At the right, a sweet two-piece suit, perfect in flannel and other soft woolens. The contrasting lingerie collar, which lies over the woolen one, may be basted in, or you may wear a blouse. The "beanie" to match the ensemble is included in the pattern.

Style No. 3190 is designed for sizes 12, 14 and 16, and 36, 38 and 40 inch bust measurements. Size 16 requires 1⅞ yards of 54 inch material for jumper; 2 yards of 39 inch fabric for blouse.

Miss Donnelly Reports:

By Antoinette Donnelly.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Today let's not speak of creams and lotions, of diet and exercise, of facials and coiffures. Once a year, at least, it is up to us to remind ourselves that, while the pursuit of good looks in the departments named is vital to our success, they do not constitute real beauty. Fine perfections are attained thru such pursuits and, indeed, they have come to be expected of us. These items come under the heading of grooming, but grooming alone is no more the completed thing of beauty than an architectural masterpiece is the sum total of a home. It takes more than good grooming to make a fascinating woman. With perfect grooming only she would have as much personal appeal as a store window mannikin.

It's the light of intelligence that gives sparkle to the eye, verve to the being, charm to the woman. A brainless woman, no matter how sleekly turned out, or by whom, is a dullard mentally, like champagne without the bubble, bread without butter, potato without salt.

2 Mistakes Wives So Often Make

Because of inward shyness or ignorance, many married women make needless mistakes—risk health, happiness. Why? Generally because feminine hygiene is considered too personal to be discussed. And so many women use over-strong solutions of acids which can burn or scar delicate tissues. Today risks are needless. For science has given womankind Zonite. Non-poisonous, non-caustic, yet kills germs, bacteria on contact. Destroys undesirable odors. Protects personal daintiness. Most important, safe for delicate tissues. Home Owners' Queries

Chicago—[To the Home Building Editor.]—We have just moved into an old house and the rear porch and floors are rough and splintery. How can we treat surfaces to put them in shape so they are less dangerous to the children?—Mrs. Ellen C.

Answer: Scrape the wood carefully until it is smooth and then apply protective coats of good paint.

Chicago.—[To the Home Building Editor]—What can we do for wall cracks above a door frame? They better. Mrs. Thomas Steele.

Answer: Cut out crack to width where it will take a fair amount of new plaster. Have crack wet before you force plaster into it and smooth it.

Racine, Wis.—[To the Home Building Editor.]—We are quite new home owners and are wondering what to do for doors that stick during humid weather?—Mrs. Sarah G.

Answer: Plane doors at points of friction but don't plane more than is absolutely necessary or drafts and air leakage may develop when wood contracts under dry cold of winter.

Society Gets Ready for a Busy Season

By Cousin Eve

It was exciting to find the dear old town in such a froth of upheaval. Things have got themselves going at a great pace extraordinarily early in the season, come what may! Ladies who engineer benefits are already hard at it—smart teas are being given—one dines out here and there—new plays are arriving and we are having more than our quota of celebrities. There were 137 college presidents out on the Midway last week helping celebrate the University of Chicago's 50th anniversary. Among them, President Robert Gordon Sproul of the University of California, who presides over seven campuses and 28,000 students. There was a lady prexy, too, President Mildred McAfee of Wellesley, who made the smash hit, sweeping all before her at the assembly of delegates in Mandel hall, where Laird Bell presided sotto voce, and Presidents Sproul and J. B. Conant of Harvard were her sole competitors. Miss McAfee is young and very pretty, and her witty words had us all in stitches. She had searched old college records of half a century ago, and her dazzling mind worked ahead to college life 50 years hence. Three cheers for President McAfee. She is an enchanting college executive.

Then there was the festival concert in Rockefeller Memorial chapel, with the Chicago Symphony, Dr. Frederick Stock conducting. Quite an adventure as always, that far dash along Lake Michigan at night made one think of Rio de Janeiro, it's so very different! Enormous crowds were sifting in, and the last to be seated were the dinner guests of the Robert Maynard Hutchinses, who weren't so very late, after all. Anyway, Papa Stock waited politely for them. Inasmuch as Prexy Bob was to award him the very fine Rosenberger medal in honor of his 35 years with the orchestra, there was no choice. It was a divine concert with music of Mozart, Brahms, Bach, Stock, and John Alden Carpenter's "Concertino" wafting aloft in the vaulted stone roof. What I enjoyed more than anything was the singing of Claire Dux from high in the organ loft accompanied by the university choir like so many angels. She sang a portion of Mozart's Solennes Vesparae de Confessore and at the end her pure exquisite voice died away among the arches—and not even one handclap profaned the stillness.

The Monday morning convocation brought a magnificent procession of eminent scholars and scientists to the beautiful chapel. One thousand distinguished men in robes and gowns and caps of all colors marched down the middle aisle to listen to President Hutchins' address. There were several who looked like Tower of London Beefeaters in red and yellow. Others in vivid scarlet, some in purple and emerald green. They had earned these fine feathers, and not a few were to receive awards of honorary degrees. It was a glorious thrilling affair to be under the same roof with so much gray matter! Not many of these scholars will make history, but many of them will write the story of our times. And nobody will believe it a hundred years hence. It was a splendid celebration. Even Harvard conceded that it equaled its own 300th anniversary some years ago. President Conant was here and said so.

Dr. Frederic Woodward has worked for a year planning the scope of this grand gathering which brought together men of letters, science and the arts from all over the United States, Canada, Norway, Sweden, England, and South America. Present also from Washington was the learned Chinese Ambassador Dr. Hu Shih, who has of late had seventeen more or less alphabetical, honorary degrees wished upon him. There has been a rush to honor the erudite Chinese who was one night during his stay on the Midway, Dr. and Mrs. Woodward's guest at dinner. Afterward the ambassador thoroly charmed the company of men which formed a wide circle to ask questions. The ladies had retired for a bridge game. Maybe somewhere in these times the art of conversation will be born again. The literary and scientific symposia in the week before the celebration were at once the admiration and despair of all present.

One trotted oneself home from South America to bask at these highly intellectual social events, and wore the wheels off taxicabs being present at convocations and parties. The nicest of these was the big dinner Friday night in the ballroom of the Palmer House. There were 700 convives and John D. Rockefeller was the guest of honor, with two of his sons, John D. Rockefeller III. and David, who is a student on the Midway. The dinner was done with decorum and style.

An interesting feature with so many celebrities from afar was a program of guests and events, including a plan of the tables, their location and who sat at them. The speakers' table was raised and we had a dazzling view of Mr. Rockefeller, Chairman Harold Swift, President Hutchins and Mr. and Mrs. George Ranney, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Gilkey, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ballard.

The speeches were remarkably different. Mr. Swift was a lively chairman, a quite rollicking one who was all set that the evening should be festive. He had a line of witticisms pinned to various famous members of the faculty, and they poor darlings couldn't reply, as mostly they are angels now. Then Mr. Ranney was introduced, reporting tersely and modestly on the vast fund of millions he has been raising for the university, $9,000,000.

Mr. Rockefeller made the main speech of the evening, largely eulogizing his father in a series of vivid recollections. He related many picturesque episodes illustrating the strong character of the world's richest man.

Mr. Rockefeller has a thoughtful, fine, clean cut face and is short rather than tall. He had many neat turns of speech. One of the amusing stories told of his quick comeback concerns Marshall Field. He was asked what he felt about Marshall Field's statement that "he didn't care what became of his money." Said Mr. Rockefeller "I feel just the same way . . . I don't care what becomes of Mr. Field's money."

There was artillerylike applause when Mr. Swift referred to Frederic Woodward—a real ovation for the beloved "Fritz"—and as President Hutchins stood up to speak, the audience rose en masse and gave him a rousing big hand. It was a moving address launched by the tall, handsome, still young chief executive of the University of Chicago. It was a plea for independence of thought, courage, and more courage to meet the utter confusion of men's minds. In the darkness of the present, said Dr. Hutchins, the path of education, of the sum of human knowledge, is the only path we can safely follow. He said much more, but always stressing the need for independence, for courageous thinking, for tolerance.

Popular married couples were hosts at tables near the speaker's dais. Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson's party included young John D. Rockefeller Jr., who has a great deal of manner and is conversational, while David, his younger brother, sat with Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Viner. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Swift had Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Stock and Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Compton, and other hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Russell, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Nitze, Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, Mr. and Mrs. Clark J. Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. Laird Bell, Mrs. William G. Hibbard, who entertained Marshall Field, Mrs. Phillip Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brewster, Dr. and Mrs. Woodward, and a score more.

There were celebrities galore and I was charmed to find Dr. Samuel Harper well again, bursting with ideas and writing a book. The title is a knockout. I wish I could talk about it as the author has a little dynamite there. Dr. Harper is professor of Russian at the university and authority on life under the soviets, which he studied intensively from 1917 until the outbreak of the present war. He is a son of the first president of the University of Chicago and one of our best bachelors.

"Ice Follies of 1942" is the devastating title of the forthcoming Passavant benefit, given for the free beds of the hospital. It is set for the evening of Oct. 15 at the Arena, and when the fair Louisa, otherwise Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, president of the Woman's board, tells about it, one feels almost limp. It all sounds so splendorous, those incredible skaters in perfectly gorgeous costumes with an entirely new show. It's a carnival of skates and all the top skaters are in it. The boxholders and subscribers are the usual chic crowd and the ladies working for the charity in various capacities are Mrs. Kirk, chairman, Mrs. James Ward Thorne, Mesdames Bryan Reid, Andrew Dallstream, and Gardiner Van-Ness. Also Mrs. Corson Ellis and Mrs. Henry Isham in Lake Forest.

As the Arena is a bit wintry, small floral hats, bright wool dinner dress, and even street dress are in order.

The Casino and Woman's Athletic club are staging Dutch Treat dinners for patrons of this party to benefit the Passavant's "Little Free Beds."

This charity reminds one of an annual frolic on the French Riviera called the ball of "the Little White Beds." It was given every August at Cannes in the Casino des Fleurs. In 1938 I happened to be there and tickets were 500 francs apiece comprising a very fine dinner and a good look at the duke and duchess of Windsor who sat near me with a party which included Elsie de Wolfe Mendl. Five hundred fracs was a lot of money in France, nevertheless there was a vast crowd to see the Windsors.

The next year, 1939 the ball of the Little White Beds staged its frolic to the tune of a thousand francs the ticket, again publicizing the Windsors. But people began to ask, "Where are these Little White Beds anyway?" And nobody knew if it were Paris, Marseilles, or Timbuktu. The night of the gala when the whole French Riviera was there in its best, bejeweled and in its finest feathers, a cloudburst came swooping down on the Croisette from Africa and washed the ball out. Everybody was drenched. The Casino des Fleurs was like a swimming pool. Thereafter the French who have wit, poor darlings, referred to the evening as "the Ball of the Little Wet Beds."

Lady Mendl came into town Monday for a few hours with what one might call an entourage, and Mrs. Walter Kirk had one of her most dashing cocktail parties for her. Things gotten up on the spur of the moment are often the best, as this was.

Lady Mendl was charmed with the Kirk apartment. It has often been etched ere this in its subtle mistiness of sea-blue, white, with black Chinese screens. Enough to say that a fire crackled in the chimney place artfully built of mirror glass, that fall flowers bloomed in the right places, and that the hostess, one of our chic beauties, was delightful. Her frock and hat were daytime navy blue.

The guests arriving full of zest were not so numerous—among the first, Mr. and Mrs. Clark J. Lawrence, Mrs. Howard Linn, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Prentice, Mrs. Leander J. McCormick, Mrs. Edward Byron Smith, Mr. and Mrs. James Ward Thorne, Robert F. Carr, Frank McNair, the Peter Moons, Mrs. Hugh J. McBirney, and the Roy McWilliams, who came almost last of all. The McWilliams are recently arrived from their home outside Biarritz, where they have kept open house for many years. They fortunately are well, and show no traces of privation or lack of food.

When Lady Mendl came in she brought with her a small entourage, her secretary, Miss West, and two young men, Arturo Lopez-Wilshaw of Chile and an Austrian, Baron Peevy, I believe she said. Lady Mendl brought also with her the most charming manner I have met in a long time. Absolutely natural and spontaneous, she also has interesting reserves and is full of the zest for life. One can see why her house at Versailles is such a popular rendezvous and she keeps so well abreast with the modern world. As Elsie de Wolfe, Lady Mendl had a short stage career and a much longer one as a decorator in New York. She has a house in Beverly Hills, Cal., leased for the winter to Irving Berlin, and has thoughts of going to South America later on.

Lopez, on dit, is the third richest man in South America, and his exquisite wife, according to Renee McCormick, who knew them at Kitzbuehl, where they had neighboring country houses in the Austrian Alps, has the finest jewels in Europe.

The Leander McCormicks, by the way, are going on a South American fishing trip via Leon Mandel's yacht. In another fortnight they will fly away to the tropical waters of the Caribbean and join the Mandels, who are already cruising along the Venezuelan coast.

The Tribune Fashion Show of 1941 was a private party held in the lovely little theater of the air. You might have thought beforehand that winter frocks, mannequins, and music have all been done before, and, therefore, there's nothing new under the sun. But this absolutely delightful showing of lovely clothes, on beautiful girls with fanfares and interludes of light operatic music, was original. There was an atmosphere of anticipation, too, for the guests were to vote on the dresses which had been designed in a competition among fashion artists.

The mannequins were five of the loveliest feminine creatures imaginable. One had black hair, three were blonde, and one châtaine. Their manner of showing the clothes they wore was elegant and detached, and they wore jewels, extraordinary muffs of mink and sable with evening frocks, and most intriguing hats. The clothes as made from designs and executed under Mrs. Grace Pickering of New York were the last word, and could have been worn by any of the chic women in the house.

One liked very much a light green brocade, bustled evening gown and hat of the gay '90s, even if it didn't take a prize. And we are sure to see more of the short, convertible dancing dinner skirts and jackets. Clothes are certainly a lot of fun!

Mrs. Howard Linn Invites Windsors to Victory Roundup

Mrs. Howard Linn, general chairman of the Victory Roundup to be given for British War Relief at the Chicago Stadium on Friday, Oct. 17, is hoping that the duke and duchess of Windsor will accept an invitation to attend. Mrs. Linn last week sent a handkerchief, especially made and hand painted, inviting the duke to the benefit, which will be the opening of the world's championship rodeo.

The day the handkerchief was sent to Calgary, Canada, where the Windsors are enjoying a vacation on their ranch, Mrs. Linn received the following telegram: "Looked for you in Chicago. Disappointed not to find you at station. We shall be passing thru again soon, a late afternoon hour. Will let you know. Perhaps you could come to the station. Wallis Windsor." This prompted Mrs. Linn to send a message asking the governor general of Nassau and his American wife to try and arrange their stopover in Chicago so as to be here on the night of the 17th.

The Victory Roundup will bring not only rodeo stars, but those of the silver screen to Chicago. Tickets are on sale at the British War Relief headquarters, 30 North Michigan avenue; Marshall Field's, Bond's clothing store, A. G. Becker's, and the Stadium grill. The 84 boxes already are sold but there are a number of choice seats still available.

Educators at Stephens Are to Have Forum

What are the educational needs of American women to prepare them to meet the demands of citizenship in a democracy today? Noted educators and leaders in business, labor, religion, health, and home economics, seeking an answer to this pertinent question, will meet for a three day forum on Nov. 6. 7, and 8 at Stephens college, Columbia, Mo. "The American Woman and Her Responsibilities" will be the general theme.

Plans for the conference have been announced by Dr. James Madison Wood, president of Stephens college for 29 years. The forum is being held at this time because, in Dr. Wood's words, "we believe that it now is more important than ever to recognize that democracy is no longer the unchallenged, foolproof ideal as a political organism, but must be fortified with strong moral fiber to survive, and that a nation's whole moral fiber is shaped and nurtured, during the formative years, in the home itself."

Round table discussions seeking an educational "guiding light" for future generations of American women will be conducted by the forum's advisory committee. Owen D. Young is honorary chairman and Dr. W. W. Charters, director of educational research at Ohio State university, is chairman.

Dr. Wood pioneered in a similar movement 20 years ago, when he sponsored a survey of the educational needs of women in all income brackets. At that time he found that more than classical languages, higher mathematics, and physical science were needed to train women for real life problems. As a result, he urged that courses on marriage and the family, child raising, psychology, home management, practical economics, and community service be included in a well rounded educational program.

"There is no reason to suppose," Dr. Wood said, "that women's problems today can be solved by what we think of as 'formal' education any more satisfactorily than they were then. On the contrary, the 'practical' problems of living have multiplied much more rapidly than the academic ones."

• • •

"On top of this, the present urgent need for awakening women to their important rôle as bulwarks of democracy thru intelligent, satisfactory homemaking leads us to believe that it now is time to extend that realistic approach thruout the whole field of feminine education, which, undoubtedly, long has tended to place too much emphasis on the opportunities of women in a democracy, rather than their responsibilities."

Big Sisters to Mark 25th Anniversary

[Kazanjian Photo.]

The Big Sisters' celebration on Tuesday will be an observance of the organization's 25th anniversary and a tribute to Mrs. George V. McIntyre, who has guided the Big Sisters with untiring effort for 23 years. Silver and white cards have been sent out to invite members to holy mass at 11 o'clock in Old St. Mary's church, and to a breakfast at 12:30 o'clock in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. The Rt. Rev. Edward F. Hoban will be the celebrant at the mass.

• • •

The organization was incorporated in 1916 at the request of Judge Mary Bartelme of the Juvenile court and Mother Mary of the House of the Good Shepherd, who saw the need for follow-up work with underprivileged women and girls who had been released from institutions. Two years later Mrs. McIntyre became president, a post which she has held continuously ever since. Largely thru her devoted efforts and leadership the Big Sisters have raised more than half a million dollars by donations and benefits during their 25 years of service. Not only monetary aid, but kindly interest is given to the group's charges and to the dependent children whom the scholarship committee aids in attending school.

A Sunday afternoon lecture by a widely known news commentator and an annual Yuletide dinner-dance at the Edgewater Beach hotel are on the organization's calendar for the coming winter.

Forgotten City in Yucatan Has Weird History

By Rutherford Charlton.

Midway between Madagascar reef and Del Carmen Island, on the west coast of the strange Yucatan peninsula, lies the ancient Spanish town of Campeche. In 1540 the Spaniards established a base of operations there for their raids on other parts of the peninsula. Before the coming of the Spaniards a native village existed on this site for more years than any one knows.

The 400 year history of Campeche reads like an adventure story with wild exploits of conquest and piracy recorded on every page. First came Cortez and his conquistadors on the trail of Inca gold. Then came the pirates to capture and pillage the town twice in the latter part of the seventeenth century. More often, however, loot laden ships were sailed to this port rather than away from it, for it is said that Campeche was a great clearing house for the illegal commerce of the Spanish Main.

The locality is rich in relics of its swashbuckling past, and even at this late date it has undergone little change in appearance or custom.

Campeche may be reached from Merida, the capital of Yucatan, in 45 minutes by air or six hours by the wood burning train. Most travelers choose the air route, but those wishing local color in large quantities are advised to go segunda clase on the Yucatan railway.

Arriving at the airport at 7 a. m., we were lucky enough to obtain ultima hora, or last hour, tickets. These may be had by going directly to the airport about an hour before the plane is scheduled to take off. If there are any seats still vacant they can be had for little more than half price.

From the great height of the plane the only distinguishable earthly features were the big haciendas surrounded by seas of dark green sisal. Each of these plantations resembled a small village complete unto itself, with a church, neat rows of workers' cottages, a processing plant, and the master's mansion in the midst of a large formal garden.

On the last leg of the journey vast marshes appeared. Finally the sight of tiny, white-capped ripples and toylike fishing boats told us we were nearing our destination.

The plane paused at the Campeche airport just long enough to put us aground, and then roared off over the jungle toward Mexico City.

Transportation was obtained after a brief session of bargaining in broken Spanish with two young Mexicans. We hired their primitive touring car and soon were rattling along the road toward town behind our native pilot and co-pilot.

We had not traversed a mile of the shore line before we came upon a reminder of Campeche's hectic youth. A few yards from the water's edge, and half buried in the sand, were the decaying timbers of a pirate ship, beached by some violent storm of long ago, or perhaps struck down by the thundering guns of the forts. We wondered what drama of dark deeds, bold conquests, and fortunes won and lost was enacted on these planks in the Caribbean sunshine, 250 years ago.

An ancient castle on a hill was the next object of our attention. After a long climb we crossed the drawbridge over the moat, passed thru the opening in the 8 foot thick wall, and descended a crumbling stone stairway, supported by a curious rampart arch, into a huge square room.

Dark, débris-choked doorways opened upon this room from other parts of the castle. Two more staircluded the worshiping conquistadores who had taken up their abode in this part of New Spain. It was with somewhat of a shock that we found ourselves standing in the great arched doorway, on stone tablets, set in the floor, which covered the remains of several members of Cortez's band. Some of the inscriptions setting forth the historic names were still legible.

Our next move took us to the great wall which marked the early boundary of the city. This was 30 feet high, 18 feet thick at the base, and wide enough at the top for four men to march abreast between the battlements. The very cannons that thundered defiance at all invaders, and hurled hundreds of clumsy pellets in defense of the city, were still in position. The bartizans, or little round sentry boxes, each commanding a section of the wall, were scarred and chipped around their narrow crenels.

More than one sharp cry of alarm had once come from these lonely lookouts, shattering the stillness of the night and striking terror to the hearts of the townsfolk. Now barefooted natives stroll back and forth thru the bastioned entrance, the great gate hangs forever open, and the cannon on each side above it gather rust.

The streets of Campeche, as in Merida, were lined with scores of small shops, the proprietors of which were both manufacturers and retailers. A large community market occupied the whole first floor of a two story building near the waterfront, and vendors were numerous in the streets.

Unlike the capital, however, the weight of the centuries rested heavily here. Incredibly ancient "electric" street cars rocked and lurched over the streets. They were propelled by sputtering gasoline motors mounted on the front platforms at the motorman's feet. Old cannon, museum pieces anywhere else, were planted as guard posts at every street corner to keep the iron tired wheels of the wagons from gnawing off the edge of the sidewalk.

One of the principal activities in Campeche is fishing and excellent sea food may be had in wide variety. As we strolled thru the market at the waterfront all sorts of queer fish were being brought in, cleaned, and placed on sale. On one waterfront street two old fishermen appeared dragging up the street a huge sea turtle on its back. When we asked them if we might take a picture, they obligingly stepped aside so as to allow a clear view of the struggling turtle. They didn't realize that they, as well as their catch, were objects of interest.

As the time drew near to begin the journey back to Merida we were a bit reluctant to leave this fascinating little town. Rich as it is in romance and tradition, walking its streets, and exploring its forts and castles seemed like turning the calendar back and being on hand when a turbulent chapter in history was written.

Sleepy and quiet now, this forgotten city dozes in the tropical sun like an old man musing on past glories and mulling over dark secrets.

WAYSIDE SHRINES.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 9.—To the Travel Editor: The other day one of your readers, O. D. Beall of Chicago, inquired about the old church in the vicinity of the covered wooden bridge near Cedarburg, Wis. I have just written him the following:

"It is the Church of St. Francis Xavier, built in 1844, but no longer in use.

"The wayside shrine you saw is one of three used originally, but no more, in the annual Festival of Corpus Christi, the Thursday after Trinity Sunday. Another shrine is near the church, and the third is in the woods of the 40 acres that go with the church.

"I am sure that the Rev. J. Brasky, Catholic priest at nearby Grafton, under whose jurisdiction this old parish is, would gladly show you the church should you request him to do so."

What are some of the attractions of the Iroquois-Mohawk region in New York state? —D. W.

The region was the scene of a number of battles in the early days, and it was glorified in James Fenimore Cooper's Leatherstocking tales. Among its attractions are Chittenango Falls, with its waters tumbling 140 feet into a deep gorge; Cooperstown, birthplace of baseball; Rome, the site of Fort Stanwix, where the Stars and Stripes first flew in battle; Fort Ontario, oldest in this country, and the cities of Syracuse, Sharon Springs, Richfield Springs, Binghamton, and Utica.

Color Tours Are Starting in Michigan

MANISTEE, Mich.—The Manistee National forest will be the scene of the annual color tour sponsored by the Manistee Kiwanis club and board of commerce. Dates have been set for Oct. 5 to 20.

CADILLAC, Mich.—Eighty miles of fall color tour routes have been marked out for autumn visitors to the lake region here Oct. 10 to 20. The chamber of commerce coöperates with the forest service to show off both the old forest and the new to the tourists.

DOWAGIAC, Mich.—Both scenic and historic spots are to be seen by the color tour visitors to the Cass county region this autumn. The chamber of commerce has marked the routes and provided a folder outlining the high spots.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.—Nature's fireworks display, the harbinger of fall, when Michigan's wooded hillsides flame into color, will bring thousands of tourists and resorters back to Michigan in October and a glimpse at what native Michiganders consider the finest season of the year.

Newaygo county, which started the color tours 14 years ago, has set Oct. 5 for the beginning of its fall beauty pilgrimages.

112 Degrees at Noon; Freezing at Midnight

[This is the twenty-first article of a series on South America. The next will appear in an early issue.]

By Mason Warner.

PENIEL HALL MISSION, BOLIVIA. No fewer than a hundred of the balsa boats of the Indians were berthed on the shore of Lake Titicaca, near Peniel Hall Mission. My grandson and I went to the beach every morning to see the fishermen set their reed sails and start to the fishing grounds in their primitive craft. In the evening we were just as regular in our attendance to observe the spectacle of the incoming boats, with lowering sails approaching shore until the natives stepped over the side into the cold water to pull the craft to shore.

Their catches consisted of ispe and karachi—fish four to six inches long, full of bones, and not very good eating. The natives spread the fish out on the ground to dry in the sun, and the greater part of the catch was packed on llamas and taken down the Yuncan valleys to be traded. Each boat was manned by two men. Their day's results were seldom more than 20 pounds.

There were thousands of ducks in the marshes in the lake. Young Mason went out in one of the balsa boats with a native and shot four ducks. Their skins were so tough that they had to be removed before cooking, but the meat was tender and palatable. On the lake were herons, gulls, and sandpipers. On crags near the shore were always resting red headed vultures, with white breasts and black backs.

Hawks, eagles, wrens, robins, palomas, and partridges hovered about and rested in the groves of eucalyptus trees. There also were canaries of an unusual type. The males were black, with yellow-tipped wings; the females were yellow, like those at home.

While progress has been made with the mission Indians, sanitary and hygenic conditions are appalling in the Indian villages. Typhoid fever had been a continuous scourge for two years. One day at the mission this conversation took place at the dinner table.

"Well, that woman on the hill is down with fever," said Miss Clark. "That makes the sixth case on our hands now."

"It's going to be pretty bad for her children; I am sorry to hear she is sick," replied Mrs. Merrick.

"Well, I don't know," Miss Clark said hesitatingly. "She is the last of our people to go down. Every other Indian on the hacienda has now had the fever and either recovered or died. I hope we will be rid of the fever at last when she recovers."

Typhoid and pneumonia are a serious problem for the human race on the high plateau. This is so near the equator that there is little difference in the seasons, but the changes in temperature are so great and so sudden that colds are common. The thermometer has been known to register 112 degrees in the sun at midday and go below the freezing point at night. While a thermometer in the sun at the Merrick's doorway registered 110 degrees, another in the dark interior of the garage nearby marked 60.

A cold may develop quickly into pneumonia, and, with the thin air of high altitude putting a burden on the lungs, the heart's action is often too seriously affected. If he has the means, a pneumonia-stricken patient is flown by airplane from La Paz to Lima or Arequipa. The Indians die.

I spent one morning in the clinic with Miss Clark. Among her patients were three suffering from trachoma. She administered treatment for their eyes. Another was an Indian woman with a terrible wound in the calf of her leg. She had been bitten by a pig and had been under treatment for several days. Miss Clark deftly removed bandages, cleansed the wound, and re-bandaged it while the woman leaned back and stolidly chewed her quid of coca leaves. An epidemic of whooping cough sent half a dozen mothers for medicines which they took to their children.

Finally, just as Miss Clark was about to close the clinic, in came a young Indian, a fine specimen. He spoke in a hoarse voice, scarcely above a whisper, as he explained he had a sore throat. Miss Clark showed such serious concern over his condition while she was spraying his throat that I asked her why she was so disturbed.

"He might have yungas throat," she replied. "That is a terrible affliction. These Indians travel down thru the yungas, the tropical valleys, to trade their fish and potatoes for the bananas, oranges, pineapples, coca leaves, and other things that grow in the lowlands. The jungles harbor many kinds of fatal diseases, and yungas throat is one of them. I have little hope that young man will recover. The vocal chords are the first to give way when one is attacked. Like that young man, speech is almost impossible. Then the disease spreads like a malignant ulcer. The patient cannot eat anything, and slowly starves. In non-medical terms, the throat and the thorax literally rot away. I will do all I can for him, but I fear I cannot do enough."

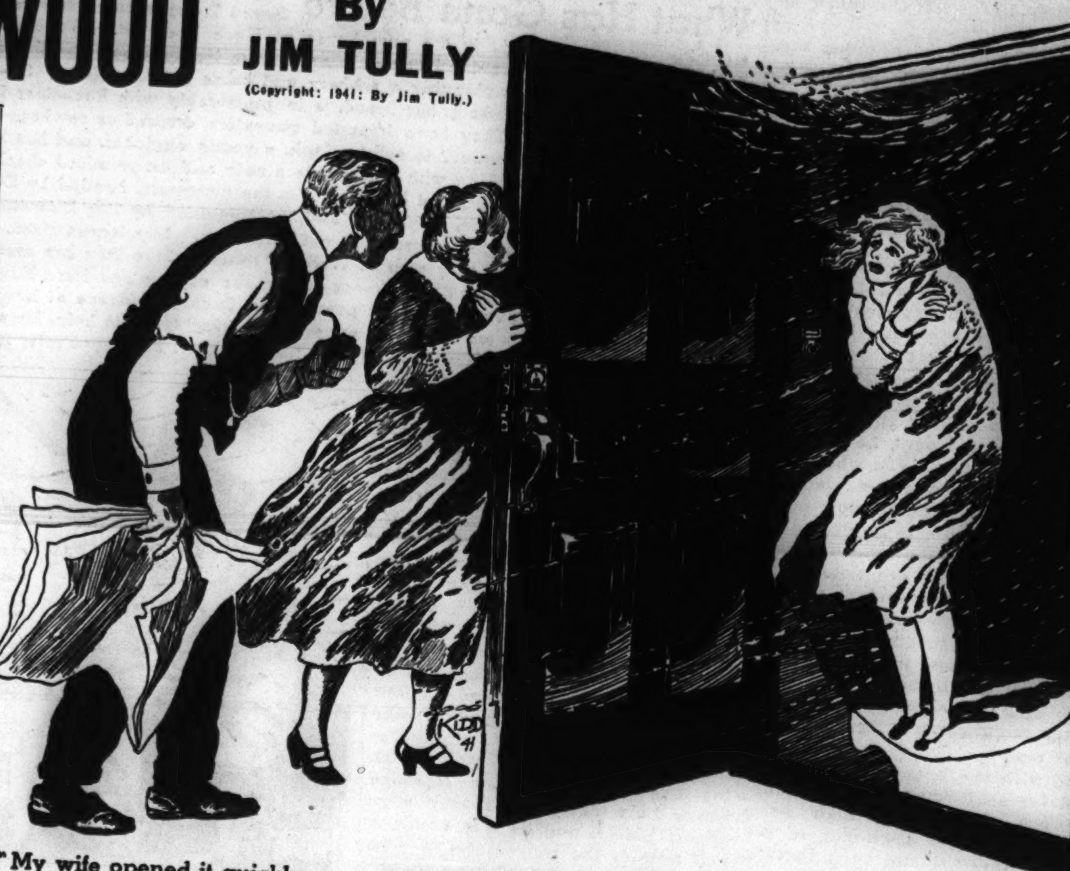
CAREER IN HOLLYWOOD

By JIM TULLY

(Copyright: 1941: By Jim Tully.)



"My wife opened it quickly . . . a gust of wind and snow came in first—then a pretty girl with a sad look in her eyes."

A BATTALION of dark blue clouds moved above the far edge of the Pacific and hid the setting sun.

"It'll soon be raining buckets," said Jack Jarnegan to Barney Sloan. "I hope the guests beat the rain."

"Who's coming?" asked Barney Sloan.

"Judge Laird for one—Betty Raler and her mother—Harry Kent and Richard Benson——" was the director's reply.

"Betty Raler," said Sloan, "a clever girl—she's going places."

"Yes, indeed," affirmed Jarnegan. "There's no place so far she can't go."

"She's your greatest discovery," said Sloan.

The dynamic director glanced at a low flying pelican. "That's a mistake, Barney—the most imbecilic in Hollywood. Nobody discovers anybody here. He just gives them a chance."

"Same thing," snapped Sloan.

"But different," said Jarnegan. "A fellow gets too much screen credit for discovering people and things in this world—America, for instance—or the Pacific ocean—who couldn't discover them?—the same with Betty Raler!"

"Have it your own way, Jack," Barney smiled.

"Well—she's a great actress—and a splendid girl—what would the world be without such young women—and what is it with them?"

"It could be a worse place," said Barney Sloan. "Things are about even now—everybody gets his ice—the rich in the summer—the poor in the winter."

"That's right—but there's no ice about Betty Raler—but here she comes," said Jarnegan.

She came before them in a swirl of beauty. Her dark eyes were wells in which could be seen the laughter and the misery of the world. Large and expressive, they were fires that smouldered. Her yellow hair, in direct contrast to her dark eyes, rolled in waves from a high white forehead. There was in each slender movement the sinuous quality of an electric cable.

Director Praises Betty for Her Promptness

The woman with her, beyond 40, was a dried pool on which reflected the vivid shadow of the younger woman. "You've met my mother—Mrs. Raler?" Betty said.

"Yes," Jarnegan looked at Sloan. "I'll speak for Barney also. We've had the pleasure." He turned to Betty. "You did very well—off the set at 6 and here on time."

"Yes," Betty smiled. "It was thoughtful of you to let us go when you did."

"I had to," said the director—"Our leading man was beginning to drool—Farol is such a ham that when he gets tired, the cloves fall right out of him."

"He's very nice, tho," said Betty.

"Yes—if you like ham," said Jarnegan.

"But he can't help being what he is, Jack," said Barney Sloan.

"That's just it," returned Jarnegan.

"But the public likes him," put in Betty's mother.

"That's right," assented Jarnegan, "that's why he's got the lead in 'Bullets and Blondes.'" He glanced at Betty. "There's something about a pretty blonde in a gangster picture—O, well—it'll make money—and old Isaacs down to his last 10 millions."

Betty was solemn for a second.

"I'm sorry to have to rush to the airport right after dinner, but you understand, Mr. Jarnegan," she said.

"Yes, I understand—Isaacs is flying to New York—you have to see him off. You've got to be nice to the producer—even of 'Bullets and Blondes,'" he said.

"But it won't get me very far," said Betty.

"That's according to how far you want to go in an alley," said Jarnegan. "You've got everything—even the tears a woman never sheds."

Other arrivals, Judge Leo Laird, Harry Kent, the screen matinée idol, and Richard Benson, the famous character actor, were announced.

The judge, a world figure, with a huge head and a slight body, had the manner of a tired child.

Betty's mother looked at him with admiration.

"We meet again," he bowed.

"Yes," she said.

"How do you like Hollywood?" he asked.

"Marvelous," she said. "It's like a dream."

"And you, Betty?" His eyes were kind.

"Splendid," she replied. "I was worried at first."

"That was to be expected," said the judge, "but you have done amazingly well."

"Yes," she said, "thanks to Mr. Jarnegan."

"And yourself," put in the director.

The judge looked at the darkening sea.

"Well," he said to Mrs. Raler, "it's a lovelier place than Rockland."

"I'll say," said Richard Benson. "They had gas lights when I played there."

"They still have," said Harry Kent. "They turn them on in place of the sun."

"We always thought Rockland very lovely, didn't we, Betty?" Mrs. Raler said quietly, her mind going over the happy years with her adopted daughter.

Jarnegan smiled at Betty.

"It looked like rain for a while—but you never can tell in California. Let's go inside," suggested Jarnegan.

They gazed from the dining room at the cloud spangled moonlight on the Pacific.

"It reminds me of a De Mille set—it's so different," laughed Harry Kent. "Not a piece of gilt in sight."

The small talk of Hollywood followed.

Confucius, the Chinese servant, smiled at his master.

Jarnegan thrummed on the table after he had seated the guests. "The sky's the limit here," he said. "Nobody's ever thrown out, even if he likes the food."

Dinner over, they stood near the fireplace of the huge living room.

"We hate to go right after dinner, but that's the bargain, Mr. Jarnegan. The plane leaves Burbank in an hour. We promised Mr. Isaacs we'd see him off to New York."

"Okay," said Jarnegan, "hurry back. Tell Isaacs once more the picture'll be done on schedule. I've been getting in under the wire for him on time for over 20 years—but he has to have something to worry about."

"We're taking Judge Laird with us for company—do you mind?" asked Betty.

"Not at all. Bring him back," said Jarnegan.

The roar of the sea could be heard as the door opened. The remaining guests seated themselves near the fireplace.

Gazing at the burning logs, Richard Benson said, "It's good to watch the fire on a night like this . . ."

"Or any other night," said Harry Kent.

The clock chimed again. Kent glanced up.

"Where'd I read about the fellow who kept a clock near him so he could tell every minute how much older he was getting?"

"Some movie magazine," said Barney Sloan.

There followed sardonic laughter. No one spoke for a minute.

"I like clocks," said Jarnegan. "They're the only things that don't lie in Hollywood. No matter how tough the going gets, they keep a straight face and never interfere. That's very unusual here."

"I'll say it is," said Richard Benson. "They're not professional mothers anyhow." His eyes went toward the door. "That little girl who just left here should go far. Her mother never interferes."

"That's right," said Harry Kent, "she lets the girl alone. More mothers have ruined their daughters' careers in Hollywood than you can shake a stick at. I've never known a film mother yet that had any sense."

"I'm glad you said 'film mother,'" said Barney Sloan.

"I might almost say film daughter," Kent half smiled, "but then I'd hardly be right—there's no shrewder little girl in the world than the average young screen actress."

"Well, most of them know where they're going," said Richard Benson.

"Even if it's around a lamp," said Harry Kent. "Byron had it, or was it Shelley—'Maidens, like moths, are ever caught by glare.'"

"That's why they get sidetracked," put in Barney Sloan.

"So does everybody else," said Jarnegan. "It takes a mighty heavy person to stay on the main line long in Hollywood."

"But you're not heavy, Jack," said Richard Benson.

"Heavier than you'd think. There's a streak of cheapness in me bigger than Russia."

"I know what you mean," said Harry Kent, "like Carmen Sylvia, your mother of the heroine in 'Bullets and Blondes.'" He took his eyes from Jarnegan. "But then the cheap people have something."

"More cheapness—and gall," said Barney Sloan.

"Yes, Hollywood is a strange place," Harry Kent continued. "It's even stranger when you know the people who go over the top. Sometimes I think the bigger boob you are, the more you're apt to appeal to the mob."

"You're bitter, Harry," said Barney Sloan.

"Not exactly," returned Kent. "I shouldn't be. Even if I am too popular—the kitchen maid's delight—a fine ending for an otherwise intelligent man."

"Don't take it so seriously, Harry," smiled Jarnegan. "Suppose the clubwomen liked you—then you'd have to make free speeches on the morals of the movies."

Richard Benson Agrees About Carmen Sylvia

Richard Benson cut in. "He's still right about Carmen Sylvia tho. I get his drift. She's the most popular woman on the screen and she used to be a flunky in a restaurant."

"That wouldn't be so bad," said Jarnegan. "A lot of us have been worse. But she's ashamed of it."

"The poor old gal," went on Richard Benson. "She waited on table in Iowa the last year I played there. Must have been 30 years ago—or more. I never used to believe in luck till I met Carmen—her real name was Matilda Jenks—and her father traded mules up and down the Mississippi river. I always thought he was the one to get some place—even on a mule. Instead of that, it was his daughter. She is a great individual at that. It's hard to say what she has—but it's something."

"Luck," put in Harry Kent.

"That's partly right," said Richard Benson, "but other people have had luck—that's not enough. I remember when we were in stock in Des Moines—it was a terrible burlesque show. The traveling salesmen married our girls as fast as we could break them in. Finally Carmen joined the troupe. She was so ugly not even the fellow who sold plows wanted her. So she'd stay backstage with the star, Jim Sylvia, and listen to him brag between drinks about how good he was. He really was a great mimic, and she was a fine audience. With him, she was a different person. He was always acting, and she was always learning. Pretty soon she did little skits with him. Then one day they got married.

"He died—left her his name and four bottles of whiskey.

"Weighing over 200 pounds, she could mimic like a mocking bird. It was something new and she began to click. Finally she made such a hit in 'Broadway Burlesque' that she came to Hollywood and has been here ever since. I'll agree there was some luck in it—but not all."

Harry Kent frowned. "Suppose she'd been good looking—she'd been out with the boys instead of backstage with Jim Sylvia. Suppose—suppose—but I give up."

"She was ready when the chance came—who can tell what went on in that frothy head of hers?" said Barney Sloan.

"Who cares?" asked Jarnegan. "All I want to know is who started this." He glanced good-naturedly at Richard Benson.

"The remarkable thing," said Benson, smiling, "is that she's carried Sylvia in her heart all these years. That shows a fine quality."

"I agree," said Jarnegan. "She is a good story. Hollywood's full of them—not having money or success and then getting it is always a good yarn. That little girl who just left here is the greatest yarn in Hollywood right now. One of the greatest that ever came here. It's all off the record—even to a feature writer like you, Barney," Jarnegan looked at his friend. "It came to me all of a sudden—when I gave her a screen test for 'The Sands of Time.' Original title, huh? We tried to get something to indicate motherhood. Well, she was terrific in the test. She was a prospective young mother in the film.

"It was cold as a copper's heart—and the snowflakes fell bigger than in the scene of ''Way Down East' where the daughter was kicked out. She was just about to end it all—and she was so real, she made you believe it—tear your heart right out. She even made a prop man cry—he said he had a cold—the liar—of course, that was enough—'You're engaged,' I told her.

"It bothered me for weeks—and when she did the scene in the picture—it was a tear jerker for fair. Funny . . ." and Jarnegan smiled. "It's so simple, you'd think that even a producer would eventually learn it. No picture ever failed that made people cry enough—that is, if it made them laugh a little, too—my old grandmother used to say that life was an Irish wake—first you cry and then you laugh.

"Well, I couldn't get Betty's work out of my head. She had only been in Hollywood a year—her people had money, and she didn't have to associate with the usual Hollywood leeches—yet where had she learned about motherhood—I heard the old stuff about all girls knowing that instinctively—but this was too real—deeper than instinct.

"I knew she was from Judge Laird's home town—the place where he became famous before he came to California. I kept thinking about it until finally I went to the judge and told him something was on my mind. He looked at me as tho it couldn't be possible, then he asked me what it was.

"'It's Betty Raler,' I said.

"'Lovely girl—a great actress—you brought something out of her, Jack,' he said.

"His eyes were far away.

"'I didn't bring anything out that wasn't there, judge,' I said.

Judge Tells Jarnegan About Betty Raler

"He parried, 'Perhaps not—but nevertheless, it required a great sympathy.'

"'For what, judge?"

"'For human suffering—people in pain,' he said.

"'But this is the picture business, judge.'

"'They're still in pain,' he said.

"'This Betty Raler,' I said, 'there's some mystery—what's the low-down? I may as well know it first—nothing can be hidden here—it's like a battleship in a canal.'

"Then the judge became the man who was known all over the world.

"'There's nothing to hide, Jack—the truth once faced has no interest. It's been over 20 years ago—the wind was rolling snow big as rocks from the Rocky mountains. We had a victrola going and the fire crackling in our little home on Crocker street. The bell rang so loud we were afraid the noise of the victrola had kept us from hearing it before. My wife opened it quickly—a gust of wind and snow came in first—then a pretty girl with a sad look in her eyes. She followed my wife into the living room—my books were scattered everywhere—she looked up at a picture of Abe Lincoln, the one he had taken in Springfield—and when I started to clear the books so she could sit down, something dropped on the floor.

"'I picked it up. 'I don't want it now——' the girl said as I handed it to her. 'I'm going to live.'

"'I saw it was poison, so I put it in my pocket. I'd never seen my wife lovelier than she was at that moment. 'Why, you poor child,' she said. 'Has somebody been hurting you? I hope not. You're too pretty to hurt.'

What Has Gone Before

Nora Riley, whose Uncle Lem Goodal owns a gold mine near Seven Troughs, receives a letter from Jim Chambers asking her to meet him secretly at night in the pumphouse at Black Rock flat. En route there her car stalls and she is picked up by Hugh Shannon. Leaving Hugh at Winnemucca, Nora drives alone that night to meet Jim. Outside the pumphouse she overhears men planning a robbery and hears a body falling. She realizes they have killed Chambers. Curly, a cowboy Nora thinks is her friend, is in partnership with Racketeer Larry Miller and is trying to get her uncle to sell his mine. They have imported gangsters dressed as cowboys to steal Lem's gold and force the sale of the mine. Lem has promised to sell to Hugh, a young engineer, and has hired William White Bird, a detective, to investigate. Hugh, working with Bird, sends a note and his promised check to Lem by Nora. Realizing Lem has become suspicious, Curly poisons him and tells the gangsters, headed by Keyes, that Hugh and Bird can identify them. In an effort to escape, Hugh and Bird, accompanied by Lily Diamond, a woman prospector, and her dog, James, reach Seven Troughs, where they get Bird's car. Lily leaves them, but her dog stays. Before going to the sheriff in Winnemucca they stop at Walker's ranch, where they are overpowered by two of Keyes' gang and they hear of a plan to kidnap Nora. James attacks the captors and frees Hugh and Bird. Bird goes for the sheriff. In the meantime Nora examines Lem's possessions, finding evidence of Hugh's honesty. Lily gets the note Hugh sends by James, but it is too late. The gangsters, forcing Curly to help, have snatched Nora. Rose, an Indian girl who works for Nora, makes them take her also, but Keyes later throws Rose out of the car.

INSTALMENT IX.

THE sheepman's truck was one of those flat bed affairs which are used for hauling hay and feed over the sagebrush hills and there were several empty grain sacks in it when Walker and Whitey Burns left the ranch for Seven Troughs.

In the sand dunes, four miles out, the jolting of the truck sent one of the sacks flying in the wind; it alighted in a clump of sage some distance from the road and it was still entangled in the branches, flapping like a brown flag when Hugh came along two hours later.

If Hugh had been keeping to the road he would not have seen it, but there were long stretches where the falling snow had buried the wheel tracks; the whirling flakes and the white drifts were merged in a pale twilight; the nearest objects were distorted and everything was vague. His feet had lost all sense of feeling; he had fallen several times and on one of those occasions he had lost his automatic pistol. His whole body was numb with weariness and he was in the first stage of snow blindness; his inflamed eyes magnified the distortions until the shifting half light was filled with unrealities.

When he saw the sack it was almost within arm's reach, and even then he thought that he was looking on another of those illusions created by the storm. He heard it flapping in the wind, he reached out and after his fingers closed on it, he knew that it was real.

And with the knowledge he recognized the spot where he was standing. The dunes were high hereabouts, it was the beginning of the foothills; there should be a shallow little valley nearby, leading upward to the canyon, and the road followed its bed. The wind was coming from the high country and he was facing it; that meant that the valley lay on his right.

He sat down in the snow and he found his penknife. His fingers were so numb that he had to use his teeth to open one of the blades. And when he set to work cutting the jute sack into two pieces, the knife slipped from his grasp. It took him a long time to find it in the snow, and after that, a long interval to chafe some feeling back into his hands. It was a good half hour before he finished the work and rose. His feet were wrapped in burlap and the wrappings were made fast with ragged strips of sacking.

Thoughts of Nora Make Hugh Rush On

And from that time on, the circulation began to return to them.

Hugh was thinking of Nora. Since he had heard those men speak of the girl whom they were going to bring to the ranch house, Nora had never left his thoughts for more than a few moments. It seemed strange to him that he should be feeling as he did toward her. He and she hadn't spoken much while they had been together, things had been happening too fast for that. And, of what little had been said, the most of it had been at cross purposes; there had been moments whn they both had shown antagonism.

Yet he was going up to the mine now because she was in danger, and it was not simply because he ought to do it. There was more to the feeling that drove him on than the ordinary sense of a man's duty to a girl who is imperiled.

Perhaps he should not have sent James up the hill with the note tied to his collar. It was a long odds bet; the chances were all against the dog getting thru, and, if he did arrive, it was 10 to 1 that the tobacco sack would go unnoticed. Perhaps he should have kept that cartridge and remained at the sheep ranch, to attempt a rescue later on. Sometimes he thought of these things, and when he did, he told himself that he was doing the best he could, he was going to keep on trying.

He was within a few yards of the road when he heard the racketing of Walker's truck. The noises of the storm had covered its approach; it was so near when he heard it that he had no time to find a hiding place; he flung himself upon his face.

It was the storm that gave him cover, for the truck passed so close that they could not have missed seeing him if it had not been for the flying snow. There were two men in the cab and the snow lay thick on the windshield except for the space where the wiper was swinging back and forth; their eyes were on that clouded little patch of glass. There were four others crouching in the flat bed; their heads were bowed, the wide rims of their hats were pulled down over their faces. There was a plume of steam rising from the radiator cap and the shrieking of the gears rose above the howling wind. And in the moment of their passing, Hugh forgot his danger.

He was thinking of what the two gangsters had said before the truck had left the ranch for Seven Troughs. He got to his feet and he was looking for Nora. The snow was lying hub deep in the little valley where the road lay, and the truck was making slow progress thru the drifts. He had plenty of time to look over its passengers before the flakes hid it. Only men there. He turned his face against the wind and started up the hill.

The ruts in the snow were twisting like the trail which a snake leaves in a dusty road; they were almost hidden and he was within a half mile of the canyon mouth. The sound of the approaching sedan was so slight that he did not hear it. He has wandered from the road and it would have gone by without his seeing it if the door had not slammed. That brought back his senses like a dash of cold water in his face. Then he heard Nora scream and he caught a glimpse of the car before it vanished in the flying snow.

He was wide awake now. He was back in the road and he was following the fresh tracks down the hill. He had been within five yards of Rosie but his eyes did not leave those tracks. He was fighting to keep his mind on them, and so he did not see her lying in the drift where she had fallen.

He had the wind behind him, it was a downhill pull; he had the sound of that scream in his ears to spur him on. It had taken him more than two hours to get this far; it was less than an hour later when he saw the loom of Walker's barn before him. Noon had passed and afternoon was coming on in an unnatural twilight, for the clouds were hanging low; but the cold was letting up down here on the lower levels; there was a scent of moisture in the air, the snow was growing damper.

The door of the stable was wide open and the comfortable sounds of feeding stock came out from the dim interior; the stamp of a hoof on straw, the munching of horses in the stalls. A man appeared around the corner of the building and Hugh dodged into the doorway.

The air was heavy with the smell of horses; it was warm in here, the murmurous breathing of animals came out of the shadows. He heard footsteps outside and stepped into the nearest stall. A horse was there. It snorted violently; a voice came from the doorway:

"Easy, Boy."

Hugh faced around and saw a gaunt form in silhouette against the outer light. It was a sheepman; he stood there on the threshold, peering into the barn. Then he came on in. He said:

"What's ailing you? Stand still, can't you?" He went on by the stall and presently Hugh heard him doing something with the truck. He was busy for a few moments, then he came past the stall again and went out.

The horse was a draft animal, it had reconciled itself to the presence of the man beside it. Hugh stood by its head, he laid his hands on the thick neck beneath the coarse mane; the warmth was delicious.

There were several men out in the yard now; he could hear their voices. Once a dog came into the stable. It must have caught his scent for it growled and slunk out thru the door. The voices of the men were growing fainter; a few moments later a door banged.

He waited for some time before he left the stall. His eyes were growing accustomed to the dimness in the stable. In former days the place had housed many horses; now there were only a few stalls, and the sheepman's truck was standing in the shadows near the rear wall. He went to it. The dog returned while he was searching for the tool box and he climbed into the cab. He remained there for a good 10 minutes while the animal was walking stiff leggedly around the truck. At last it departed and he resumed his search.

The tool box was under the seat. It was so dark here that he had to feel for what he wanted; he found it finally; a long handled hub wrench. He replaced the seat cushion and he was starting for the door when he heard footsteps outside. He slipped into his former hiding place.

The little "torpedo" called Monk, who had driven the kidnaping car down from Seven Troughs, was waiting in the yard when Walker came out from the stable. He said:

"Keyes wants to see you." And the sheepman answered.

"I got my cows to milk."

Monk made an indelicate remark concerning the cows.

"And," he added, "you better snap into it, Chum. He's all burned up."

The sheepman offered a suggestion, "Leave him burn."

Self-Preservation Instinct Annoying to Sheepman

With this declaration of independence off his mind, he followed the other to the house. Thinking was a slow process with him, but he was, like a good many others of his breed, not nearly as stupid as he looked.

The instinct of self-preservation had been annoying him ever since he had sent his wife away to Winnemucca when the two gangsters arrived early this morning. That had been at Keyes' bidding; he would have paid no attention to the message had it not been for the fact that it promised him big money, and the further fact that he was already so thoroly compromised in the high grading. The twin motives of greed and fear had remained about equal until he learned the reason why he had sent his wife away. Thereafter, fear had held the upper hand. He had read enough in the weekly Humboldt Gazette to know what happened to all hands, including accessories, when a kidnaping went wrong.

So he had been keeping out of the way ever since the sedan had pulled up beside the house and he had been reviewing the possibilities, and, for the life of him, he couldn't find any encouragement in them. It didn't need a detective's perspicacity to let a man understand what had taken place since he had departed that morning for Seven Troughs. While he was on his way to the kitchen door, Walker was doing a little calculation; the distance to Winnemucca, the condition of the roads, the time it would take a good driver to make the round trip and summon help from the sheriff's office. As he footed it up, the figures gave him about one hour's grace.

The kitchen was steaming, the air was reeking with odors of drying clothes and men and dogs. Especially dogs. They were all over the place. The men were gathered around the red hot stove; they had peeled off their overcoats and their once bright shirts had a bedraggled look, the color had been running sadly. Two were sitting on chairs and two were on upended boxes; their backs bowed, their hands between their knees. They looked around when Walker and his conductor entered, then all of them resumed their contemplation of the mud-stained floor. Walker glanced at the floor; he said.

"My old woman will raise hell when she comes back." And no one answered. Monk pointed to the door which led into the front of the house.

"He's in there." He swore. "This place stinks." He seated himself on the kitchen table and the sheepman went on into the inner room.

It was a little room. The wall paper was patterned with enormous roses which had been red; now they looked like small pink cabbages. It had been intended for a dining room but no one had eaten here for years. There were three doors; one from the kitchen, another opening into what Walker's wife was pleased to call the parlor, and a third.

This last led to a dark little alcove at the foot of the stairs. There was an old-fashioned wood burning heater, but there was no fire and the room was like a cellar. Keyes was sitting in a rocking chair; there was a stained dining room table beside him, and on the table, a gray woolen dress, a pair of cotton stockings, and a union suit which had been mended in several places.

"What are you doing with my wife's clothes?" Walker asked.

Keyes looked up. His face was white and his dark eyes were venomous. And when he spoke, his voice was dangerously soft.

"Where you been, Walker? Figuring on taking a powder?"

"I don't aim to be here when that Indian comes back from town with the sheriff," he answered calmly. He nodded toward the heap of clothing. "What's the idea, anyhow?"

Keyes ignored the question. "We won't be here when he comes back," he said. Then, abruptly, "I can get thru to the transcontinental highway by way of Black Rock Flat?"

Walker shook his head. "You'd bog down as soon as you hit the dry lake. That mud would mire a saddle blanket today."

"Any other way of making Reno without taking the Winnemucca road?"

"Not a chance," Walker answered him cheerfully. "But if you are figgering on getting out of here, you can drive down the Winnemucca road ten miles. There's an old sheep wagon road takes off to the left thru the sand hills. It's dry enough to travel. It ties in to the three state highway. Then you could head for the coast or swing east to Idaho. But you better get rolling pretty quick if you aim to make it before the sheriff comes."

Keyes said, "Here's your hat, don't hurry." He was smiling unpleasantly. "It don't go, Walker. I'm pulling out, but you are coming with me. You might be getting ideas into your head if you stayed here. You stick around in the kitchen till I come downstairs."

He picked up the clothing and went to the door that led to the little alcove at the foot of the stairs. He looked over his shoulder at the sheepman.

"Stick, and we'll cut you in on this."

"How much?" Walker asked.

"Five grand," Keyes said. "And if you try to play both ends against the middle it will be just too bad." He opened the door and went out into the passage.

When Walker returned to the kitchen, he caught sight of Curly. He was sitting in a corner of the room and there was no one near him. He was watching the sheepman narrowly and his eyes held a speculative look. Walker answered it with a barely perceptible nod.

Curly and Walker Hatch Up a Scheme

He glanced around the room; the other men were still staring at the floor and no one was saying a word. He went to the stove and stood there for some time, warming his hands. Then he sauntered over to the window; he gazed out at the falling snow. He said:

"Going to turn into a rain down here pretty soon." He was addressing the company in general, but no one raised his head. He waited a little while longer before he edged over to the corner where Curly was sitting.

He had placed that $5,000 and Keyes' threat on one side of the balance; on the other, the vanished William White Bird and a sheriff nearly 100 miles away from there.

He leaned against the wall and took a round pasteboard box from his pocket; he removed the lid, dipped a half teaspoonful of snuff on his thick forefinger and annointed his gums; he looked down into the big bland face.

"He's took my wife's clothes."

"He's crazy."

Curly's face held no more expression than the exterior of an egg.

"If I had somebody, we could roll my truck out of the barn. I tried it alone, but couldn't make it. Nobody would hear us till we started the engine."

Curly's lips were moving again. "How about the sedan?"

"The key ain't there. I looked."

Curly said, "We'll go out together. If anybody asks what we're doing, say that the truck's got a bad tire; Keyes told yo' to make the change and I am going with yo'. They're figgerin' on the get-away an' that fits in. If they send some one along to keep an eye on us——" his eyes met Walker's and the sheepman nodded.

It was 10 minutes later when Keyes came down the stairs. He opened the kitchen door and glanced around the room, his brows drew together.

"Where's Curly?" he demanded.

Little Monk was sitting on the kitchen table, he was swinging his legs when he began his answer.

"He went out with Walker." His voice lost some of its assurance as he saw the expression in Keyes' face. He added hurriedly, "It's okay, boss. They're changing that flat."

"What flat?" Keyes snapped.

The little torpedo's legs ceased swinging. Keyes started across the room. One or two of the others were starting to rise. He said:

"Stay where you are. I'll tend to this." He was fondling the revolver in his overcoat pocket when he ming town. She was an actress, then gave it up and came back here and started teaching school. I don't know the whys and wherefores of anything—tho most judges and lawyers seem to feel they do. This girl was like most people, all mixed up. She couldn't have the baby and keep on teaching school—so she'd gone into a drug store, bought the stuff—and then thought of us . . . and there she was. It wasn't time for anything but action. Her school would open in a month.

CAREER IN HOLLYWOOD

"'Here's what we'll do,' I told her. 'We'll send you to a hospital, the child can be born there—I know a very fine couple who'll take it at once. I'll guarantee it a fine home and only ask that you do one thing—never ask us where the child is—and don't worry. Rely on our word it will be treated right.

"'For several minutes I thought the girl's heart would drop out of her breast.

"'All right,' she said, 'I'll do it for the baby.'

"'My wife went with her to the hospital. I didn't want to go near to see that young mother after the baby had gone. Women and doctors seem to stand those things better. I'd like to say something about how decent every one was to her.

"'Everything went as planned. The girl went back to teaching school again. I might even say the father was relieved as a member of the board of education should be—he was very bitter against me later as a corrupter of youth and all that sort of thing—but of course I understood that what happens in life shouldn't be used for vengeance.

"'In six years the child, a little girl, went to school to be taught by its own mother.

"'Before long I saw the mother at a public function. 'I met the most charming little girl recently,' she said. 'For a moment I hoped it might be my own.' We talked further of this long ago incident. 'I'll remember my promise,' she added. I saw for a second that her eyes were sad.

"'She became one of the great educators of the state, her name going across the nation as a leading child psychologist, thus turning her heavy cross into one of silver and gold. Every time I thought of her I recalled Shaw's magnificent observation—'When your heart is broken, then comes the beginning of peace.'

Decide on Theatrical Career for Talented Girl

"'She was a great character, a noble soul. Indeed, Jack, her daughter is no accident.'

"The little girl so excelled in dramatics that it was decided on a theatrical career for her."

The bell rang. The girlish laughter of Betty Raler could be heard.

"Well, he's gone," she said. "He must be flying over Nevada by this time."

A place was made for them near the fire.

"Well, judge," said Jarnegan, "you'll be glad to know that Mickey's still on the job. When I told him I'd see you tonight I thought he'd drop the lamp he was carrying."

The judge smiled. "I'm glad to hear that, Jack—I get two letters a

"He was always acting, and she was always learning. He really was a great mimic, and she was a fine audience."

year from Mickey—Easter and Christmas. He's a good boy, Mickey—made of the right stuff—it's mighty lucky for him to find a man like you."

"Well," Jarnegan mused, in his eyes the tumbrils of memory, "when I needed a pat on the back you gave it to me. I'm passing it on."

"I was fortunate, too, Jack, in meeting you. It's all a relay race. A lot of the people may be just looking while we're running—we're carrying the light, Jack, and handing it to the other fellow."

Jarnegan glanced at Betty and Mrs. Raler. "Did you hear that? We're carrying the lights." His tone was facetious.

"You can smile all you want, Mr. Jarnegan," said Betty, "but you can't hide the sort of man you are—even if you are ashamed of being human."

"Me?" Jarnegan ran his heavy hand thru a mass of iron-gray hair. "I'm a one-time jailbird—the locks of prisons are on my heart forever."

"But a jailbird with wings," said Barney Sloan. "I know from what you rose."

Aware of the director's vital bitter nature, the judge said, "But let's get back to Mickey. He told me in a year he was to be an assistant director. Nice of you, Jack."

The director made no comment.

The judge resumed: "Mickey's had a great career. Among 37,000 boys I'd sent to the reform school, he was the only boy who rebelled. Each boy went alone—244 miles on his word of honor. I got into trouble there. The boy going alone didn't need a guard. Some one missed the guard's railroad fare. Well, Mickey left the courtroom—went 30 miles—got off the train and came back.

"It was embarrassing. Over 3,500 boys had kept their word. Mickey broke his. The papers got after me. I told the police when they got Mickey to bring him to me.

"He came into my courtroom and I said, 'Now, I'm your pal, Mickey. I won't let you down. But there's a case of honor involved. You were arrested, tried, and took your sentence. We know you didn't get a fair start. Got in the game at dark. You couldn't see the ball and had to strike out. But you gave me your word. Now, Mickey,' I said, 'you go free with your broken word—or keep it—and go back.'"

"Mickey looked at the floor. 'I forgot, Your Honor,' he said, 'I'm going back.'"

Old Judge Satisfied with Turn of Events

The judge sighed with satisfaction. "Well, he's proved to me over the years, with thousands of others, that there's no such thing as a bad boy or girl—some are just luckier than others. They all respond to understanding."

A wind went over the ocean.

"Hasn't the judge done the most wonderful things?" asked Betty. The woman who had been a devoted mother looked at her adopted daughter with affectionate admiration.

"He surely has," replied Jarnegan.

HOT GOLD

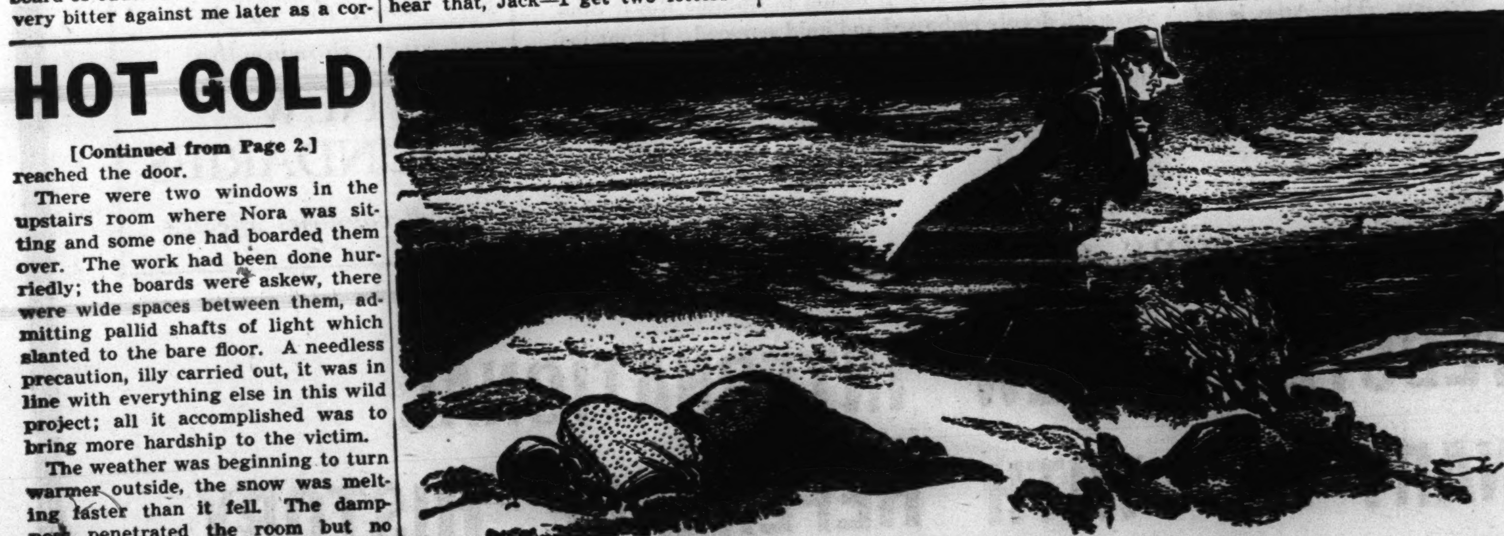
reached the door.

There were two windows in the upstairs room where Nora was sitting and some one had boarded them over. The work had been done hurriedly; the boards were askew, there were wide spaces between them, admitting pallid shafts of light which slanted to the bare floor. A needless precaution, illy carried out, it was in line with everything else in this wild project; all it accomplished was to bring more hardship to the victim.

The weather was beginning to turn warmer outside, the snow was melting faster than it fell. The dampness penetrated the room but no warmth came with it; the air was icy and it was heavy with the smell of mold. There was an old-fashioned wooden bed, two chairs, a washstand; the bare plastered walls were adorned by a small mirror.

Nora was sitting on the edge of the bed. She was wrapped in the comforters in which Curly had bundled her when he took her from her room. Except to draw the covers more closely about her, she had not moved since Keyes had carried her up the stairs and dropped her here.

She had been in a daze then; she had been conscious of nothing that was going on about her since she had seen Rosie thrust out from the car. They had stopped the sedan beside the house and Keyes had carried her in thru the front door, and after he had left her here she had remained just as she was now.



His eyes never left those tracks, so he did not see Rosie lying in the drift.

Presence of Impending Calamity Fills House

The house was poorly built. Slight sounds were audible thruout, and some of the sounds which came up thru the floor were far from slight. But the upraised voices and the other tumult which had followed the discovery that Hugh and White Bird had escaped made no impression upon her; the presence of impending calamity overhung the whole house, but she was insensible to it.

She was sitting there waiting for Hugh.

It was hope that saved her from giving away. It was the blessing of a spirit which accepts new hopes and clings to them, when the old ones die. She had been hoping ever since she was a little girl. She had seen her visions come true. And, during these last twenty-odd hours, she had seen them destroyed. But she was of those fortunate few with whom the eagerness of youth abides untarnished, who remain undismayed. Her uncle was dead, Curly was a false image, but she had found a new belief. And she was clinging to it now.

When she heard the footsteps coming up the stairs she thought perhaps this would be Hugh.

The key was rattling in the lock. The door opened and Keyes stepped into the room. He was holding a bundle of clothing on his arm; he flung it on the bed beside her.

"Get into these," he said. "I'll be back in a few minutes." The words came in jerks. "We're getting out of here. If you ain't ready, I'll take you the way you are."

He turned away. He was moving like one of those marionettes whose limbs respond to the pull of threads; the door closed behind him and the key rasped in the lock; she heard him running down the stairs.

But Hugh was going to come. She did not tell herself so; she did not feel the need that makes for reassurance. She sat there waiting.

She had not thought about the clothing since Keyes had left it there; the garments lay beside her on the bed, unnoticed. There was a pale bar of light upon the floor before her. Her eyes were upon that.

A motor backfired in the yard below the windows. The sound was like a pistol shot. She heard a voice calling, a door banged somewhere below. And then, for some time, the house was very still.

The sound of feet outside the door. It was so faint that she could barely hear it. She raised her head, and light was in her eyes.

The key was in the lock; the door was swinging open. And, even in that moment, when she saw Keyes crossing the threshold, when she looked up into his face and perceived the distortion, the cruelty in the lips, the unnatural light in his eyes, even then she was sure that Hugh was going to come to her in time to save her.

During the interval between Keyes' departure from the upstairs room and his return, he went thru the final stages of a swift metamorphosis. The change had begun a few hours before, when Walker came to Seven Troughs with the news that the heavy snowfall was going to shut off the high country from the rest of the world. Things began to go wrong then, and they continued to go worse as time went on.

Like all ordinary crooks, he was an imitator, and when he had conceived this kidnaping project he was seeing visions wherein he was an outstanding figure, a second Al Capone or Harvey Bailey, sitting back and doing the planning, while others carried on and took the big risks. Before he arrived at the sheep ranch these pictures were beginning to fade.

When he learned that William White Bird and Hugh had disappeared, along with the man who had been left to guard them, the shock of imminent defeat did not prevent him from perceiving the sullenness of his followers. He realized what they were thinking of; it was the same thing that was in his mind, but theirs were slower minds—they lacked initiative, and while they were hesitating he prepared to act.

The grandiose visions of leadership had departed. Al Capone and Harvey Bailey had been replaced by others; Keyes was thinking of William Hickman and John Dillinger when he left the kitchen in search of Curly and the sheepman.

Curly and Walker had finally managed to roll the truck out from the barn. The sheepman stepped into the cab and set the motor going. He was sweating freely, for the task had been a heavy one and he had borne the brunt of it; he wiped the perspiration from his brow with his coat sleeves and his hat fell into the narrow space between the truck and the stable wall; he was getting out to recover it when Curly started to climb into the cab from the other side.

So it happened that Walker was stooping to pick up the hat and Curly's back was toward the kitchen door, and neither man saw the slight figure hurrying across the yard.

Keyes' hand dropped into the overcoat pocket, he was drawing the leveled automatic when he spoke.

"Hold it, you two."

Curly's big body hid the rest of the cab completely, and Keyes thought Walker was beside him. The revelation of his mistake came less than a second later. During the interval Curly acted boldly for the first and last time in his life.

The boldness was born of desperation. For he had seen the trend of events before Keyes had gotten the first hint; he had been waiting for this opportunity ever since he had entered the upstairs room in Seven Troughs that morning. Now that it had come, he did not propose to let it slip away.

He slid under the steering wheel with a nimbleness which was remarkable for one of his girth; his feet found the accelerator and clutch pedal, he swung the gear lever into second and the truck darted forward; it took the turn between the corner of the barn and the pigpen at a rate that threatened disaster, and it vanished before Keyes drew his weapon.

Walker was straightening up with his hat in his hand. He put his hat on and stood staring at the place where the truck had disappeared.

Just then the kitchen door opened and Monk came out. He called:

"Anything wrong?"

Keyes answered without turning his head:

"Everything's jake. Go on back in."

Gangster Tapes Walker to Steering Wheel of Car

He jerked his head toward the side of the house where the sedan was standing, and he said:

"This way, Walker. Snap into it."

And Walked snapped as he was bidden. There was no deliberation in his movements now. He walked ahead, and Keyes a pace behind; they passed the rear corner of the house and the kitchen door was out of sight. When Walker reached the car, Keyes bade him:

"Climb in." And when the order had been complied with, "Shut the door."

He saw the door swinging and glided around the rear of the sedan. Walker was setting himself on the driver's side when Keyes slid into the seat.

"Stick your hands out." Keyes' voice was silken. "Put them thru the wheel. Take hold of the steering column."

He was leaning back in the corner of the seat, he was holding the automatic in his right hand and the other hand was in the pocket of his overcoat. He brought out a roll of adhesive tape.

A long time ago, so it seemed to him—he had stuffed that roll of tape into his pocket, and with it a silk handkerchief. Things had changed since then; the handkerchief with which he had intended to blindfold Nora remained unused; the wrists which were awaiting the tape were not the ones for which it had been meant.

Things had changed greatly, but he was keeping ahead of the changes. He was in the lead and he intended to remain there.

He had the pistol on his lap. He used both hands to wrap the tape, and when the work was finished, Walker was leaning forward in the seat, his back was bent in a tight arc, his head was pressing against the wheel; his wrists were near the floor, they were bound to the steering column.

Keyes gave the job swift inspection. He tore more tape from the roll.

"Just for luck," he said, and sealed up Walker's lips.

He entered the house thru the front door. He closed the door behind him very softly and went on tiptoe thru the stuffy little room which the sheepman's wife called the parlor. He made no more sound than a prowling cat when he passed into the narrow hallway beyond and climbed the stairs. He could hear the voices of the men in the kitchen, but he was not thinking of them now. His mind was with the girl in the upper room; he was seeing new visions——

He had read these things in newspapers, he had followed blackfaced columns down to the finer print, he had scanned the successive paragraphs thru all the sordid details. And so for days he had studied the stories while they unfolded, always toward the same ugly climax.

For some reason, born of his warped mind, the end—the almost inevitable end of every story—did not impress itself upon him. But the lurid details remained before him now, the things that had shocked a reading public and made men see red. It was those things that brought the insane light into his eyes and caused his lips to take that ugly twist when he opened the door into Nora's room.

She was sitting as he had left her; the heap of clothing lay untouched beside her. His eyes shone as they went over her from head to foot. He said:

"Get up. We're going places, you and me."

Three Artists Open Colorful, Varied Shows

By Edith Weigle.

Three varied and colorful exhibitions opened this last week at the Chicago Galleries association, 215 North Michigan avenue, and will be seen there until Oct. 25. The artists whose work is on view are Marques E. Reitzel, Carl Hoerman and Frank J. Johnson.

Mr. Reitzel, who received his bachelor of fine arts degree in the school of the Art institute in 1936 and who was awarded an additional degree from Ohio State university, was for many years head of the art department in Rockford college and is now head of the State College of Art at San Jose, Cal. He has exhibited a number of times in the annual Hoosier salon here, so his paintings are well known to Chicagoans.

The canvases in the present showing are characterized by their use of bold, clean color, by their feeling for design and by their pared-down simplicity. There is not one bit of embroidery nor embellishment in any of the paintings. This artist knows exactly what he wants to say, says it with brevity and force, and then stops.

There is tremendous power in his single marine, "Cloud Banks," which is simply a broad sweep of stormy sea with a lowering sky of gray-white clouds. This same strength is felt in a landscape of lofty peaks, deep green trees and water, "Odessa Lake, Estes Park," perhaps the finest canvas in the collection and memorable for its beauty.

It is said about Degas that when he met Monet at an exhibition in which was hung one of Monet's famous paintings of a pool he said to his contemporary, "Let me get out of here! Those reflections in the water hurt my eyes." We were reminded of this remark when we gazed at Mr. Reitzel's "The Morning Route," in which the bitter cold of a winter dawn is so vividly depicted that one instinctively shivers. Another icy mood is portrayed with realism in "Night Freight," in which snowy hills rise to a yellow-fingered early morning sky behind a lonely gas station at which a big truck is stopping for fuel.

A number of California landscapes and several of the middle west complete this vigorous, richly colored, vital group of oils.

* * *

In the next gallery are landscapes created in the Michigan dune country, in the southwest and in Mexico by Carl Hoerman. Of these the most expertly brushed are "Shrine and Market at Guadalupe," "Taxco Celebration," and "A Summer Day in the Michigan Dunes." Mr. Hoerman indulges in the lavish use of brilliant color. A number of his paintings are highly imaginative, fairy-tale-like in their subject and treatment.

In this same gallery are recent portraits by Frank J. Johnson, pleasing, dignified likenesses executed in a quiet, subdued key. They are good examples of the traditional school of this form of art.

At the Katharine Kuh gallery, 540 North Michigan avenue, is a lively, stimulating, entertaining exhibition of the "Advance Guard of Advertising Artists." Here are examples of the most modern methods taken by commercial artists to put across the business message of today. These craftsmen know all the tricks of catching the eye of the reader, of holding his attention, and of neatly and quickly dispensing information.

Most of the items are close to the realm of real art. All start with one idea [and usually it's a very bright one] and then proceed to develop it with the utmost economy and clarity of type and color. Some are as fanciful and fascinating as a painting by Dali, which they closely resemble. Witty use of the montage, clever skill in repetition, varied and artistic type faces make these examples of advertising art well worth detailed study. The men represented are Frank Barr, Herbert Bayer, Lester Beall, McKnight Kauffer, Gyorgy Kepes, Herbert Matter, L. Moholy-Nagy, Paul Rand, and Ladislaw Sutnar. The exhibition continues thru this month.

Pastel portraits of children by Shirley Friend will be on view at the O'Brien galleries, 820 North Michigan avenue, starting Tuesday. Miss Friend has had a number of exhibitions here and this year's show will be enlivened by sketches of six of the leading Quiz Kids.

* * *

The fall exhibition of paintings by artist members of the South Side Art association will be opened with a musical and tea today in the galleries of the Windermere West hotel.

* * *

Oils, water colors and drawings by Lily Tolpo are hung in the west mezzanine floor of the Drake hotel under the auspices of the All Illinois Society of the Fine Arts. Landscapes, still life and portraits compose this debut of a young Chicago painter. Among the drawings is an excellent likeness of the artist's husband, Carl Tolpo, also a painter, and among the oils, a self-portrait of considerable merit.

* * *

Rudolph Weisenborn has returned to Chicago after a two month painting trip thru the southwest. And in the Old Church studio in Warrenville new paintings by Ivan L., Malvin M., and Adam Emory Albright, who have just returned from a summer at Deer Isle, Me., are on view.

The Sears Art gallery of the Elgin academy at Elgin, Ill., is starting its fall season today with a tea and an exhibition of oils, water colors and sketches by Anita Willets-Burnham. Mrs. Burnham is a resident of Winnetka and a travel lecturer.

This new portrait of Dr. Irving S. Cutter by Paul Trebilcock, Chicago artist, will be unveiled in the library of Northwestern university medical school tomorrow. Dr. Cutter, health editor of The Chicago Tribune, is dean emeritus of the school, having served it for fifteen years, and has recently been appointed state chairman of the "super" selective service medical advisory board.

Grand Chapter of OES Having Annual Session

Delegates from all over the state and national officers will be welcomed this week to the 67th annual session of the Grand chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star, to be held on Tuesday and Wednesday in the Medinah Mosque, Wabash avenue and Ohio street. Mrs. Minnie M. Caperton, worthy grand matron, and William A. Reber, worthy grand patron, will preside over an assemblage of approximately 5,000 guests.

Tributes will be paid to Mrs. Caperton and Mr. Reber and 16 other retiring grand officers at a gala dinner dance tomorrow at the Hotel Knickerbocker. Mrs. Eva Holland Hamilton, right worthy grand trustee of the general grand chapter, will be in charge.

The opening session of the convention is set for 10 o'clock on Tuesday, with Dwight H. Green, governor of Illinois, giving the address of welcome.

The Tuesday evening session will take its theme from Rodger Holden, manager of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross. After his talk, the OES Red Cross presentation will take place under the direction of Mrs. Bertha M. Eagle, state OES Red Cross chairman. Three hundred members of the order will form a living and moving Red Cross, and after the recessional each will leave a red flower to form a 50 foot floral cross.

Elections will take place at 9:30 o'clock on Wednesday, and new officers will be installed at 7:30 o'clock that evening. Mrs. Rebecca Parker of East St. Louis, and Paul Kleiner of Chicago, are slated to head the Grand chapter during the coming year.

Another large conference with Chicago interest this week is the district Altrusa meeting to be held at the Hotel Loraine, Madison, Wis., on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. Miss Gertrude Gillette, president of the Altrusa Club of Chicago, will head a large group of local delegates. The fifth district of Altrusa, which has called the conference, is made up of 28 clubs in Indiana, Illinois, and Wisconsin.

Beverly Colony Departing for Winter Homes

A harbinger of the autumn season is the number of shuttered cottages appearing in the north shore colonies from Nahant to Rockport, indications of the departure of colonists to their winter homes in Chicago, New York, Washington, and other cities. There are many, however, especially those in the Myopia district, who are planning to be in the north shore until late in November and the number of all the year-round residents is increasing year by year.

BEVERLY, MASS.

The country clubs, Myopia at Hamilton and Essex County at Manchester, are centers of activity, especially for the golfers. The season along the north shore has been an especially busy one with more entertaining and diversions than for many years. The Arts association is closing its fall exhibition this week.

The meets of the Myopia Fox and Drag hounds are attracting large fields for the morning and afternoon runs. The meets will continue until after Thanksgiving. Bayard Tuckerman Jr. and Frederick Winthrop Jr. are the joint masters of the Myopia packs this season.

Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter of Chicago are again at their Sunset Hill home at Beverly Cove after a visit in New York. They are among the early arrivals each summer and prolong their stay until well into autumn. Their home here is one of the most attractive on the shore. It is set atop a hill and commands a magnificent view of the shore. Senator Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. is a neighbor of the Carpenters.

Mrs. William Phillips of Highover, North Beverly, wife of the United States ambassador to Italy, has been elected a vice president of the Beverly Improvement society. Mrs. Phillips, whose attractive home is on the shore of Wenham lake, is one of the active members of the society which has done much to make Beverly the garden city of the north shore. Mrs. Le Baron Turner has returned to her home in Geneva after a pleasant sojourn in Annisquam.

Mrs. Joseph Leiter of Chicago was among those entertaining at dinner parties this week. Mrs. Leiter, who is at Edgewater House, her Beverly Farms home, will be on the north shore until late in October. Then Mrs. Leiter plans to return to her Du Pont Circle home in Washington for the winter. Her daughter, Mrs. Charles Claggett, has returned to Washington after a stay at Beverly Farms. Before her marriage, Mrs. Claggett [Nancy Leiter] was one of the best known yachtswomen on the north shore and her sloop, the Venture, won many of the races at the Eastern, Corinthian, and other clubs.

The Arthur G. Leonards have closed their Eastern Points home in Gloucester and have returned to their Chicago home. The Leonards have a lovely summer place at Eastern Point where the John Clays also of Chicago have a summer home.

The Rev. and Mrs. S. Lawrence Johnson of Salem are in their new home in Chicago, where the Rev. Mr. Johnson, for many years pastor of the Crombie Street Congregational church in Salem, has accepted the pastorate of the Park Manor Congregational church. Members of the Salem church gave a farewell reception in their honor and presented them with many gifts in remembrance of their fine work in Salem.

Mrs. Frederick C. Bartlett of Chicago has returned to her Beverly Cove home after a visit in New York. Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett will be at their Chapmans Corner home until late in December when they will go to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., for the winter.

Mrs. William A. Robinson, daughter of Mrs. Richard T. Crane of Chicago and Castle Hill, Ipswich, has returned to her Ipswich home after a visit to Washington.

The annual fall flower and vegetable show of the North Shore Horticultural society this week was one of the finest in years with scores of estates being represented. Mrs. William H. Moore of Chicago and Rockmarge, Prides Crossing, was the winner of many prizes.

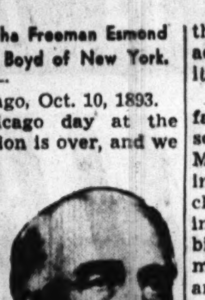
When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Oct. 10, 1893.

Dear Julia: Chicago day at the Columbian Exposition is over, and we think it will pass into history as one of the greatest peacetime festivals ever held in America. We rose early and drove to Jackson park, knowing the trains and street cars would be crowded. As we passed over the Rush street bridge, Will turned to me with the question: "Do you remember what this part of Chicago looked like 22 years ago?" Of course I did, as on that date I was running from the flames a few blocks north on Ontario street—holding little Martha's hand. Thousands of Chicagoans yesterday were remembering that disaster and marveling, as we did, at what Chicago has accomplished since then. As we look back, we can see in fancy the poor blackened skeleton of the city, in 1871, the object of the world's commiseration. Today we view our Chicago renewed and magnificent, its glory known everywhere, its name a synonym for achievement.



Gen. N. A. Miles.

By nine o'clock we were on our way south, but if we had thought of ourselves as early birds, we discovered that instead we were laggards. For we learned that ever since daybreak streams of humanity had been surging thru the streets. These streams were composed of those who had come in from the suburbs or from cities farther out. From every railroad station came veritable armies.

Will likened the crowds to battalions pushing into Michigan avenue as we drove along. The weather was all that could have been desired, our very best brand of October day, the sun radiant, the air cool but soft, with the breeze having just enough force to raise the banners on the buildings and flutter them gracefully in welcome to the incoming throngs.

We were glad to be in time to get the souvenir Columbian tickets as we entered. There had been printed 540,000, enough to care for the anticipated crowd, it was thought. But they lasted only till noon. After that those who entered had to be content with ordinary admission tickets. The officials were amazed. They thought they had provided for a large number of visitors. But lo! their estimates were exceeded by more than a 150 thousand. There were 713,647 paid admissions to the fair yesterday. Isn't it amazing?

The exercises began with a fanfare of trumpets, played by soldiers sent in from Fort Sheridan by Gen. Miles. I felt it was almost like being in heaven, when the 16 trumpeters, clad in medieval costume, appeared in the Court of Honor. On the Columbian arch of the peristyle, with its motto: "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free," appeared four of the trumpeters. To the north, over the entrance to the Liberal Arts building, were four more; four stood on the east loggia of the Administration building, and four on the Agricultural building. And they woke echoes that went flying over land and water. The music of this fanfare was written by Silas G. Pratt, Chicago composer. There were words, too, written by Major G. W. Baird, United States army, and these were printed, but not sung.

Here they are:

"Peace on earth, good will to men,
Brothers all from every zone;
To God, our Father, Him alone,
Sing we Bethlehem's song again,
Peace on earth, good will to men."

It was a pleasant thought that these trumpeters—representatives of force—were sending forth musical notes which bore a message of peace. And as the last notes died away the crowd which had listened in silence threw hats in the air and cheered to the echo. Such a well behaved crowd it was! No intoxication. No rudeness, even. We wondered if anywhere on the earth but America such a scene could be duplicated. Courtesy and thoughtfulness for others prevailed. The school children marched, representing the states of the Union. Others represented the 34 wards of the city. It was all an education for them, as well as for those who watched them.

The fireworks in the evening were superb, one of the notable scenes depicted being the burning of Chicago. Another piece showed Niagara, a grand spectacle, even tho I usually don't care for fireworks, which are so dangerous. One worker, setting off a piece, was killed.

We reached home tired to death, but feeling we had been a part of Chicago's celebration of its rising from the ashes of 1871 to its present commanding position in the world.

Ever with love,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES.

Has any reader a memory of personal participation in Chicago day at the Columbian Exposition? Were you one of the 16 trumpeters? Or, did you march in the school children's parade?

Miscellany.

E. H. McGeean, 721 North Latrobe avenue, who says he'd as soon miss his Sunday dinner as this column, would like to hear from any reader who attended a performance of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" at the Columbia theater in 1887, with a group of cash boys from Marshall Field's retail store, the evening's entertainment being a treat from Mr. Field and H. G. Selfridge's name being indorsed on the back of the admission card. . . . The Illinois State Historical society is to publish H. A. Musham's story of the Chicago fire this autumn. . . . The editor of this column has been asked to set an "Elegant Eighties" table which will be one of the exhibits at the National Restaurant Owners' association in the Furniture Mart Oct. 6 to Oct. 10. In order to get into the right spirit for this we are conning Mrs. Owens' Cook Book, published in 1884 and given us by Roy Owens, son of the remarkable woman who compiled it. Rare color prints enliven this book, showing various foods as they should appear on the table.

BUY-LINES • by Nancy Sasser
An Advertising Column of Things New and Interesting

New York, N. Y., Oct. 4th. When I introduced BUY-LINES, I brazenly suggested that we must be friends if we were to share shopping enthusiasms. Naturally I hoped . . . but being merely a "print acquaintance," I doubted that you'd take me into your confidence very soon. And there's where I underrated American friendliness . . . for each week many of you write to me, either direct to your paper or to 420 Lexington Avenue, New York. I hope this shopping-companionate bond between us will grow and that I may be increasingly helpful with information about nationally advertised products. Questions, please?

Nancy Sasser

"Now it can be told" . . . the PEPSODENT surprise hinted last Sunday! Bob Hope's Own Life Story in a 96-page book that's as amusing, as clever as Bob himself! There's an introduction by Bing Crosby, unreleased movie stills, movie star pictures, and 30 cartoons. And Bob Hope's book is YOURS for a carton from any PEPSODENT product and 10c. Don't delay—write for your copy . . . address Nancy Sasser, 420 Lexington Avenue, New York City. Here's waiting to hear from you! (Of course, this is a PEPSODENT Company gift to you . . . but I'll see that you get YOURS immediately!) 'Pon my word of honor, Bob's book is the funniest piece o' readin' you'll find this season. DON'T MISS "They Got Me Covered"!

Glub . . . glub . . . glub,—which, interpreted, means Toast by TOASTMASTER! Why? Because in Elgin, Ill., these rainbow trout are fed a good portion of the 10,000 slices of golden brown test-toast which TOASTMASTER automatic toasters MUST make each day according to toast T-perfection before they're shipped to your store counters. Yes,—actually . . . a double toast-test at the TOASTMASTER factory on each toaster before it is shipped out! Lucky fish, fed on TOASTMASTER super-excellence . . and lucky YOU, with such a toast-test to guarantee your TOASTMASTER's perfect performance.

Pity Silly Lilly! Her mirror shouts "Ugly Duckling"! Tip her off . . . a radiant complexion will give a radiant reflection! First—her skin MUST be soft-textured and lubricated . . . free from dryness "wrinkles" and scaliness! How better than with the DESTINA "beauty-twins" found at your Beauty Parlor? The fragrant DESTINA Dry Skin Night Cream is just $1 . . . rich cream tissue-builder to be applied every night before retiring. Packaged with the cream, comes the fragrant DESTINA Soap for Dry Skin,—FREE as a Farel Destin gift to YOU! Find it at Beauty Shops EXCLUSIVELY!

Horrors! New fashion whimsies to make you lovely and smart,—then one glance at those rough, work-reddened, chapped looking hands, and every illusion about Fall chic vanishes! Avoid this tragedy . . . invest in the "double duty" twins, TWO jars of PACQUINS Hand Cream! Put them to work for you, —one on the kitchen sink to be slathered on your hands when you remove them from water . . . the other on your dressing room table for nightly application. You'll bless both jars for their wonderful help in guarding that satin-smooth hand appearance! Find PACQUINS, dainty, fragrant, and hand-refreshing, at 10c, Drug and Department Store Counters!

Yes, yes . . . you'd astonish your "public" if you gadded about clad in your room-decorations! Of course,—there's no use wearing your ALEXANDER SMITH Broadloom as a toga, nor your decorating materials as accessories . . . but "wear" your rooms you MUST! So much of your life is spent in them (especially with winter coming) that their color-harmony and looks-flattery are far more important to you than dresses you change so often! So why not be realistic about room-apparel? KNOW before you buy home furnishings that they will form the loveliest background for YOU, according to your color-type! "Try-on" rooms . . . . see to it that they're Personally Yours...by having room-fittings the Colorama Selector way! You'll want to see the collection of Alexander Smith Floor-Plan Rugs and Custom-Cut Broadlooms when you view yourself against Colorama Selected room-backgrounds at the Fair Store in Chicago and Oak Park or at Carson, Pirie, Scott's.

"Sob-Saver" for Brides! . . . The Pacific Mills FACTAG label! Let Mr. FACTAG save you many a weeping spell over trousseau fashions and linens that betray their "purchase" prettiness! Just ask for the FACTAG label on all your cotton and woolen pre-nuptial buying,—and you'll know BEFOREHAND just how these fashions are going to act . . . and how you must treat them to reap their maximum value. Yes, you've scotched those words "shrinkage," "fading," and "surface pattern troubles" right from your vocabulary . . . for the FACTAG forewarns you about any fabric tendencies toward these evils, and warns you how to handle them to prevent any such mishaps! Read the Pacific Mills FACTAG label attached to ready-to-wear for authentic information as to how fabrics will behave and how you must treat them to "earn" their best behavior! You'll find the FACTAG fabric "tag" attached to every bolt of Pacific Mills piece goods . . . be sure that the person who is serving you in your Fabric Department attaches FACTAG-information slips with the yardage you buy!
